1. The job of translating Dasam Granth Sahib in English prose, with the original in Gurmukhi (Punjabi) alongwith the roman script for non-punjabi readers is not appreciated in some circles for certain reasons. But this job was entrusted to me by Baba Virsa Singh Ji of Gobind Sadan in 2002, and completed by me in 2005. Some bow the work remained unpublished due to the sudden death of Baba Virsa Singh Ji. So I am totally indebted to Gobind Sadan for the work.

2. Since the work was lying incomplete for almost ten years, I thought of publishing this work based on an English version of the Punjabi version by Dr. Rattan Singh Jaggi & Mrs. Gursharan Kaur Jaggi with their blessings. Of course the Roman Script of the original was not in the original concept, which has been added now for obvious reasons.

3. Some people have reservations about the portions of the Granth dealing with "Pakhiyan Charitar", but Baba Vira Singh Ji always believed that this portion is completely dealt with by Guru Gobind Singh Ji and I am equally convinced with it. Different views have been expressed by different people. So I owe my gratitude to Dr. Rattan Singh Jaggi & Mrs. Gursharan Kaur Jaggi for this publication.

4. I am also indebted to Major Karnail Singh of Sector 34, Chandigarh who has been of great help to me and had always given me moral support in my efforts, as President of Gurdwara Sri Guru Tegh Bahadur, Sector 34, Chandigarh.

Introduction

The original granth, called Vidya Sagar, weighing about nine maunds, including the poetry of Guru Gobind Sing Ji and other learned poets, seems to have been destroyed in the devastating currents of Sarsa Reviulet while the Guru abandoned the fort of Anandpur Sahib in 1704 and headed for Chamkaur Sahib alongwith 40 Sikhs only.

Then the first attempt to collect and combine the various remnants of different poetic versions of the Guru remaining safe with certain Sikh followers was made by Bhai Mani Singh the first Sikh Granthi of Darbar Sahib, Amritsar in the form of a Pothi about 50 years later on Bhai Deep Singh, Bhai Sukha Singh and some others made similar attempts to publish a version of Dasam Granth. Out of all these versions the most important are Bhai Mani Singh Beer, Topkhana Patiala Wali Beer (Moti BaghGurdwara) and Sri Patna Sahib Wali Beer. All these versions differ briefly in their contents due to various reasons. In 1897 Gurmat Pracharak Sabha Amritsar collected about 32 versions of this Granth. The various Banis (Poetic versions) constitute the Dasam Granth as follows :-

i) Jaap, ii) Akal Ustat, iii) Bachittar Natak, iv) Chandi Charitar-I, v) Chand Charita'r-II, vi) Vaar Sri Bhagouti Ji Ki (Vaar Durga), vii) Gyan Pralodh, viii) Choubis Avtar, ix) other Avtars (Brahma, Rudar), x) Shabad Hazarai, xi) Swaiyyas, xii) Khalsa Mehma, xiii) Shastra Naam Mala xiv) Charitar Pakhiyan and xv) Zafar Nama & (Haqaitan). In this repot Giani Sardul Singh had clarified all the doubts about its authenticity. Then in 1902 Bhai Bishan Singh (of Sangrur) confirmed its author as Guru Gobind Singh based on certain facts and reasoning. Then in 1950 Dr. Trilochan Singh also confirmed 'Dasam Granth' as authored by the Guru himself.

Now in 1999 on the inauguration of 300th Birth Anniversary of Khalsa Dr. Rattan Singh Jaggi and Dr. Gursharan Kaur Jaggi, under the patronage of Baba Virsa Singh Ji (Gobind Sadan) have published a Punjabi version of the Granth in five volumes.

The present publication of 'Dasam Granth' including the roman version of the Original Text' is an attempt to present it in English for the benefit of English Reader. This version is based on an English version of the text given by Dr. R.S. Jaggi (with his blessings and goodwill).

No individual is capable of commenting on the greatness and life of Guru Gobind Singh Ji, (Sahib-e-Kamal) and personally I feel, this effort and attempt to publish a part of his literacy poetic writings in the form of Dasam Granth in English prose is to understand his greatness and mission in life. I have no ability or capacity to mention even about his various facets of life, like war-face, creation of Khalsa, challenging the mighty emperor Aurangzeb and fighting against mughal oppression, sacrifice of the whole family (father, four sons and mother), what o talk of his literary achievements.

I could only give my opinion that the style of poetic versions in Dasam Granth in the form of various Chhands in 'Brij' alongwith Arabic and Persian vocabulary proves the point that the author of ths Granth could be none other than Guru Gobind Singh himself.

Though Sri Guru Granth Sahib was annointed (appoined) as the living Guru of the Sikhs by Guru Gobind Singh Ji, after him, Dasam Granth deserves the same respect as a literary achievementof the great Guru.

Preface

This publication had been delayed for a number of years due to various reasons; but now the original text has been included in Roman version also for the benefit of non-punjabi readers. This has resulted in the book taking a voluminous form, keeping the total number of five books only in a set of the Dasam Granth.

a) 'Jaap Sahib' is given the first prominent position in all the versions of the Granth. Just as Guru Nanak had praised the seen and unseen presence of Lord through Japji, Guru Gobind Singh has done it in Jaap Sahib by hailing the Lord with various qualities and functions. "Just as in the end, the Guru exclaims dukhalang pranasi, "dayaling saroopai sada ang sanghai, abhangang bebhootai."

b) Akal-Ustat : It is a version of prayers to The Lord in a beautiful manner. It follows the Brij version of language, with the use of Persian and Arabic vocabulary at places.

c) Bachittar Natak : Some of the other texts like Chandi Charitar, Choubis Avtar (Brahma and Rudar Avtar) are a part of Bachittar Natak only. The language used is Brij mainly, alongwith Arabic and Rajasthani at places.

d) Chandi Charitar I & II : After the details of Bachittar Natak dealing with his own life etc. Chandi Charitar in two episodes is based on Markandai Puran. It includes 233 Chhands and seven chapters; with nine Chhands dealing with the victory of 'gods' followed by the praise of goddess Durga; and the author's prayers for the attainment of unity with Lord-Sublime. In the first Chapter, 12 Chhands were used for praising the Lord, the valour and praises of the goddess is stressed. This whole episode is explained briefly in the Ist Chapter of 40 chhands dealingwith the battle and destruction of 'Mehkhasur', who had defeated the gods. Durga then promised them (gods) help finally killing Mehkhasur and giving the kingdom to god Inder; which compares well with 82nd + 83rd Chapters of Markandai Puran.

The 3rd Chapter deals with the battle against demons shumbh and Nishumbh. Detailing the beauty of goddess Durga, despatching of demon Dhrunlochan for battle against the goddess, and his final death, with the appearance of 'Kali goddess, making the battle as horrible. Chandi Charitar deals with the whole episode, including details of demons Chand and Mund (as per chapters 84, 85, 86 of the Markandai Puran), briefly but beautifully. In the 6th Chapter, after the death of demon Rakatbeej, the demons Shumbh and Nishumb came forward with a huge force but finally they were defeated and killed.

In the last chapter of nine Chhands, the gods praise the goddess. According to poet kosal this poetic description is a great expression of poetic beauty.

In the IInd Chandi Charitar there are 262 Chhands, with 8 Chapters. This is supposed to be based on Devi Bhagwat Puran and Markandai Puran as per some scholars.

Apart from the deatils of various battles against the demons, the 7th Chapter of 37 Chhands deals with the praise of the goddess. All this seems to be based on Markandai Puran and the language used includes Arabic and Persiam with the main language as Brij.

e) Vaar Durga Ki : This version in 55 Pouris is written in Punjabi language. This includes the first portion of Sikh Prayer starting with "Pritham Bhagouti Simarkai. Guru Nanak laiee dhiaie". and ending with Tegh Bahadur Simriai ghar naunidh avai dhaie'. Apart from the various battles against the demons, over to Indra god. This also refers to the Durga Sampabati from Markandai Puran.

f) Gyan Prabodh : With 336 Chhands, the first portion deals with the description of Lord's Greatness and his limitlessness, which pervadas the whole universe The Lord's Greatness is above all considrations of Caste, Colour, Creed, Time, Death Birth or any other distinctions.

g) Choubis Avtar : This deals with 24 Incarnations of Vishnu, with Krishna Avtar as the longest episode followed by Ram Avtar.

h) Miscellaneous Episodes : Shabad Hazare, Swaiyyai, Khalsa Mehma, Shastar Naam mala.

i) Charitar Pakhiyan or Triya Charitar (most debatable portion) includes Punjabi, Rajasthani, Avadhi languages with 7555 Chhands of 16 types used.

j) Zafar Nama : Letter of victory written by Guru Gobind Singh to Aurang Zeb at the end of War. Haqaitain - 11 in No are in Persian language in Story or Episode form but free from Zafar Nama.

These Hakaits begin with invocation of God, and at the end a request for His blessings has been made.

Foreword

Bhai Gurbachan Singh is a well known scholar who has written an exegesis of the entire Sri Guru Granth Sahib in Scholastic English with great dedication and devotion. He spent ten long years to accomplish this remarkable task. Besides, he has written a book in Punjabi.
'Amrit Boond Suhaavani' Which contains meanings and explanation of all the 'Pause Verses' in the Sikh scripture.
Three years ago, another idea came into his mind that he should prepare an English annotation of the 'banis' of Sri Guru Gobind Singh Ji, which is not available in the market. In this series, the first volume prepared by him is in your hands. It contains the original text in Panjabi and Roman transliteration (on the left) page followed by their translation into English (on the right). It will prove to be very useful to the English knowing readers.
A Gursikh reads or recites five "Nitnem banis' in the morning and two in the evening without fail. These include three 'banis' (compositions) of the Tenth Guru Sahib: 1. Jaap Sahib, 2. Swaiyyas Patshahi Dasvin 3. Kabio Vach Benati Choupaiee(Patshahi Dasvin). In the present time, some misguided and mistaken scholars create misconceptions about these 'banis' (compositions). While administering 'amrit', a sikh is instructed to read/recite these 'banis' (compositions) regularly. The command of the 'Panj Piaras' (Five Beloved ones) is the Guru's command, which we must obey humbly; controversy about them is uncalled for. The entire 'Jaap Sahib' composition is uttersd in praise of the Timeless Lord. In the very first stanza Guru Sahib says:
That Lord is immovable or eternal Being. He has neither any mark nor sign, not form, nor complexion, nor caste, nor clan. He is self illumined and this glory is very intense and powerful. His name is indescribable.

Therefore. I am describing his attributive names.

'who can describe all thy Names? Only men of good sense mention Thy attributive Names.'

In 'Jaap Sahib', we find words exactly parallel and synonomous to those in the 'mool mantra' (fundamental chant) from 'Ek onkar' to 'Gurprasaad' recorded at the beginning of Sri Guru Granth Sahib:

Similarity between Jap JI and Jaap Sahib is given below:-

Jap Ji	Jaap Sahib
Ek onkar	ek hai anek hai
Satnaam	Sadavang saroopai
Karta Purkh	Kariang, Sarbung karta, Samstul, Nivarai
Nir bhou	Nirbhai Abheet
Nir Vair	Namo rag roopai, Na Satrai, Namitrai
Akal moorat	Namastang akalai Nirbhoot, Rooprung
Ajooni	Ajai, Ajanmai
Saibhung	Sarab bisar rachio Garan Bhanjanhar
Gur Prasad	Tav Prasad

It is therefore, clear that the tenth Guru's composition 'Jaap Sahib' conforms to the 'bani' (Guru's utterance) enshrined in Sri Guru Granth Sahib.

The 'Chaupai Patshahee Daswin' contains the following stanza : (Takoe kar pahan unmanat)

Rank fools contemplate the Lord by making His idol holy,
For they cannot fathom this mystery,
Shiva as Eternal Lord they call,
But recognize not his secret at all (16)

Guru Sahib openly rejects idol worshkp and the worshippers of Lord Shiva. People have no knowledge and understanding of the Transcendent Lord God. They worship stone idols. They worship Lord Shiva as if he were transcendent God Himself. Who else but the Tenth Guru could administer such a warning?

In the 'swaiyyas Patshahi Daswin' have been sung the laudations of the timeless one God. We have been cautioned about the so-called dera-heads, holy men and braham-gyanis. The hollowness of the various methods of practicing Divine Name (meditation) have been exposed. We have been for-fidden to do idol worship. Only the method of practicing God's loving devotion has been prescribed for meeting and attaining God.

In the light of the facts stated above, it is absolutely clear that any controversy about these 'bani's (compositions) is uncalled for.

By annotating these compositions in English, Bhai Sahib Gurbachan Singh Ji has made a commenlable effort. English-knowing readers, who do not know Panjabi, will be immensely benefitted. Inspite of indifferent health and old age, with the Guru's grace, he is continuing to serve Gurmat literature even today. I pray to the Satguru to grant him good health and greater spiritual strength so that he may continue to render maximum service to Gurmat literature through his writings.

Narrated by the Tenth Master in Person

Chhapai Chhand :
By the grace of he Lord

O Lord ! You are without any form, figure, caste or creed. Neither anyone could describe You, as to Your shape and colour nor anyone could portray You in terms of outer configuration. (None has the capacity or comprehension to narrate or recount Your form) O Lord ! You are the perenial power, self-existent, and self-effulgent light, with inderscribable radiance and force, it is considered. O lord ! You are considered as the king of kings (erores of them) like god Indra or other gods and Lord of mighty rulers, and the Supreme Lord of the whole Universe.
O Supreme Lord ! all the three regions, Earth, Skies and the Middle or Netherlands proclaim You as their Master and the human beings, gods, or demons, including jungles, or minor plantations all proclaim and glorify You as "Infinite" ! Beyond any Count!" O Lord ! the celestial being of invisible world, earthly beings, and the evil beings of infernal regions all meadows fauna and flora, glorify You as Infinite.
O Lord! who could dare or have the power. to compile all your names or state your infinite Names.?Though I am endeavouring to recount Your functional Names through Your Grace, being blessed with the contemplation and meditation of your True Name (1)

"Bhujang Paryat Chhand"

O Lord ! our salutation to you who is free from effects of time, being Timeless, Hail to you! You are bestowing Grace and blessings on us. Hail to Thee, who is without shape or form, and are above praise or recognition. (2)

Hai to You ! O Lord ! You are not a part of any particular sect and your description is beyond our comprehension. I salute you, O Lord ! you are without any form or body and are not born (in human form). (3)

Hail to You, O Lord ! You could destroy all and at the same time. You are supporting all your Grace. O Lord ! My Salutations to you ! You could cause death to all, but are protecting all with equal bervour. (20)

O Lord ! Hail to You, You are the enlightenment of the whole Universe, being light personified (with knowledge) and You deserve all our worship and prayers by loving You. My Salutations to You O Lord ! No one ever knows Your secrets. Neither You are born like human beings, moreover You represent beauty in appearance, colour and hue. (21)

Hail to You, O Lord ! You have direct approach to all the beings in the world and all lands in equal measure. Salutations to You, O Lord ! You only are represented in the world by pleasures or bliss in a praise worthy manner, & You are also controlling the destruction or death of all individuals.(22)

Hail to You, O Lord ! You are controlling death, being a king of death personified and could cause death or even avoid it. (stop it) Salutations to You, O Lord ! You are an embodiment of kindness and succour for all. You have no single colour (shade) nor death has any effect on You. (23)

Hail to You, O Lord ! Even old age has no relevance to You. (effect on You) You are the creator and benefactor of all beings. Salutations to You, O Lord ! You are managing to run the worldly show and drama as it pleases You while You are free from the worldly bondage. (24)

Hail to You, O Lord ! You have no relatives or acquaintances. You are not afraid of any one. (do not fear anyone). Salutations to You, O Lord ! You are bestowing your blessings on all being the benefactor of all. (25)

Hail to You, O Lord ! You are so great and vast that no one knows Your limits, You are formless and limitless. O Lord ! Our Salutations to you. You are love personified and You possess great might and are acclaimed. (Everywhere). (26)

Hail to You, O Lord ! You are the greatest Yogi among Yogis (mendicants) and the greatest house-holder among the worldly people. My Salutations to You, O Lord ! You are showing your benign favours to all and sustaining all giving protection to all. (28)

"Chachri Chhand. By the Grace of the Lord !"

O Lord ! You do not possess any one form, nor there is anyone equal to you (in Power), and You are without a parallel. You are free from praise and the cycle of births. You could move very fast from place to place. You are free from the five elements and are not born even. (29)

O Lord ! It is not possible to portray You, or describe You in words nor there is any particular dress or outwardly form for You, O Lord ! there is no particular name for You and are invincible nor any particular desire or attachment bothers You. (30)

O Lord ! Your appearance or form is beyond our comprehension, so none so far has known your actual form, nor Your secrets are revealed to anyone. No one has been able to conquer You so far as You are invincible and are without any fear complex or are fearless. (31)

O Lord ! All the human beings of the three worlds worship You and You are the fountain head of all virtues and good things of life. O Lord ! You possess all the three material possessions of the world-Dharam, arth and kaam, which are accessible to us. None could ever create You, as You are unborn through human effort. (32)

O lord ! you are the lifeline or manistay of all the beings, or living bodies. You are without any beginning, or none knows about Your origin so far. None could ever gain victory over You, in fact You are the root cause of everything around but are not born with human effort. You are unborn but the origin or cause of all life on the face of the Earth (Universe). (33)

O Lord ! You are not taking birth being without any physical creation or reproduction. You are above all types of castes like khatri and brahmin and your existence does not depend on five elements (basic) but your sustenance does not depend on any individual as you are self existent. (34)

O Lord ! Salutations to You, whom the whole lot of beings recognise and worship as You are the fountain-head of all worldly treasures including all virtues. You are the greatest among all gods. You wear no particular robes or dresses to distinguish yourself and none has been able to lay his hands at Your secrets. (Nature's secrets) (44)

O Lord ! You are not at all bothered about the existence of Death, being unaffected by it and You are protecting everyone. My salutations to such a Lord who is pervading all human beings and is present in all lands, being omni-present. (45)

O Lord ! my salutations to You. You have no body-guards nor You have any master or protector. You have no companions or comrades nor anyone to challenge You as equal. You could be called the destroyer of All. O Lord ! Salutations to You ! O Lord! You are the greatest Sun on Earth or the Enlightener who has illuminated the Sun. All the greatest men of consequence worship You alone. (46)

O Lord ! Salutations to You, who has illuminated the moon also, You are like a big moon, being the origin of Moonlight glamour. You are the treasure head of the Sunshine, and its bright light. You are like a beautiful song, with a heart piercing tune. The Lord's song and drama presents a beautiful and wonderful setting. (47)

O Lord ! my salutations to You, who represents the greatest and most enchanting Dance Festival, which has bewitched the whole world. You are representing the most beautiful and bewitching sound which has enamoured the whole Universe. O Lord ! Salutations to You ! You are the greatest drum beater, who has collected the whole crowd of people by your Drum-beat. (48)

O Lord Hail to You ! You do not possess a physical body (with different limbs) and are without any Specific Name. All the beings are an embodiment of the Lord. O Lord! you could bring Dooms-day and destroy everyone. You possess such a magical power which could bring Salvation to others. (49)

Hail to You, O Lord ! You are pure without any malice or tinge of impurity due to Sins. You are of a pure existence and are the King of Kings and the greatest King and power on Earth. (50)

Hail to You, O Lord ! You are the greatest Yogi having no particular robe or dress of distinction, nor You are functioning under any doubts or whims like dual-mindedness. O Lord ! You are not engrossed in the worldly pleasurers or comforts due to false greed. Neither You have frittered away Your energies in futile efforts for worldly acquisitions or pleasures. You possess a Kingly behaviour in all Your dealings. (53)

O Lord ! Hail to You, the protector of all beings ! Moreover, You are the destroyer of all beings. O Lord ! Even all the gods and demons are Your own personification. Even the good and bad souls represent Your Great family on Earth. You are the true Master of all and are sustaining everyone with due care (as Your own duty). (54)

O Lord ! Hail to You, as You are providing the healing touch to all the suffering, humanity, being an embodiment of love, Your very existence (light) is based on love alone. You are the King of Kings and the greatest monarch or ruler of the Land.(55)

O Lord ! Hail to You, as you are a great philanthropist and benefactor and many people get honoured by Your worship. O Lord ! There are many idol worshippers, who beg for getting rid of their maladies by giving bath to the idols, as You alone are capable of helping us in eliminating our sufferings. (56)

O Lord ! Our salutations to You, as Your True Name is the greatest support to our rescue, and the greatest means of protection.
O Lord ! Hail to You, who is the greatest god among gods, and the best mode of appeasing the Lord like a magic wand. O Lord ! You are my dearest god, on whom I can depend upon. (57)

O Lord ! You are Truth personified, ever-alert and enjoying perfect bliss. You remain always blissful and could cause destruction of all. None could equal Your power and You are pervading everywhere. (58)

O lord ! Hail to You, who is bestowing us with success and achievement. You alone have blessed us with intelligence or success. O Lord ! You alone are bestowing us with more knowledge and understaning, providing success in our efforts. You are omni-present, pervading the Earth, skies and the ethereal space, (mid air) infact all places. You could destroy all the Sins (limitless) of the people. (59)

O Lord ! Hail to You, You have kept the whole world in position like the beads of a string, giving sublime music with a delicate enchanting note. You are an embodiment of love, which is of the highest and purest form, and it enables You to manage and sustain the whole world. At the same time, You are an embodiment of anger and crude might, so that the whole world is administered under the fear of Your power and might. Finally You are capable of destroying everything, as a personification of a dry spell (famine) but none could cause any harm (damage) to You. (68)

O Lord ! Salutations to You ! You are causing death and destruction everywhere, causing hardship and suffering. You are enjoying all material possessions and worldly pleasures by pervading human beings, You have won over all human beings and they are all having your fear. (They are afraid of You). (69)

O Lord ! Salutations to You ! You know all our heart's inner feelings and secrets having a fuller knowledge of the world. The vastness and expanse of Your Nature is beyond our imagination, being so great and real. O Lord ! Your True Name is really (truly) bewitching; controlling everyone with its power. You are the only force controlling all human beings. (70)

O Lord ! Hail to You ! You are keeping the Interests of human beings under Your care, thus attracting all beings towards Yourself and then bestowing them with Your love and care. You are present in all the forms and hues of life being very prominent everywhere. You are responsible for the destruction of all the three, gods, men and demons (or three worlds). Moreover You are not displaying any human form or body. (71)

O Lord ! My Salutations to You ! You are the very life-line of all human beings, and beginning of all like the seed. None could ever cause You any suffering nor could anyone divide You in parts. You are bestowing all Your benedictions and blessings on all beings, sharing with them Your bliss alongwith worldly possessions at Your pleasure. (72)

O Lord ! Hail to You ! You are the abode of Grace, and are an embodiment of kindness. You are the destroyer of all evil beings. O Lord ! All the nine treasures of worldly possessios or even occult powers are concentrated in You. So You are the representative of such powers. (73)

O Lord ! You are the benefactor of all beings, knowing their inner feelings in full, like a perfect Master. You are lending Your light and brilliance to all. The whole world thus honours You and worships You. (76)

O Lord ! You are the very life or existence of all, and the support and strength of all. Your dictates and writ runs throughout the Universe, and You are pervading everywhere. (77)

O Lord ! You are worthy of worship by all human beings, and You Know the secrets of all (hearts). You could destroy all, and are representing the same form at all times. You are protecting and maintaining all (the beings). (78)

Ruaal Chhand

By the Grace of the Lord

O Lord ! You were existing before anything else was created, but none knows Your origin. You are free from the cycle of births and deaths. You are pervading every human being, and You are limitless.

O Lord ! All the beings bow to You in obeisance and all the beings of the three worlds worship You. You are an embodiment of light and brilliance (knowledge) but no one has got an insight into Your secrets. Infact You are the origin of everything we could think of, and You are broad-minded beyond our imagination. (79)

O Lord ! You are not known by any particular Name, nor are you limited or fixed to a particular place or Abode. You have no caste or creed. You have no special form or appearance, nor any particular hue or shade nor any symbol to distinguish Yourself. You are the origin or beginning of everything in the Universe. You are pervading everywhere, and Your appearance shows Your kindness and benevolence. You are free from the cycle of Rebinths. You are ever-existent in the same form from the beginning without any change or disfigurement. O Lord ! You do not belong to any particular country, nor have any particular dress or robe. You do not possess any form or appearance nor any signs, moreover You have no worldly attachments. O Lord ! You are pervading everywhere, all the four sides and corners,as an embodiment of love. (80)

The Lord is not known by any particular Name, nor does he possess any worldly desires or we do not perceive any particular abode of His. All the human beings bow to Him and worship Him everywhere. The Lord is only one but He appears in various forms, infact He possesses many distictive features. The Lord's (worldly) drama consists of the creation of the Universe alongwith Nature, then destroying the whole Universe and merging it into one form alone, into Himself as such. (81)

Neither gods the Vedas or Katebs (the Koran) know the true picture or the Lord's secrets as none knows His secrets. (None Knows) What is His hue, colour or His caste and creed or how does He look like. No one knows, what is His appearance like. The Lord does not have a mother or father nor does He belong to any Caste nor He undergoes the cycle of births and deaths. Moreover, the dreaded scene of Lords appearance (in the form of death) pervades all the sides and corners of the world, and all the human beings of the three worlds bow to Him in obeisance. (82)

All the human beings of the fourteen worlds or the entire Universe are busy in reciting His True Name and His existence is the first one worth worshipping. No one has been able to establish Lord's origin, who has created this (wealth of) whole Universe. O Lord ! You are pervading everywhere in a perfect and limitless form. The Whole Universe has been created by the Lord, who is self-existent. Infact, the creator and destroyer (of the Universe) is the Lord Himself.(83)

The Lord is above the effects of (control) death, as He possesses power of every type. The Lord does not belong to any particular country or area, as the Supreme (being) Purkh is beyond the effects of Time (death) and pervades everywhere. The Lord is the fountain-head of true religion, above the effects of whims and dualities, moreover He does not possess a body out of five elements (like the human being) ; neither the Lord could be seen in physical form nor does He wear any particular robes or dress. The Lord has no love for the human body, nor He has any colour, Form, appearance, caste or creed or even any Name. The Lord destroys the ego and pride of some human beings ; destroys the demons against men, and bestows us with Salvation or fulfils every desire or wish of ours. (84)

The Lord had created Himself at first being self-existent; and is too deep for a probe by us, and is beyond our comprehension, as such we cannot know His secrets. No one could ever describe His Greatness or Sing His praises. He is all by Himself, the only one Lord, ever self-existent and pervades everywhere without any worldly bondage of Maya (worldly false hood)

O Lord ! You always destroy our ego, and destroy everyone. The Lord has been in existence since the beginning of the Universe, and is not controlled (affected) by the cycle of births and deaths. He is not born (like human beings) and is ever-existent. The Lord does not possess distructive forms of various beings as in reality., He is the only one who is pervading all beings and is limitless. The Lord is controlling everyone As He has supreme powers. He could destroy all, but He only protects and sustains everyone. (85)

The Lord could approach all human beings and also destroy all as it pleases Him. His robe or dress is equally distinctive. The Shastras (Hindu books of lore) even do not know. His Name or His form, nor His Colour or any aymbol describing Him. (The Lord alone knows His form) The Vedas and Puranas have described the Lord as the highest and greatest power, without any equal to Him not with standing all the Smritis (crores of) Shastras and Puranas, we cannot visualise the true form or appearance of the Lord, as He is beyond our comprehension. (86)

Madhbhar Chhand "By the Grace of the Supreme Lord"

O Lord ! You are the master of all the virtues put togeteher (a combination of all virtues) and a broad-minded benefactor. Your grateness is limitless and beyond words, which cannot be described by us. Your Abode or Palace is immovable or unshakable. (None could compare with Your Virtues) Your physical appearance is so great as to beg for description. (beyond description). (87)

O Lord ! You are omni-scient having all the knowledge of Yourself and are ever existent by day and night and are not perishable. O Lord ! All the means (and modes) of creation of this Universe are within Your Control as You are the King of Kings. (88)

O Lord ! You are the greatest King among Kings, and the greatest Sun in the firmament ; and You are providing brilliance to the Sun as well. Even the gods worship You. Your greatness is of the purest form, and the highest type. (89)

(You are omni-present with the poor people). You are the King of death even (as even death is created by You) ; in fact, death is also controlled by your will. (90)

O Lord ! You are distinct from the five elements as Your structure remains distinct without these five elements. Your brilliance and enlightenment never wanes nor is perishable. Your greatness is being discussed everywhere, but is beyond words, as it is indescribable. None could even stand the glamour or brilliance of your person and is beyond words. (91)

O Lord ! There are a number of mendicants who bow to You in obeisance all the time, neither You have any fear of everyone else (any other power) nor You possess any desires. No one could really stand the brilliance and glamour of Your enlightenment and spritual power. Your greatness could not be affected by (tempered with) anyone, in trying to reduce its importance. (92)

O Lord 1 Your system of working does not need any extra effort on Your part to function as per Your Will, as Your natural phenomenon is an eye-opener and guide for the whole world. O lord ! You are decorated and embellished with all the worldly ornamental and beautiful articles and none has the courage to view You with a demanding eye or ulterior motives, as none could punish You or try to pull You down in admonition. You are the greatest scholar with the highest common sense ; Your language being of the highest purity and sweetest like that of a great worldly professional in languages. (120)

O Lord ! Your appearance is an embodiment of beauty and You are always busy in caring for the sustenance of all beings. You are always established and fixed and ever-lasting posture in the Universe. You have created the world with such a beautiful pattern and grandeur that it cannot be upset by any means and it remains steady for all times to come. I always greet You. (121)

O Lord ! You are always victorious over Your enemies (enemies of Your saints) while You are looking after the protection and care of all humble and poor people. O Lord ! Your abode is the highest and the purest in the Universe as You are pervading everywhere in the world with the same consistency i.e. Your Kingdom of Heaven as fully established all over in equal measure. (122)

O Lord ! You are the fountain-head of the culture or protection and identification of all Your creation, and the treasure of all the care of beings, so that the sustenance of all beings is done in a perfect and satisfactory manner. O Lord ! You are the greatest enemy of all those sinners with a devilish mind, while taking care to provide sustenance and livelihood to all and sundry in a truly definite and systematic manner. O Lord ! You are like a vast and grand ocean, whilst the whole world is respresented by the onerous waves with huge velocity which permeate the whole surface of the ocean in all directions and You are pervading equally all over the Universe. No body has ever found Your secrets before nor will anybody dare to unravel Your mysteries in future, and You are ever-lasting, not subject to extinction.anytime. (like the world). O Lord ! You are caring and bestowing Your Grace and blessings on Your saints, on whom Your love is showered being dearest to You. They are the recepients of Your benedictions. On the other hand, the enemies (of holy saints) are subjected to all sorts of torture and punishment. All those self-willed persons, who disobey Your will are punished with various sentense and taught a lesson for future. (124)

O Lord ! Your existence and appearance is beyond our comprehension, so it cannot be explained or described. Your glamour and greatness is above the three-pronged worldly falsehood of lust, greed and (partial) peace. O Lord ! The whole world enjoys Your light of knowledge and brilliance of worldly possessions or material things. (The whole world enjoys Your benedictions). Your True Name is mingled with the whole Universe as You are pervading everywhere.(125)

O Lord ! You are ever-existent and permanently established in Your position, as there is no other power equal to Yours, and none could ever think of another one (power) equal to You, due to dual-mindedness. You are always victorius and brook no defeats under any circumstances as You are always the winner. You are the creator of the whole Universe at all times, O Lord ! (126)

O Lord ! You are always wishing for the safety of all human beings, and the betterment of the whole world. Yor are always without any hopes or desires for worldfly attainments. O Lord ! Your presence is felt in all direction without any obstacles. No one has been able to gauge. Your depth and vastness, and there is none equal to You nor anyone has been able to evaluate Your greatness. (127)

O Lord ! Your existence in the Universe is from the very beginning, so You are the very soul or (centre) key figure of the whole Universe. No one knows Your origin or details of Your beginning as You are self-existent. O Lord ! Neither You have any figure, body or configuration nor there is any distinctive name for you. You are capable of destroying all the three regions, in fact, You are causing death and destruction of all the beings, of the three regions (worlds) While You are responsible for the fulfilment of the hopes and aspirations of all human beings therein as well. No one could ever gain victory over You, nor anyone could ever gauge Your vastness or depth, being infinite, (indeterminate) O Lord ! All the spheres or parts of the Universe are beautiful and praiseworthy and You are caring and loving all Your creation. (129)

O Lord ! Your existence bestows joy and bliss to all the beings of the three regions (worlds). Your form and existence remains unimpaired and unaffected by time, nor anyone could ever gauge Your depth or greatness, O Lord ! You are the destroyer of hell (also) , as You are controlling the sustenance of all beings in the Universe. Infact, You alone are enjoying this human life for a short spell being the love traveller in this world and then merging in the infinite. (130)

O Lord ! Your radiance and glamour are beyond description. You are ever-existent being omni-present and are pervading everywhere. O Lord ! The human beings have always enjoyed Your presence (existence), form and wonderful Nature. You are pervading every being and all places in equal measure, being omni-present and there is none equal to You. (131)

O Lord ! Your existence is beyond description and the human beings have always enjoyed the bliss and joy of Your enlightenment. You are beyond our comprehension and are indescribable. You are pervading all forms of life and all places in the Universe and there is none other (power) equal or parallel to You. (132)

O Lord ! You are imperishable (indestructible) as You do not possess any perishable limits of the body. Neither You wear any special robes of distruction, or dress (of the sect) nor You could be depicted by anyone through a picture or painting as it is not possible to portray You. (133)

O Lord ! You have no doubts or whunsical beliefs (based on dual-mindedness), moreover You do not perform any actions, As You are not controlled by the theory of action and reward, in fact Your Will prevails everywhere. No one either knows Your origin or since when You are in existence from the beginning, through You have been self-existent from the very beginning, before Time factor was introduced and since the beginning of ages as such. O Lord ! Neither anyone could ever conquer You nor anyone could destroy You as Your existence is not subject to the combination of five basic elements (like air, water and fire) of creation unlike the creation of man. So no one could ever dislodge You from Your lofty position. (135)

O Lord ! Though this Universe is perishable, You are imperishable being its creator as You are ever-existent throughout the ages, without any change. Neither You are worried about the sustenance of this world nor any other problems or obstacles deter You from Your normal course of action and no other difficulties cause any headache to You (as everything is controlled through Your Will) (136)

O Lord ! You are completely detached and distinct from the normal worldly functions as You have no attraction for the worldly behaviour or actions. You are imperishable and an embodiment of enlightenment. (You are not affected by the darkness of ignorance or whimsical beliefs). (137)

O Lord ! You are maintaining the whole Universe after its creation but are least worried about its sustenance, a colossal job though, as You are ever-existent so there is no botheration or worry on Your part. Neither anyone could portray You through a painting or picture nor human eye could see You in Your grand posture. (as it is all beyond our comprehension). (138)

O Lord ! No one could portray You or make any effort at picturising Your personality or form as it is not possible to do so. You are not confirming to any particular dress or robe of distinction (from other sects like Yogis) nor could anyone defeat You or pull You down (in the eyes of others). You are like a vast ocean, whose depth is neither known nor could he guessed (attempted) by anyone. (139)

O Lord ! You are too great to be understood by us and are beyond our comprehension and too deep to be probed. You are the life line of all the beings in the Universe, but none has been able to know Your origin, as to since when You are in existence or any other information about Your bebinning. (140)

O Lord ! You are much different from ordinary persons, with an existence which is not ever-lasting as You are ever-existent. No one has been able to conquer You or defeat You so far. You are not born (like a human being) so You do not possess any particular caste, though You are the root cause (beginning) of everything or starting point of everything in the world. (141)

'By the Grace of the Lord'

O Lord ! You are responsible for causing destruction or death of every human being. You have approach to all the beings and You are known and acclaimed by all. You always know the secret of everybody's hearts. (142)

O Lord ! You are Yourself responsible for causing destruction and at the same time. You are responsible for creating everybody and sustaining them in the world. In fact, You are the very life line of all the things, and their strength or power as You are pervading everywhere and in every being. (143)

O Lord ! You are omni-present as such You are responsible for carrying out all functions, being present in each individual and You are fulfilling all the resposibilities of various individuals, as one performs religious functions strictly. All the arrangements are also Yours, as You are pervading everywhere and in every being. At the sametime You are completely separate and distinct, arranging Salvation for all. (144)

Rasaval Chhand
'By the Grace of the Lord'

O Lord ! Our Salutations to You ! You are destroying all the arrangements of hell for us (or You are responsible for destroying our hill-like sufferings) and You are causing enlightenment and light of Knowledge. You have no (specific) distinct features or special appearance as You do not possess any physical form (body). O Lord ! Our Salutations to You ! You are always pervading as an illuminating star and Your brilliance or radiance is ever-existent. (145)

O Lord ! My salutations to You ! You could destroy all the enemies and tyrants who ill-treat Your holy saints causing them sufferings. You are always supporting eveyone and helping the week and down-trodden. Your existence and appearance is like a vast and deep ocean which is beyond our comprehension. Your glittering radiance spreads in all directions without any hindrance and Your brilliant presence causes enlightenment everywhere. (146)

O Lord ! Our Salutations to You ! Your existence and appearance is beyond any description as You do not possess any physical form (body). You are not having any distinctive name. as You are known by many names. O Lord ! You are the master of all three regions and You are fulfilling the hopes and desires of all human beings of all regions. You are ever-existent, being imperishable. O Lord ! Your existence is complete and full in all respects and none could equal You, as there is no parallel to You. (147)

'By the Grace of the Lord'

O Lord 1 Your illumined and radiant existence appears openly and practically could be seen by anybody as You are omni-present. You are the companion or friend of everyone, giving protection to all. You are ever-existent in the same form. Everyone sings Your praises, O Lord ! and all speak the same language as it pleases You, being of the same sweetness as Your True Name. (150)

O Lord ! You are the master of the highest intelligence and a fountain-head of beauty and glamour. O Lord ! You are the perfect benefactor bestowing all Your blessings and giving livelihood to all the beings through Your grace. (151)

O Lord ! You are giving all material requirements for livelihood to mankind and alongwith material wealth You are bestowing Salvation on us. O Lord ! You are a wonderful benefactor, giving various benedictions to us. You are having the serene beauty of the moon, being the most magnificent light in the Universe. (152)

O Lord ! You are controlling Your enemies (enemies of our saints) by demanding money for Compensation (like war crimes) but You are protecting the interests of the poor and down-trodden and bestowing greatness on them. O Lord ! All the enemies who try to oppose You are defeated and destroyed. There is no question of fear-Complex coming near You, as You would discard it far away. (You are wiping away fear-complex). The enemies have never conquered You, and You are the benefactor of all human beings, bestowing them with Your Grace and kindness.(154)

O Lord ! You are present within all the human beings, so it is You, who are speaking within each individual. You are the fountain-head of all enlightenment and glamour around us. You are the destroyer of hell and are dwelling in the heavens as well. (Yourself) (No suffering comes near You, and all the time joy and happiness of heaven is felt here). (155)

O Lord ! You have access to all human beings as You are omni-present ; and You are a personification of joy and bliss all the time. O Lord ! You are looking after and protecting the interests of all human beings, and are a darling or dear to one and all. (156)

O Lord ! You are the greatest Master or the true-Lord Yourself and You are the master of all from the very beginning. Neither You have any particular Abode (place of residence), nor there is any portrait or description of Yours, and there is no particular role or dress distinguishing You from others, so You are without any distinctive form (dress.) (157)

You are present all over the land, as You are pervading everyhere, Your indications and signs are too deep to be understood and no one has been able to appreciate or probe Your secrets so far. You are a perfect benefactor, and Your beauty and bravery are acclaimed all over the Universe,being of the highest order, as You are brave and smart. (158)

Madhbhar Chhand 'By the Grace of the Lord'

O Lord ! Your glamour and enlightenment never goes down beyond a certain limit, so nothing changes. Your fragrance and aroma is beyond description as none could even imagine its strength or evaluate it. O Lord ! Your form (appearance) is wonderful and beyond our imagination and Your brilliance and glamour is beyond any estimate or limits, and Your beauty is superb. (159)

O Lord ! Your creation is so vast that it is beyond description, being too spread out and You are the Master of all this wonderful layout. You are an embodiment of light (Knowledge) and beauty, and the fountain-head of all glittering beauty. You are without any physical form and never falter from the tuth path. O Lord ! You are limitless and imperishable, as such Your greatness and glamour lasts longer and knows no limits or explanation. (160)

O Lord ! even the Rishis and Munis, the mendicants of a high order salute You in their hearts, as You are the Master of all virtues. Even the bravest enemies could not conquer You or defeat You. You are the master or leader of all the human beings and You alone are responsible for their destruction as well. (161)

O Lord ! Innumerable persons salute You and hail You as the greatest power on Earth, while the persons performing penance and worship also pay obeisance to You within their hearts, You are the only perfect being amongst all the human beings, as You are the embodiment of perfection, with no parallel, and with all the virtues within Yourself. You are much higher than the human beings and do not need any beautification or embellishments, being of unimaginable power and beauty. (162)

O Imperishable formless Lord ! You are an embodiment of Knowledge, and You alone are bestowing enlightenment to the learned Munis. (absetics) O Lord ! Master of all virtues ! Our Salutations to You ! You are ever-existent in all the Lands and Oceans and are pervading everywhere being omni-present. (163)

O Lord ! Your form is ever new and fresh, and never becomes stale or old, and never undergoes any change for the worse. Your abode is as immovable as anything, and there is none equal to You, and Your gratness is beyond our comprehension. O Lord ! You are omni-present, being present everywhere in one form, with only one appearance and presentation. You are the beginning of everything in the world. It is rather difficult to describe You and it is beyond us to find out Your origin. O Lord ! You could destroy all the enemies in a moment, You are the greatest and are unaffected by Time or death, as You are immortal and ever-existent. (167)

O Lord ! All the human beings worship You in their homes and salutes You, having inculated Your love (Your lotus feet) in their hearts and meditate on true Name fully immersed in Your worship. Your form is ever new (green) and never gets old and You are never in need of anything. (168)

O Lord ! Your existence is above all the worldly bickerings, but You are never annoyed with human beings on their short-comings. Your blessings and gifts to the man-kind are never in short-supply and You are bestowing (Your) material wealth with a broad smile. You are limitless but cannot be established in a fixed position like the statutes of gods, but no one has ever found the limits of Your existence as it is beyond us. (169)

O Lord ! Your form and practice of religious duties are not to be seen anywhere as there is no indication of any sign or symbol depiciting You. You are controlling (running) the show of this worldly drama in a perfect order. O Lord ! You are limitless, the greatest benefactor and none could ever belittle You. (tarnish Your image) (170)

You are the King of Kings, and the King of the King of the gods, Indra even. O Lord ! Our Salutations to You. You represent the total darkness also and the power to illuminate all around. O Lord ! Hail to You ! You are the collective gathering of various types of human beings, and also the formless presentation of the Lord Himself. (This world, seen and unseen, are both representative of Your presence). (185)

O Lord ! Hail to You! The three-pronged Maya (worldly falsehood) i.e. lust for power, greed and partial peace have taken birth from You only. Our Salutations to You, the Primal Soul, and Your form is free from the three-pronged worldly activity. Our Salutations to You ! You are representing the most toughest form of penance or the great knowledge on Earth. You are the greatest mantar (spell), prayer for acquiring wealth and the most difficult posture of trance or meditation. (O Lord ! Your Name is everything for us, the penance, knowledge, mantar or pose for meditation). (186)

O Lord ! Salutations to You ! You are the conqueror of enemies in the wars and Your Name is the greatest and purest form of knowledge. You are the sustainer of all beings at all times, and the power to sustain is within Your Control. You are responsible for creating bickerings and quarrels in the world and You are an embodiment of peaceful existence also. Bhujang Prayat Chhand

My Salutations to the Lord, worthy of worship. He is the destroyer of all. O Lord ! You are invincible and do not possess any one Name. You are pervading all the human beings, and are established in position. Hail to the Lord ! His detachment is his biggest asset for His light and glamorous form, in fact, all the beings of the world (human and animal Kingdom) are requesting Your form. O Lord ! You are the destroyer of all sins and Sinful actions. Your geatness lies in carrying out Your functions and duties. (197)

(The Lord is devoid of any desires, is performing all His functions including Sustenance of the world, while His grandeur and greatness are witnessed by us.) O Lord ! Hail to You ! You are an embodiment of Truth, consciousness and bliss ; and You are representing surely conciousness and joy or bliss. You are the destroyer of Your enemies and the greatest benefactor of all. You are the creator of all and are pervading all human beings equally. O Lord ! Your form is really wonderful and full of grandeur. You are causing unknown miseries to Your enemies. You are the destroyer of all and the creator of all at the same time. You are the benefactor and bestower of Grace and mercy to all mankind. (198)

O Lord ! Hail to You ! You are pervading all the four sides and the whole world, While Your Will prevails over the whole Universe. You are self existent and most beautiful and are pervading everywhere.O Lord ! You could destroy all the suffering caused by the cycle of births and deaths and are an embodiment of Grace and kindness. You are truthful, and are the support of all beings and Your grandeur and greatness is permanent and imperishable. (199)

'Choupaiee-(Composition of Four Stanzas)

My salutations to the Formless Lord (of one Form-Imperishable) first of all, who has created everything including Oceans, lands, and Skies (the ethereal Space), the only God-head in the beginning, (Timeless Supreme Being), Formless and Imperishable Lord, who has illuminated and enlightened all the fourteen regions of the Universe (with His light of Knowledge). (1)

The Lord, who is pervading all beings, including the elephant and the ant (from biggest to the smallest being) and has treated (sustained) all beings including the King and beggar on par (with equal care) is free from dual-mindedness ; is imperceivable, Indescribable, and beyond our comprehension, and is omni-potent, knowing all our inner feelings (our mindset), having all knowledge. (2)

He is Unseen, Indestructible (Imperishable Death-less) and (free from any outer appearance) formless ; neither. He is having any shape, colour nor anyone could portray His configuration. He is above all Virnas (four castes like Brahmins, Kashatriyas) and symbols (birth marks) and incomparable ; the pereneal Supreme Being, without attachments and free from all vices. (None has the capacity or comprehension to narrate or recount Your form, being self-effulgent light having indescribable radiance). (3)

The Lord has no signs(symptoms) Varnas, caste or creed, has no friends or foes, has no parents (mother or father) ; He is a distant being though the nearest being (being close by, though we perceive Him as a being from distant lands). He abides in all lands, seas and the skies being omni-present. (4)

His form is infinite beyond any description, and is the Greatest being having no limits with a speech like Unstrung Music (emanating from space) The goddess of worldly wealth (Maya) is taking the support of His lotus-feet, (In His support, the treasures of the world are available) Even gods like Brahma and Vishnu have not known His limits. (He is beyond the comprehension of gods being infinite and limitless) . The god Brahma with his four faces (four tongues), has described Him as beyond description and infinite without any limits. (5)

The Lord has created millions of gods like Indra and Upindra (Vaman incarnations); He has created gods like Brahma and Shiva and sustained them, (with his might), who get perished also through 'Him. He has enacted His worldly drama of creation with fourteen regions (creation of Universe) which finally merge with Him only. (He creates and destroys the Universe at Will) (6)

He is not related to any particular (culture) race : in fact He is pervading all the forms of human beings. (His light is immanent from all beings), and He has been perceived being present at all places. (He is omni-present). (8)

He is free from Death (Imperishable) and His form is free from destruction. (His form is beyond the reach of god of death). He is fathomless (beyond our comprehension), Indeseribable Supreme-being and free from the reach of worldly falsehood (Unaffected by Maya). He has no caste or creed, colour or race, sign or symbol. He is above human comprehension, Imperishable and free from all doubts or misgivings, a manifestation of supreme being. (Almighty). (9)

He is destroyer of all beings and is responsible for eradication, of all sins, afflictions and sadness. Whosoever remembers Him for a moment with full concentration of mind, escapes the clutches of the god of death. (10)

"By thy Grace" Kabit (Poetic Song)

O Lord ! You have enbellished the mind with enlightenment and beauty, being an active manifestation of knowledge and cleverness at times, while at other times You are perceived resting in the Slumber of inactivity and free from all worries (all responsibilities). You are perceived at times begging for alms, whereas at other times You are perceived as an embodiment of donations (a Great donor), distributing (always) wealth to the poor and needy. You have been perceived lending (distributing)-in plenty to the Kings even at times, while at other times, You are divesting kings of their domain (Kingdom). You have been perceived proclaiming the rule of Vedas (the knowledge of Vedas) at times while at other times Your dictates are against the Vedic pronounncements. At times You are seen above the effects of the three pronged worldly falsehood (Maya-representing the cult of richness, greed or peace) whereas at other times You are perceived engrossed in the three-peonged Maya (worldly falsehood)

(O Lord ! Your greatness and Vastness is beyond our comprehension as You are omni-present and omni-potent). (11)

O Lord ! You are seen at times worshipping gods (in worship of gods) among musicians of gods like a Snake (reptiles) or immersed in studies while at other times we perceive You as a horse-faced human being (in the court of Brahma, the god) or as a demon even. At times You are Hindu worshipper saying the Gaitri Mantra (saying Gaitri prayers) in secrecy while at other times You are seen as a Muslim giving the call for prayers (in a mosque) like a Musalman. At times You are seen readig the Puranas (Hindu literature) as a Kok-poet (a great Brahmin Scholar) while at other times You are seen reading Koran the Muslim holy book, like a great scholar of Koran. At times You are seen following the vedic rites while at times You are totally against the Vedas. At times You are free from the effects of three-pronged Maya (worldly falsehood) whereas at other times You are engrossed fully in the three-pronged Maya only (worldly falsehood). (O Lord ! You are perceived in various forms of worship, in prayers or engrossed in worldly pleasures, being omni-present). (12)

O Lord ! At times You are perceived seated in the company of gods (congregations of gods), while at other times You are equally emphatic in guiding the demons in their egoistic tendencies. At times You are bestowing the Kingdom of Heavens to god Indra while at other times You have taken away this kingdom of heaven from the god Indra. (and kept in hiding). You are perceived among the most wicked persons engrossed in vicious and sinful actions while at other times You are engaged in virtuous actions as a pious person. At times You are perceived in the love of the wife only whole at other times You are seen among persons involved in the love of other's spouses. (You are the centre of love with one's own wife only or even the others person's wife) You are perceived in the study of Vedas and Vedic rites or completely against the Vedic principles. You alone are perceived engrossed in worldly falsehood (Maya) or totally free from its effects. O Lord ! You are seen abiding in all beings, engaged in good or vicious acts. (13)

(O Lord !) At (times) places, You are engaged in the discourses about the supreme-Being or the discussions doubts and misgivings about the (education) study (of the Lord-Almighty). At times You are an embodiment of the Natural Unstrung Music, or You are completely immersed in the songs of the Unstrung music of Nature like a holy saint at other times. Sometimes You are busy in the study of Vedas or You are having full faith in these studies. There is complete Nature's Principles or Rules at times while at other times You are totally ignorant of these rules. (against these Principles). Else You are resplendent like the burning fire (resplendent light). At times You are a personification of complete (Perfect) and powerful Being or else You are engaged in a lovely posture of meditation (Silent meditation). At times You are the Supreme Being, unattainable through penance or Incomprensible Lord-Almighty. At other times You (represent) have fallen from the pursuit of attaining the Lord through Yogic exercises (efforts of a mendicant). Then again You are responsible for rewarding the others (human beings for their efforts), or else You are responsible for snatching away these rewards through treachery (cleverness). But O Lord ! I have perceived You at all times and at all places in the same standard posture. (as omni-present) and omni-potent Lord-Almighty. (20)

'By the Grace of the Lord –Swayyai.
(Songs of Eloquent Praise)

Being a Bodhi Bhikshu of pure soul and conscience I have been to the place of perfect Yogis and seen the abodes of Yogis, mendicants or celibates and visited even the place of great warriors, demons or gods partaking nectar or even some saints of other sects (denominations) but without any success.

I have even visited some sects of other countries, big and small, far and near, but have not come across any such faith (religion) which talks about Lord Almighty or shows us the path of uniting with the Lord. But all the religions put together would have no value whatsoever in case we have not developed faith and love for the Lord and the Lord has not bestowed His Grace on us. If we are devoid of this love of the Lord, then all these valuables in the form of various sects are of no value, not even worth a stone. (21)

In case someone were to possess elephants, who are decorated with gold ornaments and robes, they look beautiful in their tall grandeur, and are embelished with different hues, and are like drunken elephants with the ego of I-am-ness, but without the support of the Lord, are all useless. If one were to have millions of fast steeds, who race (run) faster than the (speed of) wind, and pose a challenge to its speed being as fast as the deer. Even if there were Kings who are as brave as anything (as lion) but are without any count and bow to the Lord in obeisance, what will be the use of all this grandeur and authority, even if theybecome such powerful kings ? Not-with standing all the greatness, one will proceed with bare feet after death, to the next world while leaving this world. (22)

If there were some Kings, who conquer some other countries (small and big) far and near and celebrate this (success) with the beating of drums, or the beat of other heavy (large) cymbols and even beautiful and drunken elephants, decorated with multi-coloured beautiful embellishments, make noise within their establishments along with the braying of horses in their stables, but all this grandeur would be of no avail. Such Kings have existed in the past and are there even now and will always be there in future as well, so what use is all this greatness without the remembrance of the Lord ? (or Lord's worship) ! Such people engrossed in worldly falsehood (Maya), being forgetful of the Lord, proceed to the Yama's land (are caught in the Yama's noose) in the absence of True Name leaving all the worldly pleasures in this world and getting caught by the god of death. (23)

If someone were to bathe at the holy places of pilgrimage, and were to give alms to the poor by feeling pity and kindness towards them or tries to control the mind, (with all sorts of methods) from vicious thoughts and sinful actions in an effort to gain concentration of mind, but it is all useless. Even if someone were to study Vedas, Puranas and Koran (semetic books), including all the religious books of the world, it would be of no consequence. Or if some one to gain occult powers, so as to live (Sustain) on air alone, or live a life of celibacy, and tries all other metods of living a life of discipline (control) and thinks about such means of life, it would be futile. Infact, without the recitation of Lord's True-Name (The True Master of the world), all other activities mentioned above, will not lead to any success and will not be taken into account by the Lord. So we should always depend on Lord's True Name alone. (24)

If there are (very) brave warriors, tested in their valour, whom none could challenge, as they could destroy their enemies by wearing the armour of protection during war. If they were full of ego, feeling that they will not desert their post (duty) in the battle field inspite of the mountain like power of their opponents. If they could destroy (over power) their enemies by surmounting all the opponents and could conquer even drunken elephants with all their might, but all this power will be of no avail in the end without the Lord's Grace as even such brave men leave this world empty handed and do not find favour with the Lord. (25)

Great warriors, who are very brave and could bear the brunt of arms without effort or care and would destroy all opponents after winning over various countries of the world and could control even drunken elephants with all their might. They could occupy many forts, the strongholds of enemy, and conquer the whole land with ease, but the same people are seen begging for the Lord's Support at the Lord's Court as He is the benefactor of all. Infact, He is the Master of the worldly falsehood (Maya) and the Lord-spouse of all the beings in the world. (26)

If someone were to conquer the devils and demons or even Sheshnag, the King Cobra, who is supposed (by some) to be supporting the (whole) Earth as per Hindu belief or who would remember the Lord all the time whether past, present or future even. They serve the Lord who has the power to create all the beings of the world whether on land or in the sea (waters) in no time. Even if there were gods, demons or ghosts whose good work wins applause and their sinful actions are washed away. However, the saints of the Lord move around with flying colours (with honour) whereas the clever and vily persons go down or insignificant and pale (unknown) before these holy saints. (27)

The person, who become undisputed Kings, being masters of huge elephants and control the whole world, or some persons who bathe at many (crores of) holy places and give away elephants in alms, and get married at organised (functions) assemblies like swamber, Even gods like Brahma, Shiva, Vishnu or Indra with great powers finally get caught in the clutches of death. It is only few persons, who are immersed in the love of the Lord, by falling at the lotus-feet of the Lord and could save themselves from the cycle of births and deaths ; Apart from these all other great men undergo sufferings by going through the cycle of Rebirths. (28)

If someone were to close his eyes and with closed eyes like that of the crane, would pose to be busy with the love of the Lord, but all this would be of no avail. Even if somone were to bathe in all the Seven Seas of the world, or the holy places of worship connected withthem, one would be wasting this life as well as the next (in the next world) as without the meditation of Lord's True Name all the effort would be wasteful. If somone develops love for the vices or sinful actions, with full knowledge, then the life would be a total loss or waste. O Brother ! Listen to me carefully, as this is true (a truthful matter). The person who has developed love of the Lord through the company of holy saints (Lord), has won over the lord Through Love. Rest all other efforts at meditation, bathing at holy places or penance are a sheer waste being fruitless and without any gain. (29)

Some persons have worshiped the Stones and Kept it on the head in reverence or someone has made Shiva's lingam out of stone and worn it round the neck like a garland. Some people have considered the Lord to be abiding in the south or someone else bellieves the Lord to be present in the West and bow before God present in Kaaba, the muslim holy place. Someone worships the Lord in the form of Statues of stone, while some others worship the graves, thinking the Lord to be present in the graveyard. So the whole world is engrossed in false and untrue practices but none has been able to lay his hands on the secrets of nature, or the Lord's secrets. (30)

By the Grace of the Lord

Tommar Chhand

The Lord is free from the cycle of births and deaths, and has all the knowledge of eighteen scholarly Studies (including Four Vedas, Six Shastras, Meemansa, Niace, Widia Smritis Purans, Ayur Ved, DhanurVed, Gandharav Ved, and Niti Shastra) being omni-scient ; O Lord ! You are free from blemish and are beyond our Comprehension (being Infinite); and Your resplendent beauty never fades (dies down) (31)

The Lord is pervading in a hidden form in all beings and is free from all vices, (Untouched) and is greatest manifestation of all the holy saints in the world. He is embodiment of praise, the support (mainstay) of Earth and the Sun and the treasure of eighteen occult powers (Sidhis). (32)

The Lord is blemishless and His Greatness and Vastness is beyond our comprehension. He is a destroyer of all wordly sorrows and is free from all worldly religious formalities (formal rituals), and is an expert exponent of all virtues and religious deeds. (33)

The Lord possesses an undivided and immeasurable mighty appearance (radiant form), and has placed in position all the possible activities, (everything is placed in proper position/ perspective for proper functioning). No one knows the secrets of the Lord (Nature's secrets) free from all sorrow and afflictions, whose praises are being sung by the four-faced god, Brahma through the recitation of Vedas. (34)

The Lord who is proclaimed by the Vedas as the greatest and Limitless Lord and who is Unappesable (unaffected), and is with immeasureable radiance and might appears indivisable, not capable of demarcation and beyond, positioned in space. (35)

The lord who has enacted this worldly drama, and has created all thoughts in their proper perspective, who is limitless and greatest but His might is indescribable and limitless. (36)

The Lord, who has created the whole Universe from the egg and then having created the fourteen regions, he has completed. His worldly drama and He has an in-describable form and bountiful beyond our reach. (37)

The Lord, who has created crores of (millions) gods like King Indra and then created many religions being according to Brahma and Vishnu (gods) beliefs. He has created Ram Krishna, and Rasool (Mohamad) but none, without the worship of the Lord, ever gets accepted in the Lord's court. (38)

The Lord has created many oceans, Sumer like mountains, big fish and tortoise or sheshnag (cobras), He has created many gods and their sons (Sons of Brahma) and has also created many incarnations like Krishna and Vishnu. (39)

There are many gods like Indra, Sweeping at the gates of the Lord, while there are many (innumerable) Vedas or gods like Brahma and mean faced (Weeping sons) Shivas while He has created many (charming) unique personalities like Rama and Krishna. (40)

Many study Kok-Shastra (Sex-literature) or other poetry while many others have brought out the importance of Vedas. (described the essence of Vedas) There are many others who explain the meaning of Shastras or Smritis (who Study the Shastras) while some narrate the sermons of puranas (Hindu Scriptures). (41)

There are some engaged in offering prayers through sacrificial fires while some others hang themselves upside down as a penance, there are some sanyasis (mendicants) who raise their arms in performing Yoga (penance of various types). There are many Yogis dressed (as per their sect) unlike the worldly people and roam around carelessly.(unmindful of others) (42)

There are some persons engaged in yogic exercises (with nose blocked) while many others perform difficult act of living on air (Yogic exercises involving control of breathing process) (without taking any solid food). Some others give alms (of various things like Gold, or costly items) at holy places of pilgrimage while some others are engaged in performing Yogna (sacrificial fires) with religious fervour. (43)

Somewhere we find people engaged in incomparable fire-worship (sacrificial) while somewhere else people are engaged in justice based on grandeur and beauty. At places the customs and traditions based on Shastras and smritis (Hindu books of lore) are being followed, whereas at places things are happening totally against the Vedas. (Instructions of Vedas). (44)

Some people are roaming around (far and wide) distant lands, while some others are stuck to a single place. (positioned) Some persons are engaged in prayers (worship) standing in waters, while some others bear the brunt of sunshine on their bodies.(45)

Through the Grace of the Lord
Kabit (Poetic Description)

If Salvation could be attained in filth the pig always eats garbage ; (if salvation lies in rubbing ash on body), then the elephantand donkey are always throwing dust on their bodies (lying in dust) ; if Salvation is gained in the graveyard then the jackals always roam around in the graves. (Salvation cannot be gained by such futile efforts) (Why cannot jackals, donkeys, elephants or pigs gain salvation ?) In case Salvation lies in abiding in monastery (hermitage) the owls always hang around such places ; If Salvation is to be gained by visiting places (travelling around) then animals like deer are roaming around like (udasis) hermits. If salvations lies in observing Silence, then the trees die down in their Silent Stillness. If Salvation lies in controlling Sex (subduing Sexual desives like celileates) the the eunch would be rewarded with Salvations. If moving bare footed could bring Salvation, then monkeys, always moving barefeet, should gain Salvation ?) Similarly the persons, serving the woman-folk (fair sex) and engrossed in worldly pleasures like sexual desires, anger or other vicious thoughts, without the Knowledge of the Lord, could never cross the ocean of life successfully. (How could ordinary human being with all his failings gain salvation ?) (1-71)

ਭੂਤ ਬਨਚਾਰੀ, ਛਿਤ ਛਉਨਾ ਸਭੈ ਦੁਧਾਧਾਰੀ ; ਪਉਨ ਕੇ ਅਹਾਰੀ, ਸੁ ਭੁਜੰਗ ਜਾਨੀਅਤੁ ਹੈ' ।
ਤ੍ਰਿਣ ਕੇ ਭਛਯਾ, ਧਨ ਲੋਭ ਕੇ ਤਜੰਯਾ ; ਤੇ ਤੌ ਗਊਅਨ ਕੇ ਜੱਯ, ਬ੍ਰਿਖ-ਭਯਾ ਮਾਨੀਅਤੁ ਹੈ' ।
ਨਭ ਕੇ ਉਡਯਾ, ਤਾਹਿ ਪੰਛੀ ਕੀ ਬਡਯਾ ਦੇਤ ; ਬਗੁਲਾ, ਬਿੜਾਲ ਬ੍ਰਿਕ ਧਿਆਨੀ ਨਾਨੀਅਤੁ ਹੈ' ।
ਜੇਤੇ ਬਡੇ ਗਿਆਨੀ, ਤਿਨੇ ਜਾਨੀ ਪੈ ਅਖਾਨੀ ਨਾਹਿ ; ਐਸੇ ਨ ਪ੍ਰਪੰਚ, ਮਨਿ ਭੂਲਿ ਆਨੀਅਤੁ ਹੈ । ੭੨

Bhoot banchari, cheit chhouna sabhai doodhadhari.
pavan ke ahari, so bhujang janiat hai.
trin ke bhachhehia, dham lobh ke tajeiya.
te tou gooan ke jaieya, brikh-pheiya maniathain.
nabh ke udeiya, tahan panchhi ki badaiya det.
bagula birral , brick dhiani maniat hai.
jaitai bade gyani, tenai jani pai bakhani.
aisai na prapanch, mai bhool aniyat hai. (72)

ਭੂਮਿ ਕ ਬੀਸਯਾ, ਤਾਹਿ ਭੂਚਰੀ ਕੇ ਜੱਯਾ ਕਹੈ ; ਨਭ ਕੇ ਉਡੰਯਾ, ਸੋ ਚਿਰੰਯਾ ਕੇ ਬਖਾਨਿਐ ।
ਫਲ ਕੇ ਭਛੱਯਾ, ਤਾਹਿ ਬਾ'ਦਰੀ ਕੇ ਜੱਯਾ ਕਹੈ ; ਆਦਿਸ ਫਿਰੱਯਾ, ਤੇ ਤੋ ਭੂਤ ਕੈ ਪਛਾਨੀਐ ।
ਜਲ ਕੇ ਤਰਯਾ ਕੇ, ਗੰਗੇਰੀ ਸੀ ਕਹਤ ਜਗ ; ਆਗ ਕੇ ਭਛੰਯਾ, ਸੋ ਚਕੋਰ ਸਮ ਮਾਨੀਐ ।
ਸੂਰਜ ਸਿਵੱਯਾ, ਤਾਹਿ ਕਉਲ ਕੀ ਬਡੱਯਾ ਦੇਤ ; ਚੰਦ੍ਰਮਾ ਸਿਵੱਯਾ ਕੇ, ਕਵੀ ਕੈ ਪਹਿਚਾਨੀਐ । ੭੩

Bhoom ke baseiya, tahain bhuchari ke jeya kehai.
Nabh ke udeiya, so chireya ke bakhaniai.
phal ke bhachheiya, tahein bandri ke jeya keha (n)
adis phiriya, te tou bhoot kai pachhaniai.
jal ke treya, ko gageri si kehat jag.
aag ke bhachheiya, so chakar suni maniai.
sooraj saveija, tahein kaul ki badeiya deit.
Chandrima saveiya ko, kais kai peh chania. (73)

ਨਰਾਇਨ ਕੱਛ ਮੱਛ, ਤੇ'ਦੁਆ ਕਹਤ ਸਭ ; ਕਉਲਨਾਭਿ, ਕਉਲ ਜਿਹ ਤਾਲ ਮੈ ਰਹਤੁ ਹੈ ।
ਗੋਪੀਨਾਥ-ਗੁਜਰ, ਗੋਪਾਲ ਸਬੈ ਧੋਨਚਾਰੀ ; ਰਿਖੀਕੇਮ ਨਾਮ ਕੇ, ਮਹੰਤ ਲਹੀਅਤ ਹੈ'।

ਮੂੜ੍ਹ ਰੂੜ੍ਹ ਪੀਟਤ, ਨ ਗੂੜ੍ਹਤਾ ਕੋ ਭੇਦ ਪਾਵੈ' ; ਪੂਜਤ ਨ ਤਾਹਿ, ਜਲ ਕੇ ਰਾਖੇ ਰਹੀਅਤੁ ਹੈ' । ੭੪

Naraiyan kachh machh, taindua kehat sabh.
Kaulnabhi, kaul jeya tal mein rahutu hai.
Gopinath-Goojar, Gopal sabhi dhanchari.
rikhikes naam kai, mahant lahiat hain.
madhav Bhavar ai ateru, ko kaneya naam.
kans ko badheiya, jamdoot kehiyat hain.
moor(h) roor (h) peetat, na goorta ko bhed pavai(N)
Poojat na tahe, ja ke rakhai rehiai hain. (74)

The ghosts (evil spirits) roam around the jungles (foresets) while all the children of the surface of the Earth are sustained (kept alive) by the mother's milk ; the animals living on air (seeking sustenance from the air) are called snakes, wehereas the grass-eaters and those persons free from the greed of money or material possessions, are to be considered the male off-springs of the cows (as they are supposed to be working coninuously without any greed). The persons, soar high in the skies (due to their occult powers), desires to bepraised), the approbation of the birds. The cranes, Tom-cats and wolves are to be called meditators (engaged in meditation) as they are always concentrating (on their pray with closed eyes with full concentration). All the great thinkers and scholars have realised the true value of these hypocreate displays (shows) but have not explained it to others (as such we say with authority). As such we should not inculate such deceitful (hypocracy) thoughts in our mind even by default. (72)

The persons abiding on land are called products of earth (like herbs, grass or bandicool rat), whereas those soaring high on the skies are to be called sparrows, while those sustaining themselves on fruits should be called the offspring of monkeys, whereas those persons moving unseen around (unperceptibles) are to be considered ghosts. The creatures floating in water are called by the world water-weaves (the creature flying in the air make its cobweb on the surface of water only). The person taking fire as the food (fire-eater) should be considered like the partridge ; the worshipper of the Sun deserves the praise of a lotus-flower while the worshipper of moon should be considerd like the lotus-flower (as these flowers blossom forth on the sight of the Sun and Moon). (73)

If we were to call all creatures living in water as 'Narayan' (god) then all the tortoise, fish and octopus are to be called as Narayan (if god Vishnu is to be called the lotus-chord. In fact, Is the pond, where lotus-flowers are found blossoming, not considered as lotus-chord ? If the sublime-Lord is to be called Gopinath, then are all the milk-men, and the cowboys maintaining cow-herds not the spouses of the milk maids ? If Rishikesh is the name of such a person, then there are many monks seen being called Rishikesh. (If the person is called Madhav, Krishna of Yadav dynasty) then the black-bee is also called Madhav. If He is called Kanaiya, then the cob-web with long legs is also called Kanaiya. (If He were to be called the killer of Kanas), then the Yama, killer of Kanas is to be called Kanas-killer. In fact, the ignorant people only carry on the tradition (convention), being followers of old traditions (beaten-path) but they do not realise (follow), the knowledgable persons mind (the hidden meaning), as they do not worship the Lord-saviour, who protects us all in the world. (74)

ਬਿਸ੍ਪਾਲ ਜਗਤ ਕਾਲ, ਦੀਨ ਦਿਆਲ ਬੇਰੀ ਸਾਲ ; ਸਦਾ ਪ੍ਰਤਿਪਾਲ, ਜਮ ਜਾਲ ਤੇ ਰਹਤੁ ਹੈਂ ।
ਜੋਗੀ ਜਟਾਧਾਰੀ, ਸਤੀ ਸਾਰੇ ਬਡੇ ਬ੍ਰਹਮਚਾਰੀ ; ਧਿਆਨ ਕਾਜ ਭੂੰਖ, ਪਿਆਸ ਦੇਹ ਪੈ ਸਹਤ ਹੈਂ ।
ਨਿਉਲੀ ਕਰਮ ਜਲ ਹੋਮ, ਪਾਵਕ ਪਵਨ ਹੋਮ ; ਅਧੋ-ਮੁਖ ਏਕ ਪਾਇ, ਨਾਢੇ ਨ ਬਹਤ ਹੈਂ ।
ਮਾਨਵ ਫਨਿੰਦ ਦੇਵ, ਦਾਨਵ ਨ ਪਾਵੈ' ਭੇਦ ; ਬੇਦ ਔ ਕਤੇਬ ਨੇਤਿ ਨੇਤਿ ਕੈ ਕਹਤ ਹੈ । ੭੫

Bispal jagat kal, deen dial beri saal.
Sada pritpal, jam jaal te rehat hain.
Jogi jatadhari, sati sarai bade brahmchari.
dhian kaaj bhookh, pias deh pai sehat hain.
neauli karam jal hom, pavak pavan hum (n).
adho-mukh ek paie, thandhe na behat hain.
manav phanind dev, danav na pavain bhed.
Beid au kateb nait nait ko kehat hai. (75)

ਨਾਚਤ ਫਿਰਤ ਮੋਰ, ਬਾਦਰ ਕਰਤ ਘੋਰ ; ਦਾਮਿਨੀ ਅਨੇਕ ਭਾਉ, ਕਰਿਓ ਈ ਕਰਤ ਹੈਂ ।
ਚੰਦ੍ਮਾ ਤੇ ਸੀਤਲ, ਨ ਸੂਰਜ ਤੇ ਤਪਤ ਤੇਜ ; ਇੰਦ੍ ਸੋਂ' ਨ ਰਾਜਾ, ਭਵ ਭੂਮਿ ਕੋ ਕਰਤ ਹੈਂ ।
ਸਿਵ ਸੇ ਤਪਸੀ ਆਦਿ, ਬ੍ਰਹਮਾ ਸੇ ਨ ਬੇਦਚਾਰੀ ; ਸਨਤ ਕੁਮਾਰ ਸੀ, ਤਪੱਸਿਆ ਨ ਅਨਤ ਹੈਂ ।
ਗਿਆਨ ਕੇ ਬਿਹੀਨ, ਕਾਲ ਫਾਸ ਕੇ ਅਧੀਨ ; ਸਦਾ ਜੁੰਗਨ ਕੀ ਚਉਕਾਰੀ, ਫਿਰਾਏ ਈ ਫਿਰਤ ਹੈਂ । ੭੬

nachat phirat mor, Badar karat ghor.
damini anek bhaou, kario eei karat hain.
Chandrima te seetal, na Suraj te tapat tej.
Indra so (n) raja, bhav bhoom ko karat hain.
Shiv se tapsi aad, Brahma se na Beidchari.
Sanat Kumar se, tapasiya na anat hain.
gyan ke bahin, kal phas ke adheen.
sada jugan ke chokari, phiraie eei phirat hain. (76)

ਏਕ ਸਿਵ ਭਏ, ਏਕ ਗਏ ਏਕ ਫੇਰ ਪਏ ; ਰਾਮਚੰਦ੍, ਕ੍ਰਿਸਨ ਕੇ, ਅਵਤਲਰ ਹੀ ਅਨੇਕ ਹੈਂ ।
ਬ੍ਰਹਮਾ ਅਰੁ ਬਿਸਨੁ ਕੇਤੇ, ਬੇਦ ਔ ਪੁਰਾਨ ਕੇਤੇ ; ਸਿੰਮ੍ਤ ਸਮੂਹਨ ਕੇ, ਹੁਇ ਹੁਇ ਬਿਤਏ ਹੈਂ ।
ਮੋਨਦੀ ਮਦਾਰ ਕੇਤੇ, ਅਸੁਨੀ ਕੁਮਾਰ ਕੇਤੇ ; ਅੰਸਾ ਅਵਤਾਰਾ ਕੇਤੇ, ਕਾਲਬਸਿ ਪਏ ਹੈਂ ।
ਪੀਰ ਐ ਪਿਕਾ'ਬਰ, ਕੇਤੇ ਗਨੇ ਨ ਪਰਤ ਏਤ ; ਭੂਮਿ ਹੀ ਤੇ ਹੁਇ ਕੇ, ਫਰਿ ਭੂਮਿ ਹੀ ਮਿਲਏ ਹੈਂ । ੭੭

Eik Siv bhaie, ek gaie eik pher bhaie.
Ram Chander, Krishan ke avtar bhi anek hain.
Brahma ar Bisan ketai, Beid aur Puran ketai.
smirat samoohan ke, hoiai hoie bitaie hain.
Mondi madar ketai, asuni kumar ketai.
ansa avtar ketai, kaalbas bhaie hain.
Peer an pitambar, ketai ganai na parat eitai.
bhoom hi te horai kai, pher bhoom hi milaie hain. (77)

If the Lord is the sustainer of the Universe, and is the destroyer of the world as well. (cause of destruction) ; He is kindless to the helpless people and is the cause of sorrow (harbinger of suffering) for the enemies (oppressors) ; He is the sustainer of all times, and is free from the bondage of Yama. There are some others, Yogis, celibates, chaste and those observing celibacy, who bear lot of afflictions due to (bodily) hunger or thrust of the body. There are many who perform yogic exercises to gain knowledge (about Lord's secrets) and perform Yagnas connected with water, fire and air (fire-worship) or perform penance hanging with upside down (face downwards) or standing on one leg. But none have been able to decipher Lord's secrets, including men, Sheshnag, cobra, gods and demons whole Vedas and Katebs (Koran or semetic books) describe Himass the greatest , beyond our Comprehension. (75)

(If we were to attain the Lord by dancing in His worship) then the peacock is always dancing around ; (if the Lord were to be attained by blowing the trumpet) then the clouds are thundering ; (if we were to gain union with the Lord) with the amorous of Lord Krisna with milkmaids) then pst time the lightening is making Similar gesticulations. (If we were pastime to attain the Lord by observing peaceful behaviour) (being peace-loving), then there is none else cooler (sober) than the moon; (if the Lord could be attained by bearing the heat) (warmth) then there is nothing more radiant than the Sun. If we were to gain unity with the Lord by amassing wealth like a King (filling the coffers of others with wealth like a king) then there is no other greater king than god indra, who is filling the world and Earth with riches. (If we were to gain proximity with the Lord by performing penance) then there is no other greater scholar of Vedas than the god Brahma : (if the Lord is attained by devotional austerity) then there is no other greater ascetic than Sanat Kumar engaged in penance. Infact people without knowledge are always engrossed in the cycle of births and deaths, being caught in the noose of death. (such ignorant people are engrossed in the cycle of Rebirths during various Yognas). (76)

The god Shiva used to exist once, but then He was taken away, then again He was born and went away. Similarly there were many incarnations of Ram Chander and Krishna ; there were many (gods) like Brahma and Vishnu. There were many Vedas and Puranas (Hindu books of lore) and there were equally many collections of Smritis, which existed once, and then disappeared. Then many protectors of religion appeared on the scene like Moivandeen and Nadar Sheikh Kanoji ; there came many people like Ashvini Kumar and incarnations of Aush who existed and then were taken away by death from the world. There were innumerable Pirs and prophets, whose count cannot be maintained ; they appeared on the worldly by Scene and Then went away and got mingled with the dust. (77)

ਜੋਗੀ ਜਤੀ ਬ੍ਰਹਮਚਾਰੀ, ਬਡੇ ਬਡੇ ਛਤ੍ਰਧਾਰੀ ; ਛਤ੍ ਕੀ ਹੀ ਛਾਇਆ, ਕਈ ਕੋਸ ਲੈ ਚਲਤ ਹੈਂ ।
ਬਡੇ ਬਡੇ ਰਾਜਨ ਕੇ, ਦਾਬਿਤ ਫਿਰਤਿ ਦੇਸ ; ਬਡੇ ਬਡੇ ਰਾਜਨ ਕੇ, ਦ੍ਪ ਕੋ ਦਲਤੁ ਹੈਂ ।
ਮਾਨ ਸੋ ਮਹੀਪ, ਅਉ ਦਿਲੀਪ ਕੈਸੇ ਛੱਤ੍ਰਧਾਰੀ ; ਬਡੇ ਅਭਿਮਾਨ, ਭੁਜ ਦੰਡ ਕੇ ਕਰਤ ਹੈਂ ।
ਦਾਰਾ ਸੇ ਦਲੀਸਤ, ਦੁਰਜੋਧਨ ਸੇ ਮਾਨਧਾਰੀ ; ਭਗਿ ਭੋਗਿ ਭੂਮਿ, ਅਤਿ ਭੂਮਿ ਮੈ ਮਿਲਤ ਹੈਂ । ੭੮
Jogi jati Brahamchari, bade bade chhatardhari.
Chhattar hi ki Chhaya, kaiee kos lou chalat hain.
bade bade rajan ki, dabit phirat des.
bade bade rajan kai, darup ko chalat hain.
maan se maheep, au dalip kaisai chhatardhari.
bade abhiman, bhuj dhand ke karat hain.
dara sr dalisat, duryodhan se mandhari.
bhog bhog bhoom, ant bhoom mein milat hain. (78)

ਸਿਜਦੇ ਕਰੇ ਅਨੇਕ, ਤੋਪਚੀ ਕਪਟ ਭੇਸ ; ਪੋਸਤੀ ਅਨੇਕ ਦਾ, ਨਿਵਾਵਤ ਹੈ ਸੀਸ ਕੋ ।
ਕਹਾ ਭਇਓ ਮੰਲ, ਜੋ ਪੈ ਕਾਡਤ ਅਨੇਕ ਡੰਡ ; ਸੋ ਤੋ ਨ ਡੰਡ ਤ, ਅਸਟਾ'ਗ ਅਥਿਤੀਸ ਕੈ ।
ਕਹਾ ਭੀਓ ਰੋਗੀ, ਜੋ ਪੈ ਡਰਾਯੋ ਰਹਯੋ ਊਰਧੁ ਮੁਖਿ ; ਮਨ ਹੈ ਨਾ ਮੂੰਜ, ਨਿਹੁਰਾਯੇ ਆਦਿ ਈਸ ਕੈ ।
ਕਾਮਨਾ ਅਧੀਨ, ਸਦਾ ਦਾਮਨਾ ਪ੍ਬੀਨ ; ਏਕ ਭਾਵਨਾ ਬਿਹੀਨ, ਕੈਸੇ ਪਾਵੈ ਜਗਦਸ਼ਿ ਕੋ । ੭੯
Sijde kare anek, topchi kapat bhes.

sada ban ko bharmiya, aur doosare na bhok Sou(n) .
kaha bheyo bhed jou, ghasat sees brichhan sou(u).
Kamna adheen, kam karodh mein prabeen.
ek bhavna biheen, kaise bhetai parlok sou(n). (80)

There were many Yogis, celebates, and mendicants (with tights of hair) along with many famous kings, whose sovereignity was spread out for many miles (far and near) (the reference is supposed to be Daryodhan whose kingdom was spread out for forty-eight-miles, when he came to meet Bhisham pitama) and who had usurped the Kingdoms of many kings by (controlling) subduing many kings and then subjected them to surrender curbing their egoism, Then there were kings like Mandhala or Kings like Duleep who held sway over large areas and were proud about their occupation of huge areas. There existed kings like dara (Dilisar) and Daryodhana like naughty kings, who enjoyed the worldly pleasures and then mingled with the dust (after death). (If the Lord could be won over by bowing) (78)

Then there were many clever gunmen, who bent (burned) everytime. They fired a shot, even the opium-eater also bows in reverence many times. There are many wrestlers who carry out exercises in prostrate position many times but what is the value of all this, as it cannot be termed as an Ashtang prostrate position in paying obeisance to the Lord. If a Yogi lies with his face upward like a sick person (patient) or a Yogi moves around with his head shaven off, (to what use will it be), unless he controls his mind (shaves his mind), purifies it, and perceives the Lord sublime. (Concentrates on Aim). How could a person attain the lord who functions with his mind burdened with desires and under the influence of treachery but without any love of the Lord in his heart ? (79)

(If one could attain the Lord by striking his head on the ground) then a person who has got a centipede stuck in his ears also behaves in the same manner or (if one could attain the Lord by beating one;s forehead) them a person, who has lost his son or friend, also beats his head in the same manner. (If one were to attain the Lord by abiding in the jungles (forests) and sustaining on (eating) fruits and leaves, then nothing could compete with the great (compare with) roaming in the forest or living on ak (calotropis) and shrubs. What is the use of rubbing one's head just like the sheep rubbing its head against trees (shrubs), as Lord. If one could gain access to the Lord by eating mud (clay) then it cannot lead to the attainment of the ask the (blood sucking) leech which subsists on mud. The person who is engrossed in worldly desires (passions) and functions under the influence of anger or sexual desires but is devoid of Lord's love, cannot gain access to the creator of the Universe. (80)

ਸਦਾ ਘਨਘੋਰ, ਘਨਾ', ਕਰਿਓ ਈ ਕਰਤ ਹੈ' ।
ਏਕ ਪਾਇ ਠਾਢੇ, ਸਦਾ ਬਨ ਮੈ ਰਹਤ ਬ੍ਰਿਛ ;
ਫੂਕਿ ਫੂਕਿ ਪਾ'ਵ, ਭੂਮਿ ਸ੍ਵਿਗ ਧਰਤ ਹੈ' ।
ਪਾਹਨ ਅਨੇਕ ਜੁਗ, ਏਕ ਠਉਰ ਬਾਸੁ ਕਰੈ' ;
ਕਾਗ ਅਉਰ ਚੀਲ, ਦੇਸਿ ਦੇਸਿ ਬਿਚਰਤ ਹੈ' ।
ਗਿਆਨ ਕੇ ਬਿਹੀਨ, ਮਹਾ' ਦਾਨ ਮੈ ਨ ਹੁਜੈ ਲੀਨ ;
ਭਾਵ੍ਨਾ ਯਕੀਨ ਦੀਨ, ਕੈਸੇ ਕੈ ਤਰਤ ਹੈ । ੮੧

Nachion eei karat mor, dadar karat shor.
sada ghanghor, ghani karion eei karat hai n.
ek paie thandhe, sada ban mein rehat brichh.
phook phook pa(n), bhoomi(i) saravag dharat hai.
pahan anek jug, ek thour bas karai(n).
Kag aur cheel, des des bichrat hain.
gyan ke biheen, maha daan mein na hujai leen.
bhavan yakeen deen, kaise kai tarat hai. (81)

ਜੈਸੇ ਏਕ ਸ੍ਵਾ'ਗੀ, ਕਹੂ ਜੋਗੀਆ ਬੈਰਾਗੀ ਬਨੈ ;
ਕਹੂੰ ਸਨਿਆਸ ਭੇਸ, ਬਨ ਕੇ ਦਿਖਾਵਈ ।
ਕਹੂੰ ਪਉਨਹਾਰੀ, ਕਹੂੰ ਬੈਠੇ ਲਾਇ ਤਾਰੀ ;
ਕਹੂੰ ਲੋਭ ਕੀ ਖੁਮਾਰੀ, ਸੋ' ਅਨੇਕ ਗੁਨ ਗਾਵਈ ।
ਕਹੂੰ ਬ੍ਰਹਮਚਾਰੀ, ਕਹੂੰ ਹਾਥ ਪੈ ਲਗਾਵੈ ਬਾਰੀ ;
ਕਹੂੰ ਡੰਡਧਾਰੀ, ਹੁਇ ਕੈ ਲੋਗਨ ਭ੍ਰਮਾਵਈ ।
ਕਾਮਨਾ ਅਧੀਨ, ਪਰਿਓ ਨਾਚਤ ਹੈ ਨਾਚਨ ਸੋ' ;
ਗਿਆਨ ਕੇ ਬਿਹੀਨ, ਕੈਸੇ ਬ੍ਰਹਮ ਲੋਕ ਪਾਵਈ । ੮੨

Jaisai ek swangi, kahun jogia bairagi banai.
Kahun sanyas bhei, ban kai dikhaviee.
Kahun paonhari, kahun baithe laie tari.
Kahun lobh hi khumari, soun anek gunn gaviee.
Kahun braham chari, kahun haath pai lagavai bari.
Kahun danddhari, hoiaie hai logan bharmaviee.
Kamna adheen. parion nachat hai nachan sou(n).
gyan ke biheen, Kaise braham lok paviee. (82)

Then there were many clever gunmen, who bent (burned) everytime. They fired a shot, even the opium-eater also bows in reverence many times. There are many wrestlers who carry out (If one could attain the Lord by dancing or making noise) then the peacock and frogs who dance or make noise and the clouds always make thunderous noise. (If one were to attain unison with the Lord by resting standing on one leg) then the trees always are resting on one support (leg) in the jungles. (if one were to attain the Lord by keeping the creatures away from any pain), then the jainics (sareware) always walk on the road taking care not to kill any creatures. (If we were to attain the Lord by staying put at one place), then the rocks (Stones) are lying at one place for ages ; (if one could attain the Lord by roaming around various lands) then the crow or kites are always (soaring) flying high in distant lands. Just as a person, devoid of the knowledge of the Lord, cannot get immersed in the Lord's love, who is our great benefactor, similarly persons without the love and faith of the Lord cannot cross this ocean of life successfully. (81)

Just as a many faceted person behaves like a monk or recluse at times and shows himself as a Sanyasi (ascetic) (dressed up like him) and at other times he is in contemplation (in complete meditation) and then in his greed he sings the praises of the Lord or as one (subsisting) living on air. At times he behaves as a celibate and then he shows his occult powers (by bringing up a field-crop on the hands) or a fire-eating mendicant he deceives others. Then he dances around though under the spell of his worldly desires, but how could anyone attain unison with the Lord without gaining knowledge of the Lord, through dancing alone ? (82)

ਕੁੰਚਰ ਅਉ ਗਦਰਾ, ਅਨੇਕ ਦਾ ਪੁਕਾਰ ਹੀ ।
ਕਹਾ ਭਯੇ ਜੋ ਪੈ, ਕਲਵੱਤ੍ਰ ਲੀਓ ਕਾ'ਸੀ ਬੀਚ ;

ਤਾਪ ਕੇ ਸਹੇ ਤੇ, ਜੋ ਪੈ ਪਾਈਐ ਅਤਾਪ ਨਾਥ ;
ਤਾਪਨਾ ਅਨੇਕ, ਤਨ ਘਾਇਲ ਸਹਤ ਹੈ' ।
ਜਾਪ ਕੇ ਕੀਏ ਤੇ, ਜੋ ਪੈ ਪਾਯਤ ਅਜਾਪ ਦੇਵ ;
ਪੂਦਨਾ ਸਦੀਵ, ਤੁਹੀ, ਤੁਹੀ ਉਚਰਤ ਹੈ' ।
ਨਭ ਕੇ ਉਡੇ ਤੇ, ਜੋ ਪੈ ਨਾਰਾਇਣ ਪਾਈਯਤ ;
ਅਨਲ ਅਕਾਸ ਪੰਛੀ, ਡੋਕਬੋ ਕਰਤ ਹੈ' ।
ਆਗ ਮੈ ਜਰੈ ਤੇ ਗਤਿ, ਰਾ'ਡ ਕੀਪਰਤ ਕਰਿ ;
ਪਤਾਲ ਕੇ ਬਾਸੀ, ਕਿਉ' ਭੁਜੰਗ ਨ ਤਰਤ ਹੈ' । ੮੪
taap ke sehai te, jo pai paieai atap nath.
tapna anek, tan ghaiel sehat hai.
jaap ke kiai te, jo pai Naraiyan paieyat.
poodana sadeev tuhi, tuhi uchrat hai.
nabh ko udai te, jo pai Naraiyan paieyat.
anal akas panchhi, dolbo karat hai.
aag mein jarai te gat, rand ki parat-kar.
patal ke basi, kiun bhijang ne tarat hain. (84)

Just as in the winter season the jackal produces howling sound or the elephant trumpets and the donkey brays (but they do not gain anything worthwhile). What is the value of getting your body sawed (into two) at Benaras (kanshi) as even a thief is at times cut into pieces with an axe (when caught) ? What is the use of a fool putting a noose around his neck and getting drowned in the river Ganga (Ganges) as many a time the cheats (robbers) kill the travellers (passers by) by putting a noose around their neck ? Many foolish persons without having any spiritual knowledge, get drowned in the stream of hell, as no one could give a discourse on Lord's knowledge without having any love or emotions for the Lord ? (to discuss Lord's secretswithout the light of knowledge)

If a person bears bodily pains (fever or heat), no one could gain access to the Lord through sufferings alone ; as an injured person always bears many ills or sufferings of the body. If we could attain the Lord by reciting the lord's Name (meditation) then a bird (Pudna) could have gained the Lord as he always (sings) repeats "Your wonder" "O Wonderful Lord". If we were to attain the Lord by soaring high up in the air, then the bird (Anal) always flies high up in the air. If we could gain Salvation by burning one self then the Woman (Sati) who burns herself alongwith her dead spouse, should get Salvation. If we could attain Salvation by abiding in caves, then why The Snakes living under the depth of Earth (inside the ground) do not get Salvation ? (84)

ਕੋਊ ਭਇਓ ਮੁਡਿਆ, ਸੰਨਿਆਸੀ ਕੋਊ ਜੋਗੀ ਭਇਓ ;
ਕੋਊ ਬ੍ਰਹਮਚਾਰੀ, ਕੋਊ ਜਤੀ ਅਨੁਮਾਨਬੋ ।
ਹਿੰਦੂ ਤੁਰਕ ਕੋਊ, ਰਾਫਿਜੀ ਇਮਾਮ ਸ਼ਾਫੀ ;

There are some recluses (followers of Ramanand) while there are some ascetics or Yogis (monks) ; wheras there are some celibates and some others are chaste (with tufts of hair). There are some Hindus or Muslims (Turks), while there are some Shia Muslims (Rafizi) and others are Suni muslims (Imamsafi) But thy all are known tto be human beings, (born) or belonging to human category. So we should consider all of them as belonging to one particular species (category) The creator of all of them is the Lord-sublime, who is very kind and their benefactor, is also the same Lord-Almighty, providing them with Sustenance. We should not entertain any distinction or difference (and doubt) amongst all of them. Let us serve the same master, as all of us are an embodiment of the same Lord and the same light is pervading within all of us. (85)

The temple and the mosque are one and the same thing, as such worship or prayer is also the same thing ; all men are equal and similar though they present a picture of many hues and colours, causing some doubts. The gods, demons, demigods, musicians (of gods), Muslims and Hindus (who appear different from each other) due to their robes and dresses of different lands (countries). All of them possess the same type of eyes, with similar types of ears and their bodies are also similar and their mode of Speech is also Similar and their mode of speech is also similar as they are all created out of similar earth, air, heat (fire) and the water being combined together. The Allah (God of Islam followers) and the Abhekh (God of Hindus) represent the same Truth Even the Koran (Muslims holy book) and the Puranas (the Hindu holy scriptures) are representing the same Truth ; as all of them represent the same personification of Lord-sublime, and they are all having the same constituents. (composition) (86)

Just as one fire gives rise to many fireworks (fire shots) and showing separate existence, finally merge into with the same fires, or from the dust many particles of dust (spring) come up (are produced) and finally mingle with the same dust, just as many, (millions of) waves spring up from the same ocean, but all the waves of water are finally called water only ; Similarly the same our Lord-Sublime gives rise to the creation of abstract (inperceptible) and solid (root and conscious) beings which finally merge with the original supreme being. (87)

There are many types of tortoise or fish and there are many others who devour them; there are many blue jays, or birds like anal who fly around having wings. There are many others who would devour blue jays or anal like birds in the skies ; and many more who would appear (in the sky) and finish them all successfully. What to say about the beings on land, in the oceans, or in the skies, who are products of god of death (or time) are finally destroyed by the same god of death ? Just as light merges with darkness and darkness nungles with light, Similarly all the beings spring up from the Lord Himself and finally merge with the same Truth Sublime (Lord Almighty) (88)

There are many beings crying around, while there are many others waiting around who finally face death. There are many beings who get drowned in the waters, where as there are equally a large number of beings, who get burnt in the fire. There are many living (on the banks of) Ganga river, while there are many others abiding in Macca or Madina. There are many, who are roaming around being apathetic and an equal number get themselves sawed into pieces at Kanshi (Benaras) and there are many more beings, who get themselves dumped into pits dug up on the land (Earth). There are many others who face all sorts of suffering by getting themselves hanged (lie on the bed of nails). There are many others who possess various occult powers and soar high up in the skies, while many more beings living in water. There are many human beings, who being devoid of Lord's knowledge, get themselves burnt in the burning fires.(89)

There are many gods who have got fed up (tired) with their efforts at seeking the Lord while there are an equal number of demons who are tired of causing suffering (to the godly persons) ; There are many scholars who are fed up with their research efforts (without success) and similarly many learned persons, who are engaged in meditation without any successs. There are many worshippers, who are tired of rubbing Chandan (sandal wood) at the altars of gods. There are many more engaged in using aromatic substances (for decoration of statues) and worshippers of godly statues (Stones) and are fed up with their efforts at worship or those with offerings of Sweet pudding get fed up ; there are an equally large number, who are fed up with roaming around the grave-yards or worshippers of graves, tombs or monasteries. There are statues of Hanuman in the wall, which people are used to worship and are fed up with their efforts at prayers. There are many others who are fed up with producing impressions or Stamps of various gods (sects). Similarly some others musicians of gods are tired of Singing (in their praise) or are tired of using stringed instruments (in praise of) mythological humans with horses face today. Similarly persons (pandits) engaged in penance are fed up (but none could attain unison with the Lord). (90)

'By the Grace of the Lord'
Bhujang Prayat Chhand

O Lord ! You have not developed special love for anyone, nor You have any specific colour (hue); neither You possess any particular form nor any mark (portrait). You do not possess any special love for anyone, neither any wrath (anger) nor any malice towards others ; You possess enmity towards none ; neither any function nor any illusion (misunderstanding); neither You are born (without birth nor have any caste (dynasty). You do not have any special friends or enemies ; neither You have any father or mother. (You are not born of any parents). (91)

O Lord ! You do not possess any special affection (attachment) for anyone, nor You have any Abode, neither any desires (passion) nor any specific location (whereabouts). You do not have any sons or any friends ; neither any enemies nor any spouse. O Lord ! You are imperceptible (Unseen), are uncommitted to any faith ; You are free from the cycle of Rebirths (births and deaths). You are always bestowing occult powers or knowledge (intelligence) on us, and You possess the greatest (most beautiful) form(figure) (92)

We cannot know the form, sign or symbol of the Lord or abory the abode of the Lord (whereabouts of the Lord) and His garh (appearance) or His Name including His place of belongingness is not Known to us. He is beyond our comprehension, so we cannot describe His qualities (including form or configuration). (93)

The Lord does not suffer from any ailments, nor face any sufferings (sorrow) ; neither He posseries any wordly attachements, nor He has any hangovers (intoxication). The Lord does not stick to any functional duties, nor He suffers from any misunderstanding; neither He has any birth (He is not born), nor He has any caste or creed. The Lord does not belong to any land (country); He is not having any garb (costume) and is free from the cycle of births and deaths. Our Salutations to the Lord, who is the Supreme-being ; Hail to the One Lord-Almighty. (94)

The Supreme Truth (light) is beyond our comprehension, being far from our reach ; He possesses the greatest knowledge (intelligence) which radials infinite enlightenment. He is indivisible, free from destruction (extinction); He is ever-existent (from the beginning), free from duality (dual-mindedness) and is eternal (immortal). The Lord has no Caste, Creed or clan (dynasty); He has no form (configuration) and is not having any hue or colour. Our Salunations to the ever-existent and etetrnal Lord, who is free from extinction (destunction), being immortal. (95)

The Lord has created millions of creatures-like Krishna. At first He created them, then buried them in the Earth, (demolished their existence completly); again created them and destroyed them. The Lord-Almighty is most contemplative (sober or serene), fearless, ab initio (from the beginning), free from duality and free from extruction (ever-existent). He is infinite (beyond our imagination), the Supreme-being, who radiates perfect (brilliance) enlightenment all around. (96)

The Lord has no mental ailments or bodily illness. He possesses a most contemplative (serene) form or appearance, and has individual splendour (perfect brilliance) , having his existence from the beginning (ab intio form) and possesses intangible assets which are ever lasting (indestrnclible). The Lord is not subject to birth or death (like human beings), He has no hue or colour (casteless) and He does not suffer from any afflictions. He is indinsible, almighty (powerful) and He cannot be punished, (blemishless) and is incorrigible (is not a hermit). (97)

The Lord does not have any particular affinity (love) for anyone ; nor He has any Abode (place) ; nor He has any companions (relationships) ; He has no comrades (associates). He is fearless, free from embellishments (beauty aids), He is all-mighty (all powerful), who is out to destroy all enemies He does not belong to any caste, creed or class ; He has no friends and He has enmity towards none. He is ever-existent, and is always present during past, present and future times. He has a wonderful form, being formless. (with no signs or symbols). (98)

The Lord is neither a king nor a begger (He is neither rich nor peniless). He has no form (sign or symbol) nor any figure, (configuration). He is free from greed, or any afflictions (He is free from suffering). He does not possess any human body and does not possess any robe (dress) and is free from any particular garb. He has no friend or foe, has no companions (associates) and has no abode of His own. (being omni-present); He is always pervading everywhere and is friendly towards all, loving everyone. (99)

The Lord has no desires (passions) and is free from wrath-(anger) ; He has no greed worldly(avarice), and has no attachments. (wordly). He is free from the cycle of Rebirths, and is indestructible, ever-existent from the beginning, without dual-nuidedness and cannot be perceived. He is free from birth or death. He is not having any hue (colour) and is blemishless (faultless). He has no ailments and is free from sorrow. He is fearless and free from all wranglings (infighting). (100)

The Lord is impregnable, indiscriminate, non-functional (Passive) and Timeless (Deathless) ; He is indivisible, unimpaired, (free from blemish), all powerful, and without any sustainer (there is none to sustain Him). He has no father or mother, and He is not born (like human beings) and has no physical existence (has no body). He has no affection or attachement with anyone, has no abode ; He has no misunderstanding (doubts) or emotions. (101)

The Lord is formless, is not ruled (controlled) by anyone, has no appearance (body) and has no destiny (fate). He is fearless (free from fear) and is free from any wrangles or entanglements ; He has no discrimination or Suspicion (about any thing). He is ever-existent (permanent), is ever-divine, and possesses a permanent (old) form (existence) . Our Salutations to the one formless Sublime-Lord,Hail to the onebeautiful Lord. (102)

O Lord ! You are the master of indescribable radiance (light) ; has an indescribable splendour from the beginning of Time ; He is not engaged in the meditation of another one (power), is indivsible, ab initio (from the very beginning) , free from any vicious thoughts (vice); and cannot be placed in His position by anyone, (is not created and positioned by anyone). He is free from indulgence (enjoyment) by others, is free from extinction (indestructible) ever-existent and Timeless, having a form above destruction. (immortal). Salutations to the One Supreme being ; Hail to the One Lord-Almighty (beyond our Comprehension) and possessing a formless form. (appearance) (103)

O Lord ! You do not have any attachments (worldly) nor You have any abode. Neither You have to face any sufferings nor You have any relatives. You are limitless, being beyond our comprehension ; You possess the purest form, being holy and sanctified and are self-willed (independent) in Your functioning. You have no caste or creed nor any dynasty (clan). You have no friends and are without any advisors (councillors). Our Salutations to the One Supreme-Lord. (King with one magic formula) ; Hail to the Lord (104)

O Lord ! You have no religion or illusions (doubts) and are not working under any discipline (code of conduct). You have no relationships (or kith and kin). You have no armour (coat of arms for protection) nor any shield ; You have no destiny (objectives) and are without any fear. You have no enemies nor any friends ; You have no son (descendents) and such is Your form (shape) or appearance. Our Saluvations to the ab-initio form, hail to the Lord-Sublime, (self-existent)! (105)

O Lord ! You are at times lost in the aroma (fragrance) of lotus-flower like the black-bee (and buzzing around in intoxicated) while at other times You are behaving like a begger or even as a King at Times. You are an embodiment of a particular country (land) alongwith its garb (Costume) and religion, while at times You are the decoration (adornment) of a particular kingdom but at other times You are like the diet (food) of a falcon (a piece of meat) to be snatched. O perfect Master ! Our Salutations to You, who is bestowing on us various occult powers. You are either impregnable, indestructible ever existing from the very beginning, monotheist, and the creator of all beings. O Lord ! Neither You have any fear (of anyone) nor You could be caught (mishandled) by anyone and You are pervading every being (Your light is visible within all the beings). O Wonderful Lord! Our Salutations to You. ! (120)

'By the Grace of Lord'
Padhri Chhand

O Lord ! You are presenting the radiance of a formless being, and an illuminating radiant light which could only be felt (Unseen) (perceived with inner vision) but not seen with human eye. You are indestruchible, monotheist (free from duality) and devoid of any worldly desires. Your brilliance is indivisible (for ever) and Your treasures are limitless (infinite) and are a benefactor par excellence (beyond description). (121)

O Lord ! Your radiance is wonderful (and infinite) and Your form (body) is indivisible. You are the creator of all, but destroyer of all mean and vicious (sinful) beings. Your seat (posture) is unshaken (immovable) and Your actions are ecstatic (rapturous). You are a very kind and benevolent benefactor and are marvellous in Your duty (performance). (122)

O Lord ! You do not possess any friends, enemies, human birth (are not born) and are Casteless ; who has no son, brother, friend (comrade) or mother even. One who is devoid of any action, illusions, (moral) duty, or thoughts (fancies). He is free from worldly attachements and devoid of clever moves. (123)

You have no caste or creed dynasty, enemies, and friends and are not interested in leading a domestic (family) life, (attachment for a householder's life), nor You possess any signs or symptoms. You have no colour (hue), form, worldly love, disting, birth, caste or creed, or appearance or even illusions about anything. (124)

He has no illusions or doubts about His functions, caste, clan or dynasty, who entertains no love (attachment) for family, father or mother ; and is completly free from Name or fame, place or abode, and other divisions of class (group). He is free from all illness (afflictions), sadness (sorrows) and bears no enmity or friendship towards anyone. (125)

He is fearless (afraid of none) and His form is indestructible (ever-existent). He has no beginning or end, nor He possesses any type of form and appearances. He is free from all afflications, sorrows, and has no modes (idea) of Yogic feats. Neither He is worried about any desires being unfulfilled, nor He has any desire (greed) for enjoyment of worldly pleasures or land acquisitions. (126)

O Lord ! You have not been bitten by any snake (Your body is free from Maya). Your form is not subject to extinction, are indestructible and free from all calamities. Even Vedas have proclaimed You as limitless and Infinite and the Semetic books (like koran) also narrate (proclaim) as Indescribable. (127)

His firm (appearance) is indescribeable and His seat is unshaken and His radiance is beyond description. He is above destruction (indestructible) and is immeasurable. Innumerable Yogis and Munis (mendicants) have been engaged in tough and hard penance to have a vision of the Lord (meditation of the Lord) from times inmemorial, (but have been unsuccessful). (128)

Some people hear the brunt of cold, heat or rain on their bodies ; while some people spend many ages (periods) seated, in a particular yogic posture ; some others make many efforts to accomplish the study of Yoga (renunciation of the world) but none of these (mentioned above) have been able to decipher Your limits. (limitlessness), O Lord! (129)

Many people roam around distant lands with their arms raised (in penance) ; some others hang themselves with upside down (facing downwards) in the burning fires, while some others are engaged in the reading or narration of Smritis Shastras and Vedas (Hindu books of lore), while some others are buisy in discussions of sexology (Sex Shastra), poetry or semitic books (Quran etc.) (130)

Some people perform havan (worship fire), some others make air as their food (Sustain themselves on air), many millions live on dust clay while many others live on green leaves and herbs.or milk ; not-with-standing all these effects the Lord does not reveal Himself (His secrets) to such persons. (They do not get a glimpse of The Lord). (131)

Some people sing (Lord;s praises) like the musicians of gods, some others pin their faith in the study of Vedas and Shastras (Hindu Literature), while some others perfom Yagnas (ablutions) according to the rites of Vedas (vedic rites) and some from sacrificial fires (havan) while some others visit-holy places of pilgrimage and perform religious acts (like giving alms etc). (132)

Some people speak various foreign languages (language of distant lands), while many others are engaged in the study of literature of foreign lands, or discuss various types of philosphical thoughts,in spite of all these efforts none of them is able to know a bit of Lord's secrets (Nature's secret) or Lord's limits. (133)

Some people in their illusions (fantasy), roam around (visit) holy places of pilgrimage; some others are engaged in sacrificial fire (havan) and perform other religious acts (godly acts) ; some others discuss the brave acts of (fifty-two) warriors (study of bravery) ; but with all these efforts no one has been able to comprehend the greatness or vastness of the Lord-Sublime. (134)

Some people are following the system of princely behaviour, while some others are following the duties of Yoga-(religion of Yogis) exercises. There are some who are busy in reciting Smritis or Shastras as their function. Some peoples are engaged in Yogic exercises (of nose upturned) while some others are busy in giving away elephants in alms and somewhere people are singing praises of the Lord in performing armed Yagna armed Yogna (Fire–worship of a special type). At places people are engaged in the study of the Lord-Sublime and His secrets, while at times people are following the norms of Yoga. (study of the rules of mendicants). At places people are busy in moulding their conduct on a high profile (building high character). At times people are singing like demi gods or musicians of the gods. At times people are performing arts (singing songs of praise) with aromatic things and lamps arranged beautifully (in a tray) or in (giving away costly items in alms) alms-giving (libation). (136)

At times people are busy in placating their forefathers with virtuous deeds as per Vedic Principles or somepeople are dancing to the musical tunes (in rhythm) or someone else is busy in singing songs (of praise). Somewhere else people are busy in reciting Smritis and Shastras (Hindu religious books) or somewhere else a person is engaged in his worship by standing on one leg continuously. (137)

Some people have developed love for the body while some others abide (reside) in their houses (leading a family life). Some people roam around distant lands being apathetic (neutral). Some stay in water while some others bear the brunt of burning fire and some others worship the Lord by hanging, facing upside down. (138)

Some (people) are engaged in the practice of Yoga for long periods (like shears), but can never gain access to the limits of the limitless Lord (or know His secrets) Some are busy in many scholarly studies (millions of studies) but never are able to perceive the Lord –Sublime. (139)

The Lord cannot be attained without the strength (power) of the Lord's worship, not with-Standing the performance of sacrificial fire-worship (Hom Yagna) or alms-giving. All the religious activities and functions are worthless and meaningless, without being immersed in Lord's True Name with a Complete resolute mind full of devotion. (140)

'By the Grace of the Lord'

Totak Chhand

(" Jai Jampai jugan juh joang.")

All the beings salute the Lord with one voice, and with whose name the whole world Composing mountains (Meir Parbat), Earth or nether lands (hell) dreads (is shaken with fear) All the worshippers (doing penance) of the lands and oceans are engrossed in attaining the Lord through their penance (worship) and when the king Indra, Kuber and Raja Bali all acclaim with gratitude and thankfullness. (141)

The Lord possesses a form, free from pain (injury) or, discrimination and is dauntless (fearless) and is above the five indivisible elements (like air, fire, water etc.) and is impregnable and indestructible. (free from extinction). He is freec from the effects of death (Time) and all forms of sustenance ; and is devoid of any haughtiness (egoism) being ever-benevolent. He has positioned (established) the Sumer mountain, the Earth and the Skies in their proper place. (position). (142)

The Lord, who is free from being installed, and is the Prime-male with mighty radiance and has created all the gods and demons in a beautiful manner ; and has kept the Earth and Sky under his surveillance after creating them. He has created all the dwellings alongwith their dwellers. (who has created abodes and those living therein.) (143)

The Lord has not inculcated any special love (affection) for anyone, and no one resembles anyone, else in appearance, signs or symbols (of His created beings). He is free from any heat (warmth) or curses ; and is devoid of any sorrow or happiness (comforts). He is free from any afflictions or sadness and has no worries about the worldly pleasures. Moreover He has no fear of regrets (pains), discrimination, duality or being destroyed. (144)

(The Lord), who has no caste or creed nor any dynasty (brotherhood) ; who has no mother or father ; (The Lord) who has created the Kashatriyas (warriors) who have canopies over their heads, being kings of the land. Who is also known to be free from love without any form or appearance (signs and symbols) and is free from any maladies (afflictions). He is also known to be free from the stigma of duality and the slander of any afflictions. (illness). (145)

The lord who has created this Universe from the egg and has created the four directions and nine regions-(Khands). The Lord, who has created the (Three-pronged Maya with) greed and lust for power alongwith splendour (glory) and lustreless (enlightenment and darkness). He has spread radiance (powerful light) on His own perception and illuminated the Universe of His own will. (146)

The Lord, who has created the oceans, Vindyachal (mountains) and Sumer mountains; He has created demi gods, their (god's) musicians, Sheshnag (python) and other cobras. The Lord, who has created the gods and demons including Brahma Vishnu (undistinguishable) and the elephant Eravat. At the same time He has created the Kings to look after the sustenance of human beings and dreadful animals (like snakes or wild animals). (147)

He has created millions (crores) of bees, snakes, and, human beings, eggs and beings produced from perspiration, and vegetation of all types. He has also created many good and bad beings, alongwith celebrations for departed souls and forefathers ; He, who possesses an indivisible grandeur and mighty power with a grand style. (148)

The Lord has no caste or creed or clan, and His light pervades every one. He has no father, mother, brother, or son. He has no illness or sadness and is not bothered about worldly pleasures and who is worshipped by all demigods or beings with horse's body and human head. (mythological beings) (149)

(The Lord), Who has created females, males and eunches ; He has created all the mythological beings (with horse body having human head), demi gods and snakes even ; who has created the hordes of elephants, horses and footmen. The Lord, who is ever existent in past, present and future, at all times. (150)

(The Lord) , who has created (all the four sources of reproduction like) eggs, perspiration and semen ; who has created land, sky, nether lands and the oceans (water) , alongwith the mighty fire and powerful air. He has created forests, fruits, flowers and petals. (151)

He (who) has created Earth (land), huge mountains (like sumer) and skies and the Earth where various beings could abide in. Then again He has made fasts (muslim type), new moon fast, alongwith the moon and its various phases ; then He has created the, moon, the sun, (like) the lamps for emitting light in the Universe and then created (the mighty forces) like powerful fire and air. (152)

Then He has created indivisible and powerful (religious-Khands) cosmos, which became insignificant (hidden) before the mighty sun and then created the beautiful fourteen worlds alongwith the community, groups of celestial singers (mythological), gods and demons. (153)

The Lord (has) possesses a perfect form, beyond the five elements (like air, fire etc.) and has incomprehensible intelligence, unfathomable, free from all afflictions (maladies) and is ever-existent from the beginning of time . You are free from agony (tribulation) ; are impregnable and indivisible prime-male, whose mighty writ runs throughout the Universe (the fourteen worlds) (154)

The Lord does not indulge in fun and frolic (is free from music or colour) , possesses no form and is free from any malady or sorrows (sadness) or even worldly pleasures and is not interested (linked) in any Yogic feats. (exercises). He is the destroyer of the world (Earth) and also the creator of the Universe. In fact, all the gods, demons and human beings worship Him . (155)

The Lord, who has created the music lovers, kinar, mythological horse's body with a human head, demi gods and snakes ; as well as jewels, rubies and pearls are created by Him, he enjoys a praise which never dwindles or lessens and indescribables narration and is ever limitless beyond the comprehension of most intelligent people even. (156)

The Lord, whose form (appearance) is perfect (complete) and praiceworthy and whom Vedas and Katebs (Quran etc.) salute while Vedas and Puranas salute and describe as limitless and infinite. He is imperceptible and abstract, and none could ever gauge His depth or limits either physically or abstract. (157)

The Lord, whom the Vedas and Puranas apart from Katebs (Koran) worship. even the son of Oceans (the moon) is also worshipping facing downwards and many mendicants are also reciting and worshipping Him since ages (in penance), but they have not been able to grasp the benevolent Lord. (158)

The persons, who relinquish all fruitless religious efforts and worship the Lord with devotion and dedication, are enabled to cross this ocean of life successfully and finally attain Salvation. (do not get born again in human form). (159)

Even millions of fasting efforts without the recitation of Lord's True Name do not lead to man's salvation. The goddess of Education (Saraswati) has narrated such sermons from Vedas, The persons who have relished the taste of Lord's True Name are not caught by mistake even, by the noose of (god of) death. (160)

'By the Grace of the Lord'
Naraj Chhand

The Lord, from the very beginning (of Ages) , is known to be the destroyer of all those who are supposed to be complete (indivisible) and beyond extinction. He is always known to be in seen and Unseen forms, who is capable of destroying even those, called indivisible or indestructible. He is always known to be in both godly and devilish forms ; and is the Master of (the knowledge of) differentiation and is also free from discrimination. He is the controller of all occult powers and is friendly towards all. (161)

The Lord is always the protector (Master) of the poor and helpless persons ; he is capable of bending those who are supposed to be unyielding and bestows treasures of worldly wealth to those who are devoid of wealth and is capable of inimproving our occult powers even. His appearance is in the form of one divested of all praise, and is known to be possessing a radiant brilliance (emitting light). He is always known to be the bestower of perfect intelligence and is known as a certificate of mighty power. (authoritative power). (162)

The Lord has no love for worldly pleasures, and He has neither any form or appearance, nor He is pestered by any afflictions or any trace of worldly attachments (emotions). he is free from any faults (flawless), blemishless, free from jealousy, and beyond (free from) the body formation out of five elements (like air, fire, water etc.). He is above the effects of any doubts or misunder-standings and Guise. (costume) ; He has no father or mother (not born of parents) ; possesses neither caste or creed nor any clan (dynasty) ; He has no signs or symbols nor any colour (hue) or from four divisions of Hindu Society Ilike Brahmin etc.). The Lord is always sustaining the beings of the world, though He is unseen, infinite and limitless, and free from appearance (form). (163)

The Lord is the Master of the Universe, who is always bestowing perfection to the world ; and is specially the sustainer of the whole world. He is the cause and effect of all happenings (actions) on the lands (Earth), skies and the ethereal space. He is free from duality, appearance (costume or garb) and should be realised without any narration (description). He should be considered ever-existent at all places being omni-present and specially pervading everywhere. (164)

He is beyond the effects of talisman (charm), and cannot be controlled by any acts of jugglery or black magic. The Lord has been described as limitless and infinite both by Puranas and Quaran. (both Hindu and Muslim religious books). He is neither subjected to any actions (destiny) , or virtuous duties and is described as free from all whimsical beliefs (doubts) . How could we attain the Lord, who is indestructible and is the abimtio god (deity from time inmemorial). ? (165)

The Lord, whose light (brilliance) is pervading all the places (everywhere) including the Earth, Sky, and which never diminishes (fades) or increases and never varies in intensity. The Lord's enlightenment (light) should always be considered as steady and stable, as it is neither waxing nor waning, nor is it artificial. The Lord is to be considered as of a (constant) consistent form (appearance); and is to be considered as an incomparable manifestation (luminae) present in the abodes (places) or among those abiding there. (in such places). (166)

He is indestructible and indivisible ; He is ever benevolent and is representing the holy books (like Quran). (171)

He is free from death (Timeless) and above any sustenance, beyond any contemplation and possesses a perfect (undivided) form. He neither has any ailments nor any sadness (sorrow) ; has no discrimination or slander. He has no physical body (existence) nor any colour or any associates (companions). He is a beloved (loved by all) , pure and is transparent and keeps all under His Control. (172)

He does not feel any cold or heat (not affected by cold or hot weather); neither He feels any difference between shade and sunshine. He has no avarice (greed) or attachment. He does not get angry nor He has any desires. He is neither a god nor a demon nor He possesses the form of a Male. He does not have any fraud (pretension) and He is perfect (without any omission) and does not have any defective assets. (173)

He does not have any sexual desires, or anger (indignation); neither He has any greed nor any attachments. he does not have any malice or guise (garb) , and does not believe in dual-mindedness and is free from deceit. He does not represent death, nor He represent a child but is always having a benevolent outlook. He is without a treasure, is indivisible and is above any suspicion or the creation of five elements (like air, fire etc.). (174)

He is supposed to be penetrating even the impregnable and destroyer of the indestructible. (above extinction). He is all powerful even being without the combination of the five (basic essential) elements. He is free from fun and frolic (singing and dancing) and is formless. He is free from malice, guise (garb) and also from sexual desires, wrath and actions. He has no caste or creed, or even clan (dynasty) ; neither He possesses any sign, symbol or class. (like Brahmin and Khatri etc) . (175)

The Lord is limitless and infinite, who should be known as Lord-Almighty with unlimited radiance and power. He is not an inhabitant of the Earth, is the Unappeascible and an impregnable mighty radiant light. He does not suffer from any physical or mental ailments and has an unfathomable form (appearance). He is free from any blemish (illwill) or other faults (defects). He is to be seen as possessing an indestructible might and brilliance. (176)

He does not have any destiny or illusions (fallacy) and is not affected by any religious fervour. He is not to be linked with any automation theory, neither any magical powers nor any charm. He is neither a fraud (illusion) and is inpregnable nor possessing a form of flaws or short comings. He is indestructible, possessing no physical (body) form and a wealth free from extinction. (indestructible treasure). (177)

He does not entertain any sexual desires, has no wrath (anger); nor He has any avarice, worldly attachement or egoistic tendencies. (haughtiness). He has no dependence and does not cherish any hopes of achieving anything or any thoughts of (inkling) any angnish or wrangles. He does not believe in any fun or frolic and has no form. He does not have even a tinge of any signs or symbols (formless). He does not possess any blandishment (charm) nor any signs of deception (fraud). (178)

He is being served by King Indra (the Master of Airavat) and Kuber (god of masmon) the Master of human beings. He is being worshipped always by the moon (with Various phases), the Sun and Varuna. (the master of vegetation) . Even the great and famous asetics like August have been known to narrate the Lord as limitless and Infinite. (179)

He is beyond our Comprehension (Unfathomable), is the ab intio god (the god in the beginning) and is known to be without any beginning. (Timeless) . He does not have any caste or creed nor any dynasty (clan). He does not have any advisers (councillors) , or any friends, enemies, and companions. The persons who always meditate on the benevolent Lord, who keeps an eye (cares for) on all the beings (Primal force), get rid of all their ailments. (all their afflictions get burnt in no time). (180)

He does not have any form, merriment or signs and symbols (fun and frolic) , is free from birth or death, and is the Master of all (almighty) from the very beginning and beyond our reach. He is expert in all functions including moral duties. He is not controlled by any magic, spell or charm etc. and is the ab imtio Lord, who is limitless. He is pervading all the beings, including the elephant and the ant and is omni-present without any support (pervades everywhere without any help). (181)

He has no caste or creed, clan, father or mother, advisers and friends and is pervading everywhere. He has no signs or symbols and form or appearance. He is the god ab-initio (from the beginning) with a benevolent nature and is unfathomable and limitless Master. There is no beginning or end known about Him and is free from all sorts of wranglings (quarrels) and a limitless god-head (Lord). (182)

The Lord's secrets are not known to even gods and His details are not known to Vedas or Katebs (Quran etc). Even the god Brahma or his sons Sanak etc. have not been able to realise His limits through their service. His secrets have not been realised (known) by demi-god, mythological horse with human head fish (big), men, birds (cock) , snake etc. He is called limitless by Shiva, Indra and Brahma. (183)

Even the Lord's worship is being carried out beyond the seven hills (netherlands) , and He is god-abintio, with unlimited radiance, and with a form eternal, free from all afflictions, who cannot be attained by any spells of magic or charm, and cannot be controlled by mystical powers. (by magic) . The True Lord, Master of all pervades everywhere in a perfect manner. (184)

The Lord is not pervading (present) in demi gods (Kubers attendants), musicians of gods, gods demons, Brahmins and the Kashtriyas ; nor even among Vaishnavities (sect) or Shudras (scheduled castes). Neither He abides among serious Gaurs (sub-caste) nor deadly Bhils ; neither among Brahmins nor Sheikhs. (Hindu or Muslim religious leaders). The radiant Lord not to be found during day or night nor He is present in nether lands (hell), Earth or Sky. (185)

He has no caste or creed, neither He is born nor faces death ; neither He has any functions and is free from formal religious functions. He is neither subject to (visit at) holy places of pilgrimage, god-worship nor the worship of graves and tombs, but His light to be seen underneath the seven internal regions (under world) even. Even the python Sheshnag, with thousand fangs, could not recite His new Names everytime in full. (186)

The gods even have tired themselves out by trying to search and locate Him and all the demons have failed to enact their ennuity against Him. The musicians of gods have also got fed up (tired).by singing His praises and the demi gods have lost their prestige by playing on their musical instruments without any success. Even the greatest poets have got tired of reciting their poems or reading them out, and finally all have reached the conclusion with their efforts exhausted, that it is rather impossible to recite and find out the limits of His new Names (qualities). (187)

Even the Vedas have not realised the Lord's secrets nor Katebs (Quram etc.) have got the end of their efforts in limiting Him. The demi gods have failed to form His form and the gods or demons have found themselves to be foolish enough in trying to find the limits of the limitless Lord without any success. In fact, the Lord is the King (controller) of present, past and future (ages) ; He is free from the beginning (being a Master) or from His extinction (being ever-existent). He abides in all places including fire, air, oceans (water) and lands. (188)

The Lord has no love for the body or the house (householders life) ; He is the Master who is invincible and unpenetrating. (He) who is capable of destroying all and breaking up everyone (dilapidating all), and is fearless. He is the creator of all destroyer of all, and the benefactor of all. He has no signs, symbols or sub-caste (like Brahmin etc) ; neither He has any caste or creed, or caln (dynasty) nor any garb (guise) or appearance. (189)

The Lord, who has no form, sign or symbol, and colour (race); who does not indulge in any fun or frotic and is formless. He is powerful enough for performing any function; is invincible, and has the knowledge or information about everybody and sustainer (care-taker) of all. He is the friend of all helpers, is a benevolent Master and the god-head (from the beginning) who does not need anybody's help in His maintenance. (190)

The Lord is the benefactor of all poor and helpless people is skilful (adept), the spouse of Maya (worldly falsehood) and creator of all, who has no sub-caste (like Brahmin) sign or symbol, neither any features nor a physical body (form). There is no history (record) of His caste or creed and lineage (dynasty) or parentage (race) ; neither any form, appearance, sign, and symbol or sub-caste. He is the (giver) benefactor of all, omni-scient and the sustainer or benevolent Lord of the whole world. (191)

He is the destroyer of all oppressors, (enemies) and destroyer of all folks, and the Prime-male, the vanquisher (crushes all) of all mighty and haughty persons. He is the destroyer of all villains (rascals) and the creator of Universe; and His anecdotes are well-known throughout the world. The Almighty Lord (Prime-Soul) has existed always during the past present and future times. Infact, He has always been, from the beginning to the end, a mighty force, without any beginning, spouse of Maya (controller of worldly by falsehood), free from extinction (indestructible) as a Primal-Force. (192)

He is responsible for the creation of all the expanse of Universe, including all religious duties or functions and the religions. He alone is the creator of all beings, including innumerable gods, demigods, various types and sizes of fish and tortoise. His Name is being praised all over the lands, waters (oceans) skies. His main functions include destroying scoundrels (villains) establishing holy saints and bringing an end to the whole world. (destroying it) . (193)

He is the destroyer of villains, creator of Universe, benevolent and a beloved Gobind-Lord Sublime. He is the sustainer of friends, destroyer of enemies ; benevolent Lord of helpless and bestowing Salvation on us. He punishes the sinners, pulverises (breaks into pieces) all the rascals, and causes death of the god of death even. He is the suppressor of the villains, nourishes the virtuous people and the benefactor of all. (194)

He is the creator of all, destroyer of all, and fulfils the aspirations of all. He is repudiating (contradicting) all, is responsible for punishing all, and is the radiant light within all beings. He enjoys everything (worldly pleasures) and is expert in all skill and functions.He is responsible for the destruction (extinction) of all, and sharpens everyone, while all the acts and functions are controlled by Him. (195)

The Lord represents the composite ideology (thoughts) of all Smritis, Shastra and Vedas. He is the destroyer of all villains, the benefactor and sustainer of the whole world, and the grand form (force) all around. He causes punishment to villains, is the killer of all mighty and strong (haughty) persons, being their indivisible god-head (ab initio god). The self existent and self-effulgent Lord, present everywhere, including all the (Earth) lands, skies, waters (oceans) and places (being omni-present), is being worshipped all over the world. (196)

All the etiquettes and thoughts are enshrined in the Lord which should be considered by us clearly, as He is the god-head, limitless, spouse of Maya (Controller of worldly falsehood) and the destroyer of mighty villains. He is the bestower of food grains (livelihood), the bestower of enlightenment (Knowledge) and the pride of all the Kings. (King of Kings). Infact, He has created millions of Ved-Vyas (author of Vedas) Indras and Upindras (Fifty-Two Incarnations) (197)

He has the knowledge of our many births (during various ages) and has the knowledge of all formal-rituals and is even a good thinker (philosopher) of religious functions (duties). Even the Vedas, Siva, Rudar and Brahma (gods) could not find out the limits (Greatness and Vastness), and millions of gods like Indra, Upindra (Bavan incarnations), Vyas, Sanak and Sanat kumar (sons of Brahma) have tired themselves out by singing Lord's praises and Brahma (in particular) is wonderstruck). His origin (beginning), end and centre (middle position) or present, past and future is not known to anyone (He has none of them). He is the greatest (Lord) during all the four ages od sat Yuga, Doapar, Treta and Kal-Yoga (according to Hindu belief). The greatest Scholars (saints or hermits) have feet tired by worshipping Him and even the musicians (many) of the gods are tired of singing. His praises everyone has tired in vain (to describe His Greatness) and finally felt tired (fed up) but none could gain knowledge of His limits. (Greatness). (199)

Narad, Ved-Vyas and many great Munis (hermits or saints) have felt tired of worshipping Him with the troublesome efforts of all types (but without success). The musicians of gods have tired themselves of singing His praises. Even many fairies (celestial beauties) have danced themselves out (tired of dancing), while the greatest of gods have even tried in vain to find out His where abouts (existence) but no one has ever succeeded in finding out His limits (greatness). Hail to You, O Lord ! You are the destroyer of the demons, uprooting the villains (from the roots) having an appearance of a mighty warrior, killer of the demon Chand and the devil Mund, and destroyer of the demon Dhumar Lochan, the mighty power to split (shatter) the forehead of Mehkhasur (demon) and killer of all demons, saviour of humanity from the hell, and even <providing<deliverance to the (saviour of) Sinners, (He), who is pervading all the skies and nether lands (under world), killer of the demon Mehkhasur and the ab initio power (from the beginning) having a beautiful tuft of hair on the head, our salutations to You, O Lord. (212)

His tabor strikes with a banging sound and roars like a lion and His powerful arms palpitate (throb) (with a strong urge to strike). The monkey-god (Hanumaan), with the arms equipped, is jumping around in great strength, as if ready to destroy the army of demons like the god of death. Various arms (weapons) are shining within Your eight hands and the golden ornaments are shining brilliantly, as if white snakes are hissing to strike against their enemies. O Killer of the Mehsakhur demon, with a beautiful tuft of hair on Your head, and gaining victory over demons (victorious over demons), Hail to You. (213)

You are the only force which accounts for the killing of demon Chand in the battle field, destroying the demon Mund, and fragmenting (breaking into pieces) those who were indivisible or invincible, flashing like the lightning, fluttering like (of) flags, and striking with arrows like the hissing snakes, gaining victory over warriors (brave men), piercing with arrows like the penetrating rays and killing by dragging the villains (rascals) around, admiring the warriors and making them merry (happy) and grinding the scoundrels, or killing the demon Mehkhasur, and finally pervading everywhere including lands, skies, upper and lower regions ; Hail to such a forceful power and our Salutations to such a Lord-Sublime. Padhri chhand

O god ! plaese explain to us (in detail) wishfull consideration, how the creator had created this universe? The Lord is no donbh beyond the basic five elements and is free from them and is (limitless) infinite, I would try to discuss (explain) it , as per my own intelligence (knowledge) (231)

The (prime soul) Lord is the creator of all , benefactor of all bestowinghis benedictions, is Almighty and is benevolent and is free from duality (without any parallel) and is beyond the combination of five elements is fearless , is kind and merciful, is the greatest benefactor, is free from all afflictions and blemish (malice), whom all the Vedas have described as limitless and infinite. (232)

The Lord has created many (fashioned) ups and downs (big and small things). His sway (influence) is extending on both sides (this side is the universe and the other side) of the universe and he knows the full details (condition) of all the beings (human beings and animal world). O foolish mind ! why do you not recite His True Name ? (remember or worship Him) (233)

Some fools worship Him in the leaves of Tulsi (an aromatic plant) or bill (a fruit), some sidhas and sadiks (mendiants) worship the Sun. some others worship him by facing towards the West, though the Lord has only one form, then how could we perceive His duality (in two different ways)? (234)

The lord posseses an impregnable light (radiance) and is self effulgent in the normal manner (automatically), His form is free from all affliction and sorrows (defects or sadness), is fearless, devoid of death (free from effect of time) and his existence (form) is free from extinction.(indestructiable) or ever existent. (235)

The Lord is the treasure –load of all benevolence (kindness), perfect benefactor , a destroyer of all ills and malice , is a benevolent benefactor (giver) , is free from the effects of Maya (worldy falsehood) and an indivisible Master . He is pervading everywhere including all lands and oceans and is enjoying everything (absorbed in every thing) (236)

He has no caste or creed, clan (dynasty) or illusions and discrination (differences), has no form or colour (race) , and has only one moral duty to perform .He has no distinction between friend or foe. (equally friendly with all). His form is free from extinction (indestructible) is limitless (infinite) and steady (steadfast) (237)

His form (signs or symbols) is not known to anyone where is His abode and what is His Name or what is His caste? (no one could explain definitely all these details) He has no ennuity against anyone and has no son or brother either. (238)

He is the treasure of kindness , is the (source) cause of creation of the whole Universe. He has no signs or symbols, or form and colour.He is free from regrets discrimination, free from death (time) ,and any functions (actions) ,and is sustaining all the beings . (239)

He is free from all ups and downs (extinction or deficiency), and and has a perfect form (complete in all respect) , and is the greatest warrior (fighter in wars) . He has no signs or symbols (form or appearance) , nor he has any fun and faolic, His radiance is not subject to splitting (breaking or decreasing) and is not influenced by anyone and is not subject to any slander. (240)

The Lord is the king of lands and oceans and is pervading the jungles and human bodies in various forms, who is always proclaimed as Infinite and limitless. No one could ever realise His limits (perceive the other end) . The Lord having a benevolent appearance, is known to be responsible for eliminating the faults (blames) of the poor and helpless (distressed) persons. (241)

There are millions of gods like Indra at His service (fetching water for Him) and there are (crores of) millions of Rudras at His beck and call .(connected with his personal service). Millions of Ved Vyas and Brahmas are proclaiming Him Infinite and Limitless day in and day out (day and night)

Swaiyaas

The Lord is always sustaining (helping) the helpless and distressed people and uplifts His Saints, while he destroys all the oppressors. He is always sustaining the birds, animals, mountains, snakes and the kings. The Lord is maintaining and sustaining all the beings on lands or in the waters (oceans) in a moment and does not bother about the actions of these bound to (subject to death) die shortly. He is the benevolent, generous (oceans of kindness) Lord who does not hesitate in bestowing His benedictions, even having noticed some blams and faults of the receiving persons. (243)

The Lord is capable of burning (casting away) all the afflictions and blemishes and crushes Lords of villainous persons . He is the destroyers of the indivisible (unbreakable) persons and assoults those with mighty radiance and maintains those with selfless service and love. Even god Vishnu could not realise His greatness (limits). Even Vedas and katebs (Koran etc.) have described Him as impregnable (beyond their comprehension). The Lord perceives (knows) our hidden differences (discriminations) but does not cease to help sustaining those beings. (244)

The Lord has created all the worms, bees (black), moth, deer, snakes, and present, past and future Times (ages), the gods and demons have been felt frustrated due to their egoism but none could ever gain His secrets, and they were wondering in their illusions.All the religions books including Vedas, purans (Hindu literature) and kateb or Koran (muslim books) have been engaged in various calculations about the Lord's limits (greatness) but finally have given up their efforts without any success. Let us know if anyone, without complete and perfect affection (love) and faith has ever attained the lord (or known his secrets). (245)

The Lord is the source (origin) of all , is limitless beyond our comprehension , devoid of duality , and has been fearless during present past and future times (ages). He has no limits (infinite) is self effulgent, flawless, and free from omissions (mistakes) and is(indestructible) He is the creator and destroyer of all the beings , and maintains (sustains) all the beings on lands or in oceans always . He is the only Lord –sublime, benevolent , kind hearted, great bestower of benedictions , and master (spouse) of Maya (worldy falsehood), with beautiful appearance (form). (246)

All the persons (including) like Narad ,god Brahma and Rishi Romchrashan have sungtogether the praises of the Lord , the readers of Vedas and Katebs (Koran etc.) have not realised (seen) the Lord , as all have got tired oftheir efforts but without success , and none has been able to attain the Lord . His greatness or limits have not been known by anyone . His limits have not been realised by Shiva (god) . Even the Sidhas , Naths(mendicants) including (god) Brahma's sons recited Lords Name (simran) . O humanbeing ! Try to worship the Lord (remember) in your mind (recite His Name), as His inmeasureable radiance is pervading the whole Universe. (250)

Vedas , Puranas , Katebs , Koran and Kings have been trying to realise the impregnable lord and got tired of their efforts (without success). They were distressed and painied to remember the Prime-soul (The Lord) with the name of impregnable Lord, who has no signs and symptoms nor any merriment fun, colour , who has no relations or associates norsorrow, but the land is always by our side. The person, who remembers (worships) the ab initio Lord, without any beginning , incomprehensible, without any robe, (dress), the committed and impregnable (lord) is enabled to help his whole clan (family members) to cross this osean of life successfully. (251)

Even if someone (living being) were to have a bath at many (millions of Hindu) holy places of pilgarimage, or to give alms in a big way, and keeps many fasts, or to roam around foreign lands in the garb of an ascetic or grows (keeps) tufts of hair on his head, he is not able to realise the Lord (The beloved Lord) Even if someone were to perform Yoga , or to renounce the whole world, and to blacken his face like foolish sadhus (saints) but does not worship the lord-benevolent with deathless form, he is thrown into hell (the place of Yama). (252)

"By The Grace Of Lord"

Kabit

O lord ! you are managing great fireworks, occupying the throne of a king with a canop overhead (of land), or deceiving (hoodwin king) the Kings, or subdoing the powerful enemies. You are capable of giving alms, increasing your might (pride) among others, bestowing sense and wisdom on us, and casting away the noose of Yama (god of death). You are winning wars removing the opposition, imparting great intelligence and wisdom to us, and the pride of all powerful (and proud) persons. You are having all the knowledge (omni-scient), giver of great intelligence or wisdom (to us), the killer of the god of death and the death of god of death even. (253)

O Lord ! The inhabitants of East have not been able to realise Your Greatness (limits), the (Hinglaj) inhabitants of Makran area and the Himalayan regions have worshipped You. Gore and Gurdeji (the resident of these areas) have been singing Your praises, whereas the Yogi's are engaged in Yoga (Yogic exercises) in order to placate You. there are many person practising PranaYam (worshippers of air) and the arabic people belonging to Arab countries have been engaged in reciting Your Name. The French people of France worship You , while Kandhari and Qureshi people also have faith in You, whereas the inhabitants of Western countries have also been busy in reciting Your Name, considering it as their main motive in life . the inhabitants of Maharashtra, and residents of Madhya Pradesh have been worshipping You with full concentration of mind, even the residents of Andhra and Telangana have known You as the centre of worship (religious duty) . (254)

'By The Grace Of God'
Padhri Chhand

O Lord ! You are free from duality, free from extinction (imperishable) having an unshakable seat , devoid of dual mindedman (duality), without any limits or end, having an unlimited praise and glory. You are the hidden master and is indestructible. You could crush all including ajanbah. (267)

Wherever green vegetation, and forests are flourishing, You are supposed to be their king.You are shining like the beauty of Basant (spring season) wherever we look around. O Lord ! You are pervading everywhere (being omni-present) including jungles, green pasture, birds and wild animals, being the greatest.You are seen flourishing (shining) everywhere like the beauty and most intelligent person.(268)

O Lord ! The crown of prospering flowers alongwith their fragrent smell is shining resting on Your head, as if the god of love (cupid) is waving the whisk on your head . You control (possess) wonderful Nature, are benevolent Lord, sustainer of all, the treasure of kindness, and the benefactor of all. (269)

Wherever I look around , You are seen pervading in glory, having long supporting arms , (powerful), having unlimited might and enamouring everyone (with Your charm). You are free from wrath having wealth or kindness. O wonderful beautiful Lord ! You are omni-present. (270)

You are the King of forests and green pastures, and the greatest power on land or oceans .O mighty Lord ! your fame is spread everywhere. Your perfect magnificance and might is shining everywhere and You are being worshipped throughout the world. (on land). (271)

The network of Your benevolence is spread out over the seven skies and seven netherlands (underworld) in a hidden (unseen) form. (272)

Couplet

I salute the sword with love and devotion (with my concentrated mind).O Lord! If You were to supoort me then I would be able to comlete this Granth. (great book) (1)

In praise of the Lord "(The god of death or Time)"

Tribhangi Chhand

The sword is capable of smitting into pieces, destroying hordes of enemies (opressors or villains), il is to powerful and mighty that it embellishes (decides) the battles. (war). (the sword) is having the radiance of indivisible power (energy) which constitute the punishing arm, having impregnable brilliance, before it the radiant light of the Sun even fades away, (the Sun's shining light appears faded) and is praise worthy. (The sword) provides relief (comfort) to the holy saints, crushing the vicious mind, and destroys the sins (vicious acts) fully. I am depending on its support, O Lord ! Having the creative power of this Universe, salutations to You, as You have the power (capability) of uplifting the world and sustaining and maintaining me. So, O sabr (sword) ! hail to You ! (salutations to You). (2)

Bhujang Paryat Chhand

O Lord ! You are always having the single form of radiant light, having an (unborn) (appearance) form of radiant light, having an unborn (appearence) form. you are the king of all gods (the god head), and the king of kings (greatest king). You are formless, ever existent without any form or shape , and free from worldly concern (in a state of emancipation). You are the source and origin of all power (might). O sword -yielder ! Salutations to You . (3)

O Lord ! You aew formless, flawless, ever existent and extraordinary (an excellent Master) especially neither You are old, nor young or child like. Neither You are poor nor a king . You have no caste or creed, signs or symbols, having no form either. You possess neither any colour (hue), nor any attachment (affection) without any limits (endless) and have no garb or appearance. (4)

O Lord ! You have neither any form, sign or symbol, or hue (colour) and nor any worldly attachment. You have neither any name, nor any abode, but you are the great luminous light. Neither You have any duality, nor any garb or costume and You are formless having an ever- existent appearance. You are the Greatest worthy and able (efficient) power, which is of the purest form. (5)

You are the source or origin of every thing, but you have no origin Your are beyond any count, and infinite. (unfathomed). You are free from enmity, master of the Earth, and are the greatest (power), You never lose temper, are ever green, (without dryness). You do not possess any deceit nor any worldly attachments. You have no worldly desires (passions) nor any wrath (anger). You are free from the cycle of Rebirths, (births and deaths) and are invisible. (7)

You are invisible, and fearless You are ever-present (in present and future ages).You are free from any ills or sorrows and ever green (always modern). You are never born , and are always helpful, The Gteatest and perfect Master. (8)

O Lord ! You are ever existent being present in past , future and present times. O flawless Lord (deviod of all defects); Our salutations to You . O Lords ! Devoid of all afflictions ! Hail to You ! O King of all gods ! salutations to you O King of all Kings, Hail to You . O Lord ! You are unsupported, ever existent and king of kings. (9)

O Lord ! You are not subject to any accountability, free from all garb (costumes), You are beyond constituents of five elements (fire, air etc.) and beyond any malice (enmity); You are free from fun and frolic, and having neither any form or sign and symbols.You are the greatest god, greater than Shiva ever .and most competent and qualified. (The height of competence) . You are having the greatest worldly desires (greater desire than all) and having the greatest sexual desires. (10)

O Lord ! You are at times functioning under the spell of three-pronged Maya viz. Lust for power, greed or partial peace (rajo, tamo, sato) and at other times You are requesting the male form (of Vishnu) in the garb of a beautiful female. At times You are in the form of a god, goddess or demon while at times You have taken the various forms of perfection and beauty. (11)

At times You are making the sound of a nice musical instrument , while at times You are seen like a deer enamoured (by this sound) completely, while at other times You appear in the beautiful form of Rati (spouse of passion). (13)

It is not possible to realise (know) the exact form of or appearance of the Lord , or where is His abode or in what role or guise He moves around (is not known)? What is His Name and to which place He belongs (is not clear)? It is not possible for me to describe as it is beyond my comprehension. (14)

He has no father or mother and even a brother . Neither He has any son or grandson nor he has any male attendent or a maid-servant (to fondle Him). He has no worldy attachment, nor any abode ; neither he has any enemy nor any comrades. He is in fact the King empror of Kings and the greatest Master of all the masters. (15)

He is the greatest and the grandest of all, the most ancient,pure and beyond our comprehension or mind (mind and speech) ; free from any beginning, without any count, unborn, is never conquered (unvincible). He is devoid of any discrimination (distinction) cannot be probed, and is pure and brave, he is the most duti ful of all religious persons and the greatest master of protectors. (16)

The Lord is free from any blemish or deceit is beyond discription and devoid of any guise or Garb. He is infinite, unfathomable (beyond count), formless and devoid of duality. He is the greatest shining light among lights and the greatest fire among fires (greatest passions). He is the greatest (magic) charm among various magic spells and the master death of all deaths (god of death). (17)

He carries a bow and arrow in the left hand while in the right hand has a mighty sword (frightening). He is the greatest luminous light of all the shining lights and is seated (on a throne) having an extensive (large) form (appearance). He is like the greatest guide (tooth) of all the guiders (teeth) and is shining in His superb, form, who has crushed (chewed) thousands of worldly creatures. (18)

He is sounding like death-knell of all, (drum beat of an appraoching death), having a canopy of white and black colours overhead. He is having lot of fun and frolic (with a mysterical laughter) and His arms (weapons) are shining brilliantly. His conch-shells are sounding like the death-knell of the doomsday or the flame of the death as the god of death is burning furiously. (19)

Rasaval Chhand

The bells are ringing with deafening sound ; hearing this sound even the clouds appear fading away (the clouds feel belittled before this sound). Such a heavy noise is produced, as if the ocean is subjected to highly stormy weather. (20)

The sound produced is like that of the twinkling bells and the noise produced is like that of the bells bed to the feet. During these tunes, the sound of the Lord's highest (sound) song cheers us up keeping in the high spirits and eliminating all sorts of afflictions or ill-effects. (21)

His head is decorated with a (garland) necklace , before which even Shiva (the weeping god) also feels ashamed. Thus the beautiful face (appearance) is praiseworthy and is very pure also. (22)

The Yama (god of death) starts trembling on hearing his roaring noise (sound), and the blood oozing out of the necklace of human skull around his neck appear praiseworthy, which enanours even the most honoured and proud people. (23)

Bhujang Paryat Chhand

The lord has created the three sources of creation like perspiration, semen and vegetation, similarly he has created the (fourth source) source of eggs alongwith various khands (countries) and the regions of the world. He alone has created the four directions, and the four corners, earth and sky. He has narrated the four vedas, koran and purans. (holy books of hindus and muslims). (24)

Further He has created the day and the night, installing the Sun and the Moon (in the skies). He has created the gods and demons alongwith highly braine and mighty warriors. The pen of fate (the time of destiny) was created by Him, describing the time of fate on each forehead of each individual (beings), while the mighty hands of death (god of death) brought everyone under its sway (control). (25)

The Lord destroys many, and then brings them into life again (created them). Thus he has been uprooting, creating, again and bringing into life (reproducing) This world (every time). No one has ever been able to understand the secret of the Lord's functioning (doings). Many have under gone this change and many more are undergoing this phase. (26)

The Lord has created millions of krishnas and the like, then many more like Rama were created and then were destroyed also. Many mohammads (Mahadin)) were brought (created) on this Earth, and all of them existed in turn during various ages (times) and then in the end got merged with (into) Him. (27)

All the religious leaders or Lord's representatives (incarnations) who came into this world, had been won over by the god of death but none of them could subjugate (overpower) the god of death. Whatever incarnations of Vishnu like Krishna and Rama came into existence, were finally overpowered by the god of death but none could destroy the god of death . (28)

Whatever gods like Indra and Moon came into this world, have been over-powered by the god of death. All the godly persons including muslim saints (Darvesh) have been crushed under (the teeth) the supremacy of the god of death. (29)

All the mighty Kings and other powerful Rajas, who have ever existed in this world , had been brought under subjugation (the control of) by the god of death .However , the persons , who have recited Lord's True Name, have won the battle of life (have led a successful life), without being brought under the sway of the god of death , but millions of others have been seen perishing under the might of god of death. By The Grace Of The Lord

The sword is shining in the hands of the mighty Lord god of death , which is considered to be extremely dreadful, while the tinkling bells of his feet produse a sound alongwith (the bells) around the ankles (anklets) which is (pleasing) pleasant in sound. (31)

He has four beautiful arms , and is having a nice tuft of hair on head. He is armed with a heavy mace, which is ensnaring the pride of Yama , and proclaiming his supermacy over all. (32)

The tonge is shining like burning fire while the molar teeth are very dreadful. The drums and conch shells are producing their sounds, while the music produced (sound) by these is like the thunder of the stormy seas. (33)

His dark complexion is appearing graceful , which is an embodiment of splendour. His picture is like a beautiful painting, which is highly (pure) solemn, beyond our imagination. (Beyond any description). (34)

Bhujang Paryat Chhand

There is a beautiful canopy covering (over) his head , and the splendour of this protection makes even daylight as faded (pale) befire it. The red and large eyes of this venerable king (Raja) appear glamorous and millions of suns even feel pale and faded before themand appear degraded. (or they lose their radiance before it). (35)

At times he appears praiseworthy in the form of a king and at other times He is enamouring the beauty and grace of the fairies even. At times He is armed with bows and arrors as a warrior and at times He appears in the form of a King beating the kettle drum. (36)

Rasaval Chhand

The Lord is armed with an arrow and a bow and is appearing beautiful like a great warrior, and is having a sword in hand as if He were a great warrior. (37)

When ever he is engaged in war he fights dreadfully in the war. He is an ocean of benevolence and a personification of kindness (compassion He is always a benefactor of great benedictions). (38)

He is always having a single form, and is the king of all the people. He is ever invisible and is never born. he is a supporter of all those who seek His refuge (protection).(39)

A sword is dangling in His hand (ready to strike). He is a great donor among the masses ; there is none to (compete) compare with Him either in the present or in future times. I salute Him, who is the prime soul. (40)

He is the destroyer of the pride of the demon Madh and is graceful among hordes of masses. A white canopy flutters over his head while arms (weapons) in His hands are shining brilliantly. (41)

Even the great kings with canopies (over head) dread the sound of His trumpets (musical sounds). The various directions form his robes (He is naked). The vices (sins) take to their heels on the very mention of His name. (42)

A dreadful fear grips the people (all around) on hearing the sound of His mace, as if the dark clouds have overcast the sky, which deserve the greatest praise alluring (fascinating) everyone around. (43)

He has four beautiful arms, with a crest (crown) on His head, his mace, conch shell, wheel,(halo) and dreadful eyebrows are shining brilliantly. (44)

(O Lord) ! Your gracious form (appearance) is elegant (handsome) which makes the god of love (cupid) even pale (fade) before it.Your wonderful elegance is known as praiseworthy among masses seeing which all the people are enamoured and are spellbound. (45)

(O Lord)! The moon is shining brilliantly over your head, seeing which even Shiva feels ashamed.The snakes (around your body) are like your ornaments, which appear troublesome to the villans (causing anxiety and concern) (46)

You are wielding a sword in Your hands, which eliminates all the sins (vices), and you have a (heavy) big mace in Your hands alongwith arrow fixed in Your bow (ready to strike). (47)

The (sound) music of your conch-shell sound like the furshing thunder of clouds. O Great Master ! pray protect my honour as I have sought refuge at Your lotus–feet. (48)

O Lord ! You are appearing graceful in various forms, enamourning great gods (with Your glamour) and the abode of worship for gods and demons (alike) and are the treasure of benevolence. (49)

You are uniform and steady from the beginning to the end (of ages) and have been appearing in various beautiful forms, A sword appears beautiful in Your hand,and the sins take to their heels on the very sight of it. (50)

Your tinkling bells and new anklets are producing a musical sound , while Your glamour is like the flare of high king , which is highly pure and transparent . (52)

By The Grace Of The Lord
Totak Chhand

Your anklets are producing a pure musical sound while your form (face) is shining brilliantly like the blaze of lightning in the clouds, while your roar like trumpet of a druken elephant having consumed liquor, as if the cub of a lion is producing a thunderous noise. (53)

You are responsible for the creation of this Universe in all the three ages , present , past and future , and You alone are the main source of deliverance during this age of KalYug. You are pervading everywhere in new forms constantly,and are appearing in a beautifil and delicate rejoicing form. (54)

You are having two white molar teeth , which look very dreadful and protruding stoutly, seeing which the foes villains flee from the battle field . You are wielding a sword being drunk with liquor, and all the gods and demons salute You always. (55)

All the mountains are shaken (from their calm posture) when your anklets and waist string produce a combined musical note of a new type, and the Earth also trembles with its sound. When Your tinkling bells produce a high note (sound) then all the living beings and vegetation in the four directions gets baffled (agitated) with its sound. (56)

Your writ runs throughout all the fourteen regions (of Universe), so that the affluent are reduced to penuary (penniless) conditions and all the empty ones get filled up .Who is there in the whole world's creation of being on land or oceans, who could discard (ignore) Your edicts? (57)

Bhujang Paryat Chhand

O Lord! Your dark -complexioned appearance is glamrous like the thick clouds of the month of July (savan), and seeing this dark appearance of Yours even the blue jewel feel (ashamed) belittled.(they feel their appearance is inferior as compared to the glamour of your dark complexioned face). Infact, Your dark complexioned appearance (face) which is highly radiant (beautiful) is always bewitcing to the heart (mind). You are the most beautiful and smart as compared to normal beauty and enjoying the maximum sexual pleasures of all (ordinary) pleasures. (59)

Your writ runs the throughout the fourteen regions of the Universe, who else could (compare) compare with You ? Who could disregard Your Will Orders ? How could one escape and run away in any of the ten directions, as the god of death is waiting to strike on the heads of all. (grasp in its jaws). (60)

Even if someone were to build forts and consider them as his protective support and cover, one could not escape the ouslaughts of the god of death.if someone get many magical spells (charm)and then chants millians of incantations (magical spells), there is no other support or escape except taking refuge at the lotus feet of the Lord. (61)

All those charms or those chanting magic spells have tried themseleves out and completely exhausted .They have been contemplating on various means (to escape death) from birth to the time of death , having controlled many magical charms, the whole life was spent in such fruitless efforts and many lives were wasted, but nothing was of any help.(came to their rescue). All the great men who are known to have been born, have been won over (defeated) by the god of death. But all those, who have taken refuge at the lotus feet of the Lord (the king of death god) will be saved from destruction. (75)

Bhujang Prayat Chhand

There is no escape from taking shelter at the lotus feet of the Lord (the great god of death) for protection. All the great gods and demons , (kings) rich men and men of poverty , whether kings or paupers with all their efforts . except the support of the Lord , have not escaped the outlaughts of the god of death. (76)

All the beings human and animal world , created by the the Lord in this world, have finally been killed by the powerful god of death. There is no other escape(from death) except by taking refuge at his lotus-feet, notwithstanding all written magic charms or spoken magic spells to avoid destruction. (77)

Naraj Chhand

All the kings and paupers , who were born (in the world) have finally been killed by the god of death , having an unprecedent move (mode of functioning) . Even the sauiours of Men (lok dal) who came into existence have finally been destroyed (crushed) by the god of death. (78)

All the welders of sword (in the hands) who worship the Lord, the king of god of death , make many efforts for their protection against the god of death , and all those who worship the god of death (the Lord) always proceed from the world having won the battle of life. (79)

All the sins take to their wings by hearing the name of the true Lord , who possesses a wonderful and beautiful form (appearance) which is highly pure (unpolluted) and is shining with radiance and brilliance. (80)

All the well-wishers (lok pal) of people (humanity) are all subject to the god of death. All the suns and moons or the hordes (groups) of Indras (gods) are all under the control of god of death. (82)

Bhujang Prayat Chhand

The writ of god of death runs throughout all the fourteen worlds (regions) of the Universe . He has controlled all the masters (protectors) of the Universe by unfair means. (by moving the Earth in the wrong direction). What to talk of Rama and Krishna , what to say about the sun or the moon , infact all the present (standing in front of) with folded (humility) before the God of death. (83)

In due course of time , the god of death had become the god Vishnu with whose skill this world is wide awake (is functioning or moving around) , then in due course of time brahma (god) appeared (before us) and in due course (the god) Shiva became Yogi (mendicant) . Then in due course of time ,the gods , the demons , the musicians of gods , devi-gods , snakes, all the directions or corners came into existence. All the present materials or facilities are subject to the control of god of death . (84)

If we were to escape the striking power of the god of death , then which (direction) way could we flee ? In fact, we had to retreat (fall back) from the battle of life as whichever direction we were trying to escape , the sword of the god of death was (dangling) hanging prominently all around . There was no way out to escape from the ouslaughts of the god of death(or no one could show us the way to escape the strike). which is totally futile (false) as none of them willcome to your rescue even for a moment? How could anyone protect you when he could not save himself from the ouslaughts of the god of death? All of them are engaged in the fear of (death), the god of death, so they will also get you in the same plight (of being surrounded) by the fire place of death. O fool! Try to (understand clearly) and come to your senses realising that apart from the benevolence of the god of death nothing else will be of any avail and come to your rescue. (98)

O greatest (fool) beast ! You do not realise the importance of the Lord, whose glamour pervades all the three regions of the Universe (the Earth , the heavens and the Netherlands) You are worshippimg (those gods) whose very tonch (company) will take you further awayfrom the abode of the Lord. Even the greatest sins feel belittled before those humble sins which You are committing considering them as leading you towards, heaven. O foolish person! you shold bow in obeisance to the Lord instead of worshipping the stones as the Lord does not abide in these stones. (god of stones). (99)

O Man! We cannot attain the Lord by worsipping Him in silence (observing) by ridding ourselves of egoism, by wearing the robes of (dress) a particular sect (by disguise and posing like a holy person) or by having a shaven head. We cannot merge with the Lord by wearing the Mosary (pearl neclace) around the neck , practising penace of a high order or keeping a tuft of artificial (matted) hair. I am telling the truth so you should listen carefully (with full concentration of mind) that without taking refuge at the lotus feet of the Lord, no other effort would enable us to attain Salvation. It is through love and devotion that we could merge with the Lord (attain the Lord). The Lord is not pleased with us by incision(of the male organ like Muslims) . (100)

O Lord ! How far could this small insect (like me) describe Your grandeur and praise your greatness ? O I ord ! You alone could know Your greatness and praise worthy grandeur, just as the son could never know (realise or appreciate) the secret (details) of his father's birth, similarly I am not in a position to describe Your secrets. (4)

O Lord ! You alone could describe Your radiance (and august presence) as none else could ever explain it. O Lord! You alone know Your greatness and vastness (detaits of your existence) or functioning. How could I describe (little less or more) the least or extreme limits of Your Grandeur (greatness)? (5)

O Lord! You have created a thousand gangs of Sheshnaag, whose two thousands tongues are praise worthy, which have been reciting Your names (innumberable) without any count, but he could not reach the limits or Your Names. (Your names are beyond his reach or conception). (6)

(O Lord !) How could anyone describe the secret of Your functioning? our intelligence gets confused (confounded) in trying to under stand Your ways (of functioning). We cannot describe Your inperieptible (abstract) form. Not with standing all this (due to my obdurate mind) I am trying to narrate Your Gigantic (colossal) form. (7)

(O Lord !) When I am in a position to attain the know of Your worship (devotional worship), I would then narrate Your onecdote from the beginning. For the present I am going to describe my own narration as to the origin of the sodhi dynasty in the world. (8)

When Time came (age) into existence in the first instance then the whole Universe was created from the formless Lord. At first a king named Kaal sain was created (born), who was very powerful with unlimited glamour (radiant personality) and was very charming. (glamorous). (10)

Then the second king Kaal Ket came into being and then the third king Karoor Baras was born in the world. Kaal Dhuj was the fourth king, who was famous all around and the whole creation (of the Universe) came into existence. (11)

The person who had a thousand praiseworthy eyes on his body, and his body had a thousand feet, who would sleep on the bed of Sheshnag and he is called by the world Saikh Saie (Seshasajee). (12)

When he became a yogi, he handed over the reins of his kingdom to his son Dasrath, who was also a great anchor. He got married of his own will (and pleasure) to three women. (had three wives). (21)

The (elder) first queen, gave birth to a prince named 'Ram' and the other two queens (Kakaiee and Simitra) gave birth to the princes called Bharat , Lachhman and Shatrughan, who ruled for a long period, and passed away when his death took place. (22)

The both the sons of Sita (Lav and Kush) became kings, whos kingship was a great success. When they got married to the princess of Madh region, Panjab there were great Yagnas of various types (incelebration). (23)

In the region of Panjab, they developed two cities (town), one was named Kasur and the other named Lahore (Lavpura - Lahurva), both these towns became renowned, seeing which both the kindoms of Lanka and Amravati (Indrapuri) felt disgusted (or disgraced). (24)

Both these kings ruled for a long period but finally they fell victims to the ouslaughts of the god of death. Their sons and grandsons also ruled over this country for a long time. (25)

They performed the two Rajsue Yagnas many times and won over all other kings of the region. They performed the Great Asmed Yagna also many times, thus eliminating all the sins of their dynasty. (32)

Then the quarrels started among the members of the family, which could not be settled by any well meaning person of the family Great warriors of the clan started roaming around and went to the battle field fully armed with various weapons. (33)

There is ancient enmity between wealth and property while the whole world engrossed by them is completely lost. The worldly attachment and egoism are the main causes of this wrangling while the sexual pleasures and wrath (anger) have enveloped the whole world successfully. (have won over the whole world). (34)

Let us thank the wealth which has enslaved the whole world and all are keenly watching its activities, while all are paying obeisance to the abode of rich and wealthy people. (35)

The creator had created many types of enmities and wranglings, which none of the well– meaning persons (saintly persons) could rectify so far. In fact is there any (warrior) powerful) person who has escaped successfully the ouslaughts of the powerful vices of sexual pleasures, greed, worldly attachments or their powerful strikes. (1)

In the battle field many mighty and smart looking warriors were exchanging hot words amongest themselves. They rise from their seats armed with various weapons and engage themselves in great ferocious battles. Somewhere one could see them using broad arrows (an arrow with broad spear like head) or beyonets and killing one another with double-edged swords and at other place one could see them dancing and playing on out of line drum beats. (2)

At some places one could see Shiva collecting human skulls and making a necklace out of them, somewhere one could hear the unpleasant and useless noises or out of tune and jarring notes. Somewhere vultures are making noises while at other places kites are flying in different styles, while at places one could see the corpses of warriors huddled together. (3)

There have been ferrocious fights resulting in many deaths , and one could see the bodies of warriors smitten into pieces, and somewhere one could see the dead bodies of the warriors (with hands on the moustaches) showing there prowress in the battle-field. Somewhere one could see the armour protecting the head (head gear) along with arrows and bows scattered all around. While at other places one could see the swords of the warriors along with their arrows hanging in bunches scattered all over the field. (4)

Somewhere one could hear the sounds of vultures or kites hovering around, while at places mornong songs, ghosts or black bees making their sound could beheard while at places there were warriors roaming around in thrir egoistic postures while at places one could see the ghosts or wild animals rejocing at their feast (5)

Great warriors are roaring, (hearing their roar) even the clouds are feeling belittled (disgraced). They have fixed their barriors (rods) strongly and seeing them the warriors of the enemy ranks are getting enraged and engaged in a fierce battle. (6)

(The warriors) getting enraged are fighting with their swords and beyonets more fiercely. Many waarriors, strong and beautiful, are fighting vehemently with each other sothat, the Earth underneath is trembling. (7)

The weapon of the warriors are in actions, as such the lighting is shining from the fireworks of both sides. Great use is being made of the weapons made (out of) iron apart from swords and bayonets. (8)

The warriors while fighting against other brave men have become super natural and dreadful. The noise produced by the beating of kettle drum (with bullocks skin cover) and the loud sound of large kettle drums is also being heard. The music produced by the beating of new kettle drums is really novel and serene while the truncated bodies of human being pierced with arrows are seen moving around in the battle fie ld. (39)

One could see (hear) the clashing of swords in the battle field and bunches of arrows are being shot around, great warriors in the battlefield are seen fallen on the ground being smitten (cut) into pieces, while great many proud and haughky warriors are seen dressed as martyrs.Having borne the brunt of various weapons on the body ; such warriors are seen in an intoxicated condition moving around in the battle-field. (40)

The clattering of weapons (armours) against each other are producing loud noisy sounds, as if the clouds are producing roaring sounds on doomsday. The arrows are being shot around n a row, while the bows are cracking. The armour is clanging used by raging warriors and a fierce battle is going on. (41)

The young warriors have engaged themselves in a fierce battle and one could see the warriors with drawn swords in an unparalled and horible postures (form). The brave warriors are engaged in the battle, being engrossed in a rapturous mood, the warriors of the one camp are locked engaged in battle of the (other) enemy camp with a vehement (powerful) appearance. (42)

The swift swords are shining with the warriors engaged in revengeful skismishes and the truncated bodies are littered around in the field. In fact one could see flashes of fire-works as the weapons (armour) of two warriors clash (with each other). The warriors are roaming (like lions) while blood is seen oozing out of the wounds as if the war between the King (god) Indra and Vitasur is going on. (43)

One could see sparks from the clashing spears and the weapons (armour) are clashing with rage (vengence) as if great (superb) (holy) persons are looking graceful engaged in the game of sprinkling colours or spring festival. (44)

Rasaval Chhand

All the warriors , who were engaged in the battlefield in a revengeful mood , have finally been killed. (seen dead) and all those warriors who had fled away from the battle field feel ashamed of themselves in the end (45)

The upper armour (protective cover) of the warriors are seen broken into pieces while the shields have fallen down from their hands. At places one could the helmets in the battlefield or somewhere one could see the (dead) bodies lying huddled together.(46)

Somewhere one could see the fresh warriors with beautiful moustaches fallen in the dust or their weapons are seen scattered around. At some places the scabbards of swords are lying around while at other places are could see the great turbans of the warriors (the great (cut) feet of warriors). (47)

At some places one could see the fresh (new) proud warriors with beautiful moustaches and getting armed with weapon (armour), have engaged themselves in fresh battles. One could see shield cluttering (clashing) with one another (in fresh skirmishes) causing great wailing and (war cries) shrieking. (48)

Bhujang Prayat Chhand

The warriors have taken out their blood-thirsty swords from the sheaths. The warriors with their evil spirits, demons and their ghosts, are dancing in the battlefield. The tabors (small drums) are beating producing loud sounds, with the conch-shells producing, loud shrieking sounds, as if wrestlers are locked in their fights. (49)

All those warring brave soldiers, engaged in the battle, (have finally fallen dead), as if the god of death has not spared even a single warrior alive. All the warriors, being struck with the (enemy) swords, are dead tired, having borne the brunt of various fire–like weapons, and finally have been seen (dead), relieved of their human bondage. None of them has stepped back from the field even though all have been cut into (smitten) pieces and fallen dead. They have proceeded to heavens (Kingdom of Indra) being hailed by the whole world. (50)

The dynasty of Lav became victorious while the dynasty of Kush was defeated . All the warriors, who escaped death (in the battlefield) had fled away to save their lives. They then settled down in Kanshi and studied all the Vedas, and they (remained settled there) stayed there for a number of years. (52)

Here the third chapter of Bachittar Natak , describing the war between followers of Lav and Kush is completed , which is all praiseworthy, and auspicious. (3-189)

Bhujang Prayat Chand

The dynasty of Kush, who were engaged in reciting the Vedis, were called Vedas, (Bedis) and they started the practice of doing virtuous deeds. On the other side, the king of Madar desh (Madhya Pradesh) belonging to the dynasty of lav, sent a letter written to Kanshi, that we should forget about our past enmity (and start afresh).(1)

The envoy of the king, who was given this letter to be delivered reached Kanshi, and read out this letter (to Bedis). On hearing the message of the envoy, the Vedi clan started moving towards the Madhar Desh (Punjab) and on reaching there, paid their obeisance (to the King of Lav dynasty). (2)

The King made them to recite the Vedas (recite the free version of Vedas) and all the brorhers sat together in this congregation and they recited the Sham Ved at first, then Yujar Ved, was recited. After this the Rig Veda, was recited. The King and the followers of Lav dynasty understand the meaning of all the Vedas. (3)

Rasaval Chhand

When the followers of kush dynasty recited the Atharav Veda, on listening to the message of this recitation (Veda) the enmity of both sides (their sins) was concluded (finished). The King felt happy and gave them the Kingdom back (4)

The King himself took to the jungles (exiled), and all his great Sins were pardoned. (finished). He himself became an ascetic (dressed as a mendicant) and gave the reins of his kingdom to the followers of Kush dynasty. (5)

All the peoples (subjects) were trying to disuade the King from taking to exile, but the King forgot about all the enmity (differences) between them. He gave up all the wealth and the householders life and was enriched with the love and worship of God. (6)

The Bedis (Kush dynasty) having got back the reins of Kingdom were very happy and were bestowing various benedictions (bounties) being pleased with them, (on Lav dynasty) and stated that when they will be called "Nanak followers" in the age of Kal Yug they will make the Lav dynasty (Sodhis) praise worthy and attain the (fourth State) of Salvation. (7)

Couplet

The followers of Lav dynasty, after handing over the Kingdom (to Bedis) proceeded to the jungles, then the dynasty of Kush ruled over the country, and enjoyed all the comforts and pleasures of life. (8)

Choupaiee

O King ! You have listed carefully to the recitation of the three Vedas and on (hearing) listening to the fourth Veda, you have given away, the country (land) in alms (charity). When we will be born again we will accept you as our born (leader) after three generations. (9)

So the (Sodhi) King went away to the jungles and the Bedis took Control of the Kingdom and enjoyed their rule (over the land) with all the comforts. How long could I describe details of this narration as I am afraid it is becoming too lengthy (unwieldy) (10)

(This Completes the fourth Chapter of Bachittar Natak and its narration. All is auspicious here). (4)(199)

Then the quarrels amongst Bedis multiplied (increased) and no one could arrange any settlement. The cycle of Time moved in such a manner that the land (rule) from Bedis dynasty was snatched away. (1)

Couplet

The Brahmins started doing the work of shudars (scheduled castes) while the Kashatriyas took up the jobs of Vaishas (business community). On the other hand the vaishas started taking up jobs of Kashtriyas while the Shudras (low castes) started doing the work of brahmins. (2)

Choupaiee

Due to their destructive actions the Bedis were left with (the control of) only twenty villages and they started the work of farming in those villages (that area). As time passed on, the time for Guru Nanak to (take birth) and arrive on the scene, approached. (3)

Couplet

Then Guru Nanak took birth (appeared) in the dynasty of Bedis who gave (comfort) solace and peace to all the sikhs (followers) and rendered help wherever troubles shot up (came accros) and his intervention was needed). (4)

Choupaiee

Guru Nanak started the work on religions duties (moral values) and started the right path to all the people with virtuous nature. (with saintly character). Whosever came under the influence of his guidance and propagated path (religion) were never pestered by the skilful actions any more. (5)

All the people who followed the religious path as shown by him were relieved of their sins and afflictions by the Lord Almighty. Such people were never pestered by suffering or hunger (for more of everything wealth) and they were not caught (ensnared) by the shackles of the god of death (or bondage of Time). (6)

Then Guru Nanak Dev transffered himself into Guru Angad (adopting the body of Guru Angad) and continued the propagation of religion in the world.Then in the third personation (form) he was known as Guru Amardas. It seems that one light ignited the same enlightenment in the second light (form). (one lamp ignited the second lamp). (7)

When the opportune time came, he assumed the form of Guru Ramdas, and was adorned and praised everywhere. He was installed as Guru by Guru Amardas, bestowing all the glory, and himself proceeded to heavens. (8)

Guru Nanak Dev became Guru Angad and Guru angad was later known as Guru Amardas , who was later known by the name of Guru Amardas, who was later known by the name of Guru Ram Das. All the saintly persons could realise and appeciate the secret of this (change) transformation; whereas the fools could not appreciate it. (9)

All the people have seen them as quite distinct and different personalities, but very few people realised that all the Gurus were personification of the same Guru (Guru Nanak) and the same form.Those persons, who have realised all the Gurus representing the same form (of Guru Nanak only), have attained Salvation (and spiritual power). No one could attain Salvation without realising and appeciating this secret. (of transformation). (10)

Then Guru Ram Das left his mortal life and merged with the Lord , handing over the reins of Guruship to Guru Arjan dev. When Guru Arjan Dev proceeded to heavens (leaving the mortal world), Guru Hargobind was installed as the next Guru in his place. (11)

When Guru Hargobind merged with the Lord (leaving this mortal life), Guru Hari Rai was installed as next Guru in his place. Then his son Guru Harkrishan became the Guru, after whom Guru Teg Bahadur took charge as Guru. (12)

Then Guru Teg Bahadur offered himself to protect the sanctity of the (Tilak and janju) saffron mark and sacred thread of the brahmins. In fact, in this age of Kal-Yug He (performed) enacted a wonderful and great event. For the sake of those brahmins (saintly persons). He set an example of extreme sacrifice by giving his body (by sacrificing himself) without uttering a sign of pain. (from his mouth). (13)

The person who enacted such events for the protection of religion, so that, they gave away their lives, but did not discard the obstinate posture of renouncing their religion. The persons including mendicants , who rendered such pleasure-giving performances that the Lords saints felt ashamed of themselves on seeing such wonderful behaviour, whereas Guru Teg Bahadur proved the point right by giving His sacrifice (in this situation). (14)

Couplet

The Guru gave up his life by breaking this (body) earthen pot of human body on the head of the king of Dehli (Aurangzeb) and proceeded to heavens. None else could ever perform such a chivalorous act, as done by Guru Teg Bahadur. (15)

On the martyrdom of Guru Teg Bahadur the whole world was plunged into grief and there was hue and cry everywhere in the world but this was hailed by every one in the Lord's court, (and they offered their Salutation). (16)

Here the fifth chapter on (kings) sovereign's behaviour of the Bachittar Natak is completed and it is all auspicious so far. (5)(215)

Now I would describe details about myself as to how I was brought (born) in this world, though I was engaged in meditation and worship of the Lord at a spot where the mountain Hemkunt is situated and seven mountain cliffs are standing in grandeur. (1)

The place, where Pandavas had practiced saintly-kingship, was known by the name of sapat-sring (seven pinnacles). There I had meditated and worshiped the Lord for a long time having worshipped the Lord (the Timeless god) and the Goddess Kali or Durga. (2)

I was engaged in this worship for long, and as a result (reward) of this meditation, my soul merged with the prime soul. (I became one with the Lord-Sublime). My parents had also meditated on the Lord Almighty and had practised great worship of the Lord (prayers). (3)

The indescribable Lord was pleased with their prayers and worship (service of the Lord). Then I was called by the Lord and He ordained me and I was born in this age of Kal-Yug. (4)

Since I was completely merged with the Prime-soul (my soul) and was in touch with His lotus-feet, I was not inclined to come to this world. But the Lord somehow made me realise. His wish, and ordanied me, thus I was born in this world. (5)

The Lord had ordained me, the lowly creative, saying like this :-

Choupaiee

When I had created this Universe for the first time, the great villainous and satanic demons were created. They were mad with their might and prowess, this deviated them from the righteous path of Lord's worship. (6)

I was so much enraged that in a moment I destroyed all of them and in their place created the various gods. They were also engrossed in their egoistic tendencies due to their spiritual powers and instead started behaving like the Lord-Creator and calling themselves as creator. (7)

(The god) Shiva was known (calling himself) as indestructible while Vishnu established himself as the Lord-Sublime, while the (god) Brahma also called himself as the Lord-Creator, and none of them accepted Him as the Supreme Creator. (8)

Then the Lord had created the eight anecdotes (eye-witness) (such as Moon, Sun, Earth, Pole Star (Dhruv), fire, air, Pratiyush and Prabhash) and created them as eye-witnesses to His creation. They also started saying that they should be worshipped (as gods) as there is no other master except ourselves (us). (9)

Those, who did not realise the Prime-Soul, (The True Lord) they started believing and worshipping the eight witnesses as the Lord-creator. Many became worshippers of the moon and the Sun. some became worshippers of the fire-god while some others started worshipping the Air (as God). (10)

Some others recognised and prayed to the Stone (gods), while some others believed and practised taking holy paths at various religious places. Some were afraid, (full of fear) while doing various religious practices while some others started the practice of calling the (god of death) Dharam Raj as the True Lord. (Lord-Creator). (11)

Those very creations created as eye-witness to Lord-Sublime's existence by the Lord, started calling themselves as god's. They completely forgot about the existence (and power) of the Lord-Creator and were engrossed in their own self praise and being worshipped. (12)

When the Lord saw and realised this situation, He created (man) the human beings. These humans also got engrossed in the love of Maya (worldly falsehood) and worldly pleasures, and started worshipping the Stone Statues as the Lord Almighty. (13)

Then the Lord created the holy saints and Sidhas, but they also failed to realise the True-lord. All the wise great men born in the world started their own religious paths and started new faiths in the world. (14)

No one has realised and attained the True Lord (Prime-Purkh), instead all have developed quarreels and enmity, and egoism, just as the tree leaves start incrased burning on their own. (Similarly all the people were burnt in their own vicious actions) and none followed the path of the True-Lord. (15)

Whosoever was able to attain (acquire) some supernatural powers, started his own new religion (path) but none has realised the True-Lord and all were mad in getting themselves worshipped by the world. (16)

No one has realised the Supreme Lord (Power) and got engrossed in their own egoistic worship. The great sages and Rishis created by the Lord, started narrating their own Smritis (books of religious practices) and brought them in circulation, to be obeyed, (practised) (17)

Whosoever developed love for the Smritis, gave up the search for (approach to) spiritual attainment (discipline), while those persons who developed love and attachment for the lotus-feet of the Lord, could not follow the path of religious duty (principles) as propagated by Smritis. (18)

(The god) Brahma had created the four Vedas (produced the literary Composition of Vedas) and directed all the people to tread the path (lead the life) of Vedas and perform their actions accordingly, but all those persons, who developed love and attachement for the lotus-feet of the Lord, gave up the path, shown by the Vedas even. (19)

All those persons, who had given up the ideology of either Vedas or Katebs as Koran, (semetic religious books) because true lovers of the Lord-Sublime in the real sense of the world. if someone were to follow the true and serene doctrines (principles) of the True-Lord, (leads the life according to Lord's (Nature's) principles), he would cast away all his afflictions of various types. (20)

All the saints (religious persons), who lead a life of tribulations (bearing the physical hardships), but without giving up the love of the Lord, would proceed to the Lord's presence (with honour), as there is no distinction between them and the Lord Almighty. (That is they attain the state of Eqripoise'- without any dual-mindedness). (21)

All those saintly persons, who were afraid of physical hardships and followed the path shown by the Vedas, forgetting the true path of spiritual attainment of the Lord-Sublime, would be thrown into the inferno of hell (hell-fire), and would be born again and again. (going through the cycles of birth and deaths). (22)

Then the Lord created Dattriya, (the son of Rishis atar and his spouse ansuya), who also propagated his own religious path. He grew nails on his hands and adorned his head with tufts of hair, without giving a second thought to the worship of the Lord-Sublime. (23)

Then the Lord created Gorakh Nath, who made many kings (of high order) as his (followers) attendents. He managed to wear two ear-rings in the split ears (with-holes) but forgot to meditate on the true love of the Lord. (24)

Then the Lord created Rama Nand, who followed the path of a recluse (bairagi), wearing a wooden necklace around his neck, but he also gave up the path of meditation and worship of the True-Lord. (25)

Whatever great personalities were created by the Lord, all started their own religious paths (New-religions), then the Lord created Hazrat Mohammad (Mahadeen), installing him as the King of Arab Countries. (26)

He also started his new religion, (religious path) and he ordered the circumcision of all the kings and made all of them to worship him (to meditate (recite) on his Name) but did not guide them to recite Lord's True Name (Sat-Nam). (27)

All were engrossed in their own ideological beliefs and none could realise the Lord-Sublime. So the Lord called me away from my meditation and sent me to this world by ordaining this. The Akal Purkh (Timeless Lord) spoke this : '(28)

Choupaiee

I am crowning (honouring) you as my own son and appointing you to propagate a religious sect (path). You are ordained to start a (new) religious formulation and divert the people from evil doings (wrong bearings of the mind). (29)
The poet (said) says :-

Couplet

I stood up with folded hands and made this supplication with my bowed head (requested) that O Lord ! If You were to (would) support me (in this effort) then this sect would surely florouish in the world. (30)

Choupaiee

For this very reason (background) I was sent to the world and I was then born in this world. Whatever way the Lord ordained me, I would deliver the same message (state in the same manner) and would never (nourish) nurture any enmity against anyone. (31)

Whosoever would address me (consider) as the Lord-Sublime, will surely be thrown into the fire of hell. Consider me as the Slave of the Lord- Almighty, and there is not a bit of untruth in this statement. (there is no difference between the two statements). (32)

I am the slave of the Lord-sublime (Supreme being) and have taken birth to watch the wonderful drama (being eracted) in the world. Whatever the Lord had told me, I would state the same way in the world, and would not desist from saying the truth (without any fear or favour) to this perishable world. (I would not remain silent but speak the truth). (33)

Naraj Chhand

I would state the same facts as ordained by the great Master (Lord-Sublime), without caring for anyone. I would not be influenced by any (garb) disguise and would sow the seed of Lord's True Name (propagate only True Name) (34)

I am not the worshipper of the stones (idol-worshipper) and am not impressed by any particular garb (dress) or form. I would only recite the Lord's True Name and would attain unison with the Lord. (35)

I would not grow the tuft (lock) of matted hair on the head and would not wear the ear-rings in the parted ears (with-holes) I would follow the path as ordained by the Lord, without caring or bothering about anybody. (36)

I would meditate on the True Name (worship the Lord) of the Lord alone, which would render support (support me) every where. I would not meditate or recite any other name (of diety or god) and would not establish any other cult. (37)

I would recie the Lord's True Name and attain the Prime-Soul and would not meditate on any other god-head or repeat any other name (of other gods). (38)

I would be immersed fully in the Lord's True-Name alone and would not be absorbed (interested) in any other worldly honours and would Contemplate and meditate only on Lord's True Name (in my heart) and would defer (avoid) any sinful actions. (39)

O Lord ! I would be immersed in Your form alone and would not be interested in anyother benedictions or favours. (of others) I would repeat Your True Name alone, thus Casting away all sorts of suffering or afflictions. (40)

Choupaiee

(O Lord !) Whosoever meditated on Your True Name (worshipped You), does not undergo (face) any sufferings or perform sinful actions. However, all those persons engaged in worshipping any othe (gods) except You, get engrossed in religious (spiritual) wrangles and squabhles, thus wasting their lives in useless discussions. (41)

Thus I was sent (born) in this world to (dissuade people) from such acts and propagate true religion, for this reason the formless Lord brought me to this world. He directed me to propagate true (spiritual) religion and knock out (destroy) all the sinners and villainous persons by picking them out (from the scene). (42)

Thus I took birth in this world . O saintly persons ! Please grasp (understand) this fact clearly in your mind .Thus it became my moral duty to spread true religion (spiritual path) by redeeming (uplifting) the holy saints and uprooting all the sinners completely. (43)

All the previous incarnations (of the Lord) who had gone by (before me) were interested in their own worship (by getting their own name repeated as deities). None of them destroyed the sinners against the Lord and brought the masses back onto the righteous path of spiritualism (true religion). (44)

All the spiritual guides, mendicants and prophets have left this world, enngrossed in their egoism and I-am-ness (in their own worship). None of them had realised the Lord-Sublime (recognised the importance of Lord's worship) and did not appreciate (the value of) righteous conduct (religious duties) of mankind. (45)

Let us imbibe the love of the formless Lord (pinning our hopes on) in our hearts as the support of all other (gods) is of no consequence. Nothing could be gained by having faith in the gods and goddesses as such it is best to have faith in (pin our hopes on) the Lord-Almighty alone. (46)

Couplet

Someone reads Koran while some others read Puranas but all this is a fruitless, remedial effort, as none of them could save us from the god of death. (47)

Choupaiee

There are millions of people who read Koran togrther while some others study Puranas but none of them is of any help at the time of death, as none of these could protect us from the ouslanghts of death. (48)

O Brother ! Why do you not worship (remember) the Lord, who would be helpful at the time of death. ? Let us consider such fruitless religious actions as whimsical (illusions), as these cannot render any useful support (help) at the appropriate time. (49)

Thus the Lord-Almighty created me and sent me to the world (I was made to take birth) revealing me all these differences or problems. I would state only those facts which the Lord directed me and would not attempt any hypocrisy (deceit) at all.(50)

Rasaval Chhand

I would never grow any matted hair on the head nor wear any ear-rings but would recite Lord's True Name alone which is helpful in making all functions as successful.(51)

I would neither meditate with eyes closed nor attempt any other hypocritical (deceitful) ostentations (pretentions). I would not undertake any vicious actions (vile acts) and would not be known as following a particular garb (assumed guise) or sect (Impersonation). (52)

Choupaiee

All those saints who assume a particular guise (appearance), are not considered by the truly saintly persons (lord's savants) as of any consequence (worth). Let all the people know clearly in their minds that the Lord cannot be attained by such pretensions, as He does not (exist) abide in such hypocrisies. (53)

All the persons, who show such hypocritical functions, are not able to attain Salvation, (are not received with honour in the Lord's court.) in the next world. During their life time , they receive due recognition, no doubt, (they are honoured in the world no doubt) and many kings even become their followers (worship them) by seeing their outer disguise. (54)

But the fact remains that the Lord-Sublime cannot be realised (attained) by such pretensions (false acts), not-with-standing all the efforts of various people at seeking Him. (to realise His secrets). It is only by controlling the mind that we could realise the Lord's secrets and (attain the Lord) attain self-realisation. (55)

All those persons, who have overpowered (controlled) various people by their hypocrisy (disguise), will be thrown into hell, being smitten by the onslaughts of the god of death. (56)

Choupaiee

All those persons , who are engrossed in various hypocritical acts (functions) in disguise, thus (deceiving) cheating the masses, gain worldly comforts (pleasures) ; or those who meditate with their nostrils blocked, will find all their religious actions (rituals) as totally useless and worthless. (57)

All such persons, who are engrossed in fruitless religious formal acts (rituals), are thrown in the fire of hell. One cannot proceed to heavens (attain Salvation) by one's clever moves, unless one subdues one's mind (gains control over the mind) (by Lord's worship). (58)

The poet spoke thus :

Couplet :

I am stating all those facts to the world, as the Lord Himself told me personally. All those persons, who recite Lord's True Name, would proceed to heavens at the end of this life (after death) or attain Salvation. (59)

Couplet :

The Lord and His saints (savants) both are merged in each other (merged into one entity) and there is no distinction (difference) between them, just as the waves of the ocean finally merge with the waters of the oceans. (They merge with the Lord after being created by Him in the world). (60)

The Lord remains always aloof from those persons who are engrossed in wranglings, being under the influence of their egoism. The Lord is not to be found in the study of Vedas or Koran etc. Let the saintly persons bear this fact in mind clearly. (61)

If some one practises hypocrisy with one's eyes closed, then he acquires the position of blind persons. O Brother ! How could a person attain the Lord with his eyes shut (closed), when he cannot even see the path ? (62)

How far could one explain this point in detail as a person (saintly) gets tired by the time he could appreciate the secrets of spiritualism. If one were to have millions of tongues even, one would feel one's inability to list (count) all the Names (or various qualities) of the Lord. (63)

Couplet

When the Lord ordained me then I took birth in this world. Now I would describe briefly my own story (narrative) to all the people. (64)

Here the sixth chapter of the Bachittar Natak, dealing with the topic of my birth in this mortal life of the world is completed. So far everything is auspicious.

Choupaiee.

My father (Guru Tegh Bahadur) had started his journey to the East wards and started visiting various holy places of pilgrimage while having baths there. When they reached (Allahabad) the confluence of the three rivers (Jamuna, Ganga, Saraswati), they spent many days in alms-giving there. (1)

There I was conceived by my mother, and then I was born at Patna city. From there (from East) they brought me to Madhar desh (Punjab) and I was brought up there by the fondlings of many maids, and I grew up. (2)

My body was protected (against odds) by various means and I was given training and education of various types. When I was grown up and could appreciate the values of religious duties (virtuous deeds), my father proceeded to the heavens (was martyred by the authorities). (3)

In that battle Sri Sango Shah got enraged and all the five brothers (sons of Briti Viro) got entrenched (and a battle was fought) in that area. Jitmal was a staunch warrior while Gulab Rai was another great warrior. Watching the progress of the battle, they became ferocious (red-faced). (4)

Mahri Chand and Ganga Ram fought is vigorously and with (taking) a winning spree over many troops, they killedf many of enemy (troops) men. (making a ready food for the wild animals). Lal Chand was greatly enraged and became red-faced and killed many warriors (bringing down their haughtiness). (5)

Mahri Chand also fought ferociously with a vengeance, who had subdued many warriors (Haughty Khans) while Daya Ram brahmin also fought with great valour and a battle as fercious as was fought by Darona Acharya (in Mahabharat) ensued. (6)

Mahant Kirpal Das caught hold of his staff in a great rage and broke the head of Hyat Khan which crushed Hyat Khan, taking his life with the blood splashing all around, (it seemed) as if Krishna had broken a pitcher of butter. (7)

The Diwan Nand Chand also was red with rage and attacked with his spear, and holding his sword fought so well that the blade of his sword got broken into two, and he took out his dagger. Thus this warrior saved the honour of Sodhi dynasty. (by his valour). (8)

Then Uncle Kirpal also got enraged and fought ferociously with a vengeance so well that he brought down many warriors from their horses (Killing them) though his own body got pierced with arrows which he with-stood bravely. (9)

The great warrior Sahib Chand also fought bravely in the battle field and killed many of the blood thirsty and brave Pathans (Khans). of Khunasan. The great warriors thus fought very well and only those few were saved, who fled away from the battle field in fear. (10)

Then Sango Shah set up an arena of wretling for showing his battle skills and killed (crushed) many blood-thirsty Pathans (fighting bravely). There Raja Gopal of Guleria was roaring (like a lion) in the battle field just like a lion roaring among a horde of deers. (11)

Then again one great warrior Hari Chand got enraged and entrenched himself in the battle field. Thus he shot many arrows with such a rage (so ferciously) that whosoever was struck (by his arrows) was despatched to the next world. (Killed). (12)

Hari Chand was so ferocious that he (over powered) Killed many great warriors. He shot a Continuous spray of arrows thus killing many enemy troops. (13)

He was completely engrossed in his fighting and waiting mood and fought a bloody battle. He killed many fully armed enemies and brought many warring Rajas on their knees, killing them. (14)

Then our warrior Jitmal struck the chest of Hari Chand with a javelin and hurled him down (from his horse) on the ground. (15)

When the warriors got struck with arrows they were enraged so much that they would become red with anger ad dropped dead from their horses. (proceeded to heavens). (16)

Bhujang Prayat Chhand

The bloody Pathans of Khurasan had wielded their swords (bare) and when they struck against each other's Swords, sparks were seen splashing around. there was a continuous flow of shooting arrows in the sky, and the bows were making cracking sounds. Due to the jastling of warriors all around, some of the arabic horses were being knocked down. (17)

The sounds were being heard, which the drum-beats produced with their own loud notes. Warriors from both sides were roaring aloud and raising their arms they would strike their shields with arms, (producing noise). In the battle-field one could see the camels making their shrieks and the chamundis shrieking like hell. (18)

In the end the hill chieftain (Fateh Shah), fled away from the battle field by (causing) making his horse to jump in a flash. But none of our warriors attempted to shoot any arrows on him. After that Jasowalia and Dadwalia Madhukar Shah could not continue fighting and fled from the battle field alongwith their troops. (20)

Being surprised by the changing situtation, the warrior Chandolia (Raja) got in a rage, while the stubborn Hari Chand came up with a javelin and getting enraged he showed his faithfulness for his Master, and died falling on the ground being cut into pieces. (21)

At that juncture, Najabat Khan came armed with weapons and struck, down Sango Shah dead (killed him). He also used various weapons against his enemy but finally Sangoshah proceeded to heavens. (died). (22)

Couplet

Having killed Najabat Khan the warring Sangoshah died fighting. With his death there was lot of crying and wailing (hue and cry) in this world, while he was hailed by one and all in the heavens. (23)

Bhujang Prayat Chhand

On seeing Sangoshah fighting so valiantly in the battle and then becoming a martyr in the end, this lowly born creature (the poet himself) got hold of his arrow and bow, aimed his arrows on a Khan with precision and killed him (struck him down). It appeared as if the Khan was bitten by a black cobra. (24)

When this Khan fell down on the ground, I took up another arrow and shot it at the face of Bhikhan Khan. That blood thirsty khan fled away himself leaving his horse behind, but my third arrow struck the horse, and he also died. (25)

In the meantime Hari Chand regained his consciousness and supported himself. He took up his bow and arrows and started shooting arrows with a veugeance. Whosoever was hit on the body by his arrows, could not control or support himself and proceeded to heavens, laying down his life.(26)

He was shooting two arrows with force at a time and was piercing (with arrows) either brave warriors or Arabic horses. Whosoever was hit by his arrows could not support (control) himself and the arrow would pierce through his body passing through him. (27)

All the warriors performed their moral duties towards their Master (religious duties). The hobgoblins (female giants) were making noise, while the demons and ghosts were also shouting aloud, the evil-spirits and the attendents of Shiva were also laughing (Seeing the battle scene) around. The bats (owls) chamundis were shrecking and the vultures were flying around. (28)

Hari Chand got enraged and took up his bow and shot an arrow at my horse first and taking an aim shot the second arrow at me. The Lord saved and protected me while the arrow flew past my ear (touching my ear). (29)

When the arrow struck me, I felt enraged (with anger) and taking my bow in the hands, I also shot an arrow with force. (31)

When I shot many arrows (at the enemy) all the warriors in the enemy ranks took to their heels. Then I took aim and shot another arrow which killed one soldier. (32)

Hari Chand was killed and his warriors (troops) were cunshed. The King (Raja) named Karor Rai, was also killed (devoured by death). (33)

As a result of this, all other Rajas fled away from the battle-field as all were terror-stricken badly and I was victorious. It was all with the Grace of God. (Lord Almighty) (34)

Having won the battle we returned (home) singing songs of victory. The wealth (money) was distributed in abundance, which made all the warriors (soldiers) happy. (35)

Couplet

When my soldiers returned, having won the battle, they were very happy (they were overjoyed and beyond themselves) Then we came back to the state of Kehloor and established the town of Anandpur. (36)

Thus many days passed. The holy saints were elevated and all the (scoundrels) villains were killed, in fact all those fools were hanged to death and they gave up their lives like the dogs. (38)

Here the eighth chapter of Bachittar Natak Granth dealing with Government & Politics and Bhangani battle is completed. Everything is auspicious safar. (8-320)

" Now the details of (narration) of the battle of Nadaun" (starts)

Choupiee

Many days passed in such happy mood. Then Mian Khan came from Delhi to collect the revenue and was heading towards Jammu. He sent Alif Khan to Nadaun (and he) who developed enmity against Bhim Chand (Raja of Kehloor).(1)

He asked for my help in fighting against Alif Khan and himself advanced towards him. Alif Khan entrenched himself in a wooden fort on the hillock of Navras. On this side the Rajas who came to his help, positioned themselves armed with arrows and guns. (2)

Then along with Bhik Chand the warrior Raja Raj Singh and the great and glorious Ram Singh also advanced towards the enemy. Even the illustrious Raja of Jasroot Sukhdev got enraged and advanced (with his troops) all was set for the battle. (3)

Prithi Chand, the great warrior of Dadwalia also came forward to help the Raja Kirpal Chand advanced further and attacked (the enemy) and drove (pushed) hordes of enemy ranks back by killing them. (4)

For the Second time the enemy tried to advance in retaliation but were pushed back. Down the hill the hill chieftains were grinding their teeth in rage, and the warriors were beating the battle drums. Down the hill the warriors (Raja) were upset and were enraged in revenge, and feeling depressed. (5)

Then Bhim Chand himself became wrathful and repeated the mantar (magic word) of Hanuman with his tongue and called for all the warriors and asked for my help also, then we all got togeteher and advanced forward. (6)

All the great warriors advanced in great rage, as if the fire flames had engulfed the fence. Then Dayal Chand the warrior of Bhujarwalia and Kirpal Chand of Kangra attacked with their troops. (7)

Kirpal Chand got enraged and made his horse dance (jump). The bugle of the war was sounded and the whole atmosphere was charged with horror. (8)

The warriors got engaged in fighting by wielding their Swords, with wrathful might they started shooting out arrows. (9)

Those, who were engaged in fighting finally would give up their lives even and were fallen on the ground (dead) as if the clouds had gathered there swinging around from all directions. (10)

Rasaval Chhand

Kirpal Chand was red with rage, and the great warrior entrenched himself, then shot many arrows (all around), and killed many brave warriors (of the enemy). (11)

He killed many canopied kings (with Canopies over their heads), as a result great many brave warriors were lying dead on the ground. THe drums were beatingloudly while the stalwart warriors were roaring aloud. (12)

Kirpal Chand got enraged and fought well in the battle field. The great warriors were yelling and roaring and many weapons (arms) were striking against each other. (13)

Such a horrible battle was fought, and its noise was heard in the nine regious of the Universe. Kirpal Chand continued to advance (using) wielding his weapons, thus maintaining the Customary Rajput Valour Intact (14)

Couplet

All the Rajas got together with rage and made their plan for the battle, while (Ar-Rai) Bhim Chand had surrounded the Katoch Troops. (15)

Various troops of the Rajas of Nangloo, Panglu, Vedrol, Jaswal, Guleriai (various Rajput states) got together and started marching. At that time, a great warrior named Dayal (from the enemy ranks) roared loudly, and saved the honour of Bijhar wals. (16)

O Lord ! This disciple of Yours also held up his gun and taking full aim shot at the chest of one Raja, who fell down on the ground reeling around, but he managed to fight well as even then the Chivalorous Raja was yelling "Kill them, Kill them".(17)

Then leaving the gun, I took up my bow (and arrows) and shot about four arrows with the right hand, and three arrows with the left hand but it is not known whether those arrows struck down anyone or not. (18)

By that time the battle had ended with the God's Grace and we had thrown the vanquished enemies into the river waters. But then there was such a valley of bullets and arrows from the hill tops showered on us, as if the (wounded Soldiers down below) were playing holi (colours festival) and relaxing. (19)

The warriors, pierced with arrows and javelins, had fallen on the ground. Their clothes were drenched in blood, as if they were resting after taking part in holi festival. Having gained victory over the enemy and then we were relaxing while the enemy troops took rest across the river. (20)

When the night passed away and the sun had risen (day dawned), our smart warriors started marching wielding their Swords. (21)

Alif Khan then fled away, without even caring for his parapharnalia (equipment) and all his supporters also ran away without waiting for any rest. We, however spent eight days on the banks of the river, and visited all the places fully. (22)

Then Alif Khan approached Dilawar Khan (governor of Lahore) and narrated the whole story to him. After hearing all the narrative, he sent his son to meet me. (for talks) But when some time had passed in the night (about forty-eight minutes) the Pathans attacked us with a combined force.(2)

When the enemy force had reached near us having crossed the river, then the in-charge of the main entrance (Shah Singh) woke me up. With hearing the noise all the soldiers also got up and took up their weapons immersed in a courageous mood (maddened with bravery) and advanced forward.(3)

Then guns were being fired, and all the soldiers, carrying their arms, were enraged. The Pathan's made hell of a noise and we heard lot of noise from the other side of the river. (4)

Bhujang Prayat Chhand

The kettle drums produced lot of noise, while the war-drums were beating loudly. Many youthful (warriors) archers and brave soldiers were roaring loudly (and proceeded to the battle field) The striking of arms against each other (weapons were being used) alongwith the dancing horses (produced a horrible scene). was agog with the terror-stricken soldiers as if the goddess Kali, in her terrible form, was roaring aloud. (5)

Those Pathans considered the rivulet as a (valley of death)) death-trap, while the cold river water had made the soldiers like crippled persons. On this side the warriors were roaring loudly, and terrible songs were being sung. On the other side, the blood-thirsty Khans fled away without waging a war. (without using any arms). (6)

Naraj Chhand

The shameless Khan ran away. None from the troops were armed even, and they left the battle-field, though they used to call themselves very brave Ghazis. (7)

They fled away by making their horses run away. None of them could wield their weapons (arms). Neither they were roaring by taking up their arms. Even the woman were feeling ashamed of their behaviour. (8)

"Narration of Hussaini Battle"
Bhujang Prayat Chhand

The Khanzada (Son of Khan) feeling bad approached his father and could not give any appropriate explanation to his father, being ashamed of the loss of many warriors in the battle. Then Hussaini, with a proud and laughty behaviour (raising his arms), came on the scene and collecting some more warriors armed his men with weapons and armour and roaring loudly reached there. (1)

Hussaini reorganised his troops and stopped there. He plundered the horses of the residents of hilly areas, then overpowering the Raja of hadwal he brought him under his subjugation and made many Rajputs his slaves. (2)

Then he plundered the Doon valley throughly as none of the foolish hilly Rajas could face and oppose him. He snatched the grains from the people and distributed it among his troops. Thus the foolish Hussaini performed such a mean action. (3)

Many days passed in this way as he continued his oppression and tyrauny, when the Gulerias were also forced to join him as per the prevailing situation. (4)

If they had not joined Hussaini for another few days (two days), the enemy would have proceeded towards us. But the Time forced a battle within their own area (as per the existing situation). (5)

Choupaiee

When Guleria came to meet Hussaini, he was accompanied by Ram Singh also. They had a meeting with him in the fourth quarter of the day. (in the evening). On seeing them, this slave (Hussaini) became very 'haughty and he was besides himself due to egoism. (6)

Couplet

Just as sand becomes very hot due to the Sun's rays, this little (mean) thing (sand) does not realise the strength of the Sun and becomes very haughty. (7)

Choupaiee

Similarly the slave Hussaini became very haughty and being mad (blind) with pride, he did not give them any importance. On seeing the Rajas of Kehloor (Bhim Chand) and Katoch (Kirpal Chand) together, he thought that there was none else as powerful as he was. (8)

They were going to hand over the money (Gopal and Ram Singh) which they had brought with them, to him (Hussaini), there was some heated argument between them as a result of which both returned to their own towns. (homes). (9)

Thus the Slave Hussaini because red with anger and without caring for his own good or harm (good bargain) he did not consider any political move worthwhile and attacked Gopal in a flash with a drum-beat. (10)

He did not use any strategy, tactics and tried to frighten Gopal just as a jackal would surround a lion in order to frighten him. He continued to encircle him for about half a day without allowing any (food) eatables to be supplied to them. (11)

Without the supply of food, the warriors got enraged. They sent an envoy (messenger) for signing an accord, but the slave (Hussaini) reviewing his troops of Pathans was egoistic (haughty) and did not agree to any proposals put up by them. (12)

Hussaini clarified further that if they paid him Rs. 10,000/- (Ten Thousand) then only they could escape death, else it was sure. Hearing this Raja Gopal returned home and became rebillious. So Bhim Chand sent Sangtia Singh to approach him, who brought back Gopal alongwith him by quoting a religious combination as a witness. (on grounds of religion). (13)

But Gopal could not reconcile himself with Bhim Chand and thought to himself (in his mind) that this was the only chance, which would not repeat (to take revenge). The Time cycle could always deceive one. (Could offer a chance). (14)

They decided either to hold Gopal back, or keep him in Custody or Kill him. When Gopal heard of their trick (rumour) the warrior went back to his troops. (15)

Madhubhar Chhand

When Gopal Chand had gone back, Kirpal was very furious. He took up courage and prepared for a battle against Hussaini and started advancing. (16)

With great pride the warriors moved forward while the drums were beating and battle drums were sounded loudly. (17)

The drums were sounded making, noise and the horses started dancing around. Taking aims, the arrows were being shot, producing a din or a (song of) cracking sound. (18)

The warriors were sounding large keltle drum without any fear, while the great (careless) warriors were roaring loudly. The swords were seen clashing while the warriors would be killed. (lie dead on the ground). (19)

The guns were fired with a loud sound and the arrows were shot with a cracking sound. The bayonets were clashing with a hissing sound while the javelins were producing another whistling noise. (20)

The warriors were shouting loudly, while the beating of large drums produce a noisy scene. This careless warriors were roaming around in the battle field as if a wolf is moving in the jungle. (21)

The horses were neighing, while the drum beats are producing a diw, On one side the warriors are wielding their weapons with a loud cracking sound, while the warriors of the opposite side are facing there attacks with their shields. (saving themselves). (22)

Having fought in the battle, the great warriors who have laid down their lives are lying naked (on the ground). Their hair are loosely spread over as if they were like the ascetics with matted hair. (23)

The great Rajas are dressed with armour beautifully while grand huge elephants are producing roaring sounds, and the Khans are alighting from them (elephants) alongwith their bows. (24)

Tribhangi Chhand

The enraged Kirpal Chand got his horse bedecked and with strong arms he took hold of his shield. All the warriors advanced forward to attack (the enemy) and they were looking horrible, with their faces red with rage and shining radiantly. With their swords in hands, bows and arrows decorated on the body, all these warriors move sportingly on the battle field yelling only "Kill them, Kill them," as if drunken elephants were swaying around in the jungle. Then Raja of Kangra, Kirpal Chand Katoch became furious, his eyes and face reddened with rage, and looked completely care free. On the other side the Pathans comrads of Hussaini, are arrayed in the battle-field, with arrows held in hand as if leopards were moving around for a kill. (for their prey). (26)

The reveilies are sounded (kettle drums) loudly and the arrows are shot with a shrieking noise and many warriors are locked in scuffles while swords are being wielded and striking (against each other). At places drums are being beaten in the battle-field, while at some places bands are singing songs of war. At some places headless bodies are lying or heads are littered around or at places one could see bodies (dead) pierced with arrows (lying on the ground). (27)

At places one could hear the sound of maces striking the helmets while at other places, the corpses are seen lying on the ground in heaps or the dead bodies of warriors are littered around. At places, the wounded soldiers with swords cutting across their bodies are seen lying down, or heads and bodies pierced with arrows are seen lying down. (28)

The arrows are being shot around with swinging arms continuously. The sound of Swords striking against each other (making a typical sound) is heard while at places the enraged warriors are shooting arrows in rows., Wherever the arrows strike the soldiers, you could see horses without their riders, moving around. (as the riders have fallen). (29)

At some places warriors are locked in fighting, as if elephants with their long tuskars are locked in fights. Kirpal Chand and Gopal Chand are engaged in fighting against each other just as two lions are fighting (clashing) each other. (30)

At that time, Hari Singh, warrior of the Hussaini group, made an (attack) on slaught against the enemy and bore the brunt of the piercing arrows on his body and fighting valiantly he killed many enemy ranks in his rage, but finally fell down dead fighting. (proceeded to heavens). (31)

From the side of hill Rajas, Himmat Singh and Kimat Singh, two great warriors with swords advanced forward, and from the (other side) Hussaini troops, Jalal Khan came forward with a mace. So from both sides warriors enraged with pride fought ferociously against each other. One could see flashes of light produced by the striking swords of both sides or other weapons being used. (32)

Then (Kesri Chand Raja of) Jaswal advanced forward by making his horse jump around and surrounded Hussaini, and attacked him with a sharp spear. (33)

Hussaini in reply, shot many arrows and killed or wounded many of the enemy troops. Whosoever was struck with his arrows on his body, would fall dead on the ground. (34)

Whosoever gets wounded, would get enraged with anger, and in protest he would prop up his bow and would kill the enemy warriors with his arrows in great numbers.(35)

The warriors from both sides are advancing forward shouting ("Kill them") in vengeance. They are using their weapons fearlessly and both sides are keen to gain a victory. (36)

The Pathan soldiers got infuriated and were very proud due to their egoism. Then the arrows were shot (from both sides) in a barrage (stream) and all the warriors were elated. (37)

The scene was rather beautiful and it appeared as if the arrows were spraying the scented articles around (spreading aroma all around). The sound of shooting arrows was such as if the Dhanur Veda was being read out or some play of the study of Vedas was being ewacted. (38)

All the brave soldiers were busy in that act, and all were fighting with various weapons. The patient (enduring) warriors were being pushed around, while the swords were clashing loudly. (39)

The bows were cracking aloud and the swords were producing tinkling noise. The arrows were being Shot producing a hissing sound and on all sides a song of jungle was being heard. (40)

Padhri Chhand

The graveyard was laughing heartily seeing this scene (of battle field). At places elephants were lying dead while the horses were running (loose) wildly (without any riders). The warriors really engaged in fierce fighting. Somewhere swords were being used while elsewhere the arrows were being sprayed around. (43)

Some where hobgoblins (female villains) were shrieking and elsewhere chavandis were making loud noises, at place the crows were crowing carelessly and somewhere the double edged swords were striking (against each other) At Some places the helmets were knocking around while at places guns were firing shots loudly. At places sabres were sliding while elsewhere soldiers were being pushed around like a crowd. (44)

Bhujang Prayat Chhand

Then Hussaini himself entered the battle field for taking part in person. All his companies were supporting bows and arrows in their hands. All the Pathans got ready to fight, as the faces and eyes of all these warriors were red with rage. (45)

The relentless and ferocious warriors had awakened to the requirements of the battle in their hearts. Beautiful sharp arrows, spears and double edged swords were being used. Great warriors were engaged in the battle against very balanced and smart warriors (from the enemy ranks) and were locked in battle. At places warriors with sabres were engaged in battle (crowded) while elsewhere the clashing of swords could be heard. (46)

At some places the drum beats and trumpets were being heard. At some place the striking of arms with (weapons) arms raised was heard whereas elsewhere the warriors were shouting loudly (roaring). Many peculiar sounds could be heard from the drum beating. Many warriors wounded or smitten (inpieces) were rolling on the ground while flashes of lighting could be seen with the stricking of weapons against each other. (47)

One could hear the sounds of helmets or the loud noises produced by the shields (against stricking Swords) Great brave warriors and smart looking archers are looking ferocious on the battle field, while strong evil-Spirits and ghosts are seen dancing around. The Sky-borne female evil spirits and devotees are dancing around. (48)

Due to the great and ferocious battle, the Great Stormy Shiva has been awakened from his contemplative posture and shaken from silence while the god Brahma has been suddenly shaken from his meditation while all the ascetics have fled from their positions. Kinar, Yakash and Vidya dhar like gods are laughing , while the beautiful earthly fairies or celestial beauties and wives of bards are all dancing around. (49)

The army (troops) was in panic and about to flee due to the horrible battle when Hussaini himself fought in the battle and shouted loudly some war cries and roared while from the opposite side the brave Jasowaris made an assault (attack) and thrashed all the riders (troops) like (washing) clothes and killed them. (50)

There Hussaini Khan was seen alone standing like a rock, just like a pillar of strength in the battle field. Thus the stublrorn warrior got engaged and would shoot his arrows and whosoever was struck by the piercing arrows, the arrows would pass by him to the other side scraping past hum. (51)

Couplet (Dohira)

When the brave (warrior) Hussaini was killed, the Pathans got so much enraged in their mind that Kotoctus got excited to a great deal through all others had fled from the field. (53)

Choupaiee

All the brave Katochis in their rage charged the enemy in great strength. Himmat and Kimat also showed great indignation. Then Hari Singh assaulted the enemy and killed many of their horsemen by snighing them out. (54)

Naraj Chhand

The Katochis get very much wrathful and rearranging themselves they got dug themselves in the battle-field. THey fired their shots by creeping slowly, while sjouting loudly 'kill them' repearedly. (55)

The Chandel Rajputs, who had joined in to give a helping hand to Hussainis also got excited in their wrathful excitement they charged the enemy. All the enemy troops, who tried to oppose them, got killed. Only those few (troops) were saved, who managed to escape from the battle-field. (56)

Couplet

Sangat Rai, alongwith another seven horsemen, were also killed. Our attendent, by the name of Darso, hearing the news of the fighting spirit of these soldiers, also fought well and finally got killed. (57)

There, the warrior called Himmat, also rushed to the battle-field and bore the brunt of enemy attacks with many wounds while wounding many of the enemy troops with his striking weapons. (58)

When his horse was killed there, the Himmat also ran away from the field. The enemy Rajas (Bhim Chand etc.) were in great rage to take back the dead body of Kirpal Chand.(59)

Rasaval Chhand

The warriors got themselves engaged in battle again to take their revenge, and were facing the onslaughts of the enemy weapons. The brave warrior, Kirpa Ram, fought so well that the enemy ranks were repulsed. (60)

He went crushing the great (enemy) army while on wielding his sword (weapons) fearlessly and having killed many enemy troops he earned great laurels, but finally faced death and got killed in the battle-field. (61)

The Conchshells and drums beats are producing loud noises. The drums and trumpels are being sounded while the relentless warriors are using their weapons. (62)

There is agreat multitudes (mob) of fighting men, and many renowned (Canopied) Rajas were killed, while the warrios with beautiful nuristacks on the face are roaring loudly. (63)

They are entering the battle field while shouting for a kill ("Kill the enemy") while supporting and arranging their weapons, the warriors from both sides are racing their horses. (64)

In the battle-field, with Kirpal Chand's death, Gopal Chand started jumping (dancing) in great joy. Being desperate, the armies of both generals (Sardars) Hussaini and Kirpal Chand fled from the battle field. (65)

With the killing (death) of Hussain Khan, Kirpal Chand and Himmat in the battle-field, all their warriors fled from the battle-field just as people run away after offering a crest to the mahant. (mendicant). (66)

Choupaiee

Thus Gopal Chand killed all his enemies by singing them out, and then arranged to support his own fallen heroes. Seeing the wounded Himmat in the field Ram Singh spoke to Gopal Chand thins. (67)

This Himmat, who created all this enmity with us, has fallen in our hands in this wounded state. On hearing this, Gopal Chand killed Himmat again immediately and did not allow him to risej alive. (68)

The hill Rajas were victories and the battle-field was diffused while all the soldiers went back (home) Raising memories of the war skirmurhes and fights. We were saved by the Lord Almighty as the clouds of weapons (war) burst elsewhere. (69)

Here the eleventh chapter of Bachittar Natak dealing with the killing of Hussaini, Kirpal, Himmat and their associates in completed. All is well so far. (11)(423)

Thus the great battle was fought and many Turks and their leaders were done away with. As a result, Dilawar Khan got enraged and sent his troops of horsemen to this side. (to Anandpur). (1)

From the other side they sent Jujhar Singh, who fought at the town of Bhallan and repulsed the imperial troops. Also Gaj Singh and Parma Nand (Pama) got together his men (troops) and attacked them early in the morning. (2)

On the other front Jujhar Singh established himself like a pillar in the battle-field. A fixed flag post can be uprooted but a Rajput of Hada caste cannot be moved away from the battle-front. He bore the brunt of spears from the opposite side. (3)

The warriors from both sides got into different columns and attacked each other. On one side was Raja of Chandel Caste while on the enemy side was Raja Jaswal. So a horrible battle ensued between the warriors of both sides in the battle field and the warriors from both sides were in great rage. (4)

The warriors from both sides were furious with rage, with Chandels on one side and Jaswals on the other. Lot of drums and kettle-drums were sounded. Then the horrible and dreadful looking Bhairo roared loudly. (5)

Hearing the drum beats the brave warriors were thundering and they felt elated in their hearts by inflicting wounds (on the enemy) with their weapons. (6)

They are racing their horses fearlessly, and are attacking with their maces. They are inflicting wounds on the enemy ranks with their swords and are feeling overjoyed. (7)

They are shouting 'kill them' repeatedly, and there is no hesitation or skyness in any way. There are many warriors lying on the ground in mutilated condition and are praying for their death. (for proceeding to heaven) (8)

Couplet

The warriors are not at all hesitant from waging war and are inflicting wounds (on the enemy) fearlessly. Some of them are falling from their horses and then meet the fairies in the heavens. (then are lying dead). (9)

Choupaiee :

The battle was fought in such a ferocious manner that Narajan Chand, a warrior, was killed. Then Jujhar Singh swooped on the enemy single handed but was encircled by enemy troops in no time, from all ten directions. (10)

Couplet :

Jujhar Singh, came like lightning and without a second thought, advanced forward and attacked the enemy. He crushed many brave warriors and wielded his weapons bravely. (11)

Choupaiee

He thus destroyed many homes and assaulted the enemy with all types of weapons and killed many horsemen by singhing them out and finally himself laid down his life. (12)

Choupaiee

When Jujhar Singh got killed like this, the warriors returned to their homes. But Aurangzeb was furious and sent his son to Panjab. (1)

With his arrival, the whole population was frightened and aghast with fear. many of the chief Rajas went to the mountains and hid themselves, but no one knew the secret of death, as to how he would meet his death. (2)

Many people deserted us and went to the mountains (to hide). These cowards were very much frightened with fear, and did not consider it safe to stay in our company. (3)

Then Aurangzeb felt very much annoyed and enraged in his mind and sent one representative (to collect fine or revenue) to Anandpur. This envoy got the urses of all those persons demolished, who had left us or deserted us. (4)

All those persons, who turn their faces away (lose faith) from the Guru, lose their honour here and hereafter. (in this world or the next world even) Here they are jeered at while in the heaven they find no place to rest. They get disappointed from all sides. (5)

They are pestered by suffering and hunger all the time. Those persons, who avoid to serve the seinks, do not find any of their jobs being completed successfully, and finally they land up in the hell. (6)

The whole world laughs at them, and finally they find place in the hell, All those persons, who turn away from the Gur's faith, get their faces blackened here and here after. (7)

They are not favoured with childern or grand childern and finally depart from the world, giving the pain of separation to their parents. The adversaries of the Guru will die the death of a dog, and when they are thrown into the fire of hell, they will repent. (at their fate). (8)

The Lord Himself has created both the heirs of Babar (King) and successors of Baba Nanak (the Guru). One is considered the worldly king and the other, the King of righteous (religion). (9)

Whosoever does not give money for the propagation of religion, will be caught hold by Babars's men and snatch away their wealth. They will be punished and their houses will be looted badly. (10)

When those, impertinent Masands will go back empty handed, they will again try to collect money from the Sikhs. All the Sikhs who will give money to these masands, will be looted by the irreligious men. (muslims) (11)

When they will be divested of their wealth, then they will again turn towards the Guru. (look for his support) When they will come for Guru darshan (to pay obeisance to the Guru) they will be disareded, and the Guru will not support them. (they will not be welcomed) (12)

Then they will return home without the Guru's permission, and they will not be successful in any job. Whoso-ever is not supported by the Guru, does not get any abode at the Lord's presence (court) and they get disappointed from both sides.(13)

Those persons who develop love for the Guru's lotus-feet, do not face any sufferings or hardships, as all the occult powers are at their disposal, and sins or sufferings do not even go anywhere near them. (14)

The impious people cannot go anywhere near them. All the eight occult powers are always with them (in their homes), while all the nine worldly treasures are with those persons, who are ever ready to perform virtuous functions in the normal course of events. (15)

The enovy, who resorted to destroy the houses of those persons, who had turned their back on the Guru, was Called Mirja Beg. While all the faithful Sikhs were protected and their houses saved by the Guru himself, and they were completely unharmed. (16)

While Aurangzeb was greatly enraged, and he sent four more envoys who destroyed the houses of all those faithless persons, who had escaped the wrath of Mirza Beg. (17)

Those who had deserted the Guru, finally agreed to accept their envoys as their master. With urine thrown on their heads, they were shaved off, and they went back home considering this as their nectar. (18)

All those persons, who had left Anandpur without the Guru's Permission, Who could have told these enoys about them? (it means some natural power had directed the envoys against them.) Their heads were shaved off and they were taken around the town, as if they were going around to collect money for some religious function.(19)

Following them some childern were seen hooting them, as if they were their true followers. Their faces were sealed covered with marks, as if they were given some sweets from their homes to eat. (20)

Their foreheads were struck with shoes as the signs showed it, as if the envoy-Guru had applied tilak (saffron mark) on their foreheads. Then their heads were struck and wounded with bricks, as if some remaining offering was being given to them. (21)

Now I would explain all the spectacles, which I have perceived, to you all, O Lord ! It is through Your Grace alone that I would be enabled to recite all that. (3)

Whatever spectacles (shows) I have seen, I would like to unravel all that to theworld. Whatever precious births I have been revealed O Lord ! I would describe them with Your Grace and power ! (4)

The Lord, the god of death, (The Timeless) the infinite Master, is our father and (His might) goddess Kalikai our mother. My mind is my Guru and my desires (passions) is my Gurus's spouse (maiee), who have taught me the art of poetry. (5)

When the mind was kind enough to offer me the passion (desire), then I am enabled (templed) to desctribe the story (narration) of the Guru-mind in a refined manner. Whatever previous births I have been revealed (have perceived) I would like to narrate all those now. (6)

When the (god of-death) all-powerful (Timeless Lord) Lord was filled with Compassion and accepting me as His slave, He was thoroughly satisfied and pleased with me through his mercy and kindness, and made me recall all the previous births. (7)

How could I have so much awareness, except through the intellect (knowledge) as conferred on me by the Lord through His Grace ? Then the King of Death (Time), the Lord Almighty became very mercoful (benevolent) and offered me protection of all arms at all times. (8)

The Almighty Lord has protected me at all times and His vast cover of protection is being offered to me with arms-cover. O Lord ! Once I was assured of Your Merciful Hand over me, I became fearless and am proud of being King of all (Master of all) considering me all powerful. (9)

Whatever way the previous births were revealed to me, I have narrated in this Granth. The way I have seen the period of Sat Yug, I have narrated it in the goddess Portrayal (Devi Charitar) first of all. (10)

The Muni (saint) Stated :

The Lord Vishnu was resting (sleeping) on a well prepared (bedding) abode at a place, where there was an huge expanse of water, very vast and horrible looking, there a lotus-flower sprouted from the navel (of Vishnu) which gave rise to the creator of the Universe, (god) Brahma and two demons were created from the way of his ears. (8)

These two demons were called by the name Madh and Kairabh, who grew up with huge bodies. Seeing them Brahma (Lokesh) got terribly frightened in his mind. So immediately he contemplated and coumunicated in his mind with the mother of mankind (Durga). (9)

Couplet

At that time Vishnu woke up from his Meditative-Posture (meditating Sleeping posture) and prepared himself for the war, so that the demons could be reduced in numbers and the gods could gain control of the kingdom (of heaven) (so he was embanking on such preparations). (10)

Swaiyya Vishnu waged a war against the demons, but could not defeat them, as the demons were very strong, it took about five thousand years in fighting (between the demons and Vishnu) but none of them got tired and the war went on. The demons being pleased with the strength (power) of Vishnu, asked him to seek some blessings (favour) from them. In reply, the Lord Vishnu asked for their heads and the demons agreed. Then Vishnu cut their heads with his 'revolving Wheel' by keeping their heads on his thighs and taking out their (light) soul, Vishnu got it merged within his own body. (11)

Sartha

The gods, after killing Madh and Kevabh, estblished their kingdom. After handing over the functioning of the Kingdom (to others) Vishnu proceeded to heavens. (12)

Here the first chapter of Markandai Puran, dealing with Chandi Charitar (portrayal), specially the killing of Madh kerabh is completed. All is well so far. (1)

Punha (Quintuplet)

Then Mehkhasur (the demon with the face of a bull) came on the scene. What he did ? (That description now follows). with the powers of his arms he fought so well that he won the war and took control of the whole world. He challanged the gods on the battle field and killed them wholesale. (whole lot of them) He armed himself fully and mecicated them in bits and pieces, thus killing all of them. (13)

Swayya :

The demon Mehkhasur fought against the gods and killed the whole army of gods and cutting into two pieces, he toppled down all the great warriors from the enemy ranks and that brave demon fought the battle to his teetth. Besmeared with the (red coloured) blood he came out of the battle-field. Seeing his beauty the poet felt as if Parush Ram had come out of blood bath in the battle-field of Kurukushetra, killing all the Kashatriya Rajas. (14)

Mehkhasur, armed with arms and coat of mail (iron wire), had pierced the bodies of the enemy ranks like a saw and there were corpses lying huddled together all over (one above another) while thc huge mountain-like elephants and horses were also lying fallen down. One could see horrible luoking black elephants lying dead in the battle field smeared with white marronic or red blood. They appeared (strewn) thrown in the battle-field by the god of death as if a tailor had thrown around his cut clothes of various types in the winter season. (15)

The god Indra, collecting all the gods together in great rage, attacked the enemy ranks. They kept the shield against the face, and with a Sword in hand roared loudly and challenging the enemy they attacked them with such a vengeance, that the demons were red with rage. Seeing their beauty, the poet felt in his mind as if Ram Chander having won the battle had offered robes of honour to all the bears. (16)

Many warriors in a wounded statewere roaming in the battle field while some others were moaning (waiting) fallen on the ground. In the battle field headless bodies were seen running around, on seeing whomwhom the timid fellows were frightened. When Mehkhasur fought the battle so well, all the jackals and vultures (getting more flesh to eat) were very happy. The warriors lying in a pool of blood appeared as if some drunken men were lying asleep with their feet stretched (were relaxing carelessly) having consumed liquor. (17)

The battle fought by Mehkhasur demon would have even caused the Sun to forget its normal path (of moving west ward). Even Brahma had forgotten all the four Vedas by seeing the blood of the battle-field. The vultures were shrieking so much by seeing the flesh lying (on the field) as if children were reading out their lessons in the school. The jackals were removing the dead bodies of warriors just as Sidhas were making a satchil on the banks of Sarswati (the river) by removing the bark of trees. (18)

Couplet

Innumerable gods were killed and who could count their numbers ? All the gods, who fled from the scene due to fright, appeared to have thought of Durga (Shiva) in their mind and had approached Kailashpuri (Safety). (19)

The demons had snatched away the wealth and abode of the gods and pushed thieir towards heavens and they started abiding in Kailash (Shivpuri). (20)

When some days had passed by the gods abiding at Shivpuri, who had been pushed away by the gods abiding at Shivpuri, who had been pushed away by the demons, then one day the goddess happened to cpme to the river site for having a bath. Then all the gods served the goddess, together according to a set plan. (21)

Rekhta

The gods told the goddess the details of the fact how (the demon) Mehkhasur had divested them of their abode. O Mother ! Pray do as it pleases You ! We have all approached You for Your Support, being Your slaves from good old days. Pray get us back our living abode so that our miseries may end, and make those demons restless (homeless) as this is our main objective. No one calls the name of the dog while (killing) beating it but calls out the name of its master alone. (22)

Couplet

Hearing this the (goddess) Chandi got enraged in mind and declared that she would rest in Shivpuri only after destroying all the demons. (23)

When Chandi proclaimed and voeed for killing the demons, then she got (by itself) all the conch shells, lions, and other armour or iron-coat for protection automatically. (24)

It appeared the god of death had taken birth for destroying the demons. The lion became the mode of transport for Chandi in dealing with the enemies and causing them suffering. (25)

The transport of the goddess, the lion digaj (like the elephants of foreign lands) so frightful and bulky and as powerful as the great lion, with the hair like the arrows of death just like the trees grown on the great yellow mountain. The black hair on his back appeared like the river Jamuna streaming out of the Sumer mountain while the black spots on the body were looking like the black beer clustered around the bunches of (Yellow) jasmine flowers. The sturdy limbs of the lion appeared if the Lord Prithiv had kept the mountains apart with a bow in hand on the face of the Earth. (26)

Couplet

Chandi has armed herself with a mace, conch shell, bow and arrow, and a frightful wheel (Her appearance is so mighty (passionate) looking and compares well with the hot Sun of Summer. (27)

With a fercious wrathful face Chandi got these weapons in her arms and going near the village of the horrible demon produced a noise like the bell (gong) (28)

On hearing the sound of the hooters (bells), and roar of the lion, the demons unsheathed their Swords in the battle-field and being enraged, all the demons collected together and planned to wage a war. (29)

Mehsakhur then collected together the forty-five thousand (billions) worth army consisting of four sections ie elephant monuted, charioteers, cavaliers and infantry. Some arraigned on the left, some on the right and some were with Mehkhasur (the King of warriors) who came forward. (30)

All the three armies are worth ten, fifteen and twenty thousand (billions), out of which fifteen were kept on the right flank, ten on the left flank while twenty thousand were kept by the king of demons, with himself. (31)

So Chandi then took out her Sword and challenging the enemy, pushed them backwards. It appeared as if Arjun (Pandav) had made the clouds disperse to extinguish the fire of Khadav jungle. (32)

Couplet

One of the demons, becoming furious with rage, racing his horse, went up to the goddess, just like the moth giving up in front of the lamp. (33)

Swaiyya

The brave leader warrior of the demons in a great rage, unsheathed his Sword from the scabbard, and made a portal attack on the body of vehement Chandi and the second attack was aimed on the head of lion. The goddess, however , picking up courage and by holding the neck of the demon, threw him (demon) on the ground, just as a washer man proceeds to the river bank and strikes the cloth piece on the ground with great force. (34)

Couplet

The demon, who had fought against the goddess by appearing before the enemy, was killed by the goddess in such a manner, and then proceeded towards the enemy ranks by blowing (sounding) the conch-shell, and entered the enemy ranks fighting against them. (35)

When Chandi, having the mighty and powerful bow in hand, did like this, that with one challenging cry and perviewing the enemy once only, the whole army of the enemy was routed. Most of the demons were killed in the battle-field itself, seeing whom in a powerful mood the poet exclaimed to himself that it appears as the blue joy (Khag Raj) had cut the whole family of snakes into bits and pieces. (36)

Couplet

The goddess had killed many demons while the most powerful ones had been liquidated (demoralised), and with various weapons in hand she had caused the enemy ranks to retreat hastily. (37)

The army of Mehkhasur hag fled away and sought refuge at the master's feet. The fleeing troops told him (Mehkhasur) that the goddess had killed twenty thousand of their warriors. (38)

Hearing this, the enraged Mehkhasur, of a foolish nature, got up in rage and ordered his men to surround the goddess. (39)

Swaiyya

The whole army listened to the Master's talk (Mehkhasur) and all the warriors finally decided on a plan and firmly believed in their mind to wage a war against the goddess by encircling her from all four sides. The whole army of demons, shouting ("Kill them") to kill them, with swords in hand, advanced like this and surrounded Chandi from all four sides as if the moon had been attacked by its own family members.(40)

Swaiyya

Hearing the narration of the such a battle, even Shiva lost his meditational posture at the Kailash mountain. Then Chandi got hold of her mace (club) and raised it and roared while blowing the conch shell. The revolving wheel propelled with the force of hand among the hordes of enemy ranks moved over the heads of enemy ranks in such a manner as if a child was throwing the broken pieces of earthen ware while playing on the river banks. (43)

Couplet

Seeing the army of Mehkhasur the goddess managed to nourish her strength and killed all of them either through the lion or with the revolving wheel. (44)

Some soldiers rushed towards the king (Mehkhasur) and reported the killing of all their troops, hearing this the demon got furious and rushed to the battle-field with strength. (45)

Swaiyya

Then Mehkhasur saw about all the troops having been killed while fighting, he got hold of his double edged sword and going towards the goddess he roared like a horrible looking bear before her. Holding the mace in her hand Chandi (threw) it against (towards) the body of Mehkhasur with such a force (forcefully) just as Hanuman had hurled the mountain, having uprooted it towards the chest of Ravana. (46)

Then Chandi, holding the bow in her hands, shot many arrows on the enemy ranks and all those warriors were killed. (did not ask for water). The wounded warriors were seen falling on the ground in great dizziness on the battle-field, while huge mountain-like elephants were wailing while limping with broken legs. (47)

The poet, seeing the wounded bodies of warriors lying on the ground covered with armour, got into a mood of praise for the warriors in the mind which was more pronouneed than the position of the mind of the goddess itself, as if lightning was shining in the dark clouds. (48)

When the mighty Chandi wielded her Sword, the army of Mehkhasur was scattered in shambles. The demons were not being killed, but rather appearing in different forms on the battle-field and then the goddess, picking up lot of courage, sent the revolving wheel reeling, which killed the enemy, by removing the head from the body. Then the blood streams sprouted towards the sky as if Parush Ram had illumined the sun even. (49)

The powerful Chandi, through her great enterprise on the the battle-field, killed all the (enemy) warriors on the battle-field. There was a pool of blood on the ground, and with the thud of the striking sword, huge ranks of enemy troops fell on the ground. Thus the calamity of the gods was finished through the powerful intervention of Chandi, the goddess-mother of the world, while the army of the demons was completely wiped out. Thus the goddess Durga was shining like a streak of lightning among the clouds of enemy troops. (50)

Couplet

When Mehkhasur , the King of demons was killed, all the timid demons fled from the battle field leaving everything behind. (51)

Kabit

The goddess had killed the all-powerful demon (Mehkhasur) who was known for his wrathful nature, like the afternoon Sun, in the interest of the gods. The rest of the troops of demons fled away from the battlefield just like the clouds vanishing before a strong wind. (clouds get scattered) ; then the goddess gave back the kingdom (of heaven) to the god Indra, through her own prowess. All the kings from far and wide (local and foreign) were made to bow before Indra, and then after consultations with all the gods, Indra was conseirated as the King. (of gods) Th goddess then disappeared from here and manifested herself herself at a place where Shiva was seated on the Skin of a lion, which was spread underneath him. (52)

Here The second chapter on Sri Chandi charitar (portrayal) of Markandai Puran dealing with the Killing of Mehkhasur is completed. All is well so far. (2)

Couplet :

After handing over the kingdom (of heaven) to Indra, Chandi disappeared from the scene. Chandi had killed the demons and demoralised them and helped the cause of the saints by protecting them. (53)

Swayya :

The great Munis (mendi cants/destruction ascetics) were pleased with the (killing) of demons and are feeling great relief and satisfaction under the patronage of the god. Some are engaged in Yagnas, while some others are reciting the Vedas, while many others, are engaged in meditation of the LOrd for casting away the sufferings of the gods alongwith other gods. The gods take out their instruments like horns, (band) cymbals, mirdang (drums), upang (harmonium) rebek, etc, the symbols of victory and arrange to synchronise their tunes (music). At places the musicians of gods or demi-gods are singing while at places fairies and demi-gods are dancing. (54)

(The gods) are offering flowers (like rain) midst the sounding (blowing) of conch shells and gongs (bells) ; many gods are performing arti (hymns of praise) and perceiving Indra (king of gods), are offering themselves as a sacrifice to him. They are putting (total) coloured mark on his forehead with saffron and rice, while doing circum ambulation of Indra alongwith their offerings and alms-giving. Thus in the abode (town) of the gods, there are lot of rejoicings alongwith the whole clan of gods, singing songs of rejoicings (pleasure). (55)

Couplet

Thus the splendour of gods was in ascendence alongwith the glory of Chandi, and all the three worlds (regions) were saluting and hailing the goddess while reciting the central position of Markanda Puran, or the various Names of the Lord mentioned in the middle of Puran. (56)

Thus the gods ruled (over heavens) and enjoyed all the comforts (pleasures). Then two demons named Sumbh and Nisumbh of great strength and might were born there. (57)

The Raja (King) Sumbh marched forward (towards heavens) alongwith the colourful army comprising infantry and cavalary, of chariots and elephants. (58)

Swaiyya :

On hearing the sound of drum beats by the army of demons, king Indra got (doubt ful) suspicious (of demons) and blocked the doors (gates) leading to Indra Puri. Seeing the demons collecting together for waging war against the gods, the brilliance of the Sun got diffused (The dust arising out of marching demons covered the sun even, thus shadowing the Sun's rays). All the oceans were shivering (with fear) and with the extra weight of the army, the Earth also felt depressed (confused), even the mountain Sumer was shaken and the world of Indra was frightened when the army of Sumbh and Nisumbh attacked them. (59)

Couplet

Then all the gods got together and approached Indra and reported the arrival of mighty demons (for attack) and requested for help and protection against the demons.(60)

Hearing all this, king Indra got enraged and made arrangements for waging war against them, by calling for all the rest of demons to gather (at one place) (61)

Swaiyya :

The Lord thus made the (arrangement of sham battle) drama of a battle so as to lessen the load on the surface of the Earth, with great contemplation. The drunken elephants were (thundering, trumpeting, roaring), being drunk with wine, while their white tusks appeared like the rows of herons (Indian) shining (in the battle-field). The armed warriors, with protective iron cover (on the body), armed with spears appeared moving like the streak of lightning (in the sky). The army of demons swelled and attacked their enemy of gods just like dark clouds spreading all over. (62)

All the demons fought-well collectively and reaching Indrapuri surrounded (the god) Indra. (63)

Swaiyya :

The gods army also moved out of various doors by opening them and started advancing, and finally all of them gathered in the battle field. Seeing them in strength, the army of the enemy (demons) was completely shaken up like the leaves of pipal tree. The elephants were trembling like fruits , the chariots like flowers and the infantry like the petals. It appeared as if the strong wind of Indrapuri was blowing to disperse the clouds of the army of Sumbh (demon). (64)

Enraged with anger Indra along with other gods attacked from one side, while on the other side Sumbh came in force on the battle field to wage war. All the troops were having arrows and bows, swords, maces in hand and the bodies covered with iron-coating. Both sides were attacking with great haste and there was no doubt in the minds of the warriors to kill the enemy. Hearing the sounds of the battle, the jackals and vultures came rushing while the Shiva-followers were also delighted much.(65)

On one side King Indra was in great wrath and on the other side, the demons were collecting enmasse ; as if the dark clouds had gathered together, to surround the chariot of the sun of Indrapuri in a tight corner. The backside of the arrows shooting out from the bows of Indra were piercing the chests of enemy troops with such a flash, as if the clicks of the black bird (Meena Sarak) were spreading out their peaks from the mountain recesses. Seeing the piercing of the arrows in the body of Sumbh, the demons penetrated the midst of the battle field with drawn Swords. They struck with vengeance against the enemy troops and there was lot of blood shed among the gods. The battle-field was filled with attendants of gods, jackals, vultures, and wild animals for making noise in the field to such an extent, as if the warriors were having a bath on the banks of saraswati (river), to wash away their sins of previous births. (67)

Shumb and Nisumbh waged such a heroic war that none of the demons had fought so well ever before. There were heaps of corpses, where the flesh (of dead bodies) was being eaten away by vultures and jackals. The marrow was flowing from the (hair) heads of many warriors on to the ground, as if the sacred water of Ganges (River Ganga) was flowing out of the tufts of a wrathful Shiva. (68)

At that place, the hairs of warriors were floating like weeds and the canopies of warriors were floating like the froth (foam). The fingers of the hands were fluttering like the fish (out of water) while the cut arms (of warriors) were presenting a scene of snakes by the creator. The dead horses lying in a pool of blood were like crocodiles and the flags were like the trees while the chariot wheels were seen like the whirlpool (eddy of water). Then Sumbh and Nisumbh both the demons, struck so hard in the battle-field, as if it were a stream of flowing 'blood'. (69)

Couplet :

The gods were defeated in the battle, while the demons were victorious and they usurped all the material of the gods. Thus the demons, comprising of a powerful army, made Indra flee from the battle-field. (70)

Swaiyya :

The demons then looted the treasure of Kuber and snatched the necklace of gems from Sheshnag (the Cobra King). They were victorious over Brahma (Lukesh), Sun, Moon, Danesh, and Varuna (all gods), who fled away. They had won over all the three worlds (regions) and subjugated them and sent a few demon Sardars (leaders of demons) to rule over them. They then settled themselves in the abodes of gods and kingdom of Shumbh and Nishumbh all over the place. (71)

Couplet

The demons were victorious on the battle-field, while the gods fled away. The gods then thought in their minds, that it could be through (the goddess) Chandi alone, that they may get back their lost kingdom. (72)

Swaiyya :

All the gods including Indra, Sun, Moon etc. have settled down in Indrapuri. They are all hiding, (gods) being afraid of the war, in a very bad shape and their hair are mingled with each other, as they have not been combed. They are looking ugly being completely disgusted with themselves, as they have not cared for their body even. It appears as if they are stricken with the fear of death. They are shouting for their protection time and again and are hiding themselves, suffering with pain, in the creviees of Kailash Mountain. (73)

When Chandi heard the wailings of the gods by her own ears she resolved in her mind to kill all the demons. So the all powerful Chandi manifested herself and dehoted herself in a rage towards the battle-field. By bursting the forehead, the goddess Kali appeared on the scene, seeing whom the poet was forced to praise her strongly. It appeared as if death had taken birth from the god of death to destroy the entire clan of demons. (74)

The powerful (mighty) Kali (goddess) then roared with a sword in hand and in a wrathful mood like a flash of lightning. With her roar all the great mountains including Sumer (mountain) were shaken thoroughly Even the Earth, resting on the hood of Sheshnag (cobra), was trembling with fear. Hearing the roar (sound) of Kali, Brahma, Kuber and the Sun, had got frightened. Even the breast of god Vishnu was moving up and down (rumbling). Kalika had appeared like the god of death from the mighty, Chandi, with sword in hand sharpened and indivisble in natures. (75)

Couplet :

Then seeing Kalika in that form, Chandika remarked, "O daughter Kalika ! You get completely immersed (absorbed) in me. (76)

Hearing such words of Chandi just like the (river) Jamuna merging with the waters of Ganga. (77)

Swaiyya :

Then Durga and other gods got together and thought over the problem, deciding that without waging a war, it would not he possible to take back all the areas governed by them earlier. Then Indra remarked, O Mother ! Pray listen to me, as it would not pay us to delay it any (longer) further. As a result (of deliberations) the mighty Chandi, like a black cobra, started moving towards the battle-field to annihilate the demons (once again). (78)

The body of the goddess was shining like gold, with beautiful eyes like that of a (sparrow-like) bird,while the lotus-flower was feeling shy of seeing the beauty (of the goddess) (she was looking more beautiful than the lotus-flower even). It appears as if the Lord had created each organ of her by taking the nectar in His hands and then making a doll of her body). Even the moon cannot compare with her face in beauty, and nothing more could be said in her praise. Chandi was seated on the Sumer mountain-peak, s if the spouse of (god) Indra was seated on the throne (of Indra). (79)

At that very time, one demon happened to come there, who fell down unconscious on perceiving the beauty of Chandi. (81)

He composed himself and then stood up and then prayed to (the goddess) Chandi that he was the brother of King Sumbh, and then spoke hesitatingly. (82)

O beautiful goddess ! (That) You should have got wedded to the mighty King Sumbh, who had won over all the three worlds (regions) of the Universe through the power of his strong arms. (83)

On hearing the demon's talk, the goddess replied, O foolish demon ! I would not wed him without first conquering him in the battle-field. (He could marry me only after winning me in the battle). (84)

Hearing this, the demon approached Sumbh with the speed of lightning, and with folded hands he made a request to the King. (85)

O King ! You have got all the valuables of life in your home, but your house is devoid of the gem of a woman (wife). O powerful King ! There is one particular woman in the jungle, whom you should marry. (86)

The Raja Sumbh listened to this marvellous talk and ashed him. O brother ! Let me hear the complete narration of her beauty of the body ! (87)

Swaiyya :-

(He narrated) The woman's face is as beautiful as the moon, who dispels all suffering, and her long hair tresses are more beautiful than the necklace of the snakes around the neck of Shiva (god). Her eyes are like the bloosomed lotus-flower, and the eye-brows are like the bow, and her sight like the arrow. Her waist is delicate like that of the lion, her gate is like that of an elephant. She is more beautiful than the spouse of Kamdev (god of sex), as her beauty is superior to that of Rut. (spouse of Kamdev) She holds a sword in her hand, is riding over a lion, and is radiant like the sun, and is the spouse of Shiva. (88)

Even the parrots (seeing her nose), the pigeons (seeing her neck), the black monkey (seeing her lips), the nightingale (hearing her voice) and peacock (seeing her jump) are losing their peace of mind and feel completely lost and over-powered by her beauty and are moving in the jungle disgusted. The pomengrade has been split by seeing the beauty of her teeth (the uniform line). (feels disgusted) and the tales (praises) of her beauty are known all over the world, with her brilliance. The beauty queen is revealing an ocean of such good qualities. In fact, she has bewitched (enamoured) my mind with her twinkling eyes. (89)

The Raja Sumbh said smilingly on hearing the story of that demon that a clever demon should be despatched to trace out some manoevre which would enable us to vanquish (control) her. (90)

Couplet :

The demon then said that we should think about and find out some warrior in the ranks who would be suitable for this job and then he should be sent with proper authority. (91)

Swaiyya :

Then Dhrumlochan, who was sitting in the Raja's assembly, got up and stated with folded hands, "I will go." I will lure her in my gossip (talk) and bring her around to meet you, else I will bring her by catching her from the hair. If she tries to be wrathful, then I will fight it out and make a pool of blood in the battle-field. Dhrumlochan (in the assembly of Sumbh) then gave details of his strength, that I could blow off even Sumer mountain with my blowing puff. (breath). (92)

Couplet :

By seeing the warrior , Dhrumlochan, standing like this before Sumbh, he remarked, you may proceed and bring her along with you, if possible, with her own consent (through her pleasure) but if she resists (opposes) then you may fight it out even. (93)

Thus Dhrumlochan made preparations to take with him four types of troops and started (on his expedition). He encircled the Sumer mountain like the dark (black) clouds and started roaring like Gajraj. (94)

Dhrumlochan approaching Sumer (mountain) shouted loudly, O goddess ! Either you agree to marry King Sumbh or get ready for a battle against me. (95)

On hearing these words of the enemy, the goddess Chandi, riding on a lion armed with all types of weapons and armour (iron coat) came down the mountain in haste. (like a flash). (96)

Swaiyya :

From this side, the mighty Chandi attacked while from the other side, Dhrumlochan getting enraged, attacked to repulse her. There was a heavy clush of swords and arrows, when the goddess took hold of a sharp spear and penetrated it in the body of the enemy like a flash. She cut the lips of the enemy just as the chisel cuts a piece of iron. Now the blood started flowing (oozing) from the body like Saraswati at Tribeni (Confluence of the three rivers), with the white teeth of the demon shining like Ganga, and the black body like Jamuna.

The wounded Dhrumlochan, getting enraged, unsheathed his sword with full strength at his command and attacked Chandi at least twenty times (or twenty-five times) or more, but the lion did not move even a step back (a bit). Then suddenly Chandi took out her mace and cutting across the ranks of the army, struck the demon's head, as if Indra (god) had in a wrathful mood, struck the peak of the mountain, with full strength. (98)

With the striking of the mace, Dhrumlochan cried loudly and taking the whole army of demons alongwith him, with a sword in hand, suddenly struck the lions mein with full force ; Chandi also got hold of her sword in the hand and struck the enemy with force, thus cutting the head of the enemy (from the body) and the demon fell down dead on the ground just as the dates fall down from the date-tree with the blowing of a heavy storm. When the goddess killed Dhrumlochan like this, the whole army of demons became restless and there was a huge cry (wave) of lamentation from the troops. (100)

Here the third chapter of Chandi Charitar (portrayal) dealing with the "killing of Dhrum Lochan" in the Markandai Puran is completed. All is well so far. (3)

Swaiyya :

When the goddess heard the noise of the demons, the powerful Chandi frowned with a revengeful mood (wrathful sight). Hearing the sound of this roar, even Shiva was shaken up from his meditation, and the wings of Garud (the King of birds) were split. The flames of that fire of the burning eyes of Chandi had risen (increased) like the fire of the ocean, the beauty of this scene has been described by the poet thus : (experienced as) : The whole army of the demons was burnt and reduced to ashes just as the bees buzzing over a poisonous material (halahal) are destroyed completely. (101)

Couplet :

The whole army was reduced to ashes except one demon, who was kept alive by Chandi purposely to see the whole scene of their destruction. (102)

The foolish demon went rushing to Sumbh and reported the Killing of the whole army alongwith Dhrumlochan. (103)

All the (troops) warriors including infantry men, chariots and the riders of horses and elephants have been killed. Hearing all the narration, Sumbh Raja got infuriorated with wrathful amusement. (104)

Sumbh then sent for the two demons Mund and Chand, who came in the Raja's court (assembly) with their swords and shields. (105)

Both of them paid their obeisance to the king, who made them sir beside him and remarked while offering them betels that they were his bold warriors. (106)

The King then offered (gave) them his dagger, sword and girdle and asked them to bring (the goddess) Chandi alive with them or kill her (if she resists). (107)

Swaiyya :

Chand and Mund were enraged and taking the command of their colourful army they advanced towards the battle-field for waging war against Chandi. Then the whole Earth resting on the hood of Sheshnag trembled as if a boat was wavering in the rivulet Seeing the dust rising from the hoofs of the horses towards the sky, the poet could not help praising the scene and remarked, It seems as if the Earth, in order to shake off the great burden of the world, was proceeding towards the land of the gods. (Brahma-lok). (108)

Couplet :

Chand and Mund took charge of a huge (strong) army comprising mighty warriors, and surrounded the area near the mountains and created lot of confusion there.(109)

Swaiyya :

Durga, on hearing this noise of the demons became furious with rage and decorating herself with all the weapons and armour on the body, she sounded the conch-shell, riding on a lion, and advanced towards the battle field. Descending from the mountain she attacked (swooped) on the army ranks like this for which I am forced to praise the situation, as it came to my mind that as if seeing a batch of crane-like birds the eagle had swooped down from the sky on them. (110)

The arrows being shot from the bow of Chandi were increasing from one to ten, then from hundred to thousand, and then the number increased to 'lakhs' (millions) which were piercing the bodies of demons, and they were buried in the ground. (killed). Which poet could have praised this feat ? without extracting their bodies from the ground, could be praised like this, as if the winds of phagun (autumn) had taken off the leaves from the trees. (and trees were without leaves). (111)

The demon named Mund held his sword and roared loudly, then attacked the lion's limbs one by one and then suddenly pierced the body of Durga with his sword, which resulted in a stream of blood oozing out of her body. The blood–soaked sword was shaking badly in the hands of the demon,. Some other poet may be thinking about its praise, but I am feeling like this, that the god of death, after having food, had a betel leaf and then was watching his tongue in great haughtiness. (112)

When the demon was going back after wounding the goddess, she pulled out an arrow from the quiver, and pulling the bow upto her ears, she shot an arrow, which spread out into many arrows. The demon Mund covered his face with the shield, but the arrow piercing the shield got stuck there, as if the fangs of Sheshnag (cobra) seated on the back of a tortoise, were spreading out. (113)

Then Chandi, goading the lion, holding her sword in the hand , advanced further and she crushed the whole lot of enemy troops, and vanquished them in the dust, and had fought a valiant battle. Then turning around she surrounded the demon Mund in the battle-field and cut off his head from the body. The head fell on the ground as if a pumpkin is removed from the creeper and thrown down. (114)

The goddess, riding the lion, and blowing the conch shell with her mouth, appeared like the lightning flashing across the clouds, presenting a welcome sight. Then she moved the revolving wheel and defeated the enemy, while many mighty demons fled away The ghosts and imp were eating away the flesh and with dishevelled hair they were making merry. Chandi had removed (cut off) the head of the demon Mund and now is going to tackle the demon Chand. (engages in battle.). (115)

After killing Mund in the battle-field the powerful Chandi now waged a war against the demon Chand and destroyed the whole army of Chand in the battle. Then with a spear in hand, she struck it hard at his head and slashed it from the body. It appeared as if Shiva had removed the head of Ganesh with his trishul (triple-edged weapon) from his body. (116)

Here the fourth Chapter of Chandi Charitar (portrayal) of Bachittar Natak dealing with the Killing of Chand Mund is completed. All is well. (4)

Sortha :

Millions of (crores of) wounded demons went upto Raja Sumbh (the demon King) and wailing they complained to the King that the goddess had killed many of their mighty warriors and their frightful troops. (117)

There and then the demon king exclaimed from his mouth that he will kill her, and will not rest till she is dead. (will not spare her till she is dead). I am telling truth and nothing else. (not telling lie). (118)

With this fact, Chandi , establishing herself in the mouth of Sumbh, remarked that the demon had invited the god of death himself. (callerd for his own death). (119)

Then Sumbh and Nisumbh both held discussions with each other, and decided to call for all the (main) powerful warriors from amongst the troops and selected them (for waging war). (120)

The ministers thoughtfully remarked that for this purpose, Rakatbeej would be the right choice, (who should be sent), who would challenge Chandi and forcing her to come down the mountain, finally would kill her just like throwing away a stone rolling down from the mountain. (121)

Sortha :

Then the king Sumbh remarked that a messenger Should be sent to him (Rakatbeej) who would bring him along, as he had won over Indra (powerful king) even, as he possesses great prowess (might) in his arms. (122)

Couplet :

Going upto Rakatbeej, the messenger gave this message to him, that King Sumbh wanted his presence in the king's assembly. So please make haste to proceed and meet the king. (123)

Rakatbeej then came there and paid his respect (made obeisance) to the king (Sumbh). Then the king, seated decoratedly in the assembly of demons, remarked lovingly that he would like him to carry out one of his jobs. (124)

Swaiyya :

King Sumbh-Nisumbh called for Rakatbeej and made him sit with great honour and gave him a crest (crown for the head) grand elephants, and horses, which the demon received with great joy (and wore the crest on the head). Taking a battle leaf from the king, the demon Rakatbeej remarked that he would soon remove the head of Chandi from her body (kill her). When the King heard such words from him in the assembly, the king was much pleased with him and bestowed his own ostentations decoration on the chest (the necklace adoring his chest). (125)

Sumbh and Nisumbh then asked Rakatbeej to take along with him a huge army and crush Chandi who is established (seated) on the top of a mountain and challenging her with your might kill her finally. Hearing all this with his own ears from the King Sumbh, (demon) Rakatbeej, in great rage, (climbed) seated himself on the elephant back and started on his expedition. It appeared as if the god of death, in the form of an elephant, had advanced towards the battle field for killing the demon Rakatbeej. (126)

Then Rakatbeej, sounding the drum-beat, advanced with his entourage of elephants, horses and chariots. These demons were brave warriors excelling from each other in might, who could even crush the Sumer mountain with their huge feet . One could see their huge and beautiful bodies, covered with iron-coats, alongwith pouches of arrows tied around their waists, who were armed with bows, arrows and swords and other weapons. So (Rakatbeej) is proceeding forward alongwith his mighty warriors. (to the battle-Field) (127)

Rakatbeej then preparing his army fully in all respects , advanced towards Sumer mountain and encamped near it . On the other side, Chandi also made preparations for the battle, on hearing the news of the advancing army of demons. (128)

Sortha :

Chandi, like the flash of lightning, riding on a lion, and wielding a sword advanced towards the enemy, to kill Rakatbeej. (129)

Swaiyya :

The (demon) Rakatbeej, seeing the mighty Chandi coming towards him, was very much elated and advancing forward, pierced in the ranks (army) of the enemy, and moved further to engagr her in a battle. He had a horde (whole lot) of large troops under his command, seeing him advancing the poet felt that the arrows being shot from both sides were like the clouds bursting into a torrent of rain. (130)

The arrows, being shot by the warriors, were piercing the bodies of the enemy. The arrows were cracking the bows, piercing through the armour (iron coating), the enemies of the fish, like the hawkish bird, the arrows were passing over the heads (of the enemy). The arrows, which had pierced and wounded the body of Chandi from which the blood was oozing out like a stream, as if the snakes were (coming out) moving around with a deformed shape. (like the snake's little ones). (131)

When the arrows were being shot by the warriors, then (the goddess) Chandi roared like a lioness, and grasping bows and arrows, sword mace, circular wheel, and a dagger, (advanced) attacked, while cutting across the ropes tightening the noose around the enemy, broke the horse's belt separated the cradle on the elephant back, as if Hanuman having set fire to the fort of Lanka. the huge palace top had been pulled down by him. (132)

Chandi, wielding a sword in her hand, wounded the enemy ranks deforming their faces, and Killed all those demons who were advancing in a formation. First, the goddess frightened the demons and made them feel completely demoralised, and then crushed (minced) the bones of the enemy troops, and they were laid down like a pool of blood (drank their blood) just as Sri Krishna had devoured the jungle fire and Rishi August had devoured the waters of the ocean. The powerful Chandi, with a bow in hand, fought against many a warrior, who had come there. The whole army of the demons was killed. The jackals and vultures were fully satisfied with their blood, The demons, seeing the horrible face of Chandi (forehead), fled away from the battle-field just like the strong wind, which takes away the pipal tree leaves. (134)

Chandi, being furious with rage, wielded her sword in the hand and killed many of the army warriors in the battle. Many were killed with her arrows, the mace, or the whirling wheel, and many bodies were torn into pieces by the lioness. The troops (of the enemy) riding on horses or elephants and the army on foot were killed while the charioteers were divested of their chariots.The elephants were lying dead on the field just as huge boulders are hurled down from the mountains with the earth quake. (135)

Couplet :

The whole army of Rakatbeej had fled away out of fear of Chandi. Then the demon again collected togetfer his (remnant) army ranks and goaded them to kill (destroy) Chandi. (136)

Hearing these words with their ears, the warriors (demons) again attacked the mighty Chandi with their swords, getting enraged they fought a heroic battle. The blood from the wounds of the soldiers (enemy) was falling on the ground just as (water falls from the fountains) or one hears the hissing sound during the jungle fire ; in the same manner the sound of striking arrows on the bodies (of warriors) was being heard. (137)

With the permission of Rakatbeej, the army of demons advanced and stood in front of Chandi. The warriors, with shields in hands, alongwith their swords and spears, started fighting in the battle field. The demons, with patience grilled in their minds, would not deter from the battle field even on disswading them from the fighting. They have excircled Chandi from all the four sides. It appeared as if the Sun was encircled by a halo of sunshine. (light). (138)

Enraged by this, the powerful mighty Chandi took up her bows and entered the circle of enemy troops, she crushed the enemy warriors into bits and pieces as if lightning was shining midst a huge collection of clouds ; and with her shooting arrows she destroyed the whole army, The poet, on seeing this whole scene felt in his mind, as if the rays of Sun had removed all traces of water from the frost. (Similarly the arrows shot by Chandi had reduced the bodies of enemy ranks into shambles). (139)

After killing most of the enemy troops, the powerful Chandi took up her mighty bow, and with her arrows reduced the enemy troops into pieces while her lion also roared loudly. The great enemy warriors were killed and with a pool of blood on the ground, she had fought a ferocious battle. Then she struck her bow on the head of a demon just as a huge palace was destroyed by lightning. (140)

Couplet :

Chandi had destroyed the huge army of the demon just like the uprooting of the huge garden of Lanka by Hanuman (the son of wind). (141)

Swaiyya :

The mighty chandi had shot her arrows like the rain drops after bursting like the clouds. With the wielding of her sword like lightning, she had dropped the heads of warriors into two pieces on the ground. Seeing the wounded warriors falling on the ground with a complete shake up into circle (upside down) the poet felt as if the corpses were the banks of a river of blood flowing on the ground. (142)

The bodies of warriors, cut into two pieces by Chandi, were lying on the ground. The corpses were huddled together and the blood was flowing like millions of rivulets. taking the elephants in hands, the demons were striking against another demon. The poet, seeing this scene felt as if the mountains were falling against each other during the dooms day due to blowing winds. (143)

It was a dreadful sight to see the sword of an enemy being taken by another on the battle field. The mighty warriors had been killed with great force, while the blood was flowing like blood-streams. (Vaitarni river). It appeared to the poet as if two mates of the great Sheshnag had quarrelled and fallon apart from the mountain.(144)

Couplet

The whole huge army of the demons had been made to flee by Chandi just as the recitation of True Name (of the Lord) makes the sins and sufferings take to their heels. (145)

Swaiyya :

Just as darkness shuns sunshine, the clouds shun the wind, and the snake (cobra) fears from (is frightened by) the peacock. (are afraid of peacock). The same way, the weak is afraid of a warrior ; the cleverness shuns falsehood, or the deer is afraid of a lion and shuns him. Just as the praise worthy from the miser , union from separation, or the family suffers losses due to an unworthy son, the religion due to wrath, and the unreasonable beliefs shun the perfect intelligence ; similarly the demon would run away from facing Chandi in the battle. (146)

Then again all returned to the battle field and attacked again wielding their swords being enraged, while many others fix their arrows in the bows and make their horses speed away (towards the battle field). The dust rising from the hooves of the speeding horses rises up in the sky, thus concealing the whole atmosphere of the sun, as if Brahma had created this Universe once again, comprising six Earths and eight skies. (147)

The mighty Chandi, taking up her bow, started shooting arrows which struck the bodies of the demons, reducing them into bits and pieces like the carding of cotton. Then Chandi killed many elephants of the army of demons with her sword. It appeared as if the prestige of the demons had been reduced to shambles like the white birds of the ak plant. The white turbans of the warriors heads were floating in the stream of blood like the mushrooms. The sight presented by this scene was such as if in the river Saraswati the bubbles of the prestige of demons (warriors) were rising and dying suddenly. (148)

Then again holding her mace, Chandi started fighting the demons fearlesly in great rage, and with her mighty Sword she destroyed the rank of the enemy, reducing them to dust. The head of one warrior, alongwith his turban on top, was lying on the ground, which is explained by the poet in his poetry like this, as if during the full-moon night a star had beem shot from the (sky) firmament which had fallen on the ground by separating from the sky. Then Chandi, managing (collecting) all her strength, penetrated the enemy ranks and the clouds of elephants were scattered all over. Then fixing an arrow in the bow, she struck the arrows with full strength and sucked the enemy blood to her full satisfaction, Seeing all this some army warriors fled awat, while the others had their heart-beats increased (they were struggling for life). The arrows of Chandi were like the rays of the Sun, seeing which the lamps of the demons lost their light (brilliance) and got dimmed. (150)

Chandi, whole uielding her sword in one hand with great rage, fought a ferocious battle. She advanced from her position and killed many demons and one elephant in the battle-field,. The poet, seeing this drama (sight) of the battle, thought in his mind as if Nal had uprooted the mountain for having a dam in the ocean. (by stopping water flow). (151)

Couplet :

When Chandi had killed all the enemy troops of demons, then Rakatbeej getting himself armed with all weapons, decided in his mind to kill Chandi. (152)

Swaiyya :

All the demons got frightened by perceiving the horrible face of Chandi riding a tiger. The goddess had a conch-shell and a revolving wheel in her hands, and she had armed herself beautifully with a curved bow along with an arrow fixed with feathers, in a fantastic manner. Then (the demon) Rakatbeej came forward and addressed Chandi in great rage, "If You have any strength in your arms, then come along and fight against me in the battle field." Then Chandi replied that she had been named Chandika for this very reason. (153)

When the troops of Rakatbeej were killed and the rest had fled away, then in a revenge ful mood he himself engaged Chandi in battle. Thus he fought against the mighty Chandi, when suddenly his sword fell down from his hand, but he did not lose his (heart) courage. He took out his bow and with fill strength (he-fought bravely) and his body was seen floating in a pool of blood. It appeared as if the gods and demons had churned the ocean, and Rakatbeej was churned like Sumer mountain as a churner. (154)

The (great) mighty demon, in great rage, had crossed the river of blood in his battle (against Chandi). He took charge of his sword and shield and challenged the lion while running towards it. Seeing the demon coming (towards her), Chandi shot an arrow by fixing it to the bow, which made the demon unconscious immediately on piercing him, just as Ram's younger brother (Bharat) had struck down Hanuman on the ground alongwith the mountain carrying the Sanjivini herbal plant. (155)

Then again he got up and taking up his sword started fighting against the mighty Chandi. He wounded the lion, which spilled lot of blood from the wound. Describing her bravery with praise, the poet has called her by the name of "enamouring the heart" of others, as if the rain had fallen on the mountain of Geru (Red coloured mountain) which had spilled the red colour on the ground. (156)

Fully engaged at this mighty Chandi fought valiantly against Rakatbeej, and penetrating the enemy troops, she crushed the whole army, just as the oilman takes out oil out of (tils) sensame seeds by crushing them. The blood was oozing on the ground as if the dyer's pot of colours had broken and spilled the colour on the ground. The wounds on the body of Rakatbeej were shining like the lamps burning in a (packet of) chandelier. (157)

As the blood of Rakatbeej gets spilled on the ground, many more (Rakatbeej) demons were created but the mighty Chandi, taking hold of her bow, killed all the demons (Rakatbeej) by shooting arrows at them. Once these demons (Rakatbeej) were destroyed, many more got ready (being created out of blood) but the goddess Chandi killed all of them. It appeared as if the bubbles produced from the falling rain on the Earth, were vanishing at the same time. (158)

The number of Rakatbeejs, being created depended on the blood drops falling (spilling) on the ground. All the demons, being created, were shouting "Kill her" (to kill Chandi) and were coming in front of Chandi. Seeing this scene, the poet is tempted to describe it as if one person appears in different pictures (reflections) through the mirrors of the Mirror Palace. (Sheesh Mahal). (159)

Many demons like Rakatbeej were rising in the battle field and getting enraged were fighting in the battle (against Chandi). The arrows from the bows of powerful Chandi were being shot like the rays of Sun, and after she had killed all of them, many more would be created out of them like the (rice husk) paddy being pounded in a (wooden) pestle. It appeared as if Chandi had separated their heads from their bodies like the marmelos (fruit) being separated from the tree. (of marmelos). (160)

Many demons (like Rakatbeej) being created, would take up Swords in their hands and would attack Chandi, Because these demons were being created out of the blood drops falling (spilling) on the Earth and then they were shooting their arrows at Chandi as if the rain was falling in torrents. Then again taking hold of her bow mighty Chandi killed all of them with her arrows., But from the spilt blood many more demons were created just as the hair get upright due to cold (in winter). (161)

All of the demons (with form of Rakatbeej) gather together and then surrounded the goddess Chandi in strength. Then Chandi alongwith her lion had killed all of them, (army) troops of demons. Rising again in strength, the demons raised a war cry (loud sound) which could have disturbed the ascetics from their meditation even. The gods had lost their senses (with this scene) but the pride of Rakatbeej did not get diminished. (162)

Couplet :

The mighty Chandi fought a great heroic battle against Rakatbeej but then many more demons were being created, as such the enraged Chandi had no answer to this situation. (163)

Swaiyya :

On seeing so many demons coming from all the ten directions, The goddess cut the enemy into pieces like the petals of a flower, when suddenly a blood stain (drop) was seen on the dress of Chandi. The poet has described this sight like this, as if the gold Smith had tucked a red jewel on the gold ornament in a house of gold. (164)

Chandi had fought such a heroic battle in a revengeful manner just as (the deathless) god Vishnu had fought against the demon Madhu. To kill all of these demons, the goddess shot an arc of fire (spark) from her forehead, out of which Kali (goddess) got created, which spread a streak of terror like lightning in the battle-field for the timid ones. It appears that Kali had been (created) manifested like the stream of Jamuna bursting from the peak of Sumer mountain, had fallen on the Earth. (165)

At that moment even the Sumer mountain was shaken up, and the whole region of gods was frightened and the great mountains on all the ten directions started rumbling. Throughout the fourteen regions of the Universe there was commotion (uproar) and even Brahma (god) had a doubt in his mind ; even the meditation of Shiva was disturbed and the Earth got erupted, when the mighty Chandi roared (like a lion) and then Kali wielded a sword in her hands like the god of death, to kill all the demons. (166)

Couplet :

Chandi and Kali both decided between themselves that Chandi will kill the enemy while Kali will suck the blood out of them ; and by this means they will destroy the Complete enemy forces. (167)

Swaiyya :

Kali and Chandi alongewith the lion encircled all the Rakatbeejis just as the fire encircles the whole forest at times, with the fury of Chandi's arrows, the demons were burnt (destroyed) in such a manner just as the bricks are burnt in the brick-kiln, Kalka sucked the blood of the whole enemy, which prompted the poet to think about (goddess) Bhewani (as such) just as if the whole of water of the ocean had fallen on the hot iron plate (round). (as the water dries up immediately on the hot plate).(168)

Chandi had killed them (the enemy) and Kalka dealt with the various Rakatbeejis in this manner in a wrathful attitude. Thus taking up the sword and roaring loudly she destroyed the whole army of demons. Kalka ate up much human flesh and sucked their blood. This whole scene was appreciated by the poet thus in his mind that a person afflicted by hunger had taken (drunk) lot of soup and eaten lot of meat.(169)

All the gods were watching the whole (battle) scene, how Rakatbeej had fought this battle. Many more demons would rise from the blood drops falling on the ground. It seemed that ascetic women had pervaded the whole field in all the four directions who were having tufts of matted hair on the head, with huge scalps in their hands, who would suck all the blood drops falling in their scalps while mighty Chandi was killing all the demons with her sword. (170)

Kali and Chandi had held their bows in their hands and fought ferociously by against the demon fearlessly. There was lot of killing in the battle, and the swords (steel) struck against steel (sword) all the time raising loud noises (sounds). Rakatbeej had fallen on the ground and his head (the enemy-demon's) was chopped off with the Sword (it seemed) as if a rich person had become an ascetic in thought and had given up all his wealth. (171)

Sortha :

Chandi had killed the demon Rakatbeej while Kali had sucked (drunk) all the blood, thus both the goddesses had joined hands and killed the great demon Rakatbeej instantaneously. (172)

Here the fifth chapter of Chandi Charitar (portrayal of Chandi) of markandai Puran, dealing with the battle of Rakatbeej is completed. All is well. (5)

Swaiyya :

Some of the remnants of the demons, who escaped crying and wailing to Sumbh and Nisumbh. Then they related the whole story of the killing of Rakatbeej by the two goddesses in a joint venture and many other warriors were also killed by them (who were famous for their bravery). Thus listening to the whole episode from the person of these demons, Raja Sumbh, holding his sword in the hand, exclaimed that he would kill this mighty Chandi with such a powerful blow just as the lion kills a goat in the jungle. All the ranks of the army were armed with various weapons (armour and iron-Coats) and while arranging his own armour (weapons) Sumbh declared that he would kill Chandi himself that very day only. (174)

Swaiyya :

Getting enraged, both the brothers, Sumbh and Nisumbh, advanced (with their huge army) to the battle field while the noise of drum beats was heard all around in the ten directions. In the front was the infantry, in the middle were horse men and in the back were lined up all the chariots in a good formation. There were drunken elephants also in hordes, decorated with large banners fluttering around. It appeared as if King Indra (king of gods) was moving forward to wage a war against the enemy, which gave the appearance of huge mountains fitted with feathers, were flying in the air having left their base on the Earth. (175)

Couplet :

Sumbh and Nisumbh organised the whole army in such a manner as if the Sumer's mountain had been surrounded and they got enraged having armed themselves with all sorts of weapons and then roared like lions loudly. (176)

Swaiyya :

The great mighty warriors like Sumbh and Nisumbh advanced towards the battle field in great indignation. Those persons, apparently in good health, riding on huge horses, were hastening towards, as if the dust specks had got stuck (adhered) to the hooves of the horses. It appeared as if they were advancing forward to win an unknown region (like heaven), and the human mind had come in getting trained in the form of dust specks, in the art of speedily accomplishing a function. Couplet :

(On the other side) Chandi and Kali also had heard an inkling of this news, as such both of them came down the hill top of Sumer mountain and created an uproar there. (178)

Swaiyya :

On Seeing the mighty Chandi coming towards him, the demon Sumbh also got furious and thought in his mind that he would destroy the goddess in a moment. Having this thought in mind, he took up his bow. On seeing the face of Kali he had a doubt in his mind that she looked like the god of death. He thus shot all the arrows he had and cried out like the clouds on a dooms day. (179)

Chandi, piercing the army of the enemy, which looked like a cloud, took up her bow in her hands. She killed all the demons , looking like dark black mountains, like the darkness disappearing with the penetration of the rays of sun. Due to the fright of Chandi the troops of the demons fled away. How could any poet describe the beauty of such a scene (in her praise) as it looked like the blood-thirsty face of Bhim, seeing whom the whole Kaurav army is fleeing from the battle-field. (180)

Kabit :

On taking permission of (Raja) Sumbh, the brave and patient warriors attacked Chandi with great fury and with all their decoration of valour infact. Taking up her bow and arrows Chandi alongwith Kali, armed with the sword destroyred the whole army of Sumbh in no time due to their bravery. Some warriors fled away from the battle-field out of fear, who were converted into ghosts by the striking arrows and the middle vanguard of enemy ranks were scattered (as such) like the million of specks of dust flying around (moving around) due to blowing of strong winds in a desert. Kali with Sword in hand and Chandi with her bows in hand, on seeing the demon, created such as uproar. Many of the enemy troops were devoured by the goddess while heads of many troops were cut by (the goddess) chandi. There was a pool of blood flowing on the Earth. Many demons ran away from the battle field while many were lying in the battle field having been wounded badly. Those warriors, who had fled from the battle-field, approached Sumbh and spoke like this, saying that many chivalorous warriors were lying dead on the battle-field. (182)

Couplet :

On seeing the horrible and dreadful war, being fought by the goddess, Vishnu thought and decided to despatch all the godly powers and strength to the battle-field for supporting Chandi in the battle. (183)

Swaiyya :

The total power of gods, after getting the approval of Vishnu, got transferred to mighty Chandi. The goddess, as a matter of respect, welcomed them as if she had herself asked for them to be with her. The poet has appreciated this praise worthy position in his mind, and it appeared to him as if the rivulet in the month of Savan (monsoon season) had progressed itself to merge with the ocean. (184)

On seeing the great army of the gods, the brave warriors of the demons also came forward to wage war against them. On seeing these warriors of demons advancing towards her, Chandi killed them with her powerful arrows in the battle-field. Some of them were divoured by Kali and crushed under her molar teeth, while some others were picked up by her to be thrown asunder in all the four directions, just as Jamwant (Bhalak-pat), being annoyed with ravana, had thrown huge mountain boulders in the battle field. (185)

Then Kali, taking up her sword in the hand, fought against the demons ferociously. She had cut into pieces many of the warrioras, with her sword and thrown around, while blood was oozing out of the wounds of the warriors lying on the ground. On seeing the marrow flowing out of the bodies of enemy ranks, the poet has viewed it as if the snow flakes had fallen on the ground from the mountain tops. (186)

Couplet :

When there was no other alternative left with the demons, their whole army fled away from the battle-field. At that moment Sumbh told Nisumbh that he should himself proceed to the battle-field for waging war. (187)

Swaiyya :

On taking (accepting) the orders of Sumbh, the great warrior Nisumbh alongwith his huge army. proceeded and marched forward just as Arjun (Parith) had fought revenge-fully in the battle of Mahabharata against karuna. Many of the arrows, shot by Chandi, had pierced the body of the demon and these arrows pierced through his body so furiously as if the seedings of rice had sprouted in the farmer's field in the month of Savan. (monsoon period) (188)

irst of all, the warriors were struck down with the arrows and then with the sword in hand, she fought so bravely that the whole army of demons was destroyed, as a result of which the strength of the enemy got faded. There was a huge pool of blood at that place. The whole scene has been viewed by the poet just as, (the god) Brahma, after creating the seven seas, has created the new eighteth sea of blood. (189)

The powerful Chandi, holding a Sword in hand, and getting greatly enraged, was fighting in the battle-field and had destroyed the colourful army of the enemy with full force. Kali also had destroyed most of the enemy troops. Thus showing her terrible strength, she had completely destroyed the shining valour of Nisumbh (the demon king). The whole ground was turned red with blood shed as if the Earth was covered, with a red coloured cloth. (ladies wear). (190)

Then all the demons, maintaining their strength and collecting up courage, were again ready to fight against Chandi. The demons, armed with their weapons, were fighting with the battle-field so (carelessly) fearlessly just as the months were falling prey to the lamp light. The mighty Chandi had, holding up her bow, had cut all the enemy warriors into pieces as if a carpenter cut all the (huge) tress in the great forest, and kept them apart. (191)

When some of the enemy troops were killed and the others had fled away, Nisumbh got infuriated and suddenly appeared before Chandi and fought bravely without withdrawing his steps even a bit. When the arrows of Chandi pierced the face of the demon, lot of blood was shed on the ground. It appeared as if the demon Rahu had covered the face of Sun and the sun had vomited blood. (192)

Then the goddess, holding her great spear in hand, and mustering all her courage, pierced it so forcefully into his face that his head gear of iron was torn apart and the sharp end of the spear had pierced through his skull. thus a jet of blood oozing out of the forehead of the demon flew upwards just as the third eye of Shiva had opened up and the light of the Lord had appeared from therein. (This is how the praise of the scene was described by the poet). (193)

Pulling out the spear from his body, the demon threw it with great force at the face of the mighty Chandi, which struck the face of Durga, as a result of which lot of blood flowed out, which had enhanced the vaiour of the goddess. It appeared to the mind of the poet in praise of the scene as if the fresh sputum of a betel nut taken by Padmini was shining in her throat. (Rani of Singladeep). (194)

Nisumbh had fought for long. Which poet could describe the praises of his battle scene ? Even Bhisham, Daronacharya or Kirpacharya had never fought such a war, Neither Bhim, Arjun or Karuna had fought such a war, and these were the greatest warriors of Mahabharat. Most of the demons were still bleeding as the blades of the arrows were still piercing their bodies. It appeared as if the sun's rays from all the ten directions were falling (penetrating) in the wee hours of the morning to drive away the night (darkness). (195)

Chandi, after having a round, again went deep into the battle-field and being furious, killed many demons. Then She took out her mace, she surveyed all around and then challenging the enemy, she killed many more warriors. Then she took up a heavy shining double edged sword and struck the heads of the demons, which threw many of them (dead) on to the ground. It appeared as if during the war of Ram Chander (against Ravana) Hanuman had thrown heavy boulders of mountains on to the enemy ranks. (196)

Then suddenly a brave demon came forward raising a war cry (challenge), when Chandi took out a sword from the scabbard and struck him with full force, which resulted in felling his head on to the ground. This scene was depicted by the poet as if a crow, half eaten by a great horrible Snake, was thrown on the ground from the top of a mountain. (197)

Then a brave warrior of Nisumbh, came racing his horse and stood in front of the goddess. By seeing the warrior, no one could ever maintain his calm ; and who is there so strong and powerful to take up his challenge and fight against him? Chandi had killed many demons with a sword in her hand and then wielded her sword and threw it on to the head of this demon, This sword, cutting across the head of the demon, his face, his body, the horses saddle and piercing the horse (Kikan) itself, pierced into the ground finally. Thus when mighty Chandi had killed this demon, then another demon challenging her came rushing to the battle-field. Going before the lion, he inflicted some wounds on the body of lion in a wrathful mood. Chandi took hold of her sword and wielded it with full force and wielded it with full. force and shouting loudly she struck his head with the sword. His head was cut off and fell on the ground at a distance, just as a mango gets cut off from the tree with the gust of wind. (199)

Considering this battle as the final decisive one, the whole army of demons rushed towards the battle-field. The steel (sword)strikes against steel and the cowards flee from the battle-field. With the wielding of sword and mace by Chandi, many heads of the demons are chopped off and fall on the ground in bits and pieces. It appears as if the gardener has struck the tree of mulberry with a strong cudgel, thus the fruit (is removed) falls down by the shaking of the tree.(200)

Perceiving the huge army of the demons, Chandi again arranged her weapons in the hands and challenging the demons, she cut off their heads, piercing their bodies like the large thick pieces of sandal wood. The demons were inflicted (with) many wounds on the body, while their heads fell on the ground, being chopped off from the body in the battle-field. It appeared as if (the son of the Sun) the (planet) Saturn had cut the moon into pieces and thrown all these pieces around. (201)

At that moment the mighty Chandi, with full strength and conifidence, took up her Sword and struck it at the head of Nishumbh in great rage, which pierced even to the toes of the demons feet. who could ever describe this scene with praise, when the body of the demon was shorn apart into twp pieces and finally fell on the ground. It appeared as if a soap maker had an iron wire in hand which was moved into the soap, thus cutting it into two pieces. (202)

Here the Sixth Chapter of the Markandai Puran of Chandi-portrayal (charitar) dealing with the battle of Nisumbh is completed. (6)

Couplet :

Thus when the goddess had killed the dermon Nisumbh, a demon riding his horse, rushed to inform Sumbh. (203)

He narrated the whole story of the battle to Sumbh, saying that after his brother Nisumbh was killed by the goddess, then all other demons had fled away from the battle-field.

Swaiyya :

When Sumbh heard the news of the death of Nisumbh, then the mind of the warrior was filled with anguish. So he arranged to organise the whole lot of elephants and horses in formation and moved forward. He took the army of demons under his command and came to the battle-field. On seeing the corpses of warriors and the pool of blood in that frightful battle-field, the king Sumbh was surprised and amazed in his heart. It appeared as if the Saraswati river, full of blood, was moving forward to join the waters of the ocean. (205)

The mighty Chandi, lion, Kali and the godly powers had all joined together in this battle, and they have killed the whole army of the demons. On uttering these words, the mind of Sumbh was furious with rage. On seeing the headless body of his brother Nisumbh he could not move a step in his anguish. He was so much frightened that he could not move further. It apeared as if the leopard had become lame. (206)

When Sumbh ordered his army, then most of the demons, obeying his orders, proceeded to the battle field. Many brave warriors were on elephants and horses, with chariots including cavalry and infantry but who could know their total strength (numbers) ? Then many demons of huge built encircled the powerful Chandi from all the four directions. It appeared as if the vast collection of dark clouds, bursting with loud noises, had covered the sun completely. (207)

Couplet :

When they were surrounded fron all sides, then what Chandi did was to warn Kali with a smile and with the sign of her eyes she gave her the idea of the pending attack, and be prepared for it. (208)

Kabit :

(With the signs and hints from Chandi) Kali, getting enraged, killed many demons, and many were crushed under her teeth, and many more were thrown aside. Many huge elephants and horses had been ripped open (torn) with the nails. Such a frightful battle had never been fought before. Many warriors were on the run, as no one had bothered about their bodies even. There was so much of commotion there that many warriors were killed by being crushed under the rushing of other warriors. (being burried under one another). The King of gods, Indra was very much amused in his mind on seeing the demons being killed, and started hailing them by calling various groups of gods and saluting them. (209)

Raja Sumbh got very furious with rage and told the demons that Kali had fought very bravely and killed many of their warriors. Sumbh then picking up courage , took out his sword and shield and entered, the battle field shouting, "kill them," kill them. Many of the mighty warriors, brave and composed demons, arranging their weapons, accompanied Sumbh to the battle-field. So the demons started marching as if a huge locust Swarm was flying to cover up (to hide) the whole solar set-up with their wings spread out. (210)

Swaiyya :

Seeing the powerful army of the demon Sumbh, the mighty Chandi turned around her vehicle (the lion) in such a manner as neither the turning wheel of fire-works, the wind of a sand-storm, nor the canopy of kingship or the turning wheel of a sharpener of weapons could turn around. The lion moved around the battle-field so swiftly that even the whirlpool in a river could not be compared with it. There is no other praise worthy scene than this, that the lion's face (mien) was to be seen on both sides of his main body. (It appeared to us like this.) (211)

At that time, the mighty Chandi had fought a grand battle against the group of demons. Then Kali, challenging the huge unlimited collection of (demons) forces, giving them a warning destroyed the whole lot of them in the battle. The battle-field there extended upto about four hundred miles area. Seeing all this sight, the poet has described its beauty (praise) just as in the season of autumn, the tree leaves fall on the ground en mass even though hardly an hour had only gone by, similarly the demons were falling dead on the ground in great numbers. (212)

When the huge seven-coloured army (colourful army) had been killed, Sumbh came and stood face to face with the mighty Chandi. There was such a (disorder) commotion all around that even Shiva got up from his seat of the lions skin and ran from there. Due to fright, the nacklace of Siva's neck (the formal snake) got dried up and due to the frightful scene, it got completely frightened, it got shrunk. It got clamped to the neck just like the thread of a necklase of beads. (213)

Coming in front of chandi, the demon Sumbh said that he had understood the whole thing (affair). O Chandi ! Alongwith Kali, you have mustered all the powers you have destroyed the leading warriors of all the troops. Hearing this, Chandi asked all the supernatural powers to merge within her, and they all got absorbed within her, just as the various drops of rain water get merged with the main stream. (214)

Then the mighty Chandi took out her double edged sword with full force in the battle field and wielded it, which pierced through his body. The hobgoblins were fully satiated with the blood, which flowed from his body, On seeing the horrible battle the poet felt within his heart that the corpses were piled up on one another as if a (Staircase) ladder had been constructed to reach upto the heavens. Chandi, getting enraged, had fought many a time, against the troops of Sumbh. According to one description (of the scene) the jackals, hobgoblins and vultures were like the labrourers while in the mud of blood, Shiva was dancing and the muddy paste was ready for use. The corpses piled on one another, were like a wall while marrow and white fat was used for whitewash. It appeared as if it were not a battle scene but Vishwakarma had constructed a colourful building which was decorated with coloured paintings on it. (216)

In the battle field, both sides are engaged in the battle in such a manner that on one side Chandi (nihght) and on the other Sumbh are both positioned facing each other. Both their bodies were inflicted with many wounds, but the whole might of the demon had given way, and the arms of the demon were trembling, being thoroughly decapicitated. The poet has described this beautiful scene as if two black female (cobras) with five hoods were locked up in each other under the magic spell. (217)

The powerful and mighty Chandi had fought in the battle-field heroically. The mighty Chandi, taking out her sword and challenging Sumbh threw it on him. When the steel of this sword struck the sharp egde of the Steel of the other's sword, it gave a jingle and lightning was produced. It appeared as if in the month of Bhadon (August/Sept) a light was emitted during the night by the glowworms. (218)

Lot of blood was oozing out of the wounds os Sumbh, resulting in his strength giving way. How is it possible ? The radiance of his face and his body strength had gone so feeble, as if after the full moon, the light of new moon appears very dim and feeble. Then Chandi lifted Sumbh with her hand. The poet has praised this sight just as Krishna had lifted the mountain Govardhan in order to protect the life of the Cows. (219)

Couplet :

Sumbh fell down from the hands of Chandi on the ground and proceeded to heavens from the Earth. So Chandi went to Sumbh to kill him. (220)

Swaiyya :

Then Chandi had fought a battle in the midst of the firmament as it had never been fought before. All the gods including the Sun, the moon, stars, Indra and all other gods were all watching the scene of battle. Chandi than pulled out her sword and struck it on the head of Sumbh with great force, and cut him into two pieces (from one body). The body of Sumbh, cut in two pieces, fell on the ground just as a person is sawed in two pieces with saw. (221)

Couplet :

After killing Sumbh Chandi got up and blew her conch shell, and with great pleasure in mind, She sang for hours together. (222)

The goddess had thus killed the demon King in a moment, and then taking up her weapons in her eight hands she destroyed the whole army of demons completely. (223)

Swaiyya :

When Chandi, wielding her sword, came in the battle field, there was none to beat the wrath of the goddess. After she had killed and destroyed the whole army of demons, then apart from the king, who else could have the courage to fight against her ? The enemy was frightened to death, being cowed down and all their bravery had deserted them. Then the demons were fleeing from the battle-field just as all the greater qualities than greed even leave a person. (224)

Here the seventh Chapter of Chandi Charitar forming part of Markandai Puran, dealing with the killing of Sumbh, is completed. (7)

Swaiyya :

The demons, from whose fear Indra (god) had fled away and even Brahma alongwith other gods, were frightened (to death), finally realising their defeat in the battle field, have run away (from the battle-field), being totally demoralised. The jackals and vultures, being disappointed, also left for the jungles, to stay there. Hardly few hours had elapsed after this whole episode had taken place, the grand worldly goddess, Chandi protector of the devotees (saints), had gained a victory over Sumbh and Nisumbh, her greatest enenies. (225)

All the gods gathered at one place, and taking some rice, saffron, and sandal wood, most of them (almost in millions), and having a circumambulation of the goddess Chandi, put a vermillion mark (of authority) on the forehead of Chandi Seeing the beauty of such a scene, the poet had such an inkling in his mind as if the mars had entered (in) the region of the moon. (meaning a better situation prevailed now). (226)

Kabit :

All the gods then praised the goddess (Kalika) in one voice, saying, O Worldly mother ! You have cast away our greatest sin ; and You have bestowed the kingdom of heaven on Raja Indra by killing the demons. By doing so, you have earned the praise of all, as such your might is prevailing throughout the world. Braham Rishi and Raj-Rishi are showing their blessings time and again. It was here only that the godly-armour (the praises of Durga offered by Brahma) in praise was showered on the goddess. The praises of Chandi were being sung in the three worlds (regions) just as the Ganga waters were merging with the waves of the ocean in full swing. (227)

Swaiyya :

All the godly women were showering their blessings on Chandi and have lighted the lamps for singing hymns of praise (arti). They are offering the fragrance of flowers, and rice while the demi goddesses were singing songs of victory. They are burning the incense, sounding the conch-shells, with bent heads they are praying to the worldly mother saying,"You ae always bestowing all the comforts (pleasures) on us" and you have earned all the praise by killing (the demon) Sumbh. (228)

After handing over the kingship to (god) Indra, Chandi feels greatly elated in her heart. After positioning firmly the sun and moon in the sky (after the situation was fully under control) and giving them back their brilliance, Chandi dissappeared herself from the scene. The brilliance of the sun and moon in the sky increased immensely. The praise worthiness of this scene could not be ignored by the poet. The dust raised by the battle had made the sun hazy (dirty) through its spread out on the sky as if Chandi had made it brighter by bestowing her own splendour to it. (229)

Kabit :

Hail to Chandi, who had destroyed the pride of the demons Madh and Kaitabh at first, then crushing the glory of Mehkhasur, and never hesitating in bestowing her blessings, then throwimg on to the ground a hero like Dhrumlochan and cutting into bits and pieces the heads of Chand and Mund, then killer of Rakatbeej and then (drinking) consuming his blood, crushing the enemies, fighting against Nisumbh being furious with rage and then killing Sumbh with her might and finally winning the forces of the demons, Salutations to her. Swaiyya :

O Lord ! May I be blessed with Your Grace, so that I may never shirk from performing virtuous deeds ! When ever I proceed to the battle field for fighting (against the enemy) I would not falter with fear, and gain victory with full confidence (for sure) in myself. May I pursue (remind) my mind with the sermon (inculcation) to have this ambition in mind that I would continue singing Your praises for ever (always), and when my end approaches near (end of life) I may die fighting in the battle against oppression! (231)

The portrayal of Chandi (Chandi Charitar) has been described in the poetry of heroic epics type ; every bit of scenery is full of sentiments and enemy description from beginning to end (from the toes nails to the top of head) has a new (praise worthy) simile (to depict it). The poet has brought out the emotions for mental (satisfaction) pleasure in each case. The whole episode of the wonderous goddess is full of description, with whatever objective in mind, one reads this episode or listens to it, will get his ambitions fulfilled. (232)

Couplet :

I have prepared the Granth of the wonderos goddess Durga (seven Coloured) which has no other parallel. The aim of the poet in producing this epic, will be fulfilled by the goddess Chandika. (233)

The eighteth Chapter of Chandi charitar (Portrayal of Chandi), forming part of Markandai Puran, dealing with the "Salutations to the king of gods," is completed. All is well so far. (8) may the Lord-Supreme be our Protector !

Chandi Charitar-2
Now I start writing Chandi Charitar.
(Portrayal of Chandi).

Naraj Chhand :

The demon called Mehkhasur had increased his might (power). He was completely covered with an iron coating. (Coat of mail). He had succeeded in gaining victory over Indre (god) and had established his superamacy (kingdom) over the three worlds. (regions) (1)

Then all the gods fled away and getting togrther they all went to Shiva;s mountain resort (Kailash) and established themselves there, and they were frightened to the core of heart. (2)

Leaving behinnd all the armour, and dressing up as ascetics (mendicants) they ran away from there. In great anguish and painful state they were crying and wailing and many warriors of repute, they were moving away in great disgust.

(Enduring) Bearing lot of physical afflictions, they stayed there for many years, and were praying concentrating on the goddess (worldly mother) for gaining her approval (sanction) for their victory. (4)

When the goddess manifested herself, the gods were greatly elated and went forward to pay their obeisance at her feet. They came forward and stood before the goddess and paying their respects (salutation). they started reciting the (teachings) religious version in praise of the goddess. (5)

Rasawal Chhand

Then the gods advanced further, and all of them made their obeisance to the goddess (by bending beore her). There was a showering of flowers and all the saintly persons were greatly pleased. (6)

All of them worshipped the goddess, and (the god) Brahma recited the Vedic hymns. As they got the touch of the goddess (feet), as they got the touch of the goddess (feet), all of them got relieved of their affliction and sufferings. (7)

Then the gods related their story (happenings) and the goddess was pleased with them. Then the goddess was pleased with them. Then the goddess armed herself with all the weapons and rode on a lion. (8)

The bells were tinkling, which produced a continuous note, and hearing this musical note, the king of demons (Mehkhasur) got ready for waging a war (against the gods). (9)

The king of demons (Mehkhasur) then advanced for waging war and proclaimed four army commanders for his troops. Amongst them, one was warrior Chamar, and the second one was stubborn Chichhur. (10)

The third warrior was (Biralachh). All these warriors, with fill confidence, made an attack. They were great marksmen in archery and their army was advancing as if dark black clouds had gathered all around. (11)

Couplet :

The demons had together struck many arrows, which were innumerable, but all of them were seen gracing the neck of the godess like a necklace. (12)

Bhujang Prayat Chhand :

Any number of arrows struck by the demons were cut into pieces by the goddess , thus saving herself from their onslaught. She had thrown many demons down with her shield. while many were caught in her noose. Their clothes were soaked in blood, as if they were playing with coloured waters (playing holi). (13)

Durga had won the battle, and the drum beats were sounded. She had the big belt in hand, alongwith an axe, and noose, while the stubborn demons were carrying a rope-ladder (of iron) mace, and shells and were shouting ; "kill them, kill them." (14)

Then the goddess, with all her eight hands, took up various weapons, and pointing at the heads of various demon leaders struck them with all these arms. Then the lion started roaring loudly in the battle-field and cut many warriors into bits and pieces. (with the paws). (15)

Totak Chhand :

When the arrows of Durga struck the demons, they were furious with rage. The warring demons, taking up various weapons, were greatly amused and started pointing their arrows and striking them like the cloud burst. (rain drops). (16)

The army formations of the demons then marched forward like the thundering dark clouds. The godders then pushed deep into the enemy lines and took up her bow and arrows with a smile. (17)

The goddess then killed and threw down many herds of elephants and cut into two pieces, the indivisible elephants. The sword fell on the heads of some of them with such a force, that it was soaked in blood. (18)

Many warriors had their bodies pierced with wounds like a sieve and fell on the ground ; while many warriors fled away from the battle-field, and would not come back even when ordered to fall back. Many others, taking up arms in their hands, entered the battle-field while fighting in the battle. (19)

Naraj Chhand :

Then the demon King armed himself with all the weapons of war, and then moving (racing) his horse forward, came in front of the goddess, and tried to kill her. (20)

Then durga, challenging him, took up her bow and arrows in the hand and wounded the army commander (army chief) named Chamar and threw him down from his elephant. (21)

Bhujang Prayat Chhand :

Then the warrior called Bira lachh got enraged and arming himself with all the weapons of war, moved towards the battle-field. He inflicted an injury (a wound) to the lion by wounding him with a strike but the mighty lion killed him with his paw only. (22)

On the death of Biralachh, another demon called Pingachh raced forward, and approaching in front of Durga, addressed her with some abusive remarks and struck many arrows like a torrent of arrows, while thundering like the bursting clouds but the great warrior was laid to rest (killed) in the battle (by the goddess). (23)

Then the goddesss had taken hold of her (bow) arrows and wounded him with the striking of arrows on his head. He fell down on the ground with a spin and then breathed his last. It appeared as if, the seventh hill top of the Sumer mountain had broken off. (24)

When warriors like Pingachh fell down dead on the ground due to the strikes of the goddess, then many more warriors moved forward to the battle field, wielding their armour. (weapons). Then the goddess, being infuriated with rage, shot many arrows, and despatched many warriors of the enemy to their final goal (death) in the battle-field. (25)

Choupaiee : (Quartet)

All those enemy warriors (demons), who came in front of the goddess, were killed. When the whole army of the enemy was killed, then the naughty demon-king asurais got infuriated with wrath. (26)

Then Bhawani (goddess Durga) fought herself and picking up various armed demons (with iron coats) from them, killed them with her arrows, From the forehead, of the goddess the fire of wrathful nature was produced, from which the goddess Kalika was created. (born). (27)

Madhbhar Chhand :

From the mouth of Kalika, created (born) from the forehead of the goddess Durga, fire was being spitted out. She killed the riders of elephants and the owners (riders) of horses were also separated from their horses (by killing them). (28)

The arrows were being shot and the swords were also shining in the battle. It appeared as if the warriors were performing a dance. (29)

The demons were also wielding their weapons fearlessly, and by their striking against each other sparks were being generated. From the rifles, a special noise, (hissing Sound) was being produced, and with the falling of bullets, a sound of thunder was being generated. (30)

The goddess mother was challenging them, the blood was gushing out of their wounds, while the warriors were fighting it out and the horses were jumping around. (31)

Ruamal Chhand :

Then the demon king, getting enraged and managing his increasing power and gathering his colourful army, advanced further, whose troops were wielding their weapons. The warriors, being struck by the armour of the goddess, were struggling to fight and falling dead. In the battle-field the elephants and beautiful steeds were moving around without their riders. (32)

In the battle-field there were spread out uniforms, herds of elephants and their cradles, many grand horses alongwith many warriors and riders fully armed with weapons and armour were lying (dead) on the ground. At places there were scattered swords, arrows, guns, axes and whistling type arrows, while at other places there were warriors pierced with spears lying around with honour. (33)

There were seen vultures flying around in the battle field alongwith dogs and jackals barking around. The fallen drunken elephants looked like the winged mountains while the crows perched on top of them appeared like a pointed beauty (bird). Small bayonets appeared like small fish, while the shields looked like tortoise. The iron coats (mail) appeared like crocodile, with the blood looking like a stream of water. (34)

The youthful warriors appeared like boats while the great charioteers appeared like ships. It appeared as if the warriors to save their honour were trying to load up the wealth of confidence with them. Infact, the arrows were being shot in the battle field like the movement of middle men settling the price (between the two parties). The troops were running hither and thither by giving their money loads in the form of arrows thrown from their quivers. (in settlement of the deal). (35)

At places, the dismembered parts of the human body were lying around while at some places the colourful dresses (of troops) were scattered. In the battle field there were shields, iron coats, or armour and weapons lying around in their grandeur. There were lying at places heads, skulls, flags and banners in a tattered condition all around. All the enemy forces were killed while fighting and none of them was left alive. (36)

At that moment, the demon Mehkhasur being infuriated, launched a fresh attack. He had armed himself with weapons and iron-coats and appeared in a horrible form. The goddess Kali Took out her sword and killed him instantantaneously. The soul of the demon, leaving his body. (the tenth outlet) merged with the Prime-soul immediately. (37)

Kulak Chhand :-

Then the goddess thundered and the trumpets were blowing continously and there was a welcome attribute given, in bestowing happiness and gaiety to everyone. (39)

The drums were beating and all the gods were roaring loudly. All were praising the goddess by showering a stream of flowers on her. (40)

They worshipped the goddess for long, and sang songs in her praise. They paid obeisance at the feet of the goddess ; by doing so, they got rid of their sufferings. (41)

They started singing songs of victory and showered flowers on her. They gained all the comforts (pleasures) of life by paying their tributes to their goddess. (42)

Couplet :

After handing over the kingdom (of heavens) to the gods, Chandika disappeared. Then again two great demons named Shumbh and Nisumbh gained lot of strength. (power) (43)

They had usurped the treasure of Kuber and had gained victories over kings of the land and foreign lands. Whenever they sent their demons, they returned after gaining victories over their lands including foreign lands. (45)

Couplet :

All the gods, being completely fearful and frightened, powdered in their mind. In the end, they felt completely helpless and ran towards the goddess for her help. (46)

Naraj Chhand :

The gods were fleeing in panic, and felt specially disgusted with themselves. Armed with poisoned arrows and bows, they settled down in the land of the goddess. (47)

Then the goddess became very furious and collecting her armour and weapons proceeded to the battle-field. In her excitement she took some wine and holding her sword in the hand, she thundered. (48)

Rasaval Chhand:

Hearing the details from the gods, the goddess rode on her lion. She got herself armed with all those weapons of various types, which cast away or destroy all sorts of sins. (49)

Then the goddess gave orders for the beating of drums and trumpets producing such musical notes which could make one completely intoxicated with raputre. There was a loud noise from the conch-shells, which could be heard in all the four directions. (50)

From the other side the demons were advancing with a huge army. They were uttering abusive and amroying language with the mouth, while their eyes were red with anger. (51)

The troops came closer to each other from all the four directions, while the warriors were shouting "kill them, kill them." They carried in their hands arrows, swords and carbines. (52)

Then they got engaged in a battle and started shooting arrows in torrents. There were seen sparks with the striking of Swords and daggers all around. (53)

The most powerful ones advanced forward and were pouring arrows incessantly. They were attacking the enemy with such a force and vengeance just as the water-bee swims across the water swifty. (54)

Bhujang prayat Chhand

On the other side, the lion, with the close-knit tail raised, moved ahead, while the goddess sounded her conch-shell taking it her hands. Its sound was heard (reverberating) throughout the fourteen regions of the (world) Universe, while the illumined and haloed face of the goddess was shining (radiantly) in the battle-field. (55)

Then Dhum Nain taking up his weapon, advanced further for engaging in the battle, and he was accompained by many great warriors. He encircled the hill and sounded the trumpets loudly which could shake up (disturb) the pregnancy of pregnant women even. (result in abortion of pregnant ladies). (56)

When the goddess heard the musical noise with her ears, she got furious with rage, and covering her head with an iron helmet, armed herself with a shield and an iron-coat, and rode on her lion and raised a loud war cry (musical note), onhearing which even the greatest of demons would lose their courage and pride. (57)

Then the goddess in a great rage penetrated the enemy ranks, and cut into two pieces most of the renowned warriors. Whosoever was struck by the goddess with her three-pronged weapon (trisul) or sword (carbine), was not fit to hold his arrows in hand. (was killed). (58)

Whosoever was struck by the arrows of the goddess, was killed, instantly. Whichever direction the lion would move forward, the whole army would be destroyed there and then. (59)

All the demons, who were killed, were thrown into the 'crevices of the mountains, (were sent to heavens), and all the enemies, who came forward (to fight), were not left fit to return. (60)

All those, who got engaged in the battle, were finally killed, and all those holding weapons in hand, were killed by the goddess. (61)

Then the mother Kali got engaged and was spitting fire, getting red hot like the burning fire. Whosoever was wounded by her, was sent to heavens. (was killed). (62)

Rasaval Chhand :

The whole army of the demons was destroyed in no time. (in half an hour) Even Dhrum Nain was killed and this news was heard by the gods in heavens. (63)

Thus after killing the demons, the goddess Durga went back to her resort. Whosoever will read or listen to this episode will be rewarded with the attainment of all the occult powers. (65)

Choupaiee :

When (the king) Sumbh heard about the death of Dhrum Nain, he sent for Chand and Mund for going to the battle-field. They were received with great honour and then were armed fully, alongwith all sorts of horses, elephants and chariots to accompany them. (66)

The persons, who had seen the goddess in action earlier, were sent to Kailash Mountain to get first hand information about the situation. The goddess also got a slight hint about their visit, so she proceeded to the battle-field fully armed with weapons and protective iron-coating. (67)

Ruaal Chand :

Many demons (warriors) and army commanders, fully armed with decorations and weapons, started moving towards the battle-field. Many had their heads fully shaven and many had (locks) tufts of matted hair. All of them were furious with rage and wielded their weapons in their hands and were attacking with their swords, shaking them wildly and rushing towards the enemy. (68)

All the arms and weapons, which struck the goddess, turned out to be necklaces of flowers. Seeing this wonderful drama, all the infuriated demons were surprised, (shocked), as such they were resorting to repeated attacks with their armour. Many of them, while falling down fighting, were shouting 'kill her', 'kill them.' (69)

The horse-riders army commanders were racing their horses forward, while those on elephant's top were moving them forward steadily. Bearing the ouslaughts of many weapons, the enemy commanders were indulging in repeated attacks. Coaxing their troops to move ahead, all those on horse tops or on elephants were shooting their arrows with their hands. Many warriors with maimed bodieswere lying on the ground in the battle-field. (70)

Various types of arrows were penetrating the bodies of enemy troops, while at places swords were being used to throw down the enemy by both sides. The poet, seeing the battle-scene, has described it as if the herds of elephants represented a mountain while the heads of warriors were like stones. The curved arms were looking like crocodiles, while the chariots and gun carriers wheels were seen like tortoises. The hair and nooses appeared like sea weeds, and the crushed bones appeared like sand. (71)

The riders of elephants were great army commanders who were moving in great style by decorating themselves with various weapons, while some other army commanders, riding their horses and blowing their trumpets were racing their horses. Holding their weapons in hands and shouting slogans to kill the enemy, the demons were attacking the enemy by racing up while blowing their conch-shells. (72)

The conch shells and war-drums were being sounded and the enemy kings were getting ready with arms, while many warriors, without having any shame, were running away shamelessly. The great drums were beating and the bugles were producing some minor sounds. The warrior-soldiers were inspecting their troops and were wielding their maces.

The warriors were trying auspicious ribbons on hands while the fairies were applying oil to their heads, while many beautiful fairies were pouring scents and aroma to their heads, and were all praise for them. They were taking them to heavens by seating them in air-borne vebicals while the warriors were jumping again and again and were advancing whole bearing (facing) the brunt of arrows. (74)

The warriors were engaged in fighting by challenging the enemy and with great excitement. They had gained victories many a time on Indra and Upindra and were offering their heads, being cut off from the body, to Shiva, which were further thrown (distributed) in all the ten directions. The demon warriors had crushed the gods by admonishing them and minced them like a mountain with their feet. (75)

The warriors were rushing at the (enemy) King's horses and killing them and a horrible stream (pool) of blood was flowing in the battle-field, wherein many arrows, bows, carbines, trisuls (tri-edged weapons) and sharp pick-axes were seen floating down the stream. So Kali got enraged and taking out her sword killed both the demons Chand and Mund (76)

Couplet :

Kali in her rage had killed both Chand and Mund with her sword, and the rest of the demon force was also destroyed in no time. (77)

Here the third Chapter of Bachittar natak pertaining to the Chandi Charitar (portrayal), dealing with the killing of Chand and Mund is completed. (3)

Now the story of the Rakatbeej begins

Sortha :

When the demon king heard about the killing of Chand and Mund by Kali then both the brothers undertook Consultations with each other like this. (78)

Choupaiee :

Then the King called Rakatbeej and sent him away with lot of money alongwith many troops of various types which included horses, elephants, chariots and infantry i.e. of four types. (79)

Rakat-beej then moved with the beating of drums, which were heard even in the world of gods. The earth trembled and the sky was shaken up. Even Indra including all other gods, was scared. (80)

When the demons approached the Mountain of Kailash, they sounded trumpets, drums and musical instruments (like drums). No sooner than the goddess heard this noise, with her ears, she came down the mountain armed with various weapons and iron-Coats. (81)

She started shooting her arrows like a torrent which resulted in the felling of horse-riders and horses as well. Great many warriors and army-commanders fell down, and it seemed as if the cutterrs had cut down the trees with their saws and threw them down. (82)

All those enemies, who happened to face the goddess, could not return home alive. Whosoever were struck by the sword of the goddess, were cut down into two or four pieces one by one. (83)

Bhujang Prayat Chhand

Being enraged and striking with her sword, the goddess was seen shining as if the lightning was seen shining in the month of Bhadon (Aug/Sept). A serene musical note was produced by the drum-beats while the bows were giving a cracking sound. It seemed, in the battle field a furious horrible and unparalleled battle of weapons was going on. (84)

In the battle-field twinkling bells and cymbals were producing music, and the brave warriors were making noise with their arms. There is complete Chaos and the patient warriors were also being provoked around. The kites were making noise, and the music is song on as if horrible lions were moving around roaring aloud. (85)

On the other side Rakatbeej was also infuriated and attacked with his arrows in a big way. While the goddess also rushed and attacked him with her sword, so that he fell down unconscious, as if he were dead. (86)

When his unconciousness was over, then the mighty demon thundered and fought bravely for almost half a day striking steel (sword) against steel. On the striking of an arrow, as the blood drops of Rakatbeej fell down on the ground, an equal number of more demons (Rakatbeej appeared on the battle field and they started challenging the enemy. (87)

Kali killed all the demons, the number depending on the number of drops of blood which fell on the ground. In the battle field shields were scattered some where alongwith, armour and headless bodies. Depending on the number of drops of blood falling on the ground, an equal number of Rakatbeej would appear on the battle field and those warriors would be shouting to kill the enemy. (88)

There was lot of blood-shed and many warriors cut into bits and pieces were lying on the ground. There were heads somewhere, skulls and pieces of flesh lying scattered at other places, The battle-field was spread out to almost four hundred miles, where many warriors were lying dead or unconscious on the ground. (89)

Rasaval Chhand :

The warriors were attacking from all the four sides, shouting slogans to kill the enemy. Many flags were fluttering fixed permanently and there was a revengeful atmosphere in the battle-field with increased wrath everywhere. (90)

The warriors were full of jubilation and were shooting arrows continously. The four types of troops were advancing from all the four sides and were engaged against similar type of troops (of the enemy). (91)

There were lot of dresses lying all around while a stream of blood was also flowing. The proud warriors were springing up (from the blood) and standing up, they had their hands fixed to the arrows. (92)

They were thundering in great rage, while the drums were beating and trumpets blowing all over. The great warriors were furious with rage and were engaged in fighting. (93)

Challenges and Shoutings were being exchanged and the army was running around in the battle-field. In great rage, the steel (of swords) is striking against steel and the warriors look graceful being completely involved in the battle. (94)

The dismembered portions of the body are scattered around and it seems as if embers were shining there. The arrows are being shot with streaking or shrieking noise, which produces a sort of tinkling sound. (95)

The weapons are being wielded with great swiftness and warriors from both sides are (wishing) longing for their frenzy and appear hot red in their vigorous lusture and radiance. (96)

The warriors from both sides are engaged in their fighting, completely immersed in the (flavour of frightening emotions) atmosphere of horror. They are offering human lives to their arrows, and are talking about archery (Yujar Veda) or weaponary. (use of weapons). (97)

The warriors are completely devoted to show their valour in the battle and there is a rain (continuous flow) of arrows. They get rid of the noose around them, and do not try to avoid facing it. (98)

They are wielding and using their weapons while facing the enemy and pull their bows with arrows fixed in them. They shoot arrows incessantly, while a pool of blood is seen flowing there. (a stream of blood flows). (99)

The river (stream) is full of blood, while the fairies are moving around in the skies, while Kali is thundering around in the skies and the hobgoblins with their (begging) bowl are laughing away. (100)

At places, there were dead horses lying on the ground, while at other places there were warriors lying on the ground. At some places there were broken shields while at somewhere else great elephants were lying cut into pieces and at some places there were wounded elephants moving around. (101)

Some where one could see pierced iron Coats lying while somewhere there were broken shields. At places there were great elephants lying dismembered and at other places there were crushed coat of mails for horses. (102)

The warriors were fighting with enmity and were engaged in fighting with various weapons. Seeing the warriors in the battle-field the devils and spirits were dancing away. (103)

The carnivorous were jumping (with delight) while (the birds) flying in the skies were amused at the sight, while the crows were crowing in excitement, and the great warriors were engaged in fighting with madness and frenzy. (104)

The army-leadres with canopies were furious with rage and were shooting arrows from their bows. With the striking of penetrating arrows, blood splashes were rising from the bodies. (105)

The musicians, celestial singers (mythological) demons, bands, and ascetics with occult powers, were all smiling while the warriors were fully occupied in fighting it out. (106)

The hobgoblins were shrieking, the warriors were shouting slogans of challenge and revenge at each other, the bettle drums were beating with some noise and the tambourines were producing a clattering noise. (107)

The warriors were roaring with thunder, with the new drums beating with loud noises, the battle-field is resounding with timbrels, and the demons are fighting against Durga. (108)

Bijai Chhand :

All the arrows, shot by the enemy ranks, would turn into a nacklace of flowers around the neck of the goddess and would be seen honouring her. Seeing this wonderous scene, the army of demons was fleeing from the battle-field and there was none left to fight. At that place, herds of elephants were lying dead and lot of horses were seen smeared with blood. It appeared as if the mountains were hiding in the ocean for fear of Indra's wrath. (109)

Manohar Chhand :

The goddess Mother, with a bow in hand and blowing the conch shell, had fought a ferocious battle. She was crushing the enemy and killing all their warriors. The lion was also roaring ferociously and moving around in the battle-field. He had broken all the coats of mail on the body of soldiers while the blood oozing from the iron-coats was looking glamorous. It appeared as if a blaze of fire from the great ocean was rising upwards. (110)

The sound of the lion had spread all over the world, while the dust rising from the movement of soldiers had covered the sky. Many warrior faces, (skulls) having been hit by weapons, were seen lying on the ground. Seeing them the hearts of fairies were also thrilled. Many of the enemy warriors, with enraged faces, lying in the battle field were seen praiseworthy. Many smart and elegant warriors from the enemy ranks were lying completely crushed as if the physician had made a powder (medicinal) for treatment.

The fleeing demons were running away in great haste whlle the warriors were roaring loudly at many places. The spears and carbines were being used with great strength and noise while the arrows and gunshots were producing equally noisy scene with different sounds. (115)

The gurgling battle drums were producing loud notes, the conch shells were blowing and the trumpets were producing musical notes, while the warriors of Bagar land were usingnbands for music and the ghosts or spirits were dancing naked. (116)

Double-edged arrows were being shot with cracking noise, and one could hear the striking noise of carbines, daggers and swords, while a loud noise was being produced by the beating of drums of the bagar land and all the warriors were fighting, being immersed in the musical sound of their drum beats. (117)

The conch shells were being blown, and the music of trumpets was producing a serene musical note, and the drums, and bugles of the land of Bagar were producing loud sounds while the warriors were roaring at various places. (118)

The sound of kettle-drums alongwith the loud noise of large drums could be heard. The earth had burst with the paws of the lion as if the boar had dug it up with his tusk (hood). The tambourines were producing noise while the kettle-drums were beating with loud sounds. Huge vultures were soaring high up all around and the crows were crowing heavily. (125)

The dust raised with the hooves of the horses was such that the whole sky was over cast. Even the oceans and mountains were crushed under neath their feet, while the small mountains (molehills) were reduced to a powder. Hearing this noise Kali armed herself with weapons and sounding a war cry of Victory, she killed many warriors in the battle-field. (126)

Rasaval Chhand :

The victorious warriors were roaring loudly and were racing their horses. They were stretching their bows and were shooting arrows incessantly. (127)

On the other side, the lion roared loudly, as if a big conch shell was flowing. His roar was heard all over the place, while the dust rose to the sky. (128)

All were armed with various weapons and were thundering like the clouds. The warriors were furious with rage and holding various weapons, they were advancing forward. (129)

The warriors had arrived from all the four sides and were shouting loudly to kill the enemy. Innumerable weapons were being struck against the enemy, while the great warriors were thundering loudly. (130)

The faces and eyes of the warriors were red with anger, and they were armed with spears in their hands. They got enraged and stood firm (in the battle-field) and started shooting arrows continuously. (131)

Many villains had been destroyed and crushed and many arms were being used. A continuous (rain) stream of arrows was being shot and the goddess was feeling elated and relaxed. (132)

Beli Bidram Chhand :

The crows were making noise by their crowing at places while smart warriors were wielding their weaons with great strength. The swords and arrows were shining with great elasticity and ghosts were eating the corpses merrily by catching hold of them. (133)

The drum beats could be heard with beating of drums and the swords were electrifyiing the atmosphere with their shining. The spears were producing blasts with their striking. (against shields). The youthful warriors were shouting slogans of challenge. (134)

The arrows, being shot from the bows, were producing surprise and shocks for the Kashatriyas (warriors). The hobgoblins were shrieking hearing the sound of drum-beats and the female ascetics were screaming with loud shouts. (135)

The blood splashes were being produced, and the penetrating arrows were being shot incessantly. Many warriors were challenging with shouts and the jackals were barking. (136)

The indestructible goddess, producer of a blood bath was moving around in great jubilation. The lion was moving around roaring loudly, and was creating fun and frolic in the battle field all the time. (137)

The beating of drums was producing a continuous noise and spears were striking with loud sounds (against shields) while the enraged warriors were wielding their swords with vengeance and powerful warriors were engaged in fierce fighting.(138)

With great fury, Shumbh while thumping (stepping) his feet with great sound on the ground, sent Nishumbh to the battlefield, saying that he should bring back Durga alongwith him, bound in chains. (140)

He arranged his army in great formation and advanced forward. The soldiers were blowing trumpets and positioned themselves in the battle-field. The god, Indra, seeing their great advancing force, was about to flee from there. (141)

With innumerable warriors alongwith him, and with the beating of drums. Nishumbh had launched an attack. He called all the warriors and collected them together on seeing them (their force) the gods, got frightened. (142)

Madhubhar Chhand

Indra was trembling, then Shiva called him in his presence, and held consultations with each other, getting details about the army strength, (143)

O friend ! What miracles should we perform so that Durga-mata gains a comprehensive victory. (144)

Bring out all your hidden powers and despatch them to the battle-field so that they could kill the enemy in a wrathful manner. (145)

These powers took out their swords in hands and proceeded to the battle-field. On seeing moving, huge vultures in great excitement and hobgoblins even started moving towards them. The bigger crows were laughing (in their sleeves), while dust rose up in the sky, without any pause. Many gods and warriors were engaged in shooting arms continously. (147)

Rasaval Chhand

All the godly powers came and paid obeisance (to the goddesss) and proceeded towards the battle-field. By arming themselves with great iron-coats (inner) they killed many warriors of fame. (148)

Their faces and eyes were red with (rage) blood (coming out) and they were using very crude language. They were carrying iron-coats, daggers and swords in their hands. (149)

On the other hand the demons were thundering, the battle and kettle-drums were beating ; they were having beautiful shields, having worn strong coats of iron.(150)

The demons were roaring from all the four sides and all the gods were trembling on hearing their noise. The pointed arrows were being shot, which were cutting across the iron-coats and the dresses. (151)

All were immersed in an awful emotional atmosphere (with Shiva's wrath) and were agitated with aggressive designs, and were shooting arrows continuously. The goddess was filled with estatic pleasure (greatly elated). (152)

On one hand the goddess was killing the enemy while on the other hand the lion was gashing them apart (splitting them). The musicions of Shiva were producing loud music, due to which the demons were trembling (with fear). (153)

Bhujang Prayat Chhand

When King Sumbh heard about the story of the killing of his younger brother, he armed himself with coats of iron and weapons and with great enthusiasm advanced for launching an attack. There was a loud sound (war cry) which made the whole sky to shudder and reverberate. The gods were frightened from the demon and even Shiva got shaky and started trembling. (157)

Brahma was equally frightful while the king of gods Indra also was in doldrums. All the mountains had fallen (from their position) as the demon was beautifuuly armed with weapons. They were furious and red with rage making some noises and appeared like the seventh peak of Sumer mountain. (158)

Shumbh organised his army formation, while making a loud war cry hearing which the pregnant ladies would suffer abortion. The enraged warriors were striking their steel (swords etc.) and sparks were being produced from stroking weapons. The hobgoblins were shrieking and the female giants were producing loud noises. (159)

The weapons and arms were being used all around and the shields or coats of iron were being split in two. The warriors were performing their duty to the Master dutifully. There was noise all around in the battle–field while the wisks and dresses were falling down. Huge dismembered human bodies were rolling on the ground while the stream of arrows was continuously being shot. (160)

In the battle-field, the elephants, gods, and the warriors were falling down, and human bodies (trunks) without their heads were jumping around, while the huge vullures were flying above and frightening crows were making noise. The kettle drums and other types of large drums were producing lot of loud noises. (161)

The helmets were making a scattering noise and the shields were producing different noises (by striking weapons), while the Swords were cutting down bodies into pieces producing a terrible sound. The warriors were in great turmoil while the striking of spears was producing a loud shrieking noise. There was so much noise produced by the movement that even in the nether world (the world of snakes) in could be heard. (162)

The hebgoblins, the female-ascetics, and spirits were shooting loudly and the headless trunks (bodies) were see jumping around. All the gods were laughing in merriment whereas the demon-king was getting agitated and enraged, and his appearance was seen as a sparkling of fire. (163)

Couplet :

The goddess had destroyed all the demons, who were despatched by the demon Shumbh to the battle-field, and it looked like the drops of water getting dried up by falling on a hot iron-pan. (164)

Sumbh launched an attack by organising a huge army of warriors and thundering loudly with an enraged fury. He was armed with various weapons and shouting slogans of killing the enemy, he was advancing forward. (165)

Musical Madhubhar Chhand

There was lot of Chattering and clattering noises and sounds, whereas the warriors were raising loud slogans and roaring loudly. (166)

The warriors were fighting feroshiously and producing loud sounds (of drum-beats). They were catching hold of one another like the crocodiles and were pouncing on each other like the leopards. (167)

The warriors were striking each other with thumping sounds and shouting loudly and they were wielding their swords with great force. (168)

The warriors were holding the arrows to be struck soon, which were being shot producing scattering noise and would completely obliterate those, who were facing them. (coming in touch). (169)

The warriors wearing turbans, horses and sturdy youths with beautifully built bodies, were seen engaged in fighting at various places. (170)

Some warriors were falling down like the tree-leaves some others were shouting loudly with shrill sounds, while gun shots were being fired with pounding noise and the spears were striking with thumping noises. (171)

The shells were being struck at the (body)bellies with gurgling sound, which would open up wounds with gushing blood and Kalika was dancing in the battle-field with a frightening and horrible looking form. (172)

Naraj Chhand :

The goddess Durga had cast away the sufferings of many (gods) by killing many of the villains. The headless bodies could be seen rising in great numbers (countless numbers) and were shooting their arrows in a queer manner. (173)

The loud chattering sound of the bows and the hissing sound of bayonets was being heard. The warriors were shooting arrows incessantly (like a rain-shower) and great warriors were being tested. (174)

(Sangeet) Musical Naraj Chhand

The sound of striking swords (against one another) in the form of a chattering noise was being heard while the young soldiers were locked in fighting. The warriors were keen for a victory and were engaged in fighting against other fighters. (175)

Rasawal Chhand

The warriors were producing sparks from their swords and were using their carbines with swiftness. They were striking the lion's back with their maces very strongly. (176)

At places the jackals were sucking the blood of warriors, while at places, heads were split with wounds, and at places there was lot of turmoil, while at other places the brave warriors had again got up (from their unconsciousness). (177)

At some places, the warriors were lying down on the dust, and at places they were shouting slogans of killing the enemy, while at some places, the bards were singing songs of praise, and at other places the torn stomacks (trunks) were to be seen lying on the ground. (178)

At places, persons who were used to having canopies, were seen fleeing (from battle-field), and somewhere else blood was being shed, and at some places villains were being destroyed and at places warriors were roaming around like the persian wheel. (179)

All the warriors were armed with weapons, having bows in the hands, and pointed broad swords. They were furious with rage. (180)

They were dark in colour and were black like the deep sea. Even though Durga had destroyed them many times, they were even then shouting slogans of killing the enemy. (181)

The most sturdy, brave and courageous warriors had been defeated by the goddess Bhawani (Durga) just as camel-thorn gets burnt (dried up) with the unseasonal rain. (182)

The goddess had uproted the demons at least once and had groomed them (cooled them down) with her onslaughts. The greatest warriors had been killed. The timbrels were producing their musical sound continuoasly. (183)

The accurate arrows were being shot and these arrows had despatched many warriors away from the river of life (killed them). Many mighty warriors had lost their balance of mind on seeing the goddess. (184)

The goddess had slain many of the demons, thus throwing them on the ground, while many others had been ripped open by the lion. Many of the mighty demons were defeated (won over) by the goddess herself. (185)

All those warriors, who were not amenable to discipline, had been defeated, or who were dangerous and 'fiery or stubborn' and brutes. (were defeated). (186)

The black demons, who were having radiant foreheads, were proud and haughty, had been killed by Kalika while the furious warriors, who were enraged, had fled away from the battle-field. (187)

Couplet :

Having destroyed the villains (demons), the goddess took up her coats of iron and weapons in her hands. At first she shot a stream of arrows (like the rain drops) and then raised the war-cry. (roared like a lion). (188)

When Shumbh (king) heard about it, he launched a great attack with great courage, and all the warriors, (demons) taking up their weapons in hands, proceeded to the battle-field. (189)

The drums were beating loudly, and the bows were cracking, while the large drum-beats produced a loud note (musical), and its sound could be heard continuously. (190)

The swords were sparking and the, stubborn warriors were feeling proud of heir strength. The mighty warriors were shouting loudly or roaring, with the sound of their drum-beats, rising incessantly. (191)

The demons were thundering from all the four sides, and all the gods were shivering. The arrows were being shot like a shower while the demons were having a taste of Durga;s onslaughts. (192)

Choupaie :

All those demons, who came in front of Durga, carrying their weapons, were done to death. The steel of the swords was shining (sparks were produced). The heads and trunks (on the ground) were heaving and jumping in a terrible manner. (193)

Couplet :

The four types of army, comprising horses, elephants, chariots and infantry had been reduced to ashes (cut to pieces) and none of them was left alive. Then the demon king himself marched (came) forward. It appeared as if things will now shape the way, he would command. (194)

When the Shiva's spirit heard this, then she sent Shiva as an (messenger) envoy. Since that time, Durga was called Shiva's spirit. All the men and women have known this already. (196)

Then going upto the demon-king, Shiva said, "O demon-king ! Listen to me. The goddess Durga has sent a message for you. Either you give back the kingdom (of heaven) to the gods or be prepared for war with me." (197)

The demon-king did not agree to this proposal. The haughty king started merching himself for war against Durga. The demon-king reached the spot where Kalika was thundering like the god of death. (198)

There the swords started clashing with each other, producing sparks. All the ghosts, spirits and demons started dancing there. Countless headless bodies were jumping there, and innumerable huge bees were buzzing there. (lot of dead bodies lay there). (199)

The trumpets, drums and kettle drums were beating and various forms of warriors were roaring in the battle-field. Countless tabors, tambourines, drums, trumpets and clarionets were producing musical sounds. (200)

There were bits and pieces of human bodies rolling around and elsewhere there were wisks and dresses fallen on the ground. At places hands and heads were lying down while the iron coats of warriors were also seen elsewhere. (206)

Rasaval Chhand

The mighty warriors were engaged in fighting with a vengeance, and were engaged I scuffles with their weapons, and were raising slogans of killing the enemy. (207)

All the brave warriors armed with weapons, were thundering all over. The arrows were being shot in a stream (like showers) , producing a clattering noise. (208)

The trumpets were blowing, and the musicians (of Shiva) were laughing away, while the warriors were engaged in fighting against each other by holding their fort. The coats of mail were being shattered by the arrows. (209)

The warriors were standing on all four sides and shooting their arrows in a continuous stream. The enraged and horrible warriors were using abusive language. (210)

Bhuhang Prayat Chhand

At places the warriors were being killed, and at other places the arrows were being shot in a shower, and somewhere one could see riderless horses moving around while demons and gods were both engaged in fighting against each other. All were equipped with arms. It appeared as if Bhisham pitama had come there. (211)

All the troops were thundering, and their horses fully decorated, the warriors were engaged in fighting in the battle field, while the arrows were being used. The drums were beating and the swords were striking (against each other) the spears were being used with a stirring noise, and the kettle drums were reverberating with sounds. (212)

The drums were producing a noise while the shields were producing a thud. The herds of elephants were trumpeting loudly and there was lot of turmoil among the horses. The spears or lances were striking (against shields) continuously and the swords with blood stains were striking against each other. The shields and coats of iron were lying shattered and broken while fiery sparks were coming out of the guns. (213)

The swords were striking the helmets on the head, producing spatrks of fire, as if the ghosts and spirits had woken up on a new moon night. The hobgoblins were shrieking, while the small drums were producing a subdued noise. The warriors, ghosts and spirits were dancing producing a gurgling noise. (214)

Beli Bidram Chhand

All the attacks of weapons (by the enemy) were being defeated by Durga and all other fire arms used by enemy the goddess would cut them into pieces and throw them on the ground. (215)

Kali had also shot some arrows which had shattered all the coats of iron of the enemy. When the gods saw sumbh without any arms, then they raised a cry of victory for the goddess. (216)

The sky was reverberating with trumpets and seeing this sight, the gods were roaring loudly. All the gods on seeing the goddess would raise slogans of victory for the goddess. (217)

Kali, having a horrible form in rage, was moving around in the battle-field. She had raised her six arms above the head, then suddenly dropped both the hands on the head of Sumbh, thus killing the demon finally. (218)

Couplet :

O Kali ! Just as you had killed with a revengeful manner the demon Sumbh, may you devour all the enemies of saints taking up a horrible frightening form. (positive). (219)

Here the Sixth Chapter of Bachittar Natak pertaining to killing of Sumbh, as part of Chandi portrayal is completed in graceful manner. (6)

Now the narration of Slogans of Victory

Beli Bidran Chhand

The gods were raising slogans hailing the victory (of the goddess) and were showering flowers out of elation. The gods then applied tilak with sandal wood and saffron to (the forehead of) the goddess. (220)

O goddess ! (O Lord !) You are impregnable, indiscriminate, inactive, religious (without any functions and performing moral duties) holding a bow and a shield in hand, and having a coat of mail (iron-protection) and you deserve our salutations. Our Salutations to the invincible power, indiscriminate (manifest), without any function and Indestructible (ever existent), formless, without any pride or prestige, cause of all actions, and self-effulgent ; you deserve our approbation. (252)

Salutations to the power (goddess) who is fair-complexioned, religions (minded), knowing our inner-feelings (omni-scient), sustainer of the Earth, powerful, warrior, short-statured, pure as the religious fire (yagna fire). Hail to the power, which destroys the haughtiness (egoism) of others. Salutations to the goddess, who delights all who takes away (dries) our wealth and fills up (bestows completeness or perfection) to all. (253)

Hail to the goddess, who rides the lion as one rides a horse ; who possesses a body deserving worship. Salutations to the one who is a personification of faith, the killer of ghosts and the goddess who (wages war) fights (against evil-doers). Hail to the frightful looking goddess, and who is the mother- goddess (of all). Salutations to the goddess, who possesses Shiva's power, an embodiment of faith, renowned throughout the world and possesses Brahma's powers. (254)

Salutations to the power, which possesses angustness, who is pervading throughout the Universe, (most) is of the purest form, is fairy and sustains all, the might of Almighty, and is the great sermon (of Hindus) for worship. Hail to the goddess possessing matted hair like Shiva and having the grace of Shiva, killer of Chand and Mund (Chamundi), who bestows blessings on all : destroyer of villains, and having an indivisible form. (255)

Salutations to you O goddess ! who upholds all the saints, who bestows blessings on all, Hail to you, who liberates all, who is the cause of everything, and the mother-goddess of all. O Bhawani ! Salutations to you time and again, who bless all with Kindness ; may you protect me always through your Grace ! (256)

Now the details of the praises of the Chandi Charitar

Bhujang Prayat Chhand

There were sixty four hobgoblins, having their four bowls full of blood and are moving around belching everywhere continuously. The horrible looking crows had gone to their nests, full of love for them, while the (dead) warriors were still rolling around on the ground unattended. (257)

Narad having a lyre in hand, had also left. Even Shiva with his decorated bull, was playing on his tabor and producing a loud sound, while the warriors with horses and elephants were lying on the ground in the battle-field. The corpses in mutilated form were rolling in dust whereas the ghosts and spirits were dancing. (258)

Half cut human trunks and evil spirits were dancing, who had pallet bow tied to their hands for killing the enemy and were having iron glows on their hands for killing the enemy ; all the saints had become fearless (without fear) from a state of fear. Our Salutations to the worldly (mother goddess) who had gained complete victory over the enemy. (259)

Even if a fool were to read this (Charitar) portrayal, he will become wealthy with lots of money and if some teetotaler or a miser were to listen to it, he will become very powerful (free of fighting spirit) to fight in a battle. If some Yogi (ascetic) were to recite it by being awake at night, he would gain the wealth of Yoga and attain occult powers. (260)

If a student were to read it do a part of his education, he will gain all the knowledge of Shastras. However, of a Yogi, Sanyasi (ascetic and mendicant) or bairagi (secluded) were to recite it, he will gain the greatest benedication or benefaction. (261)

Couplet :

O goddess-mother ! All the saints, who would bow to you with standing ovation, will attain Salvation and attain unison with Lord (or merge with the Lord). (262)

(Worship) (The One Lord attainable through the Guru's Grace. May the Lord embodiment of Sword be our protector.)

Pouri :-

Let us worship the One Lord, the sword wielding Lord (of steel) first of all, and then meditate on Guru Nanak. Then let us seek the protection of Angad, Guru Amar Das and Ram Das and then let us concenterate on Arjan, Har Gobind and meditate on Sri Har Rai. Then let us meditate on Sri Har Krishan, whose one glimpse would dispel all our sufferings, finally by meditating (with concenteration) on Teg Bahadur we could attain all the nine treasures of the world. Let the Lord be our protector at all places ! (1)

First of all the sublime Lord created the all powerful, embodiment of Sword, the Lord Himself and then created the whole Universe. Then He created Brahma, Vishnu and Shiva and then He displayed the Wonderful drama of (created) the Nature. Then He created the Oceans, Mountains and Earth, and then arranged the system of holding up the sky without any support (pillars) and positioned it. Then He created the demons (villains) and the gods (virtuous) and produced enmity (against each other) in their minds. Then (O Lord !) You created (the goddess) Durga, through whom you arranged (managed) to destroy the demons. Then Ram Chander gaining all the power through You (O Lord), killed Ravana, with the help of arrows. "Then Krishna,' being bestowed with all the power by you (O Lord !), destroyed Kansa (and Kesi warrior) by pulling them down (with hairs in hand). The greatest Munis and gods (mendicants) worshipped the Lord for many ages (Yugas) through penance, but none of them could gain Your secrets (O Lord !) and seek Your limits. (2)

Then SatYug, the age of saintly behaviour, passed by and then came Treta age (Yoga) the age of a partly peaceful behaviour. Then everyone was beset with anguish and suffering, while Kal and Narad sounded (the beginning of the humdrum of life) with the beat of drum. To dispel the egoistic tendencies (egoism) of the gods, the Lord-Sublime created the demons Mehkhasur and Sumbh. They gained victory over the gods and established their (sway) kingdom in all the three worlds (the heavens, the Earth, and the nether lands). Then Mehkhasur, establishing (proclaiming) himself as a great warrior, started unfurling a canopy over his head (established a seat of authority over all) and threw out (god) Indra from his Indrapuri (heaven). So he (Indra) approached (looked up to) the goddess Durga on top of Kailash mountain for his protection. Being afraid of the demons, Indra was demoralised and got frightened with fear (of the power of demons) and finally approached Durga for help and protection. (with the prayer). (3)

One day, when goddess Durga came for her bath, the Indra approached her and related his episode (story) of suffering and misery stating that the demons had unsurped their empire (kingdom). They have proclaimed their superiority in all the three worlds. They were seated firmly in Amravati (the heavens) and enjoying all the worldly pleasures with great pomp and show. The demons have turned out all the gods from (Amrapuri) the heavens as no one could gain victory over Mehkhasur. O goddess Durga ! Now I have approached You for help and protection. (4)

Durga started laughing merrily on hearing Indra's episode and sent for her lion, who could devour the demons and told the gods not to have any worry. Thus Durga got furious and wrathful to kill the demons. (5)

Pouri :

The front line of both the armies occupied their positions in front of each other, while drums, conch shells and kettle drums started blowing and beating loudly. The demons marched to the battle field, enraged and armed with their swords and coats of mail. Warriors of the same type (belonging to same Caste) were facing each other and engaged in fighting, who never knew how to run away from the battle field. The warriors were thundering loudly in the battle-field. (7)

When the trumpets of war were sounded, and drums were beating to exaggerate and enhance the joy and willingness to fight in the battle field. The standards bearing the flags and spears with flowers were waving (fluttering) and the bright flags were radiant. The drums and kettle drums were beating loudly and it appeared as if the lions were roaring. Durga and the demons were also locked in battle, and frightening (terrible) drums were being sounded in the battle field. The warriors were pierced with spears, which were sticking out like the amlas sticking out with the branches (of a tree.). There were some smitten with the swords, who were throbbing on (jumping) the ground in pain as if drunkards, having taken wine, were rolling on the ground while some others were being taken out from the bushes by picking them out one by one just as the scavengers were removing gold from the sandy tract. The mace, trident, arrows and spears were being used in fighting with great swiftness (and speed) as if the black cobras were (stinging) biting, which was resulting in the killing (death) of many proud warriors. The drums of the demons started beating loudly on seeing the mighty Chandi in the battle-field. Then the wrathful demons encircled Chandi from all the four sides, and the demons started fighting bravely with swords in hands in the battle field. Such brave soldiers had never fled from the battle field. They were however, enhancing their wrath (were furious with rage) and shouting to kill the goddess. The mighty Chandi had piled up the dead bodies by killing the demon warriors in large numbers, as if the poles with electric-shocks had fallen down headlong. (9)

With the beatind of war-drums, the troops started fighting against one another ; when the goddess taking up her sword of steel (lioness) stuck it against the stomach of the rebellious Mehkhasur, which pierced through his liver, intestines and ribs and was seen coming out from the other side. Whatever I falt in my heart at that moment I am saying that ; it appeared as if the star with a tail (Dhoom Ketu) (Shooting Star) was showing its tail-end. (10)

The various formation of (opposite) troops got engaged and locked up in fighting on the beating of the drums, had drawn out their swords and the warriors were wielding them in turn in the battle-field. There was a pool of blood and the stream of blood was flowing like the red –coloured water stream The wives of the demons were watching this battle scene from the windows. The transport carriages of Durga and the demons were making history through their pomp and show. (11)

In the battle-field, millions of drums from both sides, facing each other, were being beaten ; and the warrior demons, furious with rage , were not to be seen fleeing from the battle-field. In fact, all the warriors were roaring like lions, and were shooting arrows pointing them at Durga with great strength. (12)

The huge drums, tied with chains, double drums were beating, while the demons with matted hair and army commanders were lying in the dust, whose nostrils looked like tubes and mouths open like wall-openings. These moustached warriors had come rushing towards the goddess, with whom gods like Indra had already fought (without success), but these warriors were not deterred and would not be forced to leave the battle field by anyone. They had encircled the goddess Durga and were thundering as if dark black clouds were bursting with noise. (13)

Then the drum, with the covering of the skin of the donkey was struck with force (the drum was struck with a stick made out of the skin) and the battle-start was announced. The warriors had surrounded Durga ; the demons were very powerful, who knew not how to run away from the battle field. All those demons, killed by the goddess, were finally sent to heavens. (14)

As the two armies started fighting, the drums started beating. Both the gods and the demons had created a terrible sight with their fighting like the bull-fights. The enraged demons were giving a befitting reply by wounding the enemy troops. Their drawn-out swords from their sheaths appeared like saws. The fallen warriors in the battle-field appeared like huge minarets fallen on the ground. The huge mountain-like demons were killed by the goddess herself, who would never accept their defeat openly, and were defiantly opposing the goddess. Finally Durga, taking up her Sword, killed all the demons. (15)

With the war-drums beating, many vigorous warriors full of enthusiasm, offer themselves for the battle-field.Mehkhasur then roared like the thundering clouds in the battle-field and was exagerrating his war-exploits, saying that even Indra (god) had fled away from the field and could not face him; then what was the worth of poor Durga ? How could she afford and pick up courage to fight against him ? (16)

With the beating of drums and kettle-drums both the armies launched their attacks; the arrows were giving the lead, while they were facing each other, and with the striking of arrows many (innumerable) warriors had been killed. It appeared as if the minarets, struck by lightning, had fallen down. All the demons, with dishevelled hair, were crying and wailing loudly, and it appeared as if ascetics with matted hair, having eaten drugs (bhang) had fallen asleep. (17)

With the sounding of drums and trumpets, both the army formations stood facing one another. Out of the troops, the great proud demon (Mehkhasur) thundered and started marching alongwith thousands of great warriors, (or having thousand warriors under their command). Then Mehkhasur drew out his great double-edged sword from the sheath and many enthusiatic warriors also joined him in the battle field and a great battle with lot of blood-shed ensued. The blood was oozing out (flowing) of their heads as if the streams of Ganga waters were flowing from the tufts of Shiva. (18)

Then the double-drum was struck and the battle started between the two forces. The goddess Durga drew out her sword from the sheath and chandi wielded the sword of detruction of the demons on Mehkhasur, which pierced the skull and mouth (face) of the demons and went through his whole body (skeleton) ; then the sword pierced the iron saddle of the horse and struck on the ground, and finally it reached the horns of the bull (supporting the Earth). Thus, killing the enemy, it ignited (shone) on the head of the tortoise (supporting the Earth-as per Hindu belief). The demons were lying dead on the ground in the battle-field as if a carpenter had thrown pieces of wood cut away from the log. There was a complete mesh of the blood and marrow of the human bodies on the ground in the battle field. The episode of the sword of the goddess (Durga) will always be known throughout the four ages. Thus Mehkhasur had spent a very cruel and painful period on the battle field. (19)

In this way, Durga came back after killing the demon Mehkhasur. The queen of the fourteen (worlds) regions of the Universe, being elated and pleased, made her transporting lion to dance (junp around). The goddess Durga had killed many demon warriors, wearing tufts of hair, in the battle field were challenging the other warriors, without asking for a drop of water. They were fighting in the battle with so much concentration and devotion, just as a Pathan gets mesmerised on listening to a musical note. Then there was a flood of the warriors blood flowing, and the warriors were completely in ecstacy just as an ignorant person feels elated by drinking the flowers. (by smelling the flowers aroma) (20)

After handing over the kingship to the gods, Bhawani disappeared. On the other hand, When the time of Shiva's blessings being bestomed approached, two haughty warriors named Shumbh-Nisumbh were born, who saw the Indre's capital with a hidden desire of winning it over. (21)

The main warriors (demons) hatched a plan to attack Indrapuri, and they started their preparations for war by making coats of mail, the iron sieve for covering the face, and sieves. A huge army thus collected together and marched on for waging a war ; by its movement, the cloud-like darkness covered the sky. So Shumbh and Nisumbh furious with rage, started for the battle-field. (22)

Then on the orders of Shumbh and Nisumbh, the great warriors sounded the bugle for the war. On all sides, the atmosphere was charged with fury and the warriors started (for war) with their horses (dance) jumping around. The double-drums started beating, as if the bull was thundering loudly. Both the gods and demons proceeded towards the battle-field. (23)

Then the gods and demons were fighting day in and day out (without –break). The uniforms (dresses) of the warriors appeared like the flowers sprouting in a garden. Then the ghosts, vultures and crows had a heyday with eating human flesh all the time, while the warriors were making loud noises with war cries. (24)

With the beat of drums, the battle of the armies started with full swing. The demons got together and forced the gods to flee from the battle-field, and the demons proclaimed their superiorty in all the three worlds. So the gods, frightened with their defeat, had perforce to take shelter under the protective-care of Durga, thus forcing the invasion of Chandi on the (forces of) demons. (bringing Chandi on the scene). (25)

Then Bhawani came down. When the demons got the news of her coming, all the great demon warriors got together. Then the king of demons, Shumbh sent for the haughty Dhrum-lochan, who was called one of the greatest demons of his times. (used to call himself). With the beat of the double-drum , Dhrumlochan declared that he would bring back Durga in chains. (26)

Seeing the huge armies of the demons, Chandi thundered, and pulling out her double-edged Sword 'from the sheath, she confronted the demon, straightaway'. She killed all his (Dhrum Nain's) warriors, and it appeared as if the carpenters had cut down all the trees with the help of saws. (27)

The drum-beater then struck his drums, and the battle between the two armies ensued. Durga furious with rage, launched an attack on the demons. By taking her sword (the lioness of iron) in the left hand, she wielded it with such a speed that she struck it with such speed that she struck it on the body of many warriors, making it red coloured. (with blood). The demons being enraged in the bloody battle and in great panic, considering their brother demons even as goddess, were killing them only. Then getting enraged, the goddess wielded her sword and struck the demon-Raja (Dhrum-Nain) with her sword. As a result of which Dhrum-Nain was despatched to the valley of death. (was killed). It appeared as if she was given a bait for killing Shumbh. (28)

The demon kings, who had fled from the battle-field, went crying and wailing to king Shumbh and stated that the goddess had killed Dhrum-Nain along with his troops, and apart from this, she had killed many other warriors also, by picking them out, in the battle-field. In fact, the warriors were falling down like the shooting stars from the sky or as if huge mountain tops had fallen down with the lightning, striking them. The fear of Chandi had defeated the whole army of demons ; Only those demons escaped death, who were weaklings, as those weak demons were under the protection of the king. (else they would also have been killed). (29)

The demon king Shumbh got enraged and furious and then called all of them and it was decided that they should bring Durga tied in chains. Thus Chand and Mund were sent to the battle-field alongwith a huge army. By seeing their innumerable swords, it would appear as if it was a land full of ponds (with shining water). All The demons, called by the king, were sent to the battle-field, as if all had been sent to the valley of death for being killed. (30)

The drummers sounded the trumpets with beating of drums and the battle started between the two forces. The enraged furious demons launched an attack. All of them held spears in hands and they made their horses jump around. The goddess killed most of them in the battle-field ; and in her elation the goddess was shooting arrows like a shower (continuously). (31)

Durga also, with blowing the conch-shell, started engaging the enemy in battle, and with the stretching of her bow, she shot many arrows with precision. Whosoever had raised his hand against the goddess, was killed by her instantaneously, and none could escape. Thus the goddess destroyed Chand and Mund completely. (32)

On hearing about the killing of the demons, Shumbh and Nishumbh got furious with rage. They called a meeting of all the warriors and told them that the goddess had killed (Chand or Mund) those warriors even, who had made gods like Indra to run away (from the field) in a moment. The gathered warriors, then thinking of those (killed) warriors, out of sheer sorrowful rememberance, clasped both their hands on each other and the King Shumbh, giving a betel nut to (demon) Rakatbeej, sent him to the battle field. The demons had worn coats of mail and their faces were covered with iron sivnes and their helmets were shining. These warriors were wrathful and were (itching) shouting for taking revenge from her in the battle. The warriors, whom no one could deviate from fighting a battle, had collected together and then launched a severe attack ; now the battle scene was worth watching. (33)

Reaching near the battle-field, the demons raised a loud hue and cry, and hearing the noise of their arrival, the goddess came riding her lion, and she wielded her mace in her left hand and she killed the whole army of Rakat-beej. The warriors were roaming around in the battle-field in such a manner as if a drug-addict was moving around (without any knowledge or worry) Countless warriors (demons) were rolling in the dust with their feet stretched, in the battle-field, as if the revellers, after playing holi (festival of colours) were lying in their slumber. (34)

Rakat-beej called all the remnants of warriors, and great stalwants like standing minarets, the warriors were wielding their swords with raised hands. All of them were raising shouts of killing the goddess (kill her, kill her) and stood firmly in front of the goddess. (face to face). The raised swords, falling on the iron coats of mail, were producing such a din as if the potters were preparing to make their pots (by rotating their wheels). (35)

With the beat of double-drums the battle started, and the forces were fighting against each other. The goddess created such a terror and mad-rush of troops that there was an atmosphere of fleeing from the battle-field, the warriors alongwith their horses and the iron saddles on them, were falling on the ground, The wounded soldiers were getting up and asking for water in the battle-field. The demons were given such a severe blow by the goddess as if she had struck them like lightning (on the demon forces), with a thunder. (36)

The drum-beater sounded the drum-beats and the battle started and in no time the whole army of the demons was washed out. Durga killed the demons with increased wrathfulness and finally struxk her sword on the head of Rakatbeej also. (37)

Countless renowned demons were steeped in blood ; one could see the warriors in the battle-field standing like the minarets (rocks) and they would challenge the goddess coming face to face with her. Thus Durga had killed all those demons who tried to challenge her, and streams of blood were flowing from the bodies, then from their blood (split) many more demons would spring up laughing with disdain. (38)

Again there was a song of war-cry (raised) produced by the beat of drums tied together in chains, and warriors with decorated spears (with flowers) started fighting. There was a great and fierce battle between the goddess and the demons. There was a spree of killings in the battle field, and it seemed as if warriors were jumping around like jugglers with the beating of drums. The swords were sticking out from the corpses like a red-coloured fish caught in the fishing rod. (net). The swords were flashing (glittering) like a lightning flash in the clouds. The swords of warriors were seen flashing elegantly in the battle field as if there was a complete foggy (hazy) atmosphere in the sky above. (39)

Again there was a beauty of demons with the drummer's stick and the fighting was resumed. The mighty warriors unsheathed their swords, and there were (many) countless warriors around with faces like Rakatbeej (demon) and all those faces in great fury were facing Durga (one by one). Then suddenly all of them wielded their swords and struck Durga, but with a shield in hand the goddess escaped unhurt. (saved herself). Then the goddess seeing the demon-like faces, wielded her swords striking them, thus her naked swords were soaked with the blood of demons. It appeared as if all the goddess had taken bath-together in the river Saraswati. All the demons, with faces like Rakatbeej, were killed by the goddess, and were lying on the ground, but in no time the number of demons like Rakatbeej increased alarmingly and were doubled. (40)

The warriors had started fighting with the beating of drums, blowing of conch shells, and the kettle drums. Chandi with increasing wrath meditated on Kalika, and then Kalika appeared bu bursting the forehead of Chandi, and it seemed as of a victory-drums. So Kalika proceeded to the battle-field like a fire-brand, as if Vir Bhadar had appeared from Shiva. Then Kalika made such a war cry with encirclement in the battle-field as if a lion was roaring, and was furious with rage over the three worlds, and both Durga and Kalika with a circling wheel and a sword called Nandung in hand, marched on with fury and rage. On the other side enraged demons were wielding their swords and shooting arrows in a continuous stream. Durga and Kalika, penetrating the army of the demons, killed and routed the demons. Many were pulled by their hair and were struck down and great confusion was created in their troops. Nany great warriors were picked up and millions were caught and thrown away at a distance. Thus a great battle was fought by Kalika in her wrathful mood. (41)

Both the formations of warriors were facing one another, and blood was dripping from pointed spears. The warriors had almost washed their sharp drawn out swords in blood. It appeared as if fairies had encircled Rakatbeej just as beautiful women gather all around the bride-groom to see him clearly. (42)

Then again the drummer sounded a loud drum-beat, , with that the battle started raging between the two forces. The warriors were wielding sharp naked swords (unsheathed) and pushed those swords, used to eating human flesh, into their bodies. (of the enemy). Then followed dark and painful nights for men and horses. The gobgoblins were rushing together towards the battle field) for sucking their blood. The goddess had thus pushed away the troops of demons. They went running to king Shumbh to inform him about the whole happening, how the goddess (Kalika) had managed to kill Rakatbeej without allowing his blood drops to fall on the ground, and had destroyed all those demons, who were created from the blood of Rakatbeej in the battle field. Many of them were destined to die, and so many warriors had been killed (by Kalka) and it appeared as if they were never given birth by their mothers. (43)

Shumbh heard the bad and sad news of Rakatbeej and also learnt the story that in the battle field no one could dare to face the onslaughts of Durga. Then suddenly many demons with matted hair got up from the field saying that let there he beats of drums as they were ready to march to the battle field. The whole Earth was shaking with the movement of (demon) troops, just as a boat wavers in a flooded river. The hooves of horses raised a storm of dust in the air, as if the Earth had approached (the god) Indra with her cries for help. (44)

The diligent got engaged in something to do while the warriors got ready with their troops and they were proceeding to meet Durga as if Hajis were going to Kaaba. (Mecca). The arrows, swords and sabres were distributed as favours (sweets) for a coming function. The wounded soldiers were moving around in the battle field just as kazi (religious head) was moving up and down teaching koran to his students in a school. On one side warriors with spears were leaving forward just as Muslims lean forward while saying their (Muslim) prayers, Namaz. Many warriors, getting furious with rage and making their horses shine, were marching towards Durga, while some others were attacking Durga with speed just as hunger makes men mad. These warriors were never fed up with fighting or satisfied with their efforts. (45)

The double-drums, tied with chains, were beating, and warriors with matted hair, were engaged in fighting in various formation. The decorated spears were seen pointing (at enemy) as if ascetics (Sadhus) were proceeding to Ganga for taking bath. (46)

The armies of Durga and demons stood firmly facing each other (and were itching to start fighting like the pain of a thorn.) Then the warriors started a shower of arrows at one another in the battle field, and they were striking their swords at the limbs (of human body) thus cutting them off. With the clashing of armies, first of all the great warriors struck at each other in the battle. (47)

The troops had attacked in strength and the warriors had marched in great formations (in rows) and they took out their sizzling sharp swords from the sheaths, and the most haughty warriors raised a loud war cry, and a fierce battle ensued. The (dismembered) heads, trunks and arms were lying scattered on the ground in the battle field just as flowers are seen blossoming in a garden, or it appeared as if the carpenters had cut the sandal wood trees with saws and thrown the pieces of wood around. (48)

When the drum-stick struck the drums, the warriors from both sides stood facing each other. Then Durga, picking up renowned warriors, shot her arrows at them, killed the infantry men and shot at (killed) the elephants and chariots alongwith their riders. The arrows in the baskets appeared lustrous like the blossoming of a pomengrade tree. With a sword in her right hand, Kalika came forward in great wrathful manner, and she sped piercing through the enemy troops from one side to the other, killing many thousand demons like Harnakushas. The goddess was (winning)gaining victory (against) over the hordes of demons single handed. The battle of the goddess was worthy of praise, or the poet is a sacrifice to the prowess (battle) of the goddess.

When the drim heat was heard, both the foces faced each other. Then Nishumbh had put the iron coat on his chosen horse and made him dance. He held the big how with a grown plank in his hand, which he had procured from Multan on a spacial request(demand) from the other side Durga enteral the field him. She inselded her sword with such a strength that it piecrced through the body of Shumbh, extending beyond the saddle even, ten passing through the iron saddle cover, killing the horse, fell on the ground. The warwor (Nishumbh) fell on the ground from the saddle as if he was paying obeosance to the intelligence shumbh. (As per rules of poeting the poet paid homage to the warrior) Hail to the khan with moderate coloured body. hail to your courage, and praiscworthing is your chewing of beid not ever. How is your arrow of drug-addition and hail to your dacning horse even. (50)

It is praise worthy to describe the way Durga and the demons were moving around in the battle-field ; it seemed as if the warriors had forced their way into the battle-field for waging a war. These warriors had entered the area to cut the (enemy) forces into pieces with the help of their guns and arrows. To peruse such a wonderful battle, even the gods had come down (to Earth) from the heavens. (51)

With the beating of drums, both the army formations confronted each other and many great warriors and fighters entered the battle-field (to join in fighting). They were wielding their swords and spears alongwith other weapons. They were wearing helmets (on heads), coat of mail (on the face), iron-siene on the horse (back), and covering their necks with iron-coats. Durga had killed many demons with her spear, and had thrown the riders of chariots, elephants and horses on to the ground after killing them. It appeared as if a sweet-meat seller had made fried cakes of grounded pulse by piercing through with an iron rod. (52)

Again with the beating of heavy-drums, the two armies confronted each other. Durga took up a lance (spear) in her hand, which was shining like the burning fire (of burning embers). The goddess had struck Raja Shumbh with that spear, which was sucking his blood with devotion/love. Then Shumbh fell down from the saddle. Seeing this scene, the poet felt like describing it as such : That the double-edged sword had come out of her palace, wearing a red-coloured sari. (ladies wear). (53)

A heavy fighting took place between the demons and Durga, and Durga had held in all her arms, various weapons with great strength, and had killed various warriors like Shumbh and Nisumbh. The helpless demon forces, seeing their defeat, were crying and wailing loudly. Most of the demons, with straw in their mouth, and leaving the horses loose, went upto the goddess to express their helplessness. Even the demons, who were trying to flee, were being killed by the goddess, but they would not bother to look back. (54)

Then the goddess, having killed Shumbh and Nisumbh, sent for Indra, to be ammunited with the kingship. So Raja Indra got his canopy unfurled. (indicating his kingdom of heavens). Thus the praises of the godly mother Durga were being sung in all the fourteen regions (worlds). The episode and recitation of this religious study, is permeating in all the stanzas of this study, and whosoever sings this text, will be saved (protected) from the cycle of transmigration. (55)

Through Thy Grace, (O Lord !)

O Perfect Lord ! Our Salutations to You ! You are always there to make our actions (functions) Complete in all respects, as You are impregnable, indiscriminate, and are always strict in Your moral duty (towards Your saints) having no failings (short comings) and with a guileless (spot less) form. O Lord ! You are impregnable, indiscriminate, indivisible and unique. (1)

O True Master of all, Lord-Almighty ! Our Salutations to You! You are always our comrade-in-arms, without any master (without any superior authority). Having only one form, You seem to be having varied forms (being omni-present), hail to You ! You are the King-emperor of all, being their True Master. (2)

O Lord ! You are impregnable, indiscriminate, nameless (without any denominative description), and without any dwelling-place (fixed location) (being omni-present), bestowing Your favours always to all, blessing us with occult powers, and the fountains of knowledge (intelligence), free from any magical powers, without any spell (charm), free from action (passive) and above all fantasies (illusions) ; You are indivisible, indiscriminate, impregnable and free from any (physical) functions. You are too deep to be probed (unfathomable) incomprehensible (beyond our grasp), imperceptible and eternal (endless) indescribable (beyond description), Uncommitted to any faith, (free from uniformity), free from five basic elements (Unborn) and limitless. You have no colour, no form, no Caste, no subcaste, without enmity, friendless (friendly to none) without having any son or mother. (4)

O Lord ! You are free from elements (self-effulgent), indivisible or indestructible, free from futuristic tendencies (free from charity) and are ever-present everywhere (omni-present). You are distant from all (without proximity to anyone) transparent, pure and Lord-Sublime. You are eternal (ever-existent) indivisible, free from worldly hopes and pleasures (desires), and free from any action (function). You are limitless, infinite, without earthly form, (formless) and free from all doubts or misconceptions. (5)

The Lord is beyond our reach having no form or physical entity, and is above our comprehension as His abode is unknown to us, and what is His mode of (dress) appearance, His Name, or His profession, is not known to us. How could I describe Him, as He is beyond description (indescribable)? (6)

The Lord is free from births and deaths (being ever-existent), is invincible, Lord-Sublime (Prime-male) and is the master (Lord) of all, He is impregnable, indiscriminate, formless and greatest of all. He is incorrigible, unfathomable, and indestructible (free from destruction by enemies), bestower of bliss to His saints, (to make them free from afflictions), and most gracious (to free us from bondage) and kindly to all. (7)

The Lord is the bestower of all favours, occult powers and intelligence. Our salutations to the Master (Lord) of all, who is omni-scient (having all the knowledge of others). He is umpregnable, fearless, possessing a unique form from the beginning, (of Time) Timeless and infinite. He is impregnable, indestructible, formless (from the beginning), free from dual-mindedness, and attainable with great difficulties (with lot of sturggle). (8)

Naraj Chhand

O Lord ! You are limitless, Lord-abinitio and infinite. You are free from illusions, unfathomable, and destroyer of wrangles (anguish) and very close to all (being within all). (9)

O Lord ! a brilliant flame of light is (shining), showing its halo around Your (sphere of) contenance ; millions of moons (with their lustur) are feeling shy before the radiant light emanting from Your august Presence. Even the Universal emperors are (feeling amazed) wonderstruck by perceiving the four revolving wheels in Your (four) hands. O Lord ! The master of Laxmi (goddess of wealth) possessing charming eyes like the lotus (flowers), having a newly created form of Narayan (Lord) every time and all the time, dispeller of our vicious thoughts, destroyer of our sins, deserving the praise and obeisance from the gods, men, and mendicants equally, scattering the indivisible worlds, and then establishing them firmly in position by making them fearless, dispeller of fear and dismay (danger). O True Master ! I salute You (with devotion). (34)

O True Master, bestower and beneficiary of human beings! Our Salutations to You ; hail to the humane Lord, who is free from Maya (worldly falsehood), destroyer of the indestructible ones, without stooping to anyone, indiscriminate, indivisible, unborn (self-effulgent), free from extinction, free from deformation, fearless, neutral, free from penetration, free from sufferings, causing suffering to those responsible for harm (to others), free from irritation, inpregnable, having long arms (with long approach) holding a musical bow and a sword in the hands, destroyer (crushing) of enemies, King of the renowned persons, army general in command of forces, having a new form (every time) and all-pervasive in the oceans and lands (omni-present). O Lord ! Our Salutations to You. (35)

Chhapai Chhand

O Lord Merciful to the helpless ! destroyer of our afflictions, eliminator of our vicious (evil) thoughts, dispeller of our sufferings, with a peace-loving demeanour, gainning victory over mind, pleasure loving, capable of embellishing the Earth, having an unlimited flame of light, free from evil deeds, indestructible, indivisible, having the greatest might, unbreakable, fearless, with enmity to none, free from disease, King of oceans and lands, having magnificent form, free from touch (Un-touched), with no physical entity, indestructible, unconcealed (without being hidden), free from deception, free from duality, unparalleled (peerless), immortal, and worthy of adoration and worship by gods, demons and human beings equally. O Lord ! You are powerful to free others (all) from blemish, fountain (ocean) of (Kindness) benevolence, and a mine (source) of compassion, cause and effect (of everything happening), an embodiment of benediction (Kindness) sustainer of the created world, and destroyer of the actions in different times ; beyond our comprehension, as to what the Lord says, What He does, and how to realize His secrets. You are having lotus-like eyes, having a neck like the lion, having a gait like the elephant, having legs like a banana, with the speed (swiftness) of a deer, having an aroma like that of Camphor ; O Lord ! How could there be anyone else with such a carriage (appearance) except the Time-less Lord? (37)

The Lord is having a form, which is beyond our comprehension, indescribable, and always increased in one sentimental flavour. (full of pleasure). He is free from the five basic elements (of creation), Indivisible, Lord ab-intio,free from vices, invincible, unfathomable, indestructible, free from evil deeds, with a healthy body (free from suffering), without any duality, beyond the effects of Maya (worldly falsehood), unbreakable, free from discrimination, free from the five elements (like air, water) indivisible, king of Kings, having a beautiful appearance with superior intelligence, with the greatest smartness, possessing greatest fortune, His brilliance, while scated on throne shines like the sun and His radiance is equivalent to the flame of light produced by millions of sun. (38)

Chhapai Chhand

The kings of four corners of the world (beautiful emperors of the four worlds) are wonderstruck by the Lords (beauty) form, whose flame of light is not only as good as that of the Sun but vene ten times more than that Millions of moons feel shy of its radiance, being wonder struck, as they feel their brilliance has no comparison with that the Lord's light. Even (sages like) Vyas, Prashar, Brahma and Vedas are not in a position to divulge. His secrets. He is the king emperor (King of Kings), master of all cleverness, of the highest elegance, and most powerful and magnificent, the greatest king, the Lord of the mighty, with the greatest magnificence, indestructible, and can not be deceived (by others). The one (Lord) who cannot be realised, is known as Unattainable ; The one, who cannot be deceived is known by the name Unassailable. The Lord, who cannot be described by any magic (charm) should be known as beyond charm (spell), and the one Lord, beyond any magic is called as Charm-less. (40)

The One Lord, who has no Caste, is to be understood in mind as Casteless ; and one who is above all surnames creeds (subcastes) is to be called as Creed-less. The One , who is not under discrimination is called indiscriminate, and one who cannot be shelved, is known as impregnable. The one Lord, who cannot be subdivided is to be meditated upon as Indivisible, and one who cannot be imagined in mind, is always to be lamented upon. The One Lord, who is not controlled by any spell, should be worshipped as Magic-less. (Charm-less). The One Lord who cannot be meditated upon, should be worshipped by keeping Him in mind. (by concentrating on Him). (41)

The Lord is having a canopy overhead is the master of Kashatriyas, with a beautiful appearance, and the Lord (Master) of the whole Universe (Earth). He is the creator of the World, having a beautiful vision (reflection), and is sung (praised) by the name of King with Canopies. (king-emperor). He is the Master of the Universe, the Supplier of the whole world (with their needs), the originator of the Vedas, having a most magnificent form. He transforms Himself into various forms like a magician, and He is to be called free from all worldly bondage. All the mendicants including those engaged in Yogic exercises, (postures), sustaining themselves only on milk (as their food), or engaged in intellectual studies, and celibates all meditate on the same one Lord, but without concentration. The Lord is the king-emperor, so discarding Him, whom else one could meditate upon or worship ? (42)

The Lord is the victor in battles, moving around in the amphitheatre (of the world), (destroying) doing away with the total load of the Earth, and the Master (Lord) of all the three worlds (Heavens, Earth and netherlands). He is not born as a son to anybody. He has no mother or brother, so with whom else could we develop friendship (love) leaving aside the support of the creator of this world ? Let us therefore always meditate upon one Master, who has adopted the path of (code of conduct) spiritual attainment, the Sustainer (for upbringing) of the whole world (Earth), keeping the skies intact and in position ; let us concentrate on Him. The Lord, who could improve upon (increase) our length of life (age), who enables us to worship Him, (by reciting True Name) and who enables us to perform various functions ; so whom else should we worship, leaving Him alone? (43)

The Lord, who is the only performer (doer) of all actions, who is the bestower of all comforts, virtues and worldly pleasures, who enables the elephants and the Pathans (oppressors) to blow their trumpets, could alone be known (called) as the creator (of the Universe). The Lord, who is the shooter of the arrows, who protects us against suffering (wounds) and the onslaughts of Sunshine, the deceiver (destroyer) of the worldly kings and emperors, should be accepted as the only Creator, the bestower of all things. only beneficiary). The Lord, who is bestower of all wealth, who protects our lives and pride (prestige), who (enables) makes us shine with resplendent glory and radiance (in the world), the fountain)source of all) of all knowledge, should be worshipped by singing His praises. Let us meditate on the Lord, who is the destroyer of all our sufferings and painful afflictions, who bestrows us with moral duties and intelligence, destroyer of our enemies and foes ; leaving Him whom else should we worship ? (44)

Let us consider the Lord alone as our Master, who directs us with the correct decision-making, being our guide, who (directs) enables us to follow the divine path, is all-pervasive (in our beings) being omni-present. recognise the Lord alone as the destroyer of our evil doings and dark image, destroyer of our opperssors, the annahilator of all egoistic and lazy persons, and the killer of (destroyer) the hordes of our enemies. Whom else should we remember and worship except the Lord, who degrades the victors even or bestows glory to the victors, the wonderous (shooter of the arrows) by using the powerful bow ? Whom else should we accept as our Master except the Lord, who bestows life on us then making that life Comfortable ; who bestows His benevolence (kindness) on us, and who fulfils all our hopes, desires and aspirations ? Let us consider and describe the Lord as our creator, who brings light (life) within our beings, who bestows victory on us in the battle, who destroys our enemies (who kill our friends) ; we should consider the Lord as the embodiment of the flame of light, who sustains us, who supports us giving us protection (and asylum), the greatest far-sighted Master, who is omni-potent and who listens to all our comforts and sufferings and bestows complete bliss of life ; on us. Let us Consider the Lord as completely detached from worldly attractions, who enables us to meditate on True Name, who bestows all worldly pleasures and comforts on us, and who pardons us from even a blame of murder (killing some one). Whom else should we worship except the Lord, who bestows life (the lease of life) on us, the bestower of all worldly pleasures and comforts, and who destroys our enemies and oppressors in this world ?

The Lord is a personification of the Prime-soul ; whose form is the source of all good deeds (well-wisher of all), whose intellect is His wealth, and who bestows Salvation on us as His vocation. He has no attachment (love) for anyone ; nor He possesses any colour, nor any form, and has no signs or symbols. He possesses a beautiful body (appearance) and His disposition is blissful. His appearance is truly wonderous and highly purified. He is a friend par excellence, having all means of wealth and riches. (worldly pleasures). He is the god-supreme, king-emperor, and the greatest Raja and the greatest Lord-Almighty. (47)

Naraj Chhand, Through the Lord's Grace

O Lord ! Your flame of light (Chandrika) baffles one, and Your princely elegance is praise worthy, in whose presence the gang of villains (opressors) gets subdued (busted). Your central Abode is truly auspicious and praiseworthy. (79)

(O Lord !) Your mighty army is also transient, but destroys those in no time, who consider themselves indestructible. Your blaze of light illuminates like a streak of lightning and one hears the music of infinity (eternal music of bliss) all around. (in all the four directions). (80)

(O Lord !) Your radiant form (appearance) glitters with brilliance, which destroys both the hordes (of births and deaths) of sufferings and afflictions (in the world). The formation of Your horses is auspiciouly lined up, in whose presence the horse of the oceans feels belittled and enraged. (Even the glory of oceans feels pale before Your elegant form). (81)

(O Lord !) Your created Universe in a circular formation (round) appears flawless, while Your Unstrung music of bliss (sounds) shows Your perfection in both the stages of creation and destruction (of the Universe). Your self effulgent and divine source of the Universe is intertwined like a pellet (which is incomprehensible) and and You are a personification of perfection with all the eternal amenities of bliss (happiness), which never diminish (dwindle). (82)

(O Lord !) Your wealth is inexhaustible and never dwindling. You are non-aligned (detached). Your royal abode (seat) is never failing in size (abating) and is eternal (Unbreakable). You are indescribable, Uncommited (to any faith) and indestructible. (83)

(O Lord !) Your set of teeth are glittering with grace, on perceiving their beauty, the dark clouds (of afflictions) feel jealous ; small tinkling bells attached to Your girdle (waist string) appear impressive, while the Sunshine feels jealous of Your dazzling radiance, (feeling belittled). (84)

(O Lord !) The plume on Your head is looking beautiful and elegant just as the rainbow appears protruding from the over cast clouds, and the crown (crest) is looking impressive on Your head, seeing which even the moon feels abashed (shy) before the lustre. (85)

(O Lord !) Even long formations of demons fade away by perceiving (Your grandeur), and great multitudes of villains flee away from the scene (Your Presence). When You are making use (wielding) of Your arms and weapons, then Your mandate in the form of a wheel runs throughout the four corners of the Universe. (Your writ runs all over). (86)

(O Lord !) Your Inaccessible radiance is shining impressively, and for viewing it Rishis (mendicants) and even Shiva are longing and looking forward to . They recite Your Name a number of times, but are unable to grasp your infinite and unlimited Greatness. (87)

Many ascetics, by hanging upside down, burn an ignited pile of chaff (light a fire) and many mendicants wander around with motionless eyes and worship by burning (igniting) five flames of fire, but are unable to decipher Your infinite Vastness and limitless Greatness. (88)

Even if someone were to perform various rituals like carrying out yogic exercises (asans) or a alms-giving for religious purposes, or visiting holy places of pilgrimage, but none of these rituals could match (equal) the efficacy of reciting Lord's True Name. (89)

Even if someone were to perform yogic exercises or rituals, by giving away elephants in alms thus performing a religious duty ; or roaming around various foreign lands (in search of Truth), but all these actions cannot equal the efficacy of True Name alone. (90)

Even if someone were to observe Silence by abiding in caves, or roams around millions of jungles (in desperation), and performs religious functions to discard worldly pleasures and attachments and moves around various places, being disinterested and dejected (from the world). (it is not worth anything). (91)

If someone were to undertake alms-giving in millions of ways and millions of times, or undertakes yogic postures of various kinds, or adopts the functions of a recluse, and remains dejected or disinterested in worldly things (as a householder) being under the spell of meditation ; (even then it is not worth any attainment). (93)

If one were to recite various scriptures, or engages himself in great pomp and show of various types (to impress others with his spiritual achievements), but none of these activities would be on par with the recitation of Lord's True Name ; as these are all fallacies of the world in the garb of spiritualism. (O Lord !) All the worldly people (of this world and the world-hereafter) worship You, You have established all the seven seas in position (enshrined in place), and You are known in all the four worlds (throughout the World and have adopted an oblique (indirect) and circuitous existence (incomprehensible form). (100)

(O Lord !) Even Snakes, and Octopus are worshipping You ; all the Vegetation and great men narrate Your Greatness and Vastness ; all the beings of the skies, lands, nether lands, oceans and deserts worship You alone. (101)

(O Lord !) Millions of Brahmas with four Countenances (four-facted), all the four Vedas, sing Your praises. Shivas also meditate (worship) on Your wonderous form, and millions of Vishnus (gods) also meditate on You. (102)

(O Lord !) All the goddesses like Saraswati, Sati and Lakshmi sing Your praises only ; many Sheshnags worship You alone ; but finally all have recognized Your countless forms (beyond their reach). (103)

Let us recognize the ab-initio, the incomprehensible, the source and cause of all suffering, and the Lord without any beginning (self-effulgent) and meditate on the Lord who is indivisible, unbreakable, free from any anguish, and a treasure of all wealth (formation of worldly pleasures). We should realise the value of the Lord who is indescribable, uncommitted (to any faith), free from duality, and any signs or symbols, and an embodiment of perfection. We should never, through a misconception, adopt any spells of magic or charm or any fallacies or code of dress (disguise). (104)

Beid Naraj Chhand

Let us always recite the True Name of the Lord who is benevolent, lovable, Timeless, free from upbringing (sustenance) and merciful. We should always think of Him, while performing actions of vicious nature, misconceptions of religious rituals, or fallacies. We should perceive His presence everywhere including various forms of alms-giving, gaining knowledge or discourses, meditation and those engaged in spiritual pursuits. Let us recognise Him as one without any vicious actions of immoral nature, or in any functions of duty and spiritualism. (105)

All the rituals like alms-giving, disciplined life (of austerities) or bathing at holy places of pilgrimage, godly-actions, performing oblations (or Yogas), religious sacrifices (sacrificial fires) like ashavmaidh, Kunjarmaid, and Rajsu are all (equally good) misconceptions or disillusions. All the Yogic rituals or exercises and various other disguises (garbs) should be considered as misguided concepts. In fact, apart from the Lord's Presence (form) all other activities should be considered as fallacies or fantacies. (106)

The Lord who is free from Caste and creed, without having mother and father (parents), and is always known to be unborn (is not born) and who has no friend, or foe, son or grandson, and who is omni-present (and is present wherever you Could think of). He should be known as indivisible, Mund (who bestows birth) ; Chand (having a mighty appearance), fearless, and destroyer of indivisible persons even. He is formless, colourless (without any race), and without any signs or symbols. Such a sublime indescribable Lord should not be considered as having any garb or guise. (Not committed to any faith). (107)

Brathing at holy places of pilgrimage, or performing yogic exercises (asan) or Yogic as per Narad's five-point schedule, or to lead a life of detachment or of a recluse or adopting many modes of ascetics, and then enjoying worldly pleasures, or visiting holy places and leading a life of discipline (austerity) by keeping fasts ; these are many ways (of leading this life) as seen in the world but without the attainment of the Lord, (by reciting His Name) who is without beginning, is incomprehensible, all other means are to be considered as misconceptions and fantacies. (108)

The worship of the Lord is the supreme and subline function from the beginning (of Time). The Lord is free from various acts or worldly attachments. O Lord ! You could be realized by inquisitiveness only ; You alone are enjoying all the worldy pleasures, and You cannot be established in position by anybody (being self-effulgent). (112)

O Lord ! You are helping Your saints in their functions (support of the saints), and are the destroyer of those, bereft of Your worship., You are enlightening with knowledge all those persons who are free from worldly attachment (through Your light) ; but You are the destroyer of the Sinners. (113)

O Lord ! You are the Lord-Sublime, You are the (centre) of the standards, and are flawless, and indestructible, and You are the only one free from physical entity. (limits). (114)

(O Lord !) You are radiant with brilliance, but are Yourself without any warmth. (heat); You are installing all (in position) but are Yourself beyond being installed. (being self- effulgent) ; You are crushing (suppressing) all afflictions from the beginning of Time ; and there is none else as wonderous (extra ordinary) as Yourself. (119)

(O Lord !) You are free from ripening (maturity) and free from suppressions ; You are representing the sweetness in fruits; You are specially present (pervasing) among the perpetrators of wickedness (vices), while You are equally present among the godly persons (saints), being uncommited to any faith. (120)

(O Lord !) You are the source of intoxication in the fruits, while You are the cause of inspiration among human hearts; You are restive (resisting) among the stumbling blocks also ; You represent all the three worlds and are the destroyer of the three worlds also. (Earth, Sky and netherlands). (121)

(O Lord !) You represent merriment and are free from any worldly pleasures also ; You are (always) all-pervasive and are equally detached (from the world). You are (always) all-pervasive and are equally detached (from the world). You are the only one (of Your class), being the symbol of One Lord ; You are the only saviour and the One Lord-Sublime. (122)

(O Lord !) You are being described (as the Greatest) and are bestower of blessings, but You are one and the Only One (of Your Type) ; You are involved (in everything) and are indescribable ; You are being described as without any signs and symbols (free from destiny). (123)

(O Lord !) You are pervading all the three worlds and are their destroyer as well ; You are present within all in all hues and colours. You are capable of breaking (dividing) up, but are without any robe (guise). (124)

(O Lord !) You have been known (described) as the greatest, and are powerful enough to reward us (for our actions). in a moment, and are the Prime-male among males, and are capable of destroying the Master of hordes of armies even. (125)

Padhri Chhand 'By the Lord's Grace' :

One day the soul asked the Prime-Soul a pecutiar (extra-ordinary) question saying that, "O Lord-to be realized by perception only, (feeling) throughout the fouages. What is this soul, which is prevalent throughout the Vegetable world, free from salvation (movement) and is indestructible, having the greatest brilliance and peculiar magnificence ? (127)

O Soul (of human-being) ! This is the eternal abode of Brahma (Lord), having infinite lusture but free from movement (salvation) and worldly aspirations, but discrimination, fallacy, action and Time have nothing to interfere with it, and is kind (benevolent) to friend and foe equally. (128)

The Lord replied,

Which cannot get drowned by trying to (sink) drown it ; which does not desiccate even on drying which cannot be divided by trying to cut it (in pieces) ; which cannot catch fire by trying to ignite it ; which cannot be eroded or sub-divided and broken by the attack of hundreds of weapons who has no friend or foe or Caste and creed or social obligation. (129)

The Lord (Brahm), even if attacked by millions of enemies and hundreds of times, cannot be eroded or sub-divided ; He does not get burnt even slightly by the fire ; and cannot be drowned by the ocean, or air cannot wither it. (130)

Then again the soul asked another question : that O indestructible, fearless, and indiscriminate Lord ! There are supposed to be four groups (claims) of alms-giving. Pray explain in detail the four types of alms ! (131)

The Lord (Prime-Soul) then replied, "One is royal Duty (Politics), one is Daan-Dharam (moral duty) ; another is householders" (policy) duty, and the last one is Salvation Policy, (Recluse policy). These are the four common worldly groups. Then again the Soul asked the Prime-soul. (132)

Out of the four policies of political religious or moral, hoseholders and Salvation, kindly explain their functions in detail with full deliberations. Also please explain that out of the three ages and many Yogas, who all were supposed to sustain them and promote them ? (133)

First of all, please explain the political policy as to how the kings were practising this political policy. During the Sat-Yug (age of Truthfulness) people were functioning like gods and giving alms and gave away lands, which are beyond description.(134)

It is not possible to describe the functioning of Kings during the three Yugas as that anecdote is unlimited (infinite) and their praise is beyond description. Whatever moral and religious duties they performed while doing Yagnas (sacrificial fires) alongwith many other functions, are in fact, indescribable. (135)

Before the advent of Kali-Yuga, there were some kings in the Indian sub-continent, about whom I am going to describe as to their might through the Lord's Grace. There happened to be one king Yudishtra, without any blemish who used to rule and sustain this land. (136)

He had destroyed the indestuntible kings of all the four corners and then through his great powers he had killed the Kauravs in the battle of Kurukeshetra. He had won victories twice over the whole land in the four sides, alongwith his brothers named Arjuna and Bhim etc who were great warriors. (137)

He had sent Arjuna to win over the northern Areas, while Bhim was made to run over the Eastern lands and Sehdev was sent to the South and Nakul to the western side. (138)

All these brothers had made various Rajas as very strong and fragmented the Kashatriyas and won over all the invincible kings and crushed all the mighty kings even. In the north , they broke up the country of Khurasan while winning ever the kings of the south and East. (139)

With the might of their sword they had gained victories over all the lands ; and in the Island of Jamboo the king Yudishtra's writ ran all over, and then collecting together all the Rajas of the land at one place, he celebrated his desire of performing Rajsu Yagna. (the victory Yagna). (140)

He sent letters to all the lands and gathered together all the virtuous and scholarly persons from all over and began performing the Rajsu Yagna. He called many kings of the areas, who were almost invincible, but he managed to win them over. (141)

Ruaal Chhand

Millions of workers (experts) of the art of performing Yagnas and millions of Brahmans were summoned there. Then he got made (arranged) foods of various types which they relished with great fervour. Many Rajas were utilised to collect the material spread over all the places, and the kings having great regard and faith in the religious rites, were busy in performing the Rajsu Yagna. (142)

The King, performing the Yagna, declared that each one of the Brahmins were to be given a cart load of gold, and ordered to give in alms one hundered elephants, a hundered chariots, two thousand horses and four thousand buffalos with golden horns, O king of kings, Give to the brahmins, each one of them, so much (that they are satiated). Listen to me carefully. (143)

Thus he gave gold, silver and copper in alms in abundance, and distributed lot of food among the poor and helpless people of the land. He even gave in alms clothes, silken clothes and weapons also ; even many beggars of distant lands, (who came there) became Rajas (rich) by accepting all this in alms. (144)

The fire-altars for the Yagna were spread over an area of four miles, and there were one thousand outlets (for the waste). One thousand Brahmins of the stature (of the Incarnation) of Ved Vyas were engaged in performing this fire-worship. A stream of ghee, almost as the trunk of an elephant, was being thrown in the fire-altar continuously and materials (worth millions) were being burnt in this sacrificial fire-worship. (145)

The dust from various holy places of pilgrimage along with the waters from these holy places were brought there. Even wood from various lands and eatables of delicious type were thrown in that fire-worship. Perceiving all this (happening) the Brahmins were getting surprised (perplexed) while the kings were feeling amused. (146)

Multi farious types of eatables were being brought and thrown in this sacrificial fire, and all around (on all four sides) Brahmins like Ved Vyas were reciting the (cantos) text of the four vedas ; and all over the land the songs of victory, hailing the King (Yudishtra) were being heard. (147)

By winning over the rebellious kings, the king Yudishtra, depriving the defeated Rajas of their wealth of millions, brought all the material to the Yagna and distributed among Brahmins (lavishly). Various types of incence were being brought there and burnt and the songs hailing the victory (of Yudishtra) were being heard in all the directions of the land. (148)

Having killed Jarasandh, (the King Yudishtra) subdued the Kauras, and in consultation with Krishna, performed this great Rajsu Yagna. Having won over many enemies, the Rajsu Yagna conntinued to be performed for many days. Then on the advice of Ved Vyas, the Ashavmaid yagna was performed. (149)

Killing of Sri Baran

A horse, with moon-like white coloured appearance, having black ears, and a golden coloured tail, with large (broad) eyes, and a high mien (neck), and from a good breed was let loose, who is jumping (dancing) around on the ground. He was being praised like the god of love (for beauty). Perceiving him all the kings were feeling amused, and king Yudishtra was equally pleased. (150)

Millions of musical instruments like lyre, bein, drum, flute, kettle drum, muraj, clarionet, mandal, mucnang, ching, Bung, clarionet, drum, small drum, tim brel, tambourine, and jhanj, were being sounded. Great bells were being used, anklets, and tinkling bells were producing great musical notes. (151)

The continuous sound of clarionets or other instruments were producing a musical note while the warrior's horses were neighing. Whichever direction the Yogna-horse was moving , the troopars were going and following him. The soldiers would fight with those who would stop the horse by teethering him, and would win him over by fighting it out. Whoever would compromise with them, was saved, else he would be killed out of anger (rage). (152)

The horse was made to move around in all the four directions, and having gained victory over all the kings, Yudishtra had performed the Ashavmaid Yogna, which was magnificent and beautiful. The Brahmans were given various types of alms, including silken clothes of various types, horses and elephants even. (153)

The Brahmins were provided with various types of benefactions, (gifts) alonwith abundant wealth, diamonds, clothes, silken dresses and loads of gold. All the mighty enemies got frightened on seeing all these gifts, and the great Sumer Mountain also was shaken up, fearing that king Yadishtra may not break it into pieces and distribute them among the Brahmins as loot. (154)

After rotating (moving) the horse in all the countries, it was killed in the Yagna-fire and cutting it into four pieces (parts) and distributed in all directions. One portion was given to Brahmins, one part to Kashatriyas and other portion to the women folk. The remaining fourth part was diverted as an offering in the sacrificial fire. (155)

After the reign of about fire hundered years over the country, (island) the Pandava (kings) sons (five Pandvas) went to Himalayas and perished there. After them the most beautiful and strong Parikshit became the King of the land of Bharat, who was a treasure (wealth) of magnificent appearance, kind, impregnable and an illumined king. (156)

Here starts the eposide of the Kingdom of King Prikshit.

Ruaal Chhand

One day Prikshit consulted all (his noble men) on an important subject as how to perform Gaj-medh Yogna in a systematic manner. He called his friends and ministers one by one and pondered over the matter. Then he sent for an alephant with white ivory tusks with tactful skill, without going into more discussions or Consultations. (157)

There he got a Yogna-Circle prepared on a tract of land extending over eight miles (kos). Then he arranged to collect eight thousand workers involved in performing Yogna (fire-worship) and eight lakh Brahmins. Then he arranged to build eight thousand outlets of various types (along the side of the Yogna site) which would maintain a continuous flow stream of ghee, as taink as the think of an elephant. (for this sacrificial fire). (158)

Many kings from different lands were also called and were given many beautiful gifts with lot of honour and pomp and show. The King Preekshit gave diamonds, clothes, silken robes, horses and elephants to many kings with great embellishments. (159)

Thus he continued to rule the country for many years to come. Many renowned kings like Karan Dev, who were his enemies, were won over by him and were divested of all their properties. One day King Preekshit went on a hunting expidition, and on sighting a deer, he chased him, where he happened to meet a scholarly ascetic.(160)

The king asked the Rishi "O Rishi ! Has any deer passed away on this side ?" But the mendicant neither opened his eyes nor gave any answer to the King. On perceiving a dead snake lying there, king Prikshit Biched it up with the corner of his bow and throwing it around the mendicant's neck, the king-emperor went away from there. (161)

When the ascetic opened his eyes, he got frightened on seeing the snake, and flew into arage with red-blooded eyes. He then cursed the perpetrator of this heinous crime saying that he would be britten by the King Cobra and would die wthin the next seven days. This curse of his will always bear fruit being a reality. (162)

When the king heard about this curse, he got scared and got a house built. This white royal palace was þuilt in the midst of (river) Ganga, which could not be affected with the touch of air even, so there was no possibility of the snake sneaking there causing a snake-bite. But when the exact time approached, the cobra, did bite the king.(163)

The king had ruled the country for sixty years, two months and four days, and then his soul mingled with the Prime-soul. (he died). Then the great monarch janmeja ruled over Bharat land, who was a great warrior, an asetic leading a life of austerity, and a great scholar of the four Vedas and having the knowledge of the fourteen worlds. (164)

Here the rule of King Prikshit is completed.

Now King Janmeja was enshrined as the King (of Bharat)

Rual Chhand

Having been born in the royal (house) family, Janmeja became a renowned king, who was a great warrior, an ascetic with austerity having the knowledge of the four (Vedas) and the fourteen sciences. He heard the story of his father's death and getting enraged, he sent for all the Brahmins. He asked them about the measures to be taken for revenge and the Brahmins suggested the performance of Sarap-medh Yogna. So the king Janmeja got himself fully involved in preparing for the great Sarap-medh Yogna with great fervour. (165)

He got a fire-altar built in an area of one mile (koh) with special means, where all the Brahmins started chanting the mantras in performing the sacrificial fire-worship, where countless snakes came and dropped into the tank. Throughout the land, the King was being haited as the greatest religious king. (166)

Even snakes of one hundred hand lengths, two-hundred, three hundred, four hundred, five-hundred lengths, six hundred hand-lengths came creeping and dropped into the fire-pit. Even snakes of a thousand hand-lengths came and got burnt in the fire-pit. (168)

Bhujang Prayat Chhand

Thus the King performed the Sarap-medh Yagna, and the Brahmins were busy in carrying out the fire-worship, while Snakes of various species were dropping dead there being burnt. All the countless snakes, who were being attracted towards the fire-pit with the force of magic charm, got burnt in the (king's) fire-pit. (169)

There were many eight hand-length long snakes, seven hand-length snakes with large necks ; many with twelve hand-length, and many snakes as long as one-Yojan, were dropping dead (being unconscious) unknowingly in the fire-pit. (170)

Then there were snakes as long as two-yojan, three-yojan, four yojan ; many snakes like the first, the thumb, or a hand-span, or one and a half hand-span or many as long as half a thumb, came creeping. (171)

Many snakes as long as four Yojan, or four miles (koh) long were burning in the fire-pit as if ghee was being burnt. The burning snakes were seen knocking their fangs, fuming and fretting or whizzing loudly. When the snake drops in the pit, there is a flame of light (fire) springing up. (172)

Many snakes of Seven Yojan length, or eight miles length, or as fat as eight Yajan were burnt giving a frightful scene and millions of snakes were burnt to ashes in this Yagna. Being frightened the Tuchhak (Cobra King) fled away just as the crow flies away on sighting a falcon. (173)

Many pedigrees of snakes got themselves burnt in the fire-worship ; and whosoever had escaped, were collected and tied together and thrown into the fire-pits. The king-cobra Tuchhak ran towards Indra-puri. Due to the heat generated by the chanting of (magic-spells) incantations, Indra-puri started burning so (god) Indra got worried). (174)

In the end, the cobra Tachhak being mesmerised by the incantations, also came and tumbled near the fire-pit. Seeing him fall, a famous Brahmin named Astik, Confronted the king and had a long discussion and wrangling with him, during which he became furious. He was greatly enraged and started rebuking the king by plucking a string from his robe. (175)

He told the king to abondon the Yagna of snakes and meditate on one Lord only, whose benevolence enables us to chant these incantations, which enable us to embellish all the worldly functions. O King-emperor ! O fountani of learning ! Listen to me ! If you care to follow my instructions, then you will shine in the firmanent like the sun and the (god of) fire. (176)

O King ! Your moon-like form (appearance) will shine on the Earth, with the radiance of the sun, your fame will pervade everywhere. You will have the treasure of all the ten, four and fourteen sciences. O scholar of the Shastras and king of expert archery skill ! Pray abandon this Yagna of snakes, and give me this boon in alms ! O King ! if you are not prepared to give up the Yagna of Snakes, then I will immolate myself in the fire of this Yagna, and invoke a curse on you, so that you will also be burnt (in the fire-pit), Else I will stab myself with a dagger. O King! Listen to me Then you will be called a great-sinner for killing a Brahim. (178)

On hearing the Brahmin's dialogue (speech) the king rose from his throne and abandoned the Sarap-Yagna, being conducted for taking revenge of his father's enmity. Then he sent for the great scholar of Vedas, grammar, and various sciences, the (Rishi) Vyas and consulted him for long. (179)

Vyas then told the king that he had heard about the King of Kanshi, having two beautiful daughters, who were an embodiment of beauty and splendour. You should win them over by killing many (famous) great villains (despots). On hearing this, the king immediately left for Kanshi alongwith camel-loads of arms and weapons.(180)

The army started marching towards the Eastern side like a whirlwind. The great warriors with endurance and perseverance, taking up their weapons, launched an attack. The king of Kanshi, out of fear, hid himself in the fort. The army then encircled the fort, while the king of Kanshi meditated on Shiva. (181)

A great battle ensued, and the skill and art of wielding weapons was greatly seen in action. Many warriors, armed with weapons, were seen falling down being smitten into two (pieces), with the onslaught of arms. The Rajput warriors wearing the robes, studded with jewels and diamonds, fell down on the ground. Due to their being cut into two pieces, even Shiva got disturbed from his meditation. (182)

Even Kashatriyas, trying to hold their fighting traditions, had fallen on the ground in the battle-field. The beating of drums and sounding of trumpets was heard, and the warriors were fulfilling their pledges by challenging the enemy. One could see at places either (cut) trunks, heads or bodies pierced with arrows moving all around. (183)

The coats of mail of the elephants had broken down, and their bodies were wounded. The great mighty warriors had been crushed. The coats of mail and shields were cut into pieces, while beautiful fly whisks were rolling on the ground. Many persevering warriors, due to the onslaughts of various weapons, were lying fallen on the ground. (184)

The king Janmeja had been victorious over the king of Kashi, having killed his huge army. Then Janmeja got married with both his daughters. Shiva even was shaken up having seen this sight. Then both the kings patched up with a compromise and the king of Kanshi got back his kingdom. Both the kings then developed great friendship and all the functions were completed with great eclat. (185)

Janmeja was given in the dowry by the king of Kanshi, an accomplished maid, who was extremely beautiful and (scholarly) learned ; and many diamonds, robes of honour and horses with black ears, were also given to him. Many white coloured intoxicated elephants were also received by him. (186)

The King was very much delighted, having married the Kanshi princesses and then gave sumptuous food etc. to all the Brahmins . Various types of great elephants were given away in alms. After some time both the queens gave birth to two sons, who were most beautiful. (187)

One day Janneja happened to see the glamorous maid, who appeared as if moonlight had pierced through the moon. Or one could say, she looked like lightning or a personification of learning was moving around, or as if the beauty of the lotus-flower had shone forth. (188)

Or she appeared like a necklace of flowers, looking beautiful like the moon. Or she was as Charming as Padmani or a flower or a premier blossoming creeper ; and an aroma of a fragrant flower was coming out (oozing out) of her body. (189)

Or a fairy (godly princess) was moving around on the land ; or a fairy or a dancing girl making fun and frolic, or mercury seemed to be running around in the form of a beautiful girl, or a betel-nut root or the root of a lotus-flower were dancing around. (190)

It appeared she was a necklace (rosary) of beauty and merriment studded together; or the Lord, King-emperor, had enthroned her as the queen of women0folk or she was a snake-princess, or the spouse of (god) Indra or she was a conch-shell (fairy) flower, painting or Padmini herself. (191)

Her painting like marvellous and beautiful appearance was shining briliantly; She was beauty and youthful exnberance personified. She was a learned lady, who could perform scientific (scholarly) acts. She was an embodiment of learning and righteousness, as she was reciting knowledge verbatim. (192)

The King Janmeja had seen her beauty, as excelling that of the snake princess even, as she was radiant like an endless flame of fire and light. The king Janmeja, considering her beauty as such, was delighted with her and enjoyed her sexual pleasure, giving her all the materials of embellishment and display. (193)

Janmeja then developed more affection and love for her, and discarded the queens even. Once known as a maid to the world, was now a most fortunate woman. She gave birth to a great warrior like son, adept in all the worldly knowledge and scholarly in all the sciences. (194)

The king had named his first son as asmed (offering of a horse) and when the second son was born, he was named asumedhan ; then the son of the maid was called ajai singh (Invincible), who proved to be a great warrior, a great fighter, a knight and was a renowned person. (195)

He proved to be a sturdy, healthy and most powerful person, who was a great warrior, and an expert in wielding weapons. In fact, he killed many mighty villains (despots) and gained victories over great enemies as Sri Ram Chander (had won Ravana). (196)

One day king Janmeja went on a hunting expedition and sighting adeer, started chasing him on his horseback, thus crossing over to the borders of the other country (enemy territory). The king, having travelled for long, was tired and seeing a pond rushed towards it for drinking water. (197)

After drinking water the king went to sleep. Then from the pond appeared a (male) horse through divine power. The horse had a union with the glorious female horse (of the king) resulting in her becoming pregnant, and she gave birth to precious horse with black ears after some time. (198)

After possessing this invaluable horse, the king performed an asmed Yagna. He then gained victories over all other kings, and all his functions were successful. Then he installed the standard of Yagna, having got a fire-pit made for the Yagna. He fed all the Brahmins with sumptuous food to their satisfaction. (199)

After giving millions of things in alms he got many tasty foods prepared. The king performed a great religious feat in (this age of) KalYuga. As soon as the illustrious Raj Bala got up to view this scene. (200)

The moment she got up, due to the wind (dust strom), the front portion of the queen's body was exposed, with the covering cloth flying off, and the queen became naked. Seeing the naked queen (female) all the Brahmins and Kashatriyas laughed, which, enraged the king (seeing the queen's disgrace) who caught hold of all the Brahmins (as captives). He then burnt all the naughty brahmins by throwing them in the fire-pits full of milk and rice preparation and sugar. (201)

First he got all the brahmins shaved off (their heads), and put some pads on their heads and threw on their heads hot milk rice pudding and thus he killed all the brahmins by burning them. (202)

Many brahmins were tied and bricked alive in walls ; and many renowned brahmins were hanged and many others were drowned (sunk) in water or burnt in fire. Many of them were sawed in two and many others were tied and torn apart. (203)

Thus king janmeja was accused of the killing of brahmins, and his body suffered from increased leprosy. then he called some other brahmins and made compromise with them (showing love for them). He asked them to ponder over his fault/sin, resulting in his suffering from leprosy. Then he asked them to tell him about some remedy for it, so that he could be pardoned for his sin and this body ailment could be cured. (204)

All the brahmins, who were sent for came to the palace. All the great seers like Vyas werealso called, who consulted the Shastras (Hindu books of lore) and said that the king had murdered the brahmins (by offering them) in the bipar medh Yogna. (205)

(They said), O King of Kings and fountain of learning ! The whole world knows about the bipar-medh Yagna performed by you. This sin has been committed by You unwittingly, without any body's suggestion. But the Lord's will finally prevails and whatever is destined for someone, comes to pass. (automatically). (206)

O King ! You should now listen to the eighteen Chapters of Mahabharat which would cast away your affliction (suffering). Then the king called the seer Vyas and discarding his egoism (pride) he fell prostrate at his feet and started listening to the recitation of ther Mahabharta (Chapters). (207)

Vyas then said, O King of Kings and fountain of learning ! Listen. There used to live a great king (Rama) in the land of Bharat, and he had earned great honour and recognition by offering (in sacrifice) his kingdom to his brother Bharat. (208)

In the dynasty of Bharat, a king Yadu was known for his vast learning (of four Vedas and ten other studies) and then in his family was born a king named Santneu, from whom descended two princes Kaurav and Pandav. (209)

Then in his clan there was (born) a great king Dhrutrashtra), who was a great warrior, who was destined to impart knowledge to his enemies. In his family, the cruel-minded Kauravs were born, who indulged in the act of destroying their whole clan like a chisel (metallic wedge). (210)

They had placed Bhisham at the helm of their armed forces, and a bloody war was fought against the sons of King Pandav ; in that war the great warrior Arjuna had challenged the enemy ; as he was an expert in archery, so he had shot many arrows. (211)

In fact Arjuna had shot a continuous stream of arrows in the battle-field, and killed Bhisham alongwth his whole army. There was made a bed of arrows, on which Bhisham was made to lie down, and that day Pandavas won a great victory, which gave them a sigh of relief and happiness. (212)

After Bhisham, Daronacharya was the next to command the Kauravas army, and there was a dreadful battles (between the two forces). Dhrishat druman killed Daronacharya, who gave up his life. Thus Daronacharya went to heavens from the batttle-field. (213)

Then the third warrior to take charge of Kauravas (forces) was Karan. A bloody and dreadful battle was fought ; when Arjuna killed Karan by cutting away his head. After his fall, Yudishtra's rule was established more or less, fully. (214)

After that the fourth commander of Kauravas was the great warrior Salh, which was pinching to the enemy like a colic pain. He crushed the Pandava's army mauling them badly. Then Yudishtra with great skill (with a spear) pierced a lance through his hand, and king Salh fell down in the basttle-field, then king Yudishtra killed him by piercing through him. (his body). (215)

Choupaiee :

The day King Salh was killed, Kaurvas had realised that their defeat was certain. After the warrior Salh, asthothama became the fifth Commander of their army, who crushed (killed) millions of soldiers in one day. (forenoon). (216)

He killed the great warrior and charioteer Drishtduman and crushed the Pandava army. All the Pandava's five sons were killed, and a great battle was fought in the age of Doapar. (217)

Then Daryodan got furious with rage and fought against Bhim Sain. Though Daroyodhan had never been defeated in the battle, but the mighty god of death overpowered him, and he was killed. (218)

Bhujang Prayat Chhand

There a great battle raged between Bhim Sain and Daryodhan, which resulted in disturbing the contemplation (meditation) of Shiva (in the Lord's pursuit) even, and he started dancing. there one could hear the sound of the weapons of warriors striking against the enemy with cracking, noise ; the heads had been separated from the (body) trunks, and some human bodies were lying pierced with arrows. Many warriors had fallen on the ground by fighting against each other in different ways. Many bodies cut into two pieces, with the striking of weapons or sharp arms edges. The elephants of Kaurva's, smitten into two, were lying on the ground in the battle-field. The yultures were making merry on sighting the bodies of warriors lying on the ground in the battle-field. (220)

The mighty warriors were (kept) busy in the battle, fighting in the crowded arena,. They were laughing, roaring, striking or patting their arms (to show their strength) and were challenging each other from both sides. They were showing their prowess in the battle arena persistently. They were raising their arms and were striking their maces, swirling them around. (221)

The golden edges of the maces were shining brilliantly. The raised standards in the battle-field appeared beautiful and magnificent like the flames of fire. The warriors were moving around in the battle-field and were wielding their weapons in the battle arena. Both sides were praising their own warriors for striking the others skillfully. (222)

There Bhim Sain was wielding his weapons with stout and sturdy arms (with strength) and was crushing the enemy troops. On the other side Daryodhan, as an army Commander, was proving his Kashatriya duties prominently and was performing his wonderous acts of waging war which were purifying the mind. (223)

Both the warriors were looking magnificent with their arm-bands, embellishments, and nevklaces of rubies and both were close associates. Both the commanders were persevering and mighty and both looked like King Mandhata or Raja Bhoj. (224)

Both the warriors carried quivers of piercing arrows. Both were armed with weapons and were fighting furiously. Both were capable of carrying out sturdy functions and both were having long arms reaching upto their kness. Both were king-emperors capable of improving upon the glory of Hindus. (225)

Both were carrying arms and were benevolent in outlook and were great sincene Hindus to the core. Both were capable of wielding their arms and kings (with canopies) of repute. Both were great fighters, capable of fighting great battles.(226)

Both of them were capable of destroying the enemy territories and then establishing them also. Both were conquerors of the enemy and were themselves mighty warriors. Both were in the forefront of the warriors and possessed strong arms (were powerful). Both were like the suns of their army or moons of their troops. (Both were shining like Sun and moon). (227)

Both were famous king-emperors and well versed in weapon wielding ; both were warriors in the battle-field and would be victorious in any battle. Both were a picture of (personification of) the prime-light (prime-soul) and both were expert archers. Both were embodiments of (shield) protection and both were destroyers of the despots. (villains). (228)

Both were mighty enough to destroy the enemy territory, and both were capable of re-establishing them again. Both were a personification of the flame of light (brilliance), and mighty warriors. Both were proud like the elephant (careless) and resembled the king Vikram. (in qualities). Both were adept in wielding arms (weapons) and both were fully armed (with various weapons). (229)

Both were powerful warriors and both were furious with rage. Both were fully trained in the art of weaponry and were a fountain of magnificence (beauty). Both were sovereigns (with canopies) and protectors of religion (virtous). Both were expert warriors in waging war ; and relentless in performing cruel acts. (230)

Both were involved in the battle of nerves in the worldly arena ; both were patting their shoulders to show off their prowess ; and were roaring by thumping their feet (on the ground). Both were capable of harming the Kashatriyas and destroying the Kashatriyas. Both were carrying swords in their hands and were going to honour the battle-field (with their might). (231)

Both were having beautiful personalities, with virtuous thoughts. (high thinking) ; both were fighting in the battle of life uninterrupted. Both had their swords soaked in blood, and both were harming the interest of Kashatriyas. Both were born from kashatriya mothers, and both were king-emperors. (232)

Both had protected themselves with double coats of mail and were watching the battle scene in the whole area. The Kings, who had gone to heavens (killed) were calling them also (towards the same fate) ; people were yelling for them, shouting cries of praise and honour. The king of demi-gods was wondering and the whole Earth was trembling (with the impact of war). (233)

Finally Raja Daryodhan was killed in the battle-field. with the spread of this news (like wild fire) all the warriors fled from the battle-field. Then Yudishtra ruled over Kaurvas without any (enmity) revenge. Then they went away to Himalayas and perished there. (234)

There they had waged a battle against a celestial musician. Bhurpal had spread out a hazy colour, looking beautiful. There Bhim Sain had flung up elephants in the sky, which are still moving around in the skies, as they have not come back to the Earth yet. (235)

At that instant, Janmeja hearing the story, laughed and said with disgust (distrust) that the story of throwing the elephants was a sheer gossip. At this utterance, Raja Janmeja's the scion of Kashatriyas, leprosy did not disappear from the nose which resulted in his death. (236)

Choupaiee :

Thus Raja Janmeja ruled over the country, till the age of, eighty-four years, seven months and twenty-four days ; then the death-knell was sounded, and he died.(237)
Here the episode of Janmeja is completed.

Choupaiee :

Janmeja king had two sons, asmedh and asmedhar. Both were great warriors and powerful kings. They were very brave, great warriors, mighty and expert archers, whose praises are being Sung in all the homes throughout the country. (238)

Both were great warriors and great experts in archery, and the three worlds would shudder (shiver) before them out of fear. They were king-emperors and of indomitable courage. The whole world would regard them with honour and regard as they were full of splendour and glory. (239)

On the other side Ajai Singh was also a great warrior , a great king and possessed knowledge of all sciences (great learning). He was without any blemish, unparalleled, and with indescribable might, who had crushed many great warriors. (240)

He had been victorious in many battles, and did not spare anyone's life, having all the weapons and coats of mail. He was the greatest warrior, having all the virtues and the whole would had acknowledged his supermacy. (241)

At the time of his death, king Janmeja held consultations with his ministers as to who should succeed him on the throne, and from the angle they were examining the qualities of the prince for his deservingness for the Kingship. (242)

Out of the three sons, who was deserving to be the next king, and who should be selected for being the king. One factor came to their mind that the son of the maid was not worthy of becoming a king and did not deserve all the pleasures of the kingdom. (243)

After lot of deliberatios, the eldest son Asumedh was declaered to be the next king, and he was hailed by all the ministers. After taking over the reins of kingdom he performed the last rites of Janmeja, and there was lost of jubilation and rejoicing in the family of Asumedh. (244)

The second brother of Asumedh was bestowed with lot of wealth and riehes like rubies and diamonds and was given the status of a minister with the second rank. (in command). (245)

The thirdbrother, the son of the maid, was appointed the commander in charge of the armed forces. He was given the status of Bakhshi for revenue collection. So he organised the whole army (as per his orders). (246)

On assuming charge of the kingdom, all were happily established. The king then got interested in dance and fun and frolic. In his royal court there were 1364 musical instruments and millions of bands for music. (247)

The second brother was always drunk and would be keenly watching dancing sessions (ballets) embollished with the flavour of perfumes. Both the brothers totally neglected the royal functions of the kingdom and Ajai Singh was functioning as the sovereign (in actual practice). (248)

Thus both the brothers, controlling the functions of the kingdom, totally forgot and neglected the duties of a king and both were always drunk and became unworthy of ruling the country. (249)

Couplet

Ajai Singh could kill anyone he willed and could bestow favours on those, he was pleased with. Whosoever was in his good books , was retained and he could appoint his own selected persons to the higher posts at will. (250)

Choupaiee

Thus when Ajai Singh started functioning like this all the subject (was) came under his spell, and the courtiers including noblemen were under his control, who were looking upto the king earlier for any favours to fulfil their aspirations. (251)

One day the three brothers decided to play the game of chess. During the play, one brother got furious over something and he remarked something, so that Ajai Singh could hear it. (252)

Look, what he is doing, the manoeuver is different but he makes a completely different strategem. So how could he, a son of the maid, kill the enemy ? (253)

Choupaiee

The two princes now openly declared that they had purposely planned to play this game, so that they could decide during this game, the order and merit of each brother alongwith his authority and command. Saying this, one brother took charge of all the wealth including rubies and diamonds, while the second one took control of all the horses, camels and elephants. (254)

The three princes made division of the army into three parts and took charge of their own portion. Then they pondered how to throw the dice, so as (to win the game) gain maximum advantage. no one knew how the game would turn out to be and with what results. (255)

Thus the game of chess started, which was being watched by all the courtiers and noble-men, including all lower and higher grade officials. Thus jealousy erupted between the three brothers in the form of a flame of fire, which normally destroys the kings, as is well known. (256)

Then the game developed into a stage where all the three were engaged in a do or die (battle) quarrel and it appeared difficult that there could be anny settlement or compromise. On the first instance, all the wealth and diamonds were put on stake, and then all the horses and elephants were put on stake, which they lost completely. (257)

The jealousy between the two sides gathered momentum and the three warriors stood up with unsheathed swords, alongwith their supporters. With the striking of swords there were streaks of lightning, and many corpses were laid down on the ground (many were killed). (258)

The hotgoblins and demons were moving around in great joy and the vultures alongwith jackals were making loud noises in happiness. The ghosts and demons were dancing and singing in joy and at times sounds of evil spirits could be heard. (259)

At times one could see the swords striking producing flashes of light. Many trunks of the warriors alongwith those of elephants were lying scattered on the ground. At places the wounded elephants were shrieking (in pain) and somewhere one could see many dead warriors (lying asleep) in the battle field. (260)

At places there were seen wounded horses lying on the ground and neighing in pain, and at places there were corpses of the slain warriors (despatched to heavens). Somewhere broken shields and coats of iron were lying scattered or the iron-coats (of protection) for elephants and horses were lying broken. (261)

Somewhere vamps were making merry and at places the demons were dancing with clapping of hands. On all the four sides many warriors were moving around, alongwith the musical tunes of Maru and Sanduria ragas. (times of sorrow). (262)

The god-of-death was roaring in the battle-field like the thundering clouds. The demons and evil spirits were moving frightened in hordes. On one side of the battle-field one could hear the Maru-Raga, which prompted even the weaklings not to run away from the battle-field. (263)

Now the warriors could depend (survive) only on the strength of their Swords. Many elephants had lost their trunks. Somewhere evil spirits and hotgoblins were dancing around, and horrible looking demons and ghosts were running away. (264)

Many mutilated bodies were seen running around ; princes and kings were fighting while establishing their positions, while the unstrung music was being heard in Nature, hearing which even the weaklings would not flee. (from the battle-field). (265)

Millions of drums and weaver's instruments were sounded and played upon, while the warriors were praising the thunder of militant (Rajas) music. The swords were striking like the flash of lightning while there was a continous stream of arrows being shot. (byboth sides). (266)

The blood-dripping wounded warriors were moving around as if they were engaged in the revelery of Holi (with coloured waters). At places one could see coats of mail or warriors fallen on the ground. At some places vultures were shriecking while at other places dogs were barking. (267)

The army of the two elder brothers then fled away (from the battle-field). No one could confront Ajai Singh, either noble man or a helpless pauper. All took sheller in the beautiful land of Orissa, where the Raj. Tilak (annointed king) belonged to, who possessed good qualities. (268)

Due to drinking wine, the kings, who forsake their legitimate duties, spoil their functioning to such an extent. So Ajai Singh usurped the kingdom of both (brothers) and declared himself as the king ; and became the king-emperor. (269)

The defeated (king) Asumedh was going ahead, followed by a huge army and they stopped at a place, where Raj Tilak used to rule, and the kingship only suited him. (270)

There lived a renowned Pandit, who was a great scholar and also possessed great virtues and qualities. He was the (teacher) Guru of Raja (Tilak) and all used to worship him. No one else, except him, was known or had recognition. (271)

Bhujang prayat Chhand

At some places people were reciting the divine knowledge (teachings) or at places there were discourses on Vedas; or at other places Brahmins were worshipping the Lord-Sublime. The renowned Pandit had one characteristic that he was having a robe of the tree-leaves and lived on air only. (272)

Somewhere Siam Veda was being recited with musical tunes, and at some places Yujar Veda was being read to gain acclaim. At places Rig Veda was being read out and at some places the great Atharban Veda was being studied. Somewhere the study revolved around the Lord-Sublime while at other places the secrets of Vishnu were being discussed. (273)

At places the discourse on the ten incarnatious was being given ; that renowned Brahmin was a scholar (treasure) of all the fourteen sciences (learning). All of them had pinned their hopes on the Lord and were not bothered about worldly desires or aspirations (disinterested) and were totally free from any worldly pleasures. (274)

Someone was studying the removal of the effect of venom by incantation snake-bite treatment) or someone was studying the Shiva's Savar magic spell and somebody was engaged in acrobats. Someone was studying Greek language, Turkish and the warrior's art of fighting. Someone was learning Persian and someone else was studying the art of protection against striking weapoms (to save attacks). (281)

Someone was teaching the art of curing the wounds inflicted by weapons, or the art of removing the protective cover of coats of mail or the beautiful art of using shields (for protection) and the art of collecting wealth by imparting knowledge of the Lord's attainment or gaining Salvation. (282)

Someone was giving lessons in dancing or somewhere the various classical types of music were being taught. Somewhere the study of holy Shastras or the Semetic studies were being carried out. Somewhere the art of writing or the languages of various lands were being taught. At some places, the study of various means and ways of worship was being given preference to other studies. (283)

Somewhere one could see a tigers suckling the calf or the tiger taking the cows for grazing and the snakes were also moving around calmly (without being furious with venom spitting) and at places the story of the enemy's wielding weapons was being narrated in praise. (284)

(The atmosphere there was such) that the enemy and the friend were being treated on par, an enemy like a friend or vice versa ; where a proud brave Kashatriya was treated on par with an ordinary Kashatriya. At that place , free from all malice or enmity, the furious king Ajai Singh had come, who had tried to kill asumedh in a battle. (285)

Both the brothers got frightened with fear on seeing the son of the maid. Ajai Singh and they took shelter under the protection of the renowned Brahmin. They remarked that they would give cow and gold in alms, provided they were given protection. So O Gurdev ! (O Guru) we seek your protection, as we have taken shelter under your care. (286)

Choupaiee :

Then King Ajai Singh sent his emissaries to that place, who were fed by the renowned Pandit to their fill. After having food, emissaries said that the Asumedh brothers, after being defeated, had sought his protection. (287)

O Pandit ji ! Either hand over those two brothers by hand cuffing them to us else you will also be killed alongwith them. In that case no alms would be given and no worship carried out, instead you will be inflicted all sorts of sufferings. (288)

(O Pandit !) Have you embraced both the kings (under your care) ? Why are you so pensive and hesitant in handing them over to us ? If you do not hand over these two brothers, then we will no longer be your disciples. (289)

The Pandit went away, saying that he would give the reply next morning. Then the Pandit had a bath next morning. He offered prayers and satisfied the gods and his forefathers with his worship. Then he applied tilak (mark) of saffron and came to the King's court. (290)

The Brahmin said, "Both those men have not been seen by me, and they have not sought my asylum. Whosoever has told you, has lied. O king ! You are the king-emperor. (291)

O King ! king of kings ! You are the master of all, having the crown over your head. We are praying for your greatness and wish you that your kingdom lasts for ever and you continue to be the king of kings (for ever). (292)

The king replied, if they wanted their own safety, then they should hand over those two brothers, (held) in chains to him. Then he would give them away as offering to the god of fire and would himself worship the Brahmin like his father. (293)

If they have not hid themselves at their place, then they should accept his offer. They would prepare food for them, which they would eat alongwith the three of them together. (294)

All the brahmins went back to their homes (saying that they will consult each other and then decide). Then they called their sons, elders (father and grand father) and said that their religious duty (Dharam) will be destroyed, if they decided to hand them over, and if they decided to eat the food (alongwith the King) then their actions would be considered as unbecoming, and worth destruction. (295)

They considered that this king, son of the maid, was very powerful, who had crushed the hordes of Kashatriyas by defeating them. He had gained the control of the kingdom through his prowess and driven thses two (brothers) out of his territorial boundaries. (296)

Totak Chhand

When the Brahmins heard this thing, the brahmins decided that Ajai Singh, the son of the maid, was a great warrior and a cruel king, having a vicious conduct and bad intentions. (297)

If they have their food alongwith him, then they would be polluting their very life in this world and by not accepting his offer, they would be facing death. So "O friends! Let us decide something, which would save our honour in the world." (298)

After consultations, the Brahmins informed (told) the king, " O king-emperor ! Having faith of the highest order." Listen (to us) ! You are the only king on Earth, who is fearless, and invincible. You are beyond our comprehension, limitless, having infinite courage, indestructible, unbreakable, mighty and most powerful. (299)

There is not even a Single Kashatriya on this land. O mighty King, "Listen. This is the truth and saying this, the Brahmin's got up and and went away." But then the spy came and informed about the presence of both brothers, (Asumedh and Asdumed) hidden inside. (300)

Then Ajai Singh was furious with rage and in his fury he launched an attack with his forces from all the four sides. They reached the spot where the princes were hiding, so both of them jumped from the top of the house to the Brahmin's house for seeking his support and protection. (301)

The assembly of Brahmins got together and consulted one another. So they finally decided to take them under their protection and poudered over the next step, so that they may not annoy the king and both these brothers could be saved also. (302)

After deciding like this, the Brahmins decided to break their sacred threads. Those fellows, who had accepted this proposal and had broken their threads, became Vaishas and started doing business. (303)

Those Brahmins who did not break the threads, the two princes had food alongwith them. Then the spies told the King Ajai Singh, that there was still one distinguishing feature between the Brahmins and the princes. (304)

Then king Ajai Singh told the Brahmins that if they could not hand over the two princes, then they should give away their daughter. Hearing this the brahmins were dumb-founded and then went away to their homes. (305)

All of them got together and pondered over the matter ; all of them were in great mourning (sadness). The king was bent upon taking them as Captives while they were very adamant that they will go alongwith the princes. (306)

Then the renowned Brahmin persisted and the king took away his daughter, who was beautiful, graceful, and magnificent (radiant) in her appearance . That sanodh woman gave birth to sons, who were later known as belonging to Sanodh Caste. (307)

Apart from this, all other sons born to the Kashatriyas from Brahmin mothers living there, gave rise to many other castes of Kashatriyas. The brahmins, who had joined the king in alliance, were called Rajput's later. (308)

Having won over them, the king Ajai Singh then attacked Digvijai and his might was accepted as invincible, and he became famous all over the land . All of those, who joined him by offering their daughters in marriage, were later called Rajputs. (309)

Those, who did not agree to give their daughters, were fought against and they were uprooted completely. They lost in troops, power and wealth and started doing business. (310)

The persons, who did not compromise but fought (against Ajai Singh) were burnt alive in the great fire. They got burnt in the fire-pit without having any inkling even. Thus a great (sacrificial) fire-worship was performed with the sacrifice of the Kashatriyas. (311)

Thus the (chapter of the) Kingdom of Ajai Singh is completed.

Tomar Chhand. By the Lord's Grace

At the age of eighty-two years, eight months and two days, having ruled the country with great blessedness, the king Ajai Singh died. (312)

Now listen further ! The king of kings, the beautiful treasure of the fourteen sciences (learning) and having studied the twelve (ten plus two) incantations (of magic) and worthy of worship on the land. (313)

The king Jag appeared on the scene ; who was full of love and affection (for all). having a handsome form (appearance). His glory was illuminating more than that of the sun, and his splendour was inexhaustible. (314)

He sent for many renowned brahmins and began performing the pasu-medh Yagna (with animal sacrifices). He called some brahmins, well versed in astrology, who called themselves Kam rup (having abode at holy places) for the Yagna. (315)

The King specially sent for some brahmins from the holy place Kamrup and collected various great men of the world and as per the customs of sacrificial fire, he threw them all in the sacrificial fire. (316)

For each one of these sacrifices, the brahmins would recite ten times each incantation of sacrifice from the Vedas, Having used goats for the sacrificial fire worship, the brahmins gained lot of wealth from the king. (317)

After performing the Pasu medh Yagna and making his kingdom renowned all over, the king ruled till the age of eighty-eight years and two months. (318)

Then the mighty (god of) death, which has destroyed the whole world with its onslaughts, took the life of the invincible king, who was supported to be indestructible, whose kingdom was known for its splendour and considered imperishable. (319)

Here the kingdom of the fifth king is accomplished with grace.

Tomar Chhand Through Thy Grace

Then the king named Muni, who was like a lion in prowess, ruled the land. He also gained victories over many invincible enemies and ruled with an iron hand. (320)

He did not spare even a single enemy. and killed all the foes. He ruled over the country like an invincible king and usurped the land of other kings. Thus his sovereignity over the land was recognised. (321)

He was a great warrior, with a splendour unknown so far and was a great fighter without seeking any help of other kings. He was a mighty warrior, without any blemish and his rule was considered to be indestructible. (322)

Thus king muni, having won over all other kings, through his prowess of archery and having killed many enemies, he ruled with an iron hand. (323)

After ruling the country for some time, one day the king ordered that a fire-pit be prepared and some brahmins be sent for immediately. (324)

So a large number of brahmins were called there, sparing not even a single brahmin. Then the king consulted his minister, while the friendly and prudent minister asked the king , what else was needed to be done. (325)

Then the king told him about his desire for performing a Yagna. He asked him what type of fire-pit should be prepared. " O friendly minister ! Pray give your advice soon." (326)

Then the friendly minister pondered over it and told the king. O benevolent king of kings ! You have the great knowledge of all the fourteen sciences (learning). (327)

O king ! Listen (to me) ! During the age of Sat Yug, Chandi had killed the demon Mehkhasur and having propitiated (the god) Shiva, had performed a great Yagna. (328)

She had killed Mehkhasur in the battle-field and gave Indra, the kingdom (of heaven). She had satisfied all the holgoblins, having shattered the pride of the demon. (329)

She had made the brahmins and the gods fearless having won the battle. She had called for Indra, and having taken over the control of the land (from Mehkhasur), she had installed Indra as the king. (with authority). (330)

Then the god mother had sent for the four-facted Brahma, and started performing the Yagna in great rejoicing and merriment. Her radiance and glory was intense and indestructible. (331)

Then Brahma remarked, O glorious Chandi ! Listen. Hail to You. As desired by You. I would give my advice accordingly. (332)

The goddess had sent for various human beings of the world and arranged for the recitation of incantations from the Vedas immediately, having killed her enemies in no time. (333)

Ruaal Chhand . Through Lord's Grace.

Then (goddess) Durga performed a great Yagna by calling various brahmins, ministers, and friends. She asked gods like Indra, Vaman and Brahma, having sent for them, as to how the Yagna was to be organised. "O friends and Ministers give me your wonderful advice today." (334)

The Yagna was commenced as per their advice. The meat was cut into pieces and were being thrown into the fire-pit, with the chanting of incantations from the Vedas. O king of kings, listen ! The goddess had killed and frustrated the demons like Chichhar, Birar, and Dhulkaran and performed a demon-daan-medh Yagna, after killing all the demons. (335)

O king-emperor ! Listen. You should also perform a similar type of Yagna. You have become powerful having defeated your (demon) enemy and made Indra the king of heavens. (with canopy over head). giving all the conforts and worldly pleasures to god, Similarly You will kill the despots and support the saints, who have sought Your protection. (336)

(Twenty Four) Choubis Incarnations (avtars)

Let us seek the support of the Lord-Sublime, the Lord of Sword.
Now begins the chapter on Chobis Avtars.
By Tenth Master. Through Thy Grace.

Choupaiee

Now I would describe the anecdote (narration) of twenty-four incarnations, as I have perceived their wonderful play. O Saints ! Listen with concentration of mind. As it pleased the poet, the narration is given as per his intelligence (Knowledge).(1)

Whenever there appear many despots on the surface of the Earth, causing suffering to humanity, the Lord appears as an incarnation. Time enjoys perceiving the whole drama, and finally it causes the destruction of all that. (2)

Time causes the creation of all, and finally it is responsible for its extinction as well. Initially it assumes various forms and finally it absorbs everything in itself. (3)

Out of these incarnations, there were ten of them, within whom the Lord-Almighty was pervading Himself. Apart from these ten, there are suppoted to be fourteen other incarnations as well. Whatever worldy drama they initiated is being described now. (4)

The Time (Period) performs various acts, while concealing its own presence from the scene, thus putting the blame for vices on others. It remains neutral apparently from the world. However, I had visualised all this from the beginning itself, when it was given certain nomen -clatures. (5)

Time first creates something and then destroys it by itself. But by ascribing its cause to others. it results in their extinction. By itself remaining in the background and neutral, but no one has been able to realise this secret. Thus for this reason He is called limitless (beyond comprehension) and infinite. (6)

O Lord ! The twenty-four incarnations supposed to have existed in the world, had never realised Your secrets, You have led the whole world astray, and confounded, as such You have been termed as Infinite. (7)

He is responsible for dodging everyone, but without being deceived (dodged) by anyone. Thus He is called a trickster (guileful). He gets perturbed by perceiving His saints in suffering as such he is called Protector of the poor/helpless. (8)

O Lord ! You alone are causing the extinction of the whole Universe, as such You have been named as the god of death by the world. In times of distress You are the support (helper) of the saints as such, Your name (noun) is heard as a 'Saint.' (9)

(O Lord !) Having seen You as a benevolent supporter of the helpless, we have thought of calling You as "Protector of the Poor". You are always kind to the saints and are always moved by their distress, as such the world has named You as "the treasure of henevolence'. (10)

O Lord ! You are always there to cast away the distress/suffering of the saints, as you're your name as the "Remover of Distress" is famous. You have been eliminating (burning away) the sufferings of Your saints from the very beginning. From that very day, You have been addressed as "Saviour of the Distressed" (for burning their sufferings). (11)

(O Lord !) You are pervading everywhere being Infinite and limitless, but no one has realised Your limits, as such You have always been known as "beyond limits" (limitless). You are creating various forms of beings in the world as such You are called the 'Creator. (12)

The Lord has never revealed His self to (secrets) anyone, as such He is called as "Indescribable" (beyond our comprehension). He has never appeared in any physical form (entity) in the world, as such all have termed Him as 'Unborn' (Uncreated).(13)

Brahma and other gods have tired themselves out by singing his praises, and Vishnu or Shiva have no existence (importance) before him (are non entities). He is known as creator, as He has created the Sun and the Moon with great consideration (musing). (14)

O Lord ! You are always uncommitted (to any faith) and would ever remain free from any robe/guise as such the world has always termed You as "Uncommitted". Your form is indescribable. No one has till to-day realized Your secrets (form) as such You are described as (Unseen) Imperceptible. (15)

O Lord ! Your form (appearance) is Unique, and Your features are infinite (superb). You possess no garb (guise) and are distinct from everyone else. You are bestowing favours to all, and do not expect any favours from anyone, so from that time onwards, we have known You as the Lord-Sublime (Lord-Creator). (16)

O Lord ! You are free from any auspicious time (consideration) and any omens, which is well known to the whole world. You are never propitiated (pleased with) with any magic, charm, spell (or un-natural magical powers) and no one has ever attained You through disguise. (assumed form). (17)

The whole world is engrosed in their owm wranglings (bickerings), as such no one has realized the Lord (His secrets). Some people worship the graves (yard) while some others worship the (Hindu) monuments, but the Lord does not abide in either of the two places. (18)

Both the Hindus and Mohammedans are engrossed in worldly attachments and disputes or controversies, but the Prime-soul (Ultimate Truth) is unique (distinct) from both (free from their effect). The person, who has cast away his illusions (fallacies) has no distinction between a Hindu and a Turk (Muslim). (19)

In one side the Muslims have worn a rosary and on the other side the Hindus tell the beads ; some read the Koran while the others study Puranas. The fools are fighting against each other with malice towards one another ; in fact none of them are immersed in the pure (intense) love of the Lord. (20)

Whosoever absorbed in the love of the Lord-Sublime, have got over the worldly honour (consideration) and are enjoying the bliss of the Lord's love (Lord's attainment). Whosoever has realized the Prime-Soul, does not suffer from the thought of dual-mindedness in the heart. (21)

But all those persons, who are engaged in the melady of duality, are devoid of the merger with the greatest friend, (Lord), but all those, who have perceived the Lord even slightly (a tinge of the Lord), have realized the ultimate Truth. (22)

All the hordes of Yogis, sanyasis (mendicants), and sarewaras or muslims are all involved in adopting the guise (garb) of a particular faith, thus they are only (deceiving) hood winking the whole populace. But the Saint, who has the support of True Name alone, remains hidden (conceated) from others. (23)

Some persons practise hypocrisy for the sake of selfish gains only, as without being a hypocrite they cannot amass wealth. But those persons, who have recited the Lord's Time Name, have never indulged in any hypocritical activities. (24)

Infact, without indulging in hypocrisy, no one could gain wealth and none could be forced (impressed upon) to pay obeisance to others. If this selfishness to satisfy one's own needs (to fill one's belly) were not there, then there would be no distinction between the rich and the poor. (no king or pauper). (25)

All those persons, who have accepted the Lord as their only True Master, have never deceived anyone with their deceit. They have offered their head (offered themselves for sacrifice) rather than giving up their faith, thus they have never given any importance to the body. (they have considered the human frame as worthless).(26)

Someone calls himself a Yogi (ascetic) by getting his ears parted (split), and proceeds to the jungle for deceiving the world in a big way. He has not realized the Ultimate Truth, as a result he does not become a good householder or a good Yogi (of the jungle). (27)

How far could the poet stretch this point ? Infact, there is only one tongue (with the individual), so it is rather impossible to express the limits of the Lord's Greatness. O Lord ! Even if one were to possess millions of tongues, Your praises and qualities are beyond one's description. (You are a fountain or an ocean of virtues, beyond our comprehension). (28)

In the beginning of Time, the god of death (Lord) was the father of the Universe ; which become radiant with light (of knowledge) and was known by the name of Bhawani considered to be the creator of the whole Universe. (29)

He uttered the word 'Onkar' in the first instance, and that sound (song) (pervaded) permeated throughout the Universe. This resulted in the creation of the world. Thus the two, Prime-Male (Onkar) and the Nature (light) were considered the basis of creation. (30)

Thus the whole Universe came into existence from these two sources, which is known to everyone. Then there is the description of four sources of creation (khanis) in the world. I do not possess the capacity to explain in detail the whole process of certain, by enumerating all the names one by one. (31)

Then the mighty demons and the gods, not so powerful, were created and they were shown as separate entities, being distinct in strength (high and low). The mighty Kaal (Lord) adopted a powerful stature and assumed many forms (of distinct nature).(32)

The Lord (Kaal) assumed various physical forms, thus resulting in different incarnations. Finally all the incarnations mingle with the one Prime-Soul; which is the only ab initio power. (33)

All the beings, which are described in the world history, have the same one light emanating from them (the same light is pervading all beings). The Lord-Almighty, who is described as a personification of Time (or Death), is the source of the Universe, wherein everyone finally merges. (34)

Whatever we perceive about the Unapproachable Lord (beyond our Comprehension) is finally decided by the mind, but the only one (Lord) is pervading everywhere, and every being., though the whole world pereeives Him installed in various distinct forms (by different people). (35)

The Lord, who is indescribable, is pervading all beings (omni-present), but He demands distinct accounts from everone separately. The persons, who have visualised the one Lord, in various forms, have realised the Ultimate Truth, the Prime-Soul.(36)

The one Lord alone is assuming various different appearances ; Somewhere He is seen as a panper, somewhere else He is a noble or Lord and elsewhere He is seen as a King. He has managed to engross all in different avocations, but He remains Himself distinct and secluded. But no one has known His secretsso far. (37)

He has created all beings in distinct forms with different appearances and then destroys them also as separate entities. He does not take the blame of anyone else on Himself and manages to cast the responsibility of any vices on others only. (38)

Now starts the episode of Machh Incarnation
Choupaiee

Once There lived a demon by the name of Sankhasur, who inflicted sufferings and afflictions on the whole world. Then the Lord appeared as an Incarnation in the form of Machh and recited His own praises (worship) Himself. (Heattained self-realization). (39)

First of all, this incarnation assumed the shape of a small fish, and entering the ocean, churned it strongly, and then expanded himself all around, as a result of which, the demon ' Sankhasur', abiding in the oceans, became enraged. (40)

Bhujang Prayat Chhand

Then a mighty warrior, named Sankh, thundered being greatly enraged. He decorated himself with all weapons, coats of mail and protective iron coating. He had sunk all the four Vedas in the seas. Then the (god) Brahma with eight eyes, meditated on the Primal-soul, having a perfect form. (41)

Then the benevolent incarnation (of the Lord), keeping the interests of the helpless people, in view, got enraged and armed Himself with various weapons out of His kind demeanour. Then many arms and weapons were brought into use and (much) armour was being hurled on each other. This shook all the gods from their seats and all the seven regions fell down from their position. (being unconscious). (42)

Many arms were brought into play ; robes and flywhisks were falling on the ground and the mutilated bodies of warriors were rolling on the ground, and some others pierced with arrows were trying to get up (from the ground). At places one could see the heads or trunks of the great elephants (of bulky forms) fallen on the battle-field ; it appeared as if mighty warriors were lying asleep after playing holi (with coloured waters). (43)

The persevering warriors on horse back were seen wielding their swords, while they were armed beautifully with various weapons and (protective) Coats of iron. Some great warriors were lying down (dead) with stretched (arms and) hands. The son of Shiva, in a dreadful form, was dancing around while Machh was churning the ocean while jumping (dancing) around. (44)

Rasaval Chhand

The powerful warriors were roaring and they were all fully armed with weapons, having a plume fixed on their heads ; by perceiving which the fairies were getting delighted and hopeful. (45)

The (swords) striking on shields were producing a thud (sound) while the swords were flashing like the lightning in the dark clouds. The swords, being wielded, produced a crackling sound and both sides were wishful (hopeful) of their victory. (46)

The brave soldiers, sporting curling monstaches, with frightning swords in their hands, were shining gloriously. The mighty warriors were roaming around the battle field while the swift horses were jumping (dancing) around in the battle-field.(47)

Bhujang Chhand

On perceiving the army of the gods Sankhasur (demon) was furious with rage and the face of the warrior was warmed up, with his eyes reddened with fury. Then the king Sankhasur (of demons) challanged the enemy by patting his shoulders (arms) which resulted in the miscarriage of (their pregnancy) the pregnant women (due to the war ery). (48)

All the soldiers took up their positions bravely and the drums were sounded. The blood-stanied swords were shining in the battle-field, the warriors appeared dreadful and their bows were making cracking sounds. The ghosts, evil spirits and demons started dancing with fury. (49)

Many warriors armed with weapons, coats of iron, were falling down on the battle-field. At places human trunks without their heads were jumping up in an unconscious state. The weaklings or cowards were running away from the battle field taking note of the naked blood-stained swords and the arrows, while the fearless warriors were raising war cries. (50)

The Shields and coats of iron of the warriors were being broken, while the weapons and coats of mail were falling down (on the ground). The ghosts, being fear-stricken but without any arms were making noice in the battle-field. in the battle-field all the warriors were involved in the actual fighting (being immersed in the art of fighting) whereas some powerful warriors were swinging and falling down in the battle-field. (51)

A furious battle (duel) between Sankhasur and Machh was raging in the battle field as if two mountains with wings were locked in fighting. Pieces of flesh from Sankhasur's body were falling down, which were being eaten up by the bigger vultures, while many (sixty-four) hotgoblins were laughing at watching the battle scene. (52)

Machh, after killing Sankhasur, redeemed the Vedas and gave up the form of Machh and appeared dressed in magnificent robes (clothes). He then installed all the gods in their respective positions, thus destroying all the despots. (demons). Thus all the demons, terrifying the human beings, were eliminated. (53)

Tribhangi Chhand

(The demon) Sankhasur was killed, the Vedas were redeemed, the enemies were vanquished and lot of praise was earned. The gods were sent for and installed as the masters of kingdom and were bestowed with honour and comforts of the world. Millions of trumpets were sounded and Indra thundered. There was lot of rejoicing with decorations and the suffering came to an end. All the gods gave millions of offerings and after going round in worship, they all made their obeisance to Machh. (54)

Here the first chapter of the incarnation of Machh of the Bachittar Natak dealing with the killing of Sankhasur is completed. All is well. (1)

Now the episode of the incarnation of Kachh (starts)

Bhujang prayat Chhand

Sometime had passed with the gods, ruling the Kingdom (of heavens) and the kings palace was replete with material of all sorts of worldly comforts and pleasures. But the gods were devoid of the possession of elephants, horses, flutes and other musical instruments or (diamonds) valuables of this nature. This thought came to the mind of Vishnu. (1)

Then Vishnu got all the gods like the Sun, Moon, Upainder etc. together, while the proud demons of the world, through the consideration of their brotherhood, also gathered together. (2)

Before the churning of the oceans, they had decided that whatever materials would be gained out of this churning of the seas, would be divided (among the gods and demons) equally. All had agreed on this proposal and thus they commenced the churning process. The mountain of Mandrachal was made the churning stick (instrument) and the demons reached the Chheer ocean. (3)

For churning the chheer ocean with the stick of Mandrachal mountain, the cord was made (out) of the Basak cobra. Both of them started churning each half-way through one round ; on the side of head (of the cobra) the demons were employed and the gods held the tail (of the cobra). The ocean of Cheer was then being churned like a pitcher (being churned). (4)

Who else could have sustained the load (weight) of the mountain (as churner) ? All the gods and demons were completely shaken up (with this weight). Then Vishnu thought to himself that (due to the weight) the mountain may not get sunk. So he assumed the form of a Tortoise and supported the mountain, getting underneath it. (5)

Hare the second chapter of the Incarnation of Kachh of the Bachittar Natak is completed. All is auspicious so far. (2)

Now begins the Episode of the Ocean Chheer and its churning alongwith
the gain of fourteen Valuable jewels, begins

With the Grace of the Lord protector.

Tetak Chhand

Then both the gods and the demons churned the ocean together. This episode has been narrated by the poet Siam in poetry form ; thus fourteen jewels appeared (surfaced) from this effort, just as the moon shines brightly on a dark night. (1)

The demons were on the head side of the Basak (python), whereas on the other side the gods had caught hold of the tail together. All the jewels which surfaced, were shining like the moon. So all were delighted, as if they had taken the sips of the nectar. (2)

First of all, a bow and arrow, of milk-white colour appeared on the surface, and then a pitcher of wine, which could make one intoxicated (drunk) was taken out. Then after this, the elephant Airavat, a horse with a high long mein, nectar (Gririt) and Lachhmi (goddess of wealth) appeared, just as lightning flashes through the dark clouds. (3)

Then the kalap tree, kalkut poison and the fairy Rambha appeared on the surface, on perceiving whom all the gathering of the god Indra, got enamoured. After this, kaustumbh Mani (gem) and the beautiful moon appeared, on seeing whom the demons got ready for a battle. (4)

Then the queen of the cows, kamdhain appeared, whom the mighty Sahasbahu had snatched (by force) from Rishi Jamdagan. By counting all the jewels, I will now describe the other valuable ones (sub-jewels) and all of you saintly persons listen to me with attention. (5)

These are as listed below : leech Myroblam (hareer), Gur (hakik), Honey, the famous conchshell called Panchjan, Somlata (wine), Bhang (hemp), the resolving (Sudarshan) Wheel, And Mace which look graceful in the hands of princes. (6)

Then again Sarung Bow and Nandag Sword, appeared, which destroyed the hordes of demons in the battle. Then the Shiva's Trishul (trident), the Barva agni (Fire), Kapal Muni and Dhanvantar appeared. These are the fourteen jewels. (7)

After the listing of jewels and sub-jewels, now I am listing the metals. After listing the metals, the sub-metals will be listed. As per his intellect, the poet Sian has named them all which should not be belittled (degraded) by the poets, considering them as less important. (8)

First of all iron is listed, then lead, and gold and the fourth metal is the white coloured Silver. Then I would list copper Tin (kali), and brass, while the eighth metal is called zinc. (9)

The Description of the Sub-metal

Tetak Chhand

Then collyrium (antimony), mercury oxide (cinnabar) and yellow orpiment are being listed and the fourth is known as silk tree. Then Orpiment, munshill, mica and the eighth one is the salt (with sour taste). (10)

Couplet

Eight metals and eight sub-metals have been listed as per my capacity. These are found in mines, though one could get them from else where. (11)

Choupaiee :

When the jewels, and sub-jewels were recovered (from the ocean), then only metals and sub metals were also produced. Vishnu had collected all of these, then and there. Some were given to the gods, whereas the demons were not given anything. (12)

Now begins the episode of the Incarnation of Nar Narayan.

Bhujang Prayat Chhand

Indra was given Airavat elephant and the horse was given to the Sun. Seeing this partiality the demons took up their arms and weapons to wage a war. On perceiving this, the whole army of the demons also got ready. Then Vishnu pondered over it in his mind. (14)

Bhujang prayat Chhand

Vishnu, in the garb of Nar and Narayan, having managed all the weapons and coats of iron, came and stood in front of the army of demons. The warriors got ready with their arms (girdled) and the kings patted their shoulders (arms). The tridents and spears began striking against each other and all the soldiers got ready for waging the war. (15)

A furious battle raged between the two armies with various weapons. Then Vishnu appeared in his third Incarnation. One was Nar and the second one assumed the form of Narayan. They appeared in such a magnificent form that his light (was shining) illumined the whole atmosphere. (16)

The warriors, with the help of maces, were breaking into pieces all the helmets of iron, worn on the heads. All the warriors were fighting furiously in the battle field. The dust, which rose up from their fighting, was spread over the whole sky. The gods and demons were falling dead in the battle field and even Shiva got shaken up. (was trembling). (17)

The warriors were falling dead one by one due to various means, while the fighting warriors were looking magnificent in their battle engagements. The corpses of the warriors were lying in a mutilated form, with limbs cut off from the body. It appeared as if some people were lying unconscious having consumed hemp (bhang). (18)

The army of demons was nowhere to be seen (they had fled away) while on the other side even the gods had fled away leaving behind all their material. (weapons etc.) In the battle field there were many heads, arms and coats of iron in a bunch, were seen scattered around. The arrows (in the coats of mail) were looking so beautiful as if the flowers were blossoming in the month of chet (March). (19)

When both the sides (were) felt defeated in the battle, then Vishnu thought over it and meditated in his mind, as if he had planned a magic spell. Then he assumed the form of a beautiful and charming dansel, (lady) perceiving whom both the gods and the demons were delighted. (20)

Here the third Chapter on Nar and the fourth incarnation of Narayan of the "Sri Bachittar Natak Granth" is completed. (4)

NOW BEGINS THE DESCRIPTION OF Maha Mohini's Incarnation
With the Grace of the Lord-Protector
Bhujang Prayat Chhand

Vishnu had assumed the form of a beautiful and charming woman, on perceiving whom, both the sons (princes) of the gods and demons were pleased. They were enamoured by the lovable appearance in her charm and they gave up all their weapons, coats of iron and egoism even. (1)

All were engrossed in the noose of love and had lost all their wrathfulness. They were all pierced by the arrows of the charm of her eyes and speech (affected by) and advanced keenly towards her to have a glimpse of her charm (to drink the wine of her beauty) and were falling unconscious being confounded by her charm, as if they had lost all their energy (over powered by her beauty). They were almost won over by her into a state of unawareness (unconsciousness) as if piereced by the arrows. (2)

All the warriors were left almost without any consciousness, and millions of the soldiers had given up their arms and coats of iron. Their eyes were pinned on seeing her charm only (to win her love) just as a golden deer had endeared all the female deers into the sware of his love. (3)

The beautiful woman bestowed on them various jewels, and this episode you have known already. Now to keep it short (not to lengthen the story) I would describe it briefly. All the warriors (gods and demons) seated themselves in formations (lines). They unarmed themselves, laying aside their arrows and swords. (4)

Choupaiee

Then Vishnu, keeping with himself the jewels of kalap Tree and the (goddess of) wealth, gave away to the world the famous physician in the world the famous physician in the court of god Indra, Dhanatri Vaid. Shiva was given the deadly poison (churmed out of the ocean) (Death Control) and others (world) were given a hot and fairy (celestial beauty) which were supported to give worldly comforts to the world, by casting away their sufferings. (5)

Couplet

To cook the agricultural products the moon was installed in the sky, while keeping with himself the kanstumbh jewel and wealth (goddess of wealth); the jewel was worn by himself (in the neck) as a necklace, whose radiance was (seen openly) brilliantly visible. (6)

The Kamdhain cow was given to Rishis (ascetics). How far could I explain all these details ? O Listeners ! You may read the Shastras (Hindu books of lore) yourself or seek the version from the poets and get the correct version (of all events). (7)

All the gods and demons were then completely satisfied and pleased with the division (of jewels) (to their satisfaction) just as the golden deer feels enamoured by hearing the sound of special drum-beat. (absorbed by its sound). Thus the jewels were distributed evenly and the war came to an end. This is how Vishnu took (assumed) the form of the fifth incarnation. (8)

Now Starts the Episode of the Incarnation of 'Bairah'.

Bhujang prayat Chhand

The goddess (Mohini) had distributed the jewels of Wine and nectar (amrit) ; then the gods and demons went away to their own abodes (establishments). Then again the enmity between the two (classes) increased. The gods fled away whereas the demons were victorious. (1)

Then there appeared two demons called Hirankashap and Harnakhas, who were great warriors. They usurped (with force) all the wealth of people, and established their sovereignity all over lands and oceans. Realising the strength (prowess) of their arms, they became very proud (with egoism). (2)

Both were keenly waiting that someone should come forward to wage a war against them. But it was possible only if one side was superior (in strength) to the other class, to take up cudgles. Then in the end Harnakhush, went up to the top of the mountain Sumer and buried it (crushed it) with the great toe of his foot and snatched the Vedas away. (from gods). Thus all the established principles (practices) of the land were demolished. (3)

(By pressing with the great toe), the Earth (land) alongwith the Vedas was sunk in the waters (oceans) and got itself stationed in the nether lands (Patal). Then Vishnu assumed the form of a being with strong hoods and got itself sunk in the oceans and thundered loudly, which permeated the whole Universe like an indivisible (continuous) musical sound. (4)

Then the drum of (Varah-incarnation) started beating, with whose sound both the warrior demons woke up (from the slumber), By hearing their dreadful sound, many mighty warriors even ran away. The sharpened swords, struck with fury, were being wielded like the flash of lightning in the month of Bhadon (Aug/Sep). (5)

The warriors, sporting curled moustaches, were roaring loudly challenging the enemy. The swords were striking with a cracking noise while the arrows were being shot with a whizling sound. The spears were being struck with a thud, while the swords were struck with a loud sound. The helmets worn on the heads of the warriors were being broken into pieces and flashes of light (fire) were seen coming out of the guns. (6)

The drums were beating with a loud noise (Dum Dum) while the shields were being struck with a thud, while the warriors were shouting to kill the enemy (kill them). The naked blood-stained swords of the warriors were striking against each other, while the headless bodies (trunks) of warriors, in a lifeless state, were jumping around. (dancing). (7)

The sixty-four evil-spirits, with (bowls) full of blood, were roaming around and with dishevelled hair, were dancing around, while shouting dreadful looking ghosts and evil-spirits were laughing merrily. The sound of beating drums, producing horrible notes, could be heard all over the place. (8)

Harnakhus and Varah were hitting each other with fists and were striking each other with their feet. It appeared as if a lion was fighting a lion or an intoxicated elephant was clashing with another elephant. With the horrible nature of the battle, the Shiva's meditation was disturbed and he was shaken up from his contemplation. He was dislodged from his meditature posture in the meditation of the Lord-Sublime and both the sun and the moon in fright, left the scene in the afternoon itself. (9)

A furious battle raged (for sometime) so that land replaced the waters, and the waters took the position of land (land and waters seemed to replace each other) . Meaning there was a strom in the ocean, as if Sri Ram Chander had stretched the bow for forcing the ocean to give way. The demon, who was hitting with his fists, appeared like a drummer beating his drums or (striking) beating the gong. (10)

Dreadful drums were being beaten, while sturdy warriors were fighting against each other. it appeared as if elephants, with long tusks, were engaged in fighting each other. The sound of beating drums was heard and the fifes were also blowing. The spears were striking with a hissing sound, while the arrows were being shot with a loud sound. (11)

The battle continued for eight days and eight nights, and the whole Earth became unbalanced (adrift) and the sky also was vibrating (shivering). The warriors, present in the battle-field were fully engrossed in the fighting. Vishnu had finally killed the enemy, who fell down (unconscious) with a somersault.(12)

The Vahar's brought back the four Vedas atop his hood. With the defeat of the despot Harnakhush, all the other demons fled away. Then Brahma was ordered and he recited the Dhunar Veda. Thus he provided Comfort and relief (happiness) to all the saints. (13)

This way Vishnu had appeared as (in) the sixth incarnation, who won over (defeated) all the demons (despots) and redeemed the Vedas as well. A rule based on moral and religious concept was established and won over all the gods. He had successfully brought down (cast off) the pride (egoism) of the demons. (14)

Here the Chapter on the Sixth incarnation of Bairah of the Bachittar Natak is completed. All is auspicious. (6)

Padhri Chhand

Thus the god Indra continued to rule and got his coffers filled up with all worldly materials of comfort. When the gods became haughty due to their increased egoism, a demon, more powerful and persevering, came into being to smash (snap) the pride of the gods. (1)

He usurped the kingdom of Indra, and many trumpets were blown. Thus he proclaimed to the whole world that the king of the land and oceans Hirankashap had come. (2)

One day Hirankashap went to his wife ; and at that time the warrior had embellished his body with all the decorations. He then somehow got engrossed in sexual pleasures with his wife and during that process he was divested of his semen (sperm). (3)

Due to the pregnancy of wife, after due course of time, she gave birth to a child the Saintly Prahlad, who was to support and redeem the honour of the saints. The king then entrusted his son to the teacher and sent him to the school for studies. Prahlad told the teacher to write the name of Gopal, the Lord-creator, on his wooden slate. (4)

Tetak Chhand

One day the king went to the school, and was surprised to find his son in a fine mettle. He asked him to recite what he had learnt from the (teacher) Brahmin. The child recited the name of Gopal (Lord-Sublime) without any hesitation. (5)

On hearing the name of Gopal, the demon was infuriated saying that apart from (the king) him, who else is there, whom he (son) was worshipping (meditating upon). Hirankashap then decided in his mind firmly that this child should be killed. The King said, O fool ! Why are you reciting the name of the Lord (God) ? " (6)

"There is only one great warrior on the lands and oceans, that is me. Then why is he reciting the name of God (Gopal) ?" Then he (king) tied, him (child) to a pillar. Hearing the king's orders, the demons (to carry out the King's orders) came running. (7)

The foolish demons then took the child by holding him, to kill him. Then suddenly, to save the child, Gopal (the Lord) manifested Himself. Perceining Him, all were astonished, and the Lord, in the form of Narsing, appeared by tearing apart the doors. (8)

On perceiving Narsing, all the gods and demons were trembling, and were dumb-founded to see the conscious soul and the inert being. Narsing, the god of death, with red-hot eyes and with the mouth full of blood, thundered. (9)

When Narsing roared in the battle, the demons, on perceiving him, took to their heels. Only the king (Hirankashap), with the mace in hand, stood firmly and fearlessly in the battle-field. (10)

When the King (Hirankashap) challenged with a thunder, then all the warriors were trembling (with fear) and came (stood) in front of the Narsing. Whosoever came forward for waging war, (they) were dashed to the ground like the juggler's stone. (11)

Very powerful and mighty warriors were roaring loudly and appeared soaked in blood, like the flowers of kesu. From all the four sides the enemy (warriors) stormed the battle field just as the clouds envelop the sky during the monsoon months. (12)

ik soor ghail ghum hi. jan dhoom adhomukh dhumhi. (19)

From all the ten directions the warriors were rushing forward and sharpening their arrows on the white slab, were showering them (on the enemy). The swords and the arrows were shining, like flashes of light in the battle-field. The flags were fluttering as if the warriors in their revengeful posture were swinging around. (13)

The stubborn warriors were roaring loudly while showering their arrows (on the enemy) as if rain showers were falling from both sides during the month of Savan (monsoon). The flags were fluttering and the horses were neighing. On perceiving such a dreadful scene the demon king also felt shaken up with fear. (14)

The horses were neighing, the elephants were trumpeting, and the mutilated arms of the warriors appeared like bamers of the (god) Indra. The brave heroes were getting agitated, while the elephants were trumpeting, hearing which even the monsoon clouds would feel belittled. (15)

Hirankashap had retraced two steps only, being hesitant, when suddenly he turned back, as if he had touched the tail of a teased (desperate) snake, who turns around (in retaliation). His face shone forth in the fighting process, just as the lotus flower blossoms forth on the sight of the Sun. (16)

The horses had created such a commotion in the battlefield, that Shiva was disturbed in his meditation, and the whole world was shaken up. The white arrows, sharpened by rubbing on the slab and the lances were being used (in such quick succession) that the whole land and the sky were covered up. (17)

The god and musicians of Shiva were both delighted on seeing this, while the gods were showering the garlands of flowers. The warriors from both sides had mingled with each other just as the urchins play during the night with bets. (spitefully).(18)

Beli Bidram Chhand

The persevering warriors were roaring in the battle-field, on perceiving whom, both the gods and demons were feeling ashamed. Many wounded warriors were roaming around, just as the (Sadhus) used to inhaling smoke, were lying upside down and inhaling the smoke. (19)

There were many types of warriors, and even the indestructible ones were becoming martyrs by fighting incessantly. The buntings and the arrows were making a hissing sound while the warriors on horse back were pulsating (moving) with swiftness.(20)

Tomar Chhand

Millions of horses were neighing, while the brave soldiers were throwing the spears like a shower (of rain). The arrows were being shot in full swing and the war was raging with full fury. (magnificence). (21)

Many classes of warriors were engaged in fighting, and countless horse riders were also taking part in fighting. The soldiers were wielding their swords fearlessly and an unparalled battle was being fought. (22)

Choudhak Chhand

The army of brave soldiers were shooting arrows and wielding swords and were falling down dead, after taking part in the great battle. The wounded soldiers, after being wounded, were swinging like the Basant (spring) month, when flowers are blossoming all around merrily. (23)

The mutilated arm of some warriors was looking like the trunk of the royal elephant (Gaj-raj) fallen on the ground. Many warriors appeared magnificent in many ways, as if flowers were bloosoming in the garden. (24)

Some of the warriors were soaked in blood, as if (frondosa) flowers were bloosoming in plenty. The soldiers wounded with the sword's onslaughts, were running hither and thither, as if they were showing off their anger with wrathfulness. (25)

Tetak Chhand

Many enemy soldiers were fighting to the end and falling down, while Narsing also got inflicted with many wounds. In one onslaught alone, Narsing had killed many warriors, who were lying dead. It appeared as if a wire had been passed through the soap. (cutting into pieces). (26)

The soldiers were lying dead in (hordes) large numbers, being mutilated, who had fought for upkeeping the honour of the master. Many warriors were wielding their swords or shooting the arrows, but finally being frightened and impatient, they would run away from the battle-field. (27)

Choupaiee

Most of the warriors, being impatient and forgetful of their honour, were leaving the battle-field. Then Hirankashap got furious with rage, and taking an oath (by trying a sacred thread on hand) he advanced himself to the battle field. (28)

That very moment Narsing also got furious with rage on seeing the demon king advancing forward for waging war. He did not bother about his own wounds, but was greatly distressed on seeing the plight of Prahlad, his disciple, and became infuriated. (29)

Narsing moved his hair from the neck and roared in a dreadful manner, seeing which the warriors became pale with fear, and the dust covered the sky with the sound of that roar. All the gods were laughing while the demons felt ashamed. (30)

A great battle was raging from both sides, and all the warriors from both sides were agitated. The swords were being wielded with flashing speed while the bows were producing a cracking noise. The demon king fought ffuriously and a flood of blood was overflowing in Multan. (31)

The swords and arrows were producing different sounds, while the perserving warriors were cut into pieces on the battle-field. The conch shells and trumpets were blowing, and the drums were beating. The dreadful crows were crowing, while the warriors were engaged in fighting. (32)

The riders of elephants and horses (heros) including many soldiers had fled away. No one could continue confronting Narsing. Infact, Narsing had assumed the form of a brave and horrible looking warrior, while scattering his mien (hair on the neck) and twisting the long tail. (33)

With the roaring of Narsing in the battle field, many warriors had fled away. Only one warrior in the person of Hirankeshap was left behind while all others had run away. (no one else could face him). (34)

Choupaiee

Both the heros got locked up in a duel of fists, and no third person was to be seen there. Both had got their eyes reddemed with anger, while the gods were watching the fun. (35)

For eight days and eight nights both the warriors fought furiously amongst themselves. Then the demon felt a bit dazed and fell down on the ground unconscious, like an old (worn out) tree. (36)

Then Narsing sprinkled water on his face, to make him conscious. When he got up from unconciousness, then he picked up courage (once again) ; and both the heros again got engaged in fighting each other furiously, and the battle was on once again. (37)

Bhujang prayat Chhand

Challenging each other once again, the warriors (advanced towards the other) (enemy) came closer. The battle (fight) between the two was so terrible, just as in Mahabharat Karan had to fight against Gharotkach (the son of Bhim from Hirambi). Narsing then wounded the demon with her nails of both his hands (claws). It appeared as if two elephants in a drunken state were fighting each other. (38)

Then Narsing knocked down the demon on the ground, and it seemed as if a strong wind had uprooted an old tree (of Butea-frondosa) and thrown it down. There was a rain of flowers from the sky on the death of the demon, and the gods sung songs of victory (coming) on the land with gaity. (39)

Narsing had killed the despot demon, and Vishnu assumed the form of the seventh incarnation. He had snatched the saint from the clutches of the enemy and a state of peace and morality returned (normaley) to the land. (40)

Narsing thus installed Prahlad as the king, who was honoured with a canopy. (on his head). Thus the dark age of sinful actions was brought to an end. All the forces of despotism and harmful nature were destroyed and then (Narsing) mingled his soul (light) with the Prime soul. (bringing to an end his assumed form). (41)

Narsing had made the despots restless by killing them (most of them) and then mingled with the (Prime-Soul) indescribable light. The poet has described (the whole episode) as per his ability (capacity). This is how Vishnu had assumed the form of the seventh incarnation. (42)

Here the seventh chapter of Bachittar Natak dealing with the incarnation of Narsing is completed. All is well so far. (7)

Now the episode of the incarnation of Bavan begins
'With the Grace of the Lord-Protector'
Bhujang prayat Chhand

After the incarnation of Narsing lot of time had passed (in peace), when again sinful actions became the order of day. Then both demons and gods (saints) began creating disturbances in the performance of Yagna or other virtous deeds. The king Bal developed lot of egoistie tendencies in his person (body). (1)

The gods could neither arrange for the sacrificial material for the Yagna (fire-worship) nor could they enjoy the aroma of the Yogna. Moreover the capital of Indra's kingdom had been destroyed. Then all the gods performed appropriate worship of the Lord as a result of which the indivisible Lord (Kaal) was pleased. (2)

Then the infinite Lord ordered Vishnu to assume the eighteth form of incarnation. After receiving the ordain Vishnu rushed for it as if a pauper had gained some (invaluable) royal treasure. (3)

Naraj Chhand

Vishnu assumed the form of a pigmy brahmin proceeded with great deliberations. He came to the royal court and established himself firmly there. (put his foot down).(4)

Then the brahmin made the king to listen to all the four Vedas, recited by him. Then the king called him in his presence and gave him a small stool made of sandal wood, to be seated. (5)

The king then washed the brahmin's feet and paid obeisance (by reciting hymns in praise) to him and went around him (in reverence) many times. Then he gave him many items in alms, but the brahmin did not even touch a single item. (6)

The Brahmin told the king that all these things were of no avail to him. All these valuable items were (false) destructible. He only needed a small piece of land equal to two-and a half steps (foot-steps) 'O King' ! By giving this (land) you will be bestowed with lot of honour (praise). (7)

Choupaiee :

When the brahmin uttered these words, the king alongwith the queen did not appreciate the secret of this demand. The great brahmin then stuck to his demand of the land, equal to two and a half foot steps length. (8)

At that time, the royal first (brahmin) Shukracharya happened to be by the side of the king. The brahmin minister understood the secret of his demand. The priest was in disagreement of this demand and told the king in the negative whenever be mentioned about the land. (told him not to agree). (9)

But when the king had made up his mind to give away the land, then (the brahmin) Shukaracharya replied thus. "O King ! Do not think this man a small statured brahmin but consider him an incarnation of Vishnu. (10)

Shukar (brahmin) said, O King ! Just as a small spark of fire starting (occuring) in the forest, becomes a huge fire hazard, similarly this short- statured brahmin is going to behave. (12)

Choupaiee :

Then king Bali said with a smile (laugh), 'O Shankar! Listen. You have not realised (appreciated) the secret of his talk. Once we lose this chance, a beggar like the Lord, will not come again ." (13)

The King had decided in his mind (to give away land), but he kept it secret only, without revealing it to anyone. He sent for a bowl of water through his servant, the king prepared himself for the alms-giving. (14)

Shukaracharya had realised in his mind and thought to himself that the ignorant king had failed to appreciate the form of a cobweb net (mesh) and seated himself in the tap of the bowl. (15)

Tomar Chhand

The king held the bowl in his hand , and the time for alms-giving had approached (come), When the king put forward his hand for alms-giving, the water would not come out from the bowl and the King's hand did not receive any water. (16)

Then the great brahmin got agitated, and said. "O King ! Make some arrangement (for this problem). The brahmin thought to himself ; if a small straw (stick) was to be moved in the tap, then the devilish Shukracharya would become one-eyed. (17)

The king then took a small straw and moved it in the tap of the bowl, which pierced through Shukracharya's eyes, and he became one-eyed. (18)

The water, which came out of the Shukar's eyes, was taken by the brahmin. Shukar became blind but would not allow the water to flow (from the bowl), thus paying off the debt of his Master. (19)

Choupaiee

The king received the water falling from the eye and with that only the king resolved in his mind (made the promise) about the land giving. Thus when the time for measuring the land approached, the brahmin enlarged his body (size), which protruded from this world to the next world. (20)

The people were wonder-struck by seeing this strange drama, and the demons became unconscious. At that time, the feet of the pigmy brahmin had his feet in the netherland (patal) whereas his head was touching the sky. By perceiving this drama, all the people were left dumb-founded. (21)

With one feet touching the netherland (Patal) while the other feet was reaching upto the sky. The egg-shaped Cosmos was measured upto two feet only, from where the (river) Ganga fell on the Earth. (22)

The King was also wonder struck, and felt astonished in mind, speech and action, and it exactly happened as was foreseen and mentioned by (the brahmin) Shukracharya. The king said to himself, "that now I am seeing that exactly with my own eyes, (as was mentioned by him)." (23)

The king then measured his own body for the remaining half-foot step. Thus the king earned the praise (of the people). This episode would always be narrated in the world, so long as the water is flowing in (rivers) Ganga and Jamuna on the Earth. (24)

Vishnu was much pleased and appeared in person, saying "O King ! I will ever remain at your palace gate as a gate-keeper." He further remarked that this story of the king will remain prevalent (alive) in the world so long water flows in Ganga and Jamuna. (25)

Couplet

Wherever the saints are in panic or trouble, the Prime-Soul (Lord) appears as a protection. Infact, the Lord's presence as a gate-keeper at the gate of the saint is seen; (who stands guard there). (26)

Choupaiee :

Thus Vishnu had assumed the form of the eigtheth incarnation and helpful all saints towards successful in achieving their goals. O Saints! "Now I am going to describe the minth incarnation." Listen to me with full attention and try to grasp it in your mind. (27)

Here the episode of the eighteth incarnation of Bavan of the Bachittar Natak Granth is completed along with the story of the deceiving of Bali. All is well so far. (8)

Now the episode of the incarnation of Paras Ram commences.

All the gods were perplexed and all went to Indra (god) collectively and said that all the demons had assumed the form (appearance) of Kashatriyas. " O King ! What thoughts are rising in your mind ? (What are you thinking ?)" (2)

All the gods then pondered over it colleotively and then left for the Cheer ocean with confidence. There they sang praises of the Lord-Sublime. (Prime-Male). There they got (heard) the following (godly) ordains of the Lord. " (3)

O Vishnu ! There is a Muni by the name of Jamdagan in the world, who casts away all his vicious and sinful thoughts by meditating and worship of the Lord. You should take birth in his family and then destroy all the enemies of Indra throughly. (4)

Bhujang prayat Chhand

So Vishnu took birth in the house of Jamdagan. He was born to (his wife) Rinka, and he was to be armed with an axe alongwith protective coats of mail. It appeared as if the god of death had assumed the human form for the destruction of the Kashatriyas, who had killed the king Sahasarbahu. (5)

It is not possible for me to give all the details of the episode, but briefly would relate this. Many Kashatriya kings were filled with pride and egoism, and for their destruction, (the incarnation of Paras Ram) had armed himself with an axe. (6)

The background to this episode is like this. Kamdhain cow had a calf by the name Nandini, whom Sahasarbahu Kashatriya had been demanding from Jamdagan and had got tired of requesting him since long. Finding an appropriate opportunity he snatched (took away) the cow and killed the father of Parus Ram (Jamdagan). To take revenge Parus Ram had destroyed all the Kashatriya kings (twenty-one times). (7)

For this purpose, the wife of Jamdagan went to the forest (one day) and located Parus Ram there, whom she told the whole story (happening). So Parus Ram asked the mother to give him the name of the killer of his father. Then Rinka told him the of the killer. When Parus Ram heard the name of Sahasarbahn king, with his ears, he proceeded to the abode (palace) of the King. (8)

Then Parus Ram (reaching there) asked Sahasarbahu, "O King ! How had you killed my father? I will kill you in the same manner, after gaining victory in a battle right now. O foolish king! Why are you relaxing like this? Either take up arms (against me) or run away from here, leaving all your weapons. (9)

When the King heard such abusive language, he was furious with rage and picking up his sword, he got up bravely like a lion. He stood up with a resolve, thinking in his mind. That he would kill this blood- thirsty brahmin in the battle-field, as he is keen to fight it out today only. (10)

On hearing the words of the king, all the warriors also got ready, and they were enraged for the battle. They armed themselves with all the weapons and war-material. They took charge of their maces, bayonets, tridents and spears. Then the famous Kashatriyas got ready for launching an attack. (11)

Naraj Chhand

The warriors were advancing, while challenging the enemy with drawn swords. They were shouting to kill the enemy while their arrows were already (tasting blood) being shot at the enemy. (12)

By covering the body with coat of mail (as protective covering) and carrying bayonets, the enraged warriors were advancing forward. The thrashing whips were striking the horses and many (thousands of) arrows were being shot. (13)

Rasaval Chhand

All the warriors got together and rushing forward, they encircled Parus Ram in such a manner just as dark clouds surround (cover) the Sun. (14)

The bows were producing cracking noise, while horrible noises were being heard. The warriors were advancing like the dark clouds covering up the sky. (15)

The warriors were advancing from all sides, while throwing the hordes of elephants in front of them (for protection). Many arrows were being showered, while the enemy troops were being beheaded. (17)

Loud sounds were heard and the Kashatriyas were furious with rage. Parus Ram was surrounded by the troops just as Shiva was trapped (surrounded) by the sexual desires. (18)

The warriors were fully engossed in the waging of war and were actually frightful of the enemy strength and might. The sky was covered with the dust, rising from the marching foot steps of the troops. (19)

Many drums were beating. The warriors were roaring. The warriors were locked up in fighting just as tied lions start mauling the hunt (enemy) after being untethered (let loose). (20)

The warriors who had lost their coats of mail, were fleeing from the battle-field, being unprotected. Some others were playing a game of iron (with swords and spears) while the steeds were running fast. (22)

The warriors, while patting (Stroking) their arms (shoulders), were shooting arrows causing injuries (wounds) to the enemy troops. Thay were striking with spears forcefully and were fighting with increased vigour and enmity. (23)

So the tenth incarnation of Vishnu is Brahma, who was brought to the world for directing them on to the virtuous path. There is no distinction between Brahma and Vishnu, and this should be understood clearly, as has been explained in the Shastras and Smritis. (7)

Here the narration of the tenth incarnation of Brahma from the Bachittar Natak is completed. All is auspicious. (10)

Now I would describe Rudra incarnation Sri Bhaguati Ji Sahaie (Sri Bhagauti be our protector)

Totak Chhand

All the people got involved in virtuous deeds of religious type. People got distracted from the love of Yogic exercises. When the religious practices prevailed there was increased population and people developed million forms of gods (Braham) (1)

The Earth was over populated with human beings, as a result of which there were too much of suffering, which cannot be described. The Earth in the ganb of a cow went to the chheer, ocean and explained its sufferings to the Lord creator, by raising hue and cry (by weeping) (2)

When the Lord heard the afflictions of the Earth with his own ears the Lord. Creator laughed, being pleased (amused) with its version. So He (the Lord) called vishnu in his presence, and dirocted him like this. (3)

The Lord exclaimed."O vishnu You take the form of Rudra and destroy the human beings of the universe,. Then he appeared in the form of Rudra and by killing the human beings of the world, he introduced the Yoga (religious practice) religion (in the world) (4)

Parsuram, after usurping the land from the Kashatriyas, had made the brahmins as the Kings of the land. However, the Kashatriyas again had won back the land in gambling from the brahmins. So the brahmins again, being tormented, called for help from Parsuram. So Parsuram was furious with rage and picking up his axe, went for the help of the brahmins. (31)

The Kashatriyas kings, hearing the news of mighty Parsuram's coming back, got ready, armed with weapons and coats of mail. they marched from there with great optimism and fought as shoutly as Ram had fought against Ravana. (32)

Parsuram then saw the weapons and coats of mail attached to his body, then he got hold of bows and arrows and destroyed the enemy completely. Some of the warriors were made armless while some of them were headless. All the Kashatriyas (were killed) and the warriors who had come for waging war were killed. (33)

Parsuram had completed the extinction of Kashatriyas from the surface of Earth for twenty-one times. He had thus killed all the kings in grand style. I feel hesitant to narrate the whole (story) episode from beginning to end as the Granth would become unwieldy, (so it is described briefly). (34)

Choupaiee :

Vishnu had thus assumed the ninth incarnation for performing this wonderful drama. Now I am going to describe the tenth incarnation (of Vishnu) which is the life-saving device of the saintly persons. (35)

Choupaiee

Now I am going to narrate an epic, as to how the learned (sage) god Brahma was born, who was four-facited, destroyer of sins and the creator of the whole Universe, how he took birth. (1)

Whenever the Vedas are destroyed, then this Brahma appears on the scene. So Vishnu alone assumes the form of Brahma and the world has known him as the four-facited god. (2)

Whenever Vishnu had assumed the form of Brahma, then the Vedas were promulagated in the whole world. All the Shastras and Smritis (the Hindu books of lore) were recited and the human beings of the world were directed on to the right path. (3)

All those who were used to sinful actions were directed to become the destroyers of the Sins, as Brahma had explained in clear terms the sinful actions and all the human beings were directed to be immersed in vituous deeds. (4)

Thus the incarnation of Brahma had come about, who was supposed to be the destroyer of Sins. All the worshippers were directed on to the spiritual path, by driving them away from Sinful actions. (5)

Couplet

Thus Vishnu had assumed the form of Brahma as his incarnation to purify the mode of worship, and all the people became virtuous-minded, leaving aside all the sinful actions. (6)

So the tenth incarnation of Vishnu is Brahma, who was brought to the world for directing them on to the virtuous path. There is no distinction between Brahma and Vishnu, and this should be understood clearly, as has been explained in the Shastras and Smritis. (7)

Here the narration of the tenth incarnation of Brahma from the Bachittar Natak is completed. All is auspicious. (10)

Now I would describe Rudra incarnation Sri Bhaguati Ji Sahaie (Sri Bhagauti be our protector)

Totak Chhand

All the people got involved in virtuous deeds of religious type. People got distracted from the love of Yogic exercises. When the religious practices prevailed there was increased population and people developed million forms of gods (Braham) (1)

The Earth was over populated with human beings, as a result of which there were too much of suffering, which cannot be described. The Earth in the ganb of a cow went to the chheer, ocean and explained its sufferings to the Lord creator, by raising hue and cry (by weeping) (2)

When the Lord heard the afflictions of the Earth with his own ears the Lord. Creator laughed, being pleased (amused) with its version. So He (the Lord) called vishnu in his presence, and dirocted him like this. (3)

The Lord exclaimed."O vishnu You take the form of Rudra and destroy the human beings of the universe,. Then he appeared in the form of Rudra and by killing the human beings of the world, he introduced the Yoga (religious practice) religion (in the world) (4)

I will explain the whole episode from the beginning as to how Shiva fought against the demon called Andhak, divested the god of love (Cupid) of his pride (egoism) and how he crushed the army of demons. (6)

Padhri Chhand

When the Earth suffers under the weight (of sins and over-population), then it does not get peace of mind, then it goes towards the Chheer Ocean to pray (to the Lord), and Vishnu appears as an incarnation of Rudar. (7)

Then Rudar kills all the demons, bringing their doomsday nearer, thus saving the honour of the saints. After killing all the demons, he mingles with the Lord-Sublime. (8)

Tetak Chhand

A demon, by the name of Tipur, Became very powerful in all the three worlds (enunciated by the demon Medh). He was well known in the three worlds, with his fame shining like the sun. By gaining the occult powers (from the Lord) he became so powerful that he gained control of all the fourteen regions of the Universe. (9)

He was bestowed with a boon that a person, who could kill Tipur with the strike of one arrow only and having such a prowess, he could be the destroyer of that dreadful demon alone. Who has appeared in the form of such a powerful person ? The poet has narrated the episode of such a person, who had destroyed all the three worlds with the striking of one arrow only. (10)

Shiva proceeded on his mission of killing him, thus saving the lives of all human beings . So he shot a shining arrow, with full fury and with one onslaught of his arrow, he destroyed all the three worlds. (11)

Perceiving this wonderful scene, all the gods were delighted and showered flowers from the sky, and there were (cries) shouts of Salutations heard all over. There was a great tumult on the Himalaya mountain and the Earth was also shaken up. (trembled). (12)

After sometime had elapsed, another warrior of the nane of the Andhak was born. Then Shiva took up his trident (Trishul) and riding on a bull he proceeded. All the gods were start led on seeing the wrathfulness of Shiva. (13)

All the gods, celestial musicians, demi gods, snakes and Durga (goddess) bestowed their favours on Shiva (boon), that Shiva will kill the enemy of the gods (Andhak) in no time just as demon Tripur had been killed by a piercing arrow. (14)

From the other side, the enemy (Andhak) with a huge army marched forward, while from this side, Shiva was furious with rage, holding his trident in his hands. Both the warriors got engrossed in a grave battle on the battle-field. It appeared as if the flames of a jungle fire were rising to the sky ; brilliantly. (15)

Both the gods and demons got engrossed in a battle. Picking up their weapons, they got absorbed in the fighting. Warriors from both the sides were shooting their arrows in great excitement, as if the clouds were showering rain drops at the end of the doomsday. (16)

The enemies of the gods (the demons) being wounded, were fleeing from the battle-field in a dejected manner. (desperately) That moment, the demon Andhak, in a state of intoxication, started moving around, sounding the drums of victory. The attacks with Tridents, sabres, straps and arrows were being carried out. The warriors were falling down (violently) forcibly as if they were (playing) performing a dance programme. (17)

In the battle field there were many strikes with spears, apart from those with swords and arrows. The soldiers were moving around at places and were wielding their weapons instantly. Somewhere the mutilated links were lying on the ground, while at other places bodies soaked in blood were lying . Each warrior had attracted the attention of many fairies. (had wedded). (18)

At places many fly whisks, robes, horses, chariots, charioteers and kings were lying down (dead) on the ground. A horrible looking stream of blood was flowing, and at places well-decorated horses were lying in a mutilated shape, while there were great elephants with their crests lying down at places. At places there were camels lying down and none of the enemies was left alive. (19)

Many kings were fleeing from there, leaving behind their well-decorated horses. Shiva had killed many horrible looking warriors with a great triumphant mood. Instead of arming themselves with weapons, the stubhorn warriors were running away (forgetting everything) forgetful of their duty. Many were running away leaving behind their coats of mail, shields, and arrows or bows. (20)

Naraj Chhand

All the warriors, who had launched the attack, had all been killed by Shiva, and all those who would dare to attack in future, will also be killed by Shiva. (21)

Hordes of warriors were running away from the battle-field recklessly (at random). while there was a continuous shower of arrows in grand style. Many so called warriors had been killed by Shiva. (22)

On both sides warriors armed with weapons and coats of mail beautifully, were roaring from all the four directions. They were such foppish (dandy) stal warts, whose blare will never cease to exist. (23)

The trumpets were being blown giving out frightening sounds (music), while the warriors were armed with the weapons of war beautifully. They were thundering like the clorods, being armed with (great) grand bows. (24)

The gods also reached the battle-field, equipped with large size bows and perceiving them all the warriors got (excited and) delighted. Then the shower of arrows began without delay. (25)

The warriors had held arrows in their hands and came with lot of pomp and show for waging war. The weapons were being used with alacrity by them and were beheading the enemy troops (removing their heads from the body). (26)

Rudar was furious with rage, on seeing whom the weaklings (timid ónès) were getting ready to flee, while the great warriors were roaring loudly. They were fully equipped with weapons and coats of mail. (27)

These warriors were holding spears in their hands ; they had joined the battle with pride and splendour. They were roaring in the battle-field giving out loud cries of war, while Rudra was elegantly being honoured in the battle-field. (28)

Blood was oozing (gushing) out of their wounds, and they were fighting with great determination. The evil-spirits were sucking the blood and belching, while the vultures were shrieking. (29)

Rudra was enraged and he killed all the timid demons infact Rudra had smitten them into two pieces, and thus the whole demon force was destroyed. (30)

Shiva was furious with wrath and killed many illustrous demons. The arrows were being showered like the cloud burst. (31)

When Rudra thundered in the battle-field, all the demons fled away. All the demons deserted their weapons and were divested of all their pride and egoism. (32)

Choupaiee

Then the mighty Andhak, along with a huge army of demons launched an attack. He shot many (countless) arrows at the Nandi Bul, the conveyance (carriage) of Shiva, which pierced through the body. (33)

When the bull Nandi was struck with arrows, Shiva became aggressive with rage and he shot many arrows in a revengeful manner, which covered the whole sky and the Earth (land) in a moment. (34)

When Shiva had shot the arrows like a shower (continuously), the whole army of demons fled away. Then suddenly the demon Andhak stood in front of Shiva solidly and a duel ensued in the battle-field. (35)

Aril

He shot about twenty arrows with wrathfulness towards Shiva, which struck the body of Rudar and wounding him pierced through his body. Then Shiva immediately took up his Pinak bow and attacked and a terrible battle was fought on the battle-field by both the warriors. (36)

Shiva furious with rage, admonished the enemy, and taking out two arrows from his quiver, shot at the despot, which struck his head and he fell down on the ground. It appeared as if lightning in a rage had razed (thrown) a huge pillar to the ground. (37)

Tetak Chhand

The demon Andhak regained consciousness after a little while and the mighty demon again took up his bow in the hands and stretching it with his hand, and like a cloud-burst the powerful demon started showering his arrows. (38)

The mighty demon was furious with rage and started shooting arrows like a shower (of rain). These arrows were piercing through the (enemy) bodies and coming out from the other side. Then Shiva also got enraged and took up his trident in the hand and removing the head of the enemy, cut the body into two pieces. (39)

Here the chapter on Pinak bow, Andhak and his killing alongwith the praise of Rudra of the Bachittar Natak is completed. All is well so far. (10)

Now the narration of the killing of Gori (Parbati) begins.
With the Grace of the Lord-Protector

Tetak Chhand

The god Indra was greatly delighted on hearing about the killing of the enemy Andhak. Many days thus elapsed (in peace), then one day Shiva went to Indra's place. (1)

Then Shiva had assumed a frightful form. On seeing Shiva, Indra threw (struck) a weapon on him and Shiva also got furious with rage, which gave birth to a great flame (of fire). (2)

All the beings of the world started burning with the flash of the fire. Thus that flash of fire was thrown into the ocean, but the waters did not accept (welcome) this fire (ball) and it assumed the form of Jallandhar on the Earth. (3)

Choupaiee

That is how the mighty demon (was born) manifested and he looted the wealth of Kuber. He pulled up Brahma's beard and made him feel miserable and after defeating Indra, established himself as the king. (with canopy overhead). (4)

After (winning) gaining victory over the gods, made them bow before him and welcoming (bringing) Vishnu and Shiva, installed them in his place (town). He brought back all the fourteen jewels to his palace and wherever possible he positioned his own (Groups) people to torment (cause suffering) to the ordinary human beings. (5)

Couplet

Jallandhar, gaining victory over all the gods and demons, brought them to his own city (place). Then going to Kailash Mountain, he worshipped the god Vishnu there. (6)

Then Jallandhar worshipped Shiva day and night, meditating on him with all possible means, and sometime was spent in this activity. Now the episode turns to the narration about Shiva. (7)

Seeing the inexhaustible might of Shiva, all the enemies living on land and in the oceans started trembling (worried). In those days there used to be a great king by the name Dakash Prajapati, and ten thousand daughters were born to him. (8)

He once organised a Swamvar (marriage function) and asked his ten thousand princesses to select their grooms, whomsoever they liked, and get married to him, whether he be a king or an ordinary person. (9)

So they got married to anyone they liked ; it is rather impossible to narrate all the details from the beginning, as I (become) am afraid, it would become too lengthy. (10)

Prajapati gave four daughters (in marriage) to (Rishi) Kashap, and many daughters got married to (the god) moon, and many daughters went away to other lands. One daughter, named Gaurja, married Rudra. (11)

When Shiva, after marrying Gori, brought her to his place, then after quite sometime there was a talk of performing a Yagna at Prajapati's place, so he sent for all his daughters (to join), so all of them, alongwith their spouses, came (there) to the father's place. (12)

All the sons-in-law of the king from different lands, left for in-laws place. On seeing Shiva in a different attire (form) no one, including Prajapati, took him for a King. (13)

So the King Dakash did not invite his daughter Gaurja even. When Gaurja heard the news of a Yagna being organised at the father's place, from Narad, she was much agitated and went to her father's place without being invited. On reaching there she found every one's behaviour (towards her) as unkind (harsh) so she became furious with rage being annoyed in body and mind. (felt jealous). (14)

Realising her insult apart from her spouse even, Gaurja jumped into the fire-pit (of Yagna). Due to the glory and chastity of Gurja, the fire became cool (devoid of its heat). Then Gaurja manifested the (flame) of fire and jumping into it, got her body and life destroyed. (burnt in fire). (15)

Narad came to Shiva and related to him the whole incident saying that "You are sitting here quietly having consumed hemp (bhang) whereas Gaurja has got herself burnt in the fire pit of Yagna. Hearing this Shiva lost his meditation (trance) and became enraged. Picking up his trident he rushed towards that place. (In-law's place). (16)

On reaching the place (of Yagna) he lifted his trident with a jerk (force) and started striking it against all (those attending Yagna) and destroyed the whole Yagna (fire-worship). (17)

Thus Shiva killed various kings in different ways, and cut all of them into pieces one by one. Wherever the trident was struck, the person was killed on the spot. (instantaneously). (18)

When Shiva looked at the fire-pit, he pulled out a matted hair from his tuft of hair, and immediately from it a warrior Bhadar manifested (itself). On being born, Shiva ordered him to destroy all the kings. (19)

Vir Bahadur had cut into pieces some of the renowned kings and killed many others. Many had fallen down on the ground being helpless and weaklings, as if the river banks had caved in. (20)

Suddenly Shiva was reminded of the death of Gaurya, so he picked up his Pinak bow with a revengeful mood and attacked with vengeance. Whosoever was hit by his arrows, he gave his life without a murmur (without asking for water). (21)

Many drums were beating with a loud note (Dum dum), while the ghosts and evil spirits were shouting loudly from all the ten directions, and the swords were shining with flashes and the horrible looking Rund and Mund were dancing around. (22)

The drums, tambourines, and kettle-drums were being sounded while the fighting youth (warriors) were engaged in battle. Some were being killed engrossed in the battle, and causing anger among their superiors. No one riding a horse could be seen after this. (23)

Whosoever was hit by the trident end of Shiva, was killed then and there. Thus the warriors fought a ferocious battle, so that even the dead came out of their graves. (24)

Couplet

Many arrows , axes, spears, sabres, scorpio type weapons and poisoned arrows were used in the battle. All the warriors fell as martyrs in the fighting, and not a soul was left alive. (25)

Choupaiee

By mutilating each other, all the Kings were killed being cut into two pieces. It seemed as if the banners (flags) had fallen down due to strong winds. When Shiva had attacked the enemy by holding his trident (trishul), he had fought a super natural war. (26)

All those Kings, who had come (to join the Yagna) fled away and forgetting about Dakash's Yagna they thought of their own land. When Shiva had launched the attack assuming a dreadful form, the fleeing Kings could not escape his onslaught. (27)

Then all the kings were furious with rage, and there were cries of death all over, with different sounds, and a fierce battle ensued. The Yama's abode was filled with corpses in no time. (28)

The fleeing kings also returned to fight it out again. They were now attacking the enemy with their bows in hand alongwith other weapons time and again, as if there were repeated strokes on the huge bell.

Many indestructible warriors had fallen down cut into pieces in the battle field, and the whole Universe (Comprising nine regions) was shivering (with fear) and while dropping their swords, the kings were lying fallen on the ground. The battle scene was similar to the Swamvar function. (30)

The horse riding warriors were engrossed in fighting, having weapons in their hands. There was an onslaught of arrows from both sides, while the bows were cracking.

The warriors were wielding their swords and striking each other, while the ground was covered with dust. The sharpened arrows were being shot while the wounded were crying out for water. (32)

The evil spirits were making noise, men of equal stature were engrossed in fighting. The fairies were mocking (laughing) at the scene and the swords were shining like flashes of light.

The warriors, shouting to kill the enemy, were advancing to kill one another. The various associates of Rudra (musicians) had crushed many warriors, while the huge horde of Shiva's musicians looked like the horrible looking dark clouds of Monsoon. (savan). The arrows being shot with full force were like a shower of rain dropping continuously. (34)

Naraj Chhand

Many warriors were running around and shouting. "kill them, kill them." Even on being wounded some unsatisfied warriors were getting up and then shooting arrows in plenty. (35)

Many warriors, being bedecked with coats of mail, and with pomp and show were proceding to the battle-field. They were wielding their weapons fearlessly, while showting 'to kill the enemy'. (36)

The warriors were moving elegantly like the over cast dark clouds (in the monsoon) and they were looking graceful. Seeing them the godly maidens were enamoured. (37)

They were selecting their spouses and getting married and were proceeding to Indra-lok (heavens). The Kings who had fled away from the battle-field, being frightful (with fear). were being discarded by the princely maidens. (38)

The stubborn warriors, armed with weapons and coats of iron were attacking (the enemy) while shouting challenges. On seeing the dreadful posture of Shiva the kings had amassed a huge army, so the mighty army launched an attack like the dark clouds of the monsoon (Savan). The warriors were dancing gracefully as if they had usurped the enemy kingdom, and their honour (prestige). (39)

By wielding their swords and trotting their horses, the warriors launched an attack on the side, where Shiva was standing. They made many attacks with arrows and spears and were trying to push him but Shiva did not retrace a single step even. (40)

The spears and javelins were striking with a whizzing sound, while the swords and arrows were striking with a thud, whereas the warriors were roaring like a lion, while blood was oozing out of their wounds. So the wounded soldiers, being fed up with fighting, were falling down on the ground, but were not retracting at all. The fairies were selecting their warriors and getting married (united) with them. (41)

Choupaiee :

Thus Dakash was left alone helpless whereas all his associates had fallen down after fighting the enemy. He called back all the warriors, who were left alive, and arming himself with the coat of mail, he sounded the war-drum again. (42)

The king marched towards the battle-field personally, collecting about hundred millions of warriors. The arrows were being shot from many bows, and it seemed during the daylight even, darkness (night) had dawned. (43)

The ghosts, evil spirits and the graveyard were all shouting and from both sides, drums were beating loudly. A terrible and fierce battle was raging just like the war in Lanka between Rama and Ravana. (44)

Bhujang prayat Chhand

Shiva was furious with rage and took up his trident in the hands. After killing all the warriors, the horses were left (riderless), with their saddles devoid of riders. Now on one side there was only Dakash, and on the other side was Rudra, so both of them fought ferociously in many ways. (45)

The head of Dakash, being cut off with the trident (trishul), fell down on the ground just as a tree, uprooted from the top of a mountain, tumbles down. When the king-emperor 'Dakash was killed, his body was lying on the ground just as a mountain, struck by the powerful Indra (god), had fallen down. (46)

All had lost their pride ; the warriors had fled away ; and losing their patience they had gone to the female-apartments (with fear). They fell at the feet of Shiva with complete self-surrender and said, "O Rudra ! May You help us through Your Grace!" (47)

O Shiva ! We never realized your might, you are a great ascetic and most powerful. On hearing these words, Shiva became benevolent, and arranged to join (unite) the head of a he-goat to the trunk of the king with great haste. (48)

Choupaiee :

Shiva then meditated on the Lord-Sublime (Prime-Male) and made king Dakash alive again and made him standup. Then he made all the spouces of the princesses alive again and made him standup. Then he made all the spouses of the princesses alive (spouses of the daughters of king Dakash) and all the godly saints were delighted on seeing this sight. (miracle). (49)

After the death of Sati-(Shiva's spouse), being without his mate, Shiva was being embarrased by the god of love (sexual desires), which tormented Shiva a lot. But after being enraged for sometime, Shiva buried (burnt) his sexual desires. From that day onwards the god of love was known as 'naked,' without any cover (body).(50)

Here the eleventh chapter of Bachittar Natak Granth dealing with the episodes of Rudra's killing of Dakash, and Rudra's graceful glory, and the death of Gori is completed. All is auspicious so far. (11)

Now begins the episode of "Incarnation of Jallandhar."
With the Grace of the Lord-Protector
Choupaiee :

The Shiva's spouse, who had got herself burnt in the fire-pit of Yagna, was again born in the family of Himachal. When her childhood was over, and she became young, she again joined (united) with her spouse. (Shiva). (1)

Thus Parbati had united with Rudra in the same manner as Sita had joined with Rama, or the Gita's idelogy compares well (joins) with the four Vedas, or Ganga joins (merges) with the seas. (2)

When Shiva got married to the maiden (Himachal's daughter) and brought her to his abode, then Jalandhar got enamoured with her, perceiving her beauty. He sent an emissary, with the orders of snatching away this woman from Rudra. (taking away with force). (3)

Couplet :

Jallandhar said, "O Shiva ! Either you send your wife, fully bedecked with ornaments to me, or picking up your trident come prepared for a battle against me." (4)

That day, the great Rishi Narad happened to visit Lachhmi's house, being harrased with hunger, so he was tempted much on seeing brinjals. He was asking for brinjals but he could not get them. (6)

Lachhmi said, " I have prepared the food for my master (spouse), but by sending an emissary, the demon assembly had sent for Vishnu. O Narad ! If you are given to eat this food, then the food will become impure and my beloved spouse would get annoyed. (7)

Then Narad remarked," Narad Muni (the ascetic) was tired of demanding the food, but Lachhmi refused to serve him with food. Then the great sage felt very much enraged in his mind and uttered this curse , " O Lachhmi ! You would be born as a demon woman named Brinda and become the spouse (wife) of Jallandhar and then would stay with him." (8)

fter pronouncing this curse, the great ascetic (Maha Rishi) went away. Then Vishnu came to her (wife). After hearing about the curse of the Rishi, who was pained so much (hearing all the talk he had with her) Vishnu laughed it away and told his wife to be more patient. (9)

Couplet

Vishnu, immediately taking his wife's image (reflection), made her into a beautiful Brinda, and then that Brinda took birth in the family of demon Dhrumkes. (10)

Choupaiee

Just as the lotus flower remains un attached (unaffected) with water, similarly she took birth in the family of Dhrumkes demon and then became a part of (the spouse of) Jallandhar. For her benefit (and for her salvation) Vishnu would assume the form of magnificent Jallandhar. (11)

This side, the episode progressed like this, and now the story turned to Rudra. Jallandhar had demanded the hand of his wife, but Shiva refused to oblige. So Jallandhar immediately became furious with rage. (12)

The drums were beating and trumplets blowing, and the kettle drums started making loud sounds from both sides. A furious battle then ensued, where many swords were wielded like the flash of lightning. (13)

The warriors were falling down on the battle field, where smoke was coming up. The riders on elephants, the charioteers, and the riders of horses alongwith infantry (soldiers on foot) were engrossed in the battle, while many warriors were falling down (dead) while fighting in the battle field. (14)

Tetak Chhand

The perserverant warriors, were moving around the battle field greatly enraged. A dreadful battle was going on in that land. The horses were neighing, the elephants trumpeting, whose sound would make even the monsoon clouds belitted. (ashamed). (15)

In the battle field the swords and arrows from bows were being used. It was a fierce battle being fought in the world. The warriors were falling flat while stubborn ones were feeling nervous, and the enemy was collecting together his remaining (re-organising) scattered army. (16)

Shiva had encircled the enemy into a tight corner with the (shower of) arrows from all the four sides, whereas (Jallandhar) demon king also managed a similar move, getting enraged. The arrows were being shot from both sides (in such quick succession) that the land and sky were both covered by them. (17)

The helmets in a broken state were lying around all over, and were drenched in blood, as if frondsa flowers were scattered there, Seeing such an unparalleled and fierce battle Shiva thought to himself. (18)

Shiva felt perplexed by seeing the battle progressing like this and challenging the enemy made a thrust into the troops of the demon. Holding his trident (trishul) firmly he was attacking the enemy with ferocity in the battle-field. Having his war cry both the gods and the demons were completely frightened. (19)

When Shiva meditated on the Lord (Kal) the Lord-Sublime was pleased with him, and told Vishnu to assume the form (appearance) of Jallandhar, and destroy the enemy completely. (20)

Bhujang prayat Chhand

On the ordains of the Lord, Vishnu assumed the form of Jallandhar and armed with all the weapons of war, Vishnu was looking like King Jallandhar. Thus Vishnu saved the honour of his spouse.Thus he had spoiled (damaged) the chastity of the Chaste Brinda, the greatest woman. (21)

Then Brinda dropped immediately the form of the demon woman, and transformed herself back into (the form of) Lachhmi. That is how Vishnu had assumed the (form) incarnation of Jallandhar. Then the battle was resumed again, and the warriors took up their weapons again. The warriors, who had fallen down (dead) on the ground, were getting the honour of being taken in planquins. (22)

On one side the chastity of the woman was destroyed (upset), and on the other side, the whole army was killed, and the pride (egoism) of king Jallandhar was also destroyed. Then Jallandhar devoid of his royal might again began fighting, but all his subordinate associates deserted him and fled away. (23)

Choupaiee

Then both got engrossed (in a duel) in the battle-field, and there was no third person left there (on the battle-field), so the battle (fighting) continued for months, in the end when Jallandhar became ferocious (to Shiva) in attack. (24)

Then Shiva meditated on the (goddess Durga) Shakti, Lord's power, so the goddess of power showered her benevolence on him, and Shiva became more powerful and fought with greater strength in many ways. (25)

On the other side, Vishnu had destroyed the chastity of the enemy's wife Brinda and at this end Shiva, with the help (might) of the goddess, had gained more prowess, so he destroyed the enemy (demon) in a moment. All the warriors watching this scene, were delighted. (26)

From that day onwards Durga was renamed as Jallandhari. So all should worship (meditate on) Chandika all the twenty-four hours, which would purify one's body throughly, just as one gets purified by having a dip in the waters of river Ganga.(27)

The whole episode of Shiva has not been detailed here for fear of the Granth (description) becoming too lengthy (voluminous). So the episdode has been narrated briefly. O poets ! Do not make fun for any shortcomings (in this description). (28)

Now I would describe the details of the incarnation of Bisan , just as Murari has manifested himself. When the Earth gets laden (overloaded) with the increased (unbearable) sinful actions and becomes restless, then it cries for help to the Lord-Sublime. (1)

When the demons make the gods flee away (defeated), usurping their kingdom of the land, and the Earth gets burdened with sins, then it cries for help, and the Prime-male (Lord-Sublime) bestows His grace on the Earth. (2)

If I were to give details of this episode from the very beginning, then the Incarnation of Vishnu (Granth) needs lot of effort for its narration, as such it has been described 'briefly'.
O Lord (Indestructible) ! May You protect me from all sufferings and calamities!(5)

Now the episode of the Incarnation of Arhant Dev begins
"With the Grace of the Lord-Protector"

Choupaiee

Whenever the demons used to expand their activities, Vishnu would arrange for their destruction. Once all the demons got together at one place, and went to the Guru's (Shukracharya) abode. (1)

All the demons pondered over collectively about the gods killing the demons always, so they thought of evolving a (scheme) move, which could solve this problem. (2)

The Guru of demons said, "O demons ! You have not realised one thing that the gods can always perform many types of Yagnas (fire-worship) by getting together, and for that reason they enjoy peace and prosperity (day and night) alweays. (3)

You also make arrangements for a Yagna, so that you could be victorious in the battle. Agreeing to this proposal the demons also started performing a Yagna (fire-worship). On hearing this news of the Yagna, the gods (heavens) were shaken up.(4)

Then Vishnu called all the gods to think over it. Then the gods said "O Destroyer of the demons ! Pray tell us some remedy for it." In the end Vishnu said. "I Will assume a new form (body) and create some disturbance (obstacle) in the performance of Yagna by the demons." (5)

Vishnu visited many holy places of pilgrimage and bathed there, then gave alms to innumerable brahmins. Then the learned (scholarly) Vishnu evolved the light of knowledge in his mind and meditated on the Lord-Sublime. (6)

Then the Lord-Almighty was pleased with Vishnu and Through His benevolence accepted him as His slave, and spoke these sweet words, " O Vishnu ! Go and assume the form of the god Arhant and then destroy the king of the demons. (7)

On getting this ordain, Vishnu sang the praises of the Lord-Sublime. Then he came to the Earth in the form (guise) of Arhant Dev (god) and initiated a new panth. (started a new religious sect). (8)

When Vishnu became the Guru of the demons (in the form of Arhant Dev), he made arrangements for the spread of his mission (sect) in many ways. He propounded the seet of Sarevarais, and gave relief to all the saints. (9)

He arranged to give tweezers to each follower for pulling out hair and made many demons devoid of their lock of hair on the head. Normally the tuft-less people cannot think any magical sermon, and if anyone happens to recite any such sermon (magical), then it produces the opposite effect (than expected). (10)

He stopped people from performing Yagnas, and also drove them away from killing animals (for sacrifice). Since no Yagna could be performed without killing some animal, people have stopped performing Yagna. (sacrificial fire worship). (11)

Thus the practice of Yagnas has come to an end. If someone kills an animal, he is vilified in the world. Since no Yagna can be performed without a kill, and if someone does perform a Yagna without offering an animal's sacrifice, he does not get any reward for his Yagna. (12)

Thus a similar teaching was given to all so that no king could perform Yagna, and all were directed on the wrong path, as a result of this no one could perform a religious duty (function of Virtuous deeds). (13)

So Arhant imparted such teachings to all the people, which was firmly believed by all, and no one could perform any virtuous deeds (of religious nature). All had embided such a mental outlook, as a result the race of the demons became devoid of strength/power. (15)

No demon would now leathe, and no one could get purified without a bath, and without being purified no one could recite (holy) religious sermons, as such all actions would become (useless) fruit less. (16)

Then Arhant ruled the world for ten thousand years, and thus he propagated his religion in the world. All virtuous deeds came to an end, and the race of demons became powerless. (17)

The king of gods, Indra, was very much satisfied with this arrangement and felt that Vishnu had done them a great favour. Now there were more rejoicings and happiness and sorrow or suffering had been eliminated. There were great rejoicings in all the families. (homes). (18)

All the people were now conforming (practising) to the Jainism religion, and all were devoid of any virtuous deeds or religious deeds. All had forgotten to serve the Lord Almighty, and no one had any faith in the Lord-Sublime. (1)

All the saints had become incorragible (desperate) and had stopped performing any religious (virtuous) deeds. Then the Lord-Sublime had ordained Vishnu like this, who carried out His orders accordingly. (2)

Then Vishnu, had appeared as an incarnation of King Mun, and propagated the teachings of Manu Smriti in the world. All the followers of Jainism were directed back on to the right path, and repulsed the people from sinful actions. (3)

Now Vishnu had assumed the form of King Mun, who appeared as an incarnation of Vishnu, who propagated the path of religious (virtious) functions. Whosoever was caught engrossed in irreligious or Sinful actions, would be killed. Thus all the people (subjects) were brought back on the right path of virtuous deeds. (4)

Whenever any person was found indulging in Sinful actions, he was killed. So all the subjects were taught the path of religion. All were taught to recite the Lord's True Name and in the art of alms-giving, and removed the cult of Jainism from the world. (5)

All those persons, who fled away to distant (foreign) lands, were left to adhere to the cult of Jainism. The rest of the subjects were directed onto the path of religious duties, and repelling people from sinful actions all were directed to perform virtuous actions. (6)

Thus the incarnation of Raj, appeared in the form of King-Mun, who propagated the path of true religion of performing virtouos action in the world. All the misguided people were directed back onto the right path, and engaged them in moral (religious duties by repulsing them from performing Sinful actions. (7)

Thus the gods and demons joined hands to churn the ocean, and for alleviating the sufferings of mankind, they took out king Dhanantri from the (churning of) ocean. (4)

Choupaiee

The Dhanantri king revealed the Ayur Veda to the world, thus dispelling all the worldly Sufferings. By revealing the Vedic Shastras he showed to the world the Veda, which gave remedies for various ailments. (5)

Couplet

Thus he produced the medicine (treatment) for all ailments and gave to the world, medicines for various ailments. After sometime Tachhak killed him by stinging him with his poison, and (despatched) sent him to the heavens. (he died). (6)

Here the seventeenth chapter on the incarnation of Dhanvantri from the Bachittar Natak Granth is completed. All is well so far. (17)

Now begins the episode of incarnation of the Sun
"With the Grace of the Lord-Protector."

Choupaiee

Then the son of Diti, called Dainti, became very powerful, who had gained victory over many enemies both on land and the seas. That time, getting the ordains of the Lord-Sublime, Vishnu appeared as an incarnation of the sun (sooraj). (1)

All the people, casting off laziness and lithargy, get up early in the morning. Many people meditate on the Lord's Name, and countless people are engaged in the meditation of the Lord-Sublime. They get engrossed in different tasks of the world and have installed the Lord in their minds. They recite continiously the holy sermons of Sandhia and gaitri. (in the hearts). (3)

People get up early in the morning and attend to godly-functions. They perform Yoga, burn incense, light lamps and fire-worship and follow certain principles in their performance. They recite the Shastras and Smritis and follow religious rituals. (duties). (4)

Ardh Naraj Chhand

One could see the Smoke arising from fire-workship on all sides, while people sleep on the ground. Many people meditate on the Lord, while few of them attain unison with the Lord with great difficulty. (5)

Much time had elapsed by the people in performing virtuous deeds and alms-giving when a demon became very powerful, known by the name Deeragh-Kaie, who was mighty and glorious. (7)

Choupaiee

His body would grow by an arrow-length every day, and he was destroying the gods and brahmins day and night (every day). Thus the demon called Deeragh-Kaie became an enemy of the Sun ; and the chariot of the Sun could not move. (stopped moving). (8)

Aril

When the Sun's chariot stopped moving forward, then Sun had got furious with rage. So he ordered his army, after arming himself with arms, weapons, and coats of mail, to march forward. Advancing towards the battle-field, he launched the attack in many ways and seeing him all the gods and demons also joined in the battle. (9)

Wielding their swords, the warriors were fighting and were falling on the ground, being cut into pieces, but no one would retreat a step back. They were being praised and glorified when wounds were inflicted on their bodies. It appeared as if they had joined a marriage party while wearing red coloured clothes. (10)

The timid soldiers were trembling (with fear), while remembering God's Name (Hari). The warriors were fully engrossed in fighting on the battle-field, as if intoxicated elephants were combating. (14)

The warriors were shouting loudly while the fairies were watching them. Many swift and large arrows were being shot, which would pierce through the bodies so that the warriors (being struck) were (falling) lying on the ground, being cut into pieces.(15)

The arrows were flashing around, while the flags were fluttering. The warriors were getting engrossed in the battle without losing time and would pierce through the body (chests) with arrows. (16)

The mighty warriors were roaring, as they were armed with superior arrows. The warriors were protected with coats of mail and iron coatings, but were being despatched to heavens. (facing death). (17)

The warriors, getting contracted, were striking their spears in front of them, making a hissing noise. Roaring like a lion the warriors were challenging the enemy while launching the attack. The mighty warriors (with stoutly built bodies) were losing their limbs, and were falling down on the battle-field, jumping in pain. All the warriors, clothed in red colour (of blood) were locked up in fighting fearlessly against the enemy. (20)

Ardh Naraj Chhand

New drums were heard beating loudly, whose noise would put the clouds even to shame (make clouds belittle). The kettle drums started beating, hearing their sound the warriors also started thundering. (21)

The belligerent warriors were falling down on the ground after fighting ferociously and proceeding to heavens (being dead). They were taken with honour in bedecked carriages. (getting honored). On perceiving this scene, both the demons and gods were also keenly waiting for their turn to gain that status. (of martyrs). (22)

Tetak Chhand

The horses of the warriors were trotting around in the battle. The Swords, held in hands, were sparkling like a flash of lightning between the clouds. The arrows, reddened with the blood, were seen piercing through the body of the persevering warriors in the battle-field, and falling on the other side. (25)

The flags were fluttering, and the warriors were moving swiftly, on perceiving whom even the dark clouds were feeling ashamed (belittled). The arrows and swords were sparkling (shining) in the battle field just as lighting flashes through the monsoon (Sawan) clouds. (26)

Couplet

How far could I detail this episode, as I am afraid, it would become too lengthy? The crux of the story (episode) is that finally the demon king Dhiragh kaie was killed with an arrow shot by the (god) Sun. (27)

Now the episode of the Incarnation of Moon begins
"With the Grace of the Lord-Protector"

Dodhak Chhand

Now I am going to describe (the episode of) the Moon, as to how Vishnu appeared as an incarnation of the Moon. I am going to narrate an epic, which would be delightful to the whole (lot) race of poets. (1)

There was a place, where nothing could be grown so all the people were dying of hunger. After a pitch dark night, with the heat of the sun-rise during the day, the crops were getting burnt, so nothing could be grown there. (2)

As a result of this, people were getting desperate. They were fleeing from there like the old dried leaves falling away with the wind. So they started worshipping the Lord (Hari) in many ways, which delighted the Lord-Sublime fully. (3)

The women-folk were no longer giving any respect to their spouses, rather they were feeling annoyed with them, and they were not pestered by their sexual desires, as such the women had no sexual relationship, as a result there was no need of the husbands for the women, and they had no value for them. (4)

Tomar Chhand

None of the women folk would serve the spouses and they were feeling egoistie in their own way, as they were not having any sexual desires, so the fair sex would not bow to the superiority of their men folk. (5)

The women folk were not subservient to their spouses, moreover they would not worship any gods, however great. They were not meditating on the Lord-Almighty and would not take a bath daily. (6)

Then the lord-Sublime called Vishnu in His presence and told him with proper advice, " Go to the world and assume the incarnation of 'moon' (god) and do not bother about anything else." (7)

Then Vishnu, with folded hands, replied by bowing his head, " I would take birth as an incarnation of Moon, as per Your ordains, so that the Supremacy of the Male sex could be reaffirmed in the world. (8)

Then the great and magnificent Vishnu took birth as an incarnation of Moon, who shot the arrow of sexual desires to the women folk (assumed sexual desires in them) with a forceful effect. (9)

Thus the women folk became gentle and humble, having lost all their egoism. They started serving the spouses, as such the Prime-Male (Lord-Sublime) was happy and satisfied. (10)

With the light of moon lit nights, the crops started growing fast, and all the functions were successful. This is how the incarnation of moon took place. (11)

Choupaiee

Thus Vishnu had assumed the incarnation of Moon, but he himself became egostic (proud) by seeing his beautiful form. He would not consider anyone on par with him. That is why he (moon) got disfigured (the blemish or ignominy), due to his egoism. (12)

Chandrama (Moon) had a sexual relationship with the wife of Brahspati, that is why the Muni (her spouse) got annoyed and threw a skin of the black deer onto the moon, which resulted in this patch of ignominy on the moon. (13)

Apart from this, Rishi Gautam also passed a curse against moon, resulting in the moon's size waxing and warning from that day. Moreover the Moon felt ashamed of himself in his heart from that day, so he had to cast away all his pride (egoism).(14)

Then moon performed great penance and the Lord-Sublime was thoroughly pleased and bestowed. His benevolence. His malady of T. B. (tuberclosis) was cast away, and provided Moon a bigher status (position) than the Sun. (15)

Here the nineteenth Chapter dealing with the incarnation of Moon of the Bachittar Natak Granth is completed. All is auspicious so far. (19)

Now the episode of twentieth
Incarnation of Ram begins.

Choupaiee

Now I am going to narrate the episode of Ram, as to how he performed his (expanse) rule in the world. After sometime had elapsed, the race of demons again appeared on the scene. (1)

The demons started creating lot of disturbance, and no one tried to mend their ways even a bit. Then all the gods got together (for consultation), and went to Chheer Ocean, where Seshasayee used to stay, (for finding a solution). (2)

The god Brahma alongwith Vishnu stayed there for a long time, and then prayed to the Lord with lot of crying and wailing about their suffering. Their cries of wailings were heard by the Lord-Sublime (in His ears). (3)

Tetak Chhand

When the Lord saw all the gods including Vishnu in a sorrowful mood, then the Lord called them with a Smile and said. " O Vishnu ! Go and assume the incarnation of Raghunath, and rule the land of avadh for a long time, enjoying all the worldly comforts. (4)

Vishnu heard the ordains of the Lord, so now the episode of the dynasty of Raghunath begins henceforth. If the poet were to narrate the whole episode in detail then the Granth would become too voluminous with the details. (5)

So only selected portions of the episode are narrated here ; O Lord ! It is only through the intelligence, which You have bestowed on me through Your Grace ; (I am going to describe).
O Poets ! Wherever you find any (omission) (mistake) rendered by me, you may improve upon it with better narration of language. (6)

In the dynasty of Raghvas there was a gem of a king, very renowned called 'Raghu Rãja,' who ruled for a long time over Ayodhya Puri.' When he was conquered by the (god of) death, his son. Aj took over the rule of the land. (7)

When 'Aj King' was overtaken by death, then Dasrath took charge of the Kingdom. (episode). He also ruled over Ayoudhya for quite a long time with glory. That king used to visit jungles for hunting expeditions. (8)

From that time, the rule of righteousness was in vogue since the time of Dasrath. He used to roam around thick jungles day and night and used to kill (hunt) lions, elephants and deer. (9)

The episode was revolving around him so far, now we turn to the episode of Ram's Mother 'Jaya'. Where we find the town of Kohram, there was a famous king of the Koshal dynasty. (10)

A daughter by the name of Kaushalya was born to him, who was more beautiful than moon even. (who had suspassed the artistic beauty of moon even). When that girl grew up, the king organised a Swamvar, where Kaushalya selected and got married to the king of Ayoudhya (Dasrath). (11)

Then there was another King Sumitar Sain who was very powerful, and had won over the kingdom of Madar land by waging a war. He was blessed with the birth of a daughter, who had surpassed the beauty of the moon and Sun even. (12)

When that girl grew up, then she also selected king Dasrath and got married to him. Now after this narration, we turn towards the King Kastuar, who had a daughter by the name Kaikaiee born in his family, who was beautiful. (13)

When Dasrath showed his keen desire to marry Kakaiee, the king of Kastuar remarked, " Any son born to (my daughter) Kaikaiee, will be the rightful ruler of your kingdom."Thanking Dasrath pondered over it and finally got married to kaikaiee, ftrom whom the moon and sun had borrowed beauty and charm. (14)

Kaikaiee had demanded two boons (gifts) from the king at the time of her marriage, which resulted in the death of Dasrath. That time the king did not realise the true meaning of these two demands, and agreed to bestow her with two favours (gifts). (15)

Then there was a battle fought between the gods and demons sometime later, in which the king was mainly involved. During that battle, the king's chariorteer was killed, then the queen kaikaiee (of Dasrath) herself took control of the chariot. On seeing this miracle, king Dasrath was wonder struck. (16)

So the king got pleased with the queen (kaikaiee) and agreed to bestow those two demands (boons) kaikaiee, without realising the consequences of these demands. This whole episode is narrated in Hanuman Natak and (Ramayan) Ram Charitar in detail, which incorporates how king Dasrath had helped god Indra to gain victory in that battle. (17)

Thus Dasrath had gained victories over the enemies in many ways and organised all the functions of the kingdom with success. King Dasrath was visiting the jungle for hunting purposes for days and nights. One day a Brahmin by the name Sarvan had come there for collecting water. (18)

Sarvan, after leaving behind his blind parents (mother and father), took a vessel in his hand and went away to fetch water. By chance, as luck would have it, Sarvan (Muni) also went there, where King dasrath had set up a scaffold (raised platform for hunting) waiting for his prey. (19)

When the pitcher was placed in water and the water was pouring in it, producing a slight sound, and Dasrath heard the sound (with the ears) and he took up his bow and shot an arrow, thinking it a deer, thus killing the Brahmin. (20)

The Muni fell down dead, as the arrow struck him, and he raised a huge cry of distress. "Where is the dead deer ? The king, to find out for himself, went to the other side of pond. But on seeing the Brahmin, the king was dumb-founded (and felt agrieved extremely. (21)

Sarvan Said, "There was still some life left in Sarvan, so the Brahmin, gave the following dying, message (from his death bed) to the king." O mean king ! My blind mother and father are lying at a certain place, go and give them water to drink."(22)

Padhri Chhand

" O King ! Both my father and mother are blind. I only ask you to go and give them water to drink. O sagacious king ! Do not relate my story to my parents, as they would die immediately on hearing the news of their son's death. (23)

When the brahmin spoke thus, the king's eyes were filled with tears. So Dasrath said to himself, I desire all the condemnation, for perpetrating such a heinous crime, which would detroy my kingdom. Even my religion (moral values) has been defiled."(24)

When the king pulled out the arrow from the brahmin's body, the great Muni gave up his life. Then the king felt very sorrowful and gave up his desire (hope) to go back to his palace. (25)

He decided in his mind to become a Yogi (ascetic) following Yoga cult, and abandon his land (kingdom). Thus settling (to live) in the jungle. "What is the use of all this kingdom, as I have comitted a great sin of killing a brahmin." (he said to himself). (26)

The wise king then thought to himself, that the whole world under the control of the god of death. So he should function in such a manner that the lives of the parents (of brahmin) could be saved. (27)

So the king filled the pitcher with water and holding it atop his head, he went to the place, where the brahmin's mother and father were lying. When with great alertness he reached near them, the parents heard the sound of his footsteps. (28)

The brahmin (Sarvan's father) said to the king :-
Padhri Chhand

"O Son ! Why have you taken so long and are delayed ? Hearing this, the wise king kept silent. The brahmin repeated then ! "O son ! Why do you not speak ! But the king, realising the difficult situation, again kept quiet. (29)

The king went to him and gave the (vessel of) water in his hand. On touching his hands, the brahmin got astonished. Then he said angrily, "Tell me the truth, who are you ?" Hearing this, the king wept bitterly. (30)

The king told the brahmin :-
Padhri Chhand

" O great brahmin ! I am the murderer of your son, and I have killed his son in his own land (country). I am king Dasrath, who is at your mercy. O Brahmin ! whatever way you want to deal with me, you may treat accordingly. "(I am at your disposal)". (31)

" I have come to seek your mercy. You may kill me, if you so wish or save (pardon) me if you like. Then both of them (mother and father) told the king Dasrath. "Get us both the things, few logs of wood and some fire." (32)

Then lot of logs of wood was brought and a funeral pyre was set up, and both of them seated themselves on top of this pyre. Fire was then set to the pyre from all the four sides, but due to their being brahmin's, the fire became cold. (got extinguished). (33)

Then they produced the reqmisite fire (sparks) from their body and prepared themselves for being burnt. They then got consumed completely (burnt) in that fire, and uttered a (gave) curse for the king, being enraged badly. (34)

The way (both of us) we have given up our lives in the separation of our son, so O Rajan ! Now we only bestow this curse on you. Saying this, the brahmin, alongwith his wife got burnt, and thus giving up his life (the brahmin), he went upto (died) the heaven. (35)

The brahmin spoke to the king :-
Padhri Chhand

The king also desired (thought) to burn humself or he should become a Yogi (ascetic) by abandoning all his kingdom ; or he should go back to his palace and tell them that he had murdered a brahmin. (36)

Then a voice was heard from the heavens (skies) :-
Padhri Chhand

The god's revelation (oracle) was heard as :- " O King Dasrath ! Do not become sorrowful." Vishnu will assume the form of a son and born (in your family) to you and all the functions of the gods will be accomplished (righteously). (37)

He will be called Ram, the incarnation of Vishnu, who will bring the whole world on the path of righteousness, and he will destroy all the despots in no time. Thus he will shine in the world , being renowned through out for his righteousness." (38)

" Do not bother and worry any, more and have peace of mind as 'Raja Ram' will be born, who will gain victories over mighty despots and will be famous throughout. He will bring all the egoistic persons to their knees, destroying their pride. He will be renowned throughout (with a canopy overhead) and will nurture the land being their king." (39)

"He will destroy all the indestructible ones, and punish all those, who pose to be incorrigible, and will establish a mighty kingdom by winning victories over the invincible kings. He will cast away all the blemish (slander) and crush Lanka fearlessly, and will destroy the pride of Shiva by winning over the mighty (with twenty arms) Ravana." (40)

"O King ! Go back to your palace (house) without being remorseful and perform a Yagna (fire-worship) by collecting (calling) all the Brahmins of the land." So the king Dasrath went back to his kingdom, and sent for Vashist to begin the royal Yagna. (41)

Then King Dasrath sent for the army commanders of various countries, and all the brahmins came to the palace of Dasarath. He sent for all the ministers and bestowed various alms to the brahmins, and from that day itself the performance of the royal Yagna commenced. (42)

He honoured all the brahmins by getting water for washing their feet, seating arrangements, (Yogic posture), incense and lamps and by washing their feet bestowed all the honour on them. (by circumambulating round them). He gave in alms millions of rupees to each one of the brahmins ; and from that day onwards the practice of royal Yagna started. (43)

Many famous acrobats from all over came, who were singing all sorts of songs (music). They were being honoured by getting various gifts and veneration from the king Dasrath. No one could express the enjoyment and merriment of the people over there. (who could describe ?) Even the gods in heavens became satisfied with the enjoyment of the populace. (became peaceful). (44)

Even all the fairies of the Indra-puri (heavens) had descended there, leaving the heaven ; they were all dancing with special postures, which delighted all the kings gathered there. They were receiving many gifts from the kings. The fairies in the heavens were also feeling (ashamed) belittled before them. (45)

Many warriors from all over were sent for and bestowed with gifts and honours and arming them with weapons, they were sent in all the ten directions. They won over various kings of other lands and brought them (to blow) under the sovereignity of Dasrath. Thus Dasrath became the undisputed king of the whole land. (with canopy overhead). (46)

Ruamal Chhand

The king Dasrath, having gained victories over various kings had called all the friends and foes there, all the brahmins and great Rishis (ascetics) including Vashist had been called there, The army had fought many furious battles and had defeated the invincible kings even. So all the kings from all over came (to Ayodhya) and paid their obeisance to Dasrath. (47)

Various gifts were offered (to Dasrath) by all these kings, and they also received various honours (gifts) from king Dasrath. Millions and millions of rupees, alongwith precious elephants and horses were also offered as gifts. Who could count the innumerable robes studded with jewels, and golden (bedecked with gold) saddles, presented there as gifts ? Who could narrate the grandeur of ornaments presented ? Even Brahma (the god) would be at a loss to narrate all this grandeur. (48)

The king Dasrath presented various kings with woollen and silken robes. Those kings were looking magnificent, and their beauty was indescribable. Even Indra (god) was looking ugly before them (Indra's grandeur was insignificant). All the mighty foes were also trembling (shaken up). Even the great Sumer mountain felt unstable thinking lest the king Dasrath may not dismember it and distribute it (cut) pieces to others as gifts. (49)

With the chanting of Vedic hymns, the brahmins cemmenced performing the Yagna; various types of worshippers (brahmins) had been sent for, who were pouring valuable offerings in the fire pit. Many Munis (medicants) offered various sacrifices to the fire-worship as customary, which bewildered the virtuous people. Thus the main-guest brahmin got up from the place of fire-worship. (Yagna-kund). (50)

The guest-brahmin took a vessel of kheer (milk-rice pudding) in his hands and gave it to the king. King Dasrath on receiving this vessel was so much pleased, just as a pauper gets delighted on receiving alms. Dasrath made four parts (portions) of the kheer (pudding) and gave one portion each to both the queens, and the other two portions he gave to the queen Sumitra. (51)

On taking that kheer, all the three queens became pregnant, and they kept the pregnancy intact for twelve months. When the thirteenth month approached, then Ram, the enemy of Ravana, for the sake of the liberation of saints, took birth as an incarnation (of Vishnu). (52)

Then three more princes, Bharat, Lachhman, and Shatrugan were born, so there were great rejoicings and celebrations at the king's house (palace). Then many Brahmins were called, and bowing before them (at their feet), alms were given to them (by the King). From now onwards the enemies will be destroyed and the saints will be honoured (receiving all facilities). (53)

The King Dasrath gave away many horses, bedecked with jewels and decorated nets, alongwith other valuables gifts to the Rishis (ascetics) and the great brahmins. So the priests of various lands were jumping with elation, on this occasion. They were behaving as if they were participating in holi (coloured Waters) celebrations, at their place. (54)

The king, Dasrath was giving away alms of horses and elephants, decorated with ornamented nets to the brahmins. All those panpers, who were extremely poor and penniless, became rich like the kings. The festival of Ram's birth in Auyodhya was (rally full of graciousness) of such benevolenee. (55)

Many trumpets and drums, musical instruments, weavers instruments, wave-producing instruments and lyres were producing music and one could hear the low and high notes of musical sounds. The drums were beating, with the musical sounds produced by jhanj, trang, bar, clarion, and kettle drums. By hearing the pleasing and bewitching music even the gods were enamoured and were dropping on the Earth from the sky through their flying carriages. (56)

Everywhere in home land and foreign lands, there was enjoyment and merriment going on. The brahmins throughout the country, wherever they were established, were busy reciting Vedas. On the palace, people were busy pouring the oil of love in the lamps, alongwith burning incense. The gods, Shiva's musicians and Indra (king of gods) were all moving around puffed up (happy). (57)

The gods were talking to each other that all their functions had been completed (performed) successfully. On the Earth, the cries of Salutations were being raised, while trumpets were being raised, while trumpets were sounded in the heavens (Skies). Banners were fluttering on top of houses and all the roads and lanes were decorated. In the market (bazars) all the doors were sweared with sandal wood.(58)

The horses, dedicated with golden ornaments, were being given in alms to the poor people, alongwith many intoxicated elephants also, who were as good as Indra's elephants. Even chariots decorated with the garlands of flowers (ghugrias) were being distributed. It appeared as if this was a town full of poets and singers only. (59)

The horses and other material given in alms was unending, which cannot be enumerated (listed). The incarnation of Ram, a patient warrior, was getting renowned day by day. All the arts of using arms and weapons were taught including use of coats of iron and weapons. Then Ram Kumar (incarnation) had learnt everything in eight days. (60)

All the four brothers, with bows and arrows in hands, were roaming on the banks of the river Sarju. Having saffron cloth tiedon their heads, all the four brothers were perservering in battle also. All the four princes (brothers) were playing around alongwith other children, having coloured and costly robes on their body (person). (61)

On one side, the things were going on in the normal course whereas on the other side Vishwa Mittar (in the jungle) hasl organised a Yagna (fire-worship) to propitiate his elders (dead). On getting the smell of a Yagna incense, the demons would rush towards it (attack) and would consume all the materials (for the Yagna) and thrash the brahmin, performing the fire-worship. (62)

All those, who would forcibly loot the Yagna material and consume it, were not controllable by the Muni (mendicant). Then the great muni (ascetic), being enraged, came to Ayodhya with the hope of getting some help. Then Vishwa Mittar (the muni) came there and told the king . " Give me your son Ram, else I will destroy you by burning (to ashes) you here and now through my curse." (63)

Sensing the wrath of the Muni, the king Dasrath arranged to send his son along-with him. The clever and great Muni, taking Ram alongwith him, went towards the place (mandal) where Yagna was on ; On the way the Muni told Ram, "O Ram ! Listen. There are two routes, one is nearly (shorter) and the other one is a longer route. But in the shorter route, there is a female-demon who would kill us ; her name is Tarka. (64)

Then Ram said, " Let us go by the shorter route to-day. Do not worry about anything at all. This is the function of a god-like brahmin. (so why worry)." They were going by that route merrily, when suddenly the demon (female) came there. She said, " O Ram ! How will you escape (from my clutches) ?" Without caring for anyone, she blocked their way. On seeing the demon (female), Ram took out his bow and stretching it to his ears, shot an arrow at her forehead. As the arrow struck her, the heavy bodied (bulky) devilish woman fell down unconscious. That is how the sinner (woman) was killed by Ram. (her end came through Ram). (66)

Thus they seated themselves at the place of Yagna and were taking precautions to protect the fire-pit. Perceiving this, two mighty demons came there. On seeing them, all the Rishis (ascetics) became nervous and hastily retreated from there, while the stubborn Ram stood there firmly. There he fought ferciously, being furious with rage, for almost sixteen pehars (48 hours) (of three hours duration each). (67)

The demons, collecting their weapons and coats of iron, were shouting to kill the enemy. They were holding in their hands sharp sickles and axes alongwith bows, and arrows. From all the ten sides the warriors had encircled this place (Yagna site). All the warriors were fighting against one person only, Ram (Single –handed) in the battle-field. (68)

Rasaval Chhand

In the battle-field, Ram was seen like the flag, (fluttering aloft) at the religious site, standing firmly. From all the four sides, the demons had surrounded him (about to grab him), shouting, "Kill him Kill him." (69)

Trumpets were being sounded loudly, before that sound even the thunder of the clouds would feel abashed (belittled). They were all fighting, with their flags installed there permanently (firmly) and with increased enmity. (70)

The bows were producing cracking noise, the swords were flashing. The shields were being struck with a thud (noise), while the swords were being wielded. (striking against the shields). (71)

The warriors were engrossed in fighting the battle just as intoxicated wrestlers were involved. The arrows were being shot like a shower (of rain) and the bows were being stretched (for shooting arrows). (72)

They were showering arrows and singing songs of victory. The two demons Suthahu and Marich, having the desire for death, came and stood in front of Ram. (73)

Both the demons, in one flash, attacked Ram, as if some falcons had swooped down suddenly. Ram was surrounded just as the moon was controlled (surrounded) by the god of love. (sexual desires). (74)

The army of demons had encircled Ram just as Shiva (Rudra) was taken under the spell of sexual desires. They were confronting Ram in the battle so solidly as if Ganga was merging with the ocean. (75)

Ram was challenging the enemy roaring loudly and before it the thunder of the clouds would also feel ashamed. The mutilated mighty warriors were being trempled upon as the great warriors had fallen down (dead or wounded). (76)

The demons were attacking while twisting their monstaches, and asking, " Where is Ram ? If he is caught by us, then where could he run away" (77)

Ram had seen the enemy coming (for an attack), and the virtuous and godly Ram also confronted than firmly. he was enraged while his eyes had become red with wrathfulness, and he had learnt the art of archery thoroughly. (Dhanur Veda). (78)

So Ram stretched his great bow and started shooting arrows like a shower (of rain), and routed the enemy killing all of them. Perceiving this sight the gods were delighted and laughing. (79)

The whole army then fled away, but the demon Marich had seen them fleeing, so he inspired (motivated) them just as if a snake had been disturbed (annoyed). (80)

Then Ram shot an arrow at him, which pierced Marich and threw him on the sea shore. So he abandoned the kingdom (of demons) and adopted the path of Yoga. (81)

Marich removed his beautiful rich robes and put on the saffron coloured clothes, and settled in the gardens of Lanka, and terminated his enmity towards Ram. (82)

In the meantime, the demon Sathahu launched another attack with his army. He started fighting fiercely, which created an uproar. (83)

He had organised his army with great charm and uniformity, while their swift horses were trutting along. The hordes of elephants wetre trumpeting aloud, compared with which the thunder of clouds would also shudder. (feel belittled). (84)

The shields were striking against each other and producing a thud-like noise, as they were looking glorious in their red and yellow colours. The warriors were holding their weapons and standing firmly in their positions, while shooting arrows in a continuous stream like a shower. (85)

The weapons of fire were being used, alongwith other weapons as well. The warriors, drenched in blood, appeared like bride-grooms proceeding for their marriage ceremony. (86)

The demon king (Sathahu) was ready (for fighting) due to his stubbornness. The trumpets were being sounded loudly, and compared with this sound, the clouds were feeling ashamed. (88)

The charioteers had killed many elephants, while the horses (riderless) were running around. A ferocious battle was in progress, which had disturbed the meditation posture of Shiva even. (89)

The gongs and battle drums were being sounded loudly producing the sound of a thud (dum dum). The beat of drums was being heard like a throbbing sound and the horses were neighing. (90)

The clashing of swords producing a violent noise, whereas the helmets were being broken with a crackling sound, and the shields alongwith coats of mail were being cut into pieces. However the Kashatriyas were performing their moral (religious) duty (in fighting the evil). (91)

Ram and Suthahu fought a fierce duel (battle) while Ram got furious with rage and cut off the demón's arm, finally putting him to death. (92)

The frightened demons had run away, and Ram alone was roaring in the battle-field. Thus he dispensed with the load (of Sinners) on the Earth and saved the honour of Rishis. (93)

All the saintly persons were pleased, and were singing songs of victory. The gods were worshipping Ram, and Vedas were being recited. (94)

Vishwa Mittar's Yagna (fire-worship) was completed, and all the sins were cast away. All the gods were delighted and the wealth started pouring in like showers. (95)

Here the episode of the incarnation of 'Ram', including the killing of Suthahu and Marich demons of the Bachittar Natak Granth is completed, alongwith the completion of the Yagna.

Now the episode of the Swamvar of Sita begins.
Rasaval Chhand

(King) Janak had organised a Swamvar for Sita (to select her spouse), who was as pure and chaste as Gita. She possessed a sweet tongue like the bird Koel and her eyes were (beautiful) like that of a deer. (96)

The royal Muni, Vishwa Mittar had heard about the Swamvar, and that princes were coming from all the ten directions, so he took Ram alongwith himself and started for the town of virtue (King Janak's city). (97)

Vishwa Mittar said, " O dear Ram, Listen to me, and let us leave for Janak Puri, as Sita's Swamvar is being organised, and the King Janak has invited us. (98)

Let us move in the early morning, and win over Sita (in the swamvar). You must accept my proposition, and your victory is assumed. (you will get honoured there). (99)

You would be able to break the Shiva's bow with your beautiful and mighty hands. Thus win over Sita and kill all the demons. (100)

So Ram was accompanying Vishwa Mittar, While the quiver was hanging at his back magnificently. They reached Janak Puri, and there was all the more festivities there now. (101)

The fair sex of the city saw Ram, and felt he was the god of love. The enemies considered him as their enemy, while the saints considered him a saintly figure. (person). (102)

The children looked upto him as having a Child's form, the kings thought him as a king, the ascetics took him as one of them (ascetic) whereas the warriors saw in him a warrior. (103)

The night perceived (the light of) moon in Ram, whereas the day (light) saw the light of the sun in him, and the gods felt him as an image of Indra (king of gods). (104)

The Vedas took him as (representing) the beauty (of form) of Brahma, the Pandits (brahmins) saw in him (the knowledge of) Vyas and Vishnu saw him as (the physical form of) the Lord-Sublime, whereas Sita looked upto him as her Master (spouse). (105)

When Sita saw him (Ram), she was overtaken by her love for him, and fell down unconscious on the ground, as if a wine addict had fallen in dizziness. (106)

She got up on regaining consciousness just like a warrior waking up from his Swoon. Then she fixed her eyes on Ram just as the partridge (Chakori) stares at the moon. (with wonder). (107)

Sita and Ram were both enamoured by each other's beauty, and none of them could be disnaded from their gaze. Both were facing each other just as two warriors confront each other in the battle-field. (108)

Raja Janak had sent his emissaries to distant lands for giving the message of Sita's Swamvar, and those millions of messengers were moving with the speed of Hanuman (son of air). On the arrival of various princes (kings) from distant lands, the Shiva's bow was brought out and kept before the royal (gathering) assembly and all the kings were shown. (the bow). (109)

Ram picked up the royal bow with the dignity of prowess (a brave warrior) in his hands and with a smile, stretched it so that it broke into two pieces. (110)

All the gods were delighted (to see this), and showered flowers from the heavens. All the gathered princes (kings) felt ashamed and went back to their lands. (111)

That time the princess Sita, who was the most fortunate person in the three worlds, adorned Ram with a garland of flowers. That is how Sita got married to Ram. (112)

Bhujang prayat Chhand

(Everyone felt she was not Sita alone) she was the daughter of a god, or the princess of Indrapuri, or a demi-goddess, or the female musician of Shiva, or the charming daughter of a snake (charmer) or the daughter of Shiva or demon's princess or a picture of purity and chastity or like the nectar. (113)

Or she is (princess of) a demi-goddess, or a picture of knowledge (goddess of education) or a daughter of Shiva's musicians, or the most honoured and loving daughter, or a puppet of golden fairy, or the charming queen of the god of love, and an image of beauty. (114)

Or she is a puppet like portrait, or a (female form of) conch-shell beauty, a portrait maker or beautiful Padmini or a melody queen and a necklace of musical charm. So Ram get married to a princess Sita, who had all the above qualities. (115)

Both Ram and Sita were absorbed in love, and both had their eyes fixed steadily on each other, as if the hunter had ensnared the deer. The beautiful Sita, with the sweet tongue of koel (bird) and having a thin waist (girdle) had been enchanted by the love of the beautiful eyed and dextrous Ram. (116)

When Parush Ram heard the news of Ram (in his ears) having won over Sita (in Swamvar), he was furious with rage, and took up his weapons and protective coats of mail. On reaching there, he said, "O Ram ! Where are you bound for ? (How could you escape my wrath ?). Wait standing there, so that I could also perceive (realise) how brave the present warriors have become ? (117)

Bhakha Pingal di. Sundri Chhand
(Expression of Prosody)- Sundri Chhand

The brave warriors were challenging one another with war cries, and there were drums beating in the battle field, while there was lot of confusion and uproan in the battle-field, and the warriors were pushing one another with their shields, while tossing up their shields. (at times). (118)

In the battle field many warriors with moustaches attacked and were killed, the arrows were being shot, and frightful warriors got engrossed in the battle, many warriors soaked in blood, had fallen down, while riderless horses were seen moving and neighing. (119)

Large kettle-drums were beating producing noise and the double-edged swords were flashing across the field. In the battle field, the belligerent warriors were challenging each other, and many horse-riders (warriors) were being trampled. (in the battle-field). (120)

The warriors were shouting loudly, while the horses of fighting warriors were jumping around (dancing around) and the chaimed drums were being beaten with horrible sounds, and intoxicated (haughty) warriors, sporting moustaches, were moving around. (121)

The horses, from the area of Kachh were trotting (jumping) around, and it seems the mountains with wings were flying all round ; the bards were engrossed with each other ; the spears with decorations were being struck and the horses with saddle gears were lying scattered all over the battle-field. The drums, loaded on elephants, were being beaten, and horrible looking warriors with drawn swords were moving around, The whole sky was covered with (overshadowed) the hordes of fairies, (nymphs), having put collyrium in their eyes. (123)

The small drums were beating loudly, the warriors were challenging the others to be killed in battle, the pointed lances looked like mendicants with matted hair tufts standing around. The shining lances with flowered tails were being shot from their hands. (124)

The wounded soldiers , satisfied with their fighting, were lying fallen on the ground, and their bodies cut in two pieces, were lying gloriously. The armies were beating while the restive horses were neighing. (125)

The vultures were shrieking on all the four sides, the indivisible ones had been scattered in bits (solitude was disturbed). The vultures atop heights were making shrieking noise as if perfect saints were hailing the victory. (126)

The warriors soaked in (blood) red colour were roaming around in the battle-field as the kesu flowers blossom during Spring Season. The trunk of elephants were lying around the battle-field alongwith the mutilated heads of the warriors littered around the field. (ground). (127)

Maadhur Dhun Chhand

Ram had created upheaval (in the battle field) with the shooting of his arrows, as a result of which the warriors had given up the hope of life even. The warriors, with strength and perseverance, were shooting arrows. (128)

On seeing Parush Ram, the whole army had lost all their strength, knowledge and concentration, and all were trembling with fear, reciting the name of Hari only (to save them). (129)

The warriors were curbing their wrath, and were totally confounded, and the arrows were falling down from their hands, as all the warriors with bows or enemies of religion, were being destroyed by Parush Ram. (130)

The warriors, by fixing the arrows in bows with their hands were shooting the arrows, piercing through the bodies (chests) of the enemy, as a result, the warriors, fallen on the ground, were rubbing their chests. (131)

Perceiving the enraged Parush Ram, with his sleak Sword being wielded, the haughty warriors were fleeing in panic. (132)

The axe wielding Parush Ram (expert in) cutting the limbs from the body (with his axe), was burning with rage within himself and was fighting (quarreling) with Ram. (133)

Even the earth might give way (due to pressure of battle) but his feet were steady and firmly stuck. He was rattling his shield, and was shivering with rage like the god of death. (134)

The mighty and perserving Parush Ram, capable of crushing the powerful enemies and killer of the kings, was moving his arrow in circle. (135)

Parush Ram, the crushing force against mighty warriors, and capable of horrible acts, was reciting Hari's Name (Har, Har) and was creating an upheavall (in the battle). (136)

The killer of great archers (kashatriyas), Parush Ram was holding his axe in hand, and was destroying the enemy with the axe. His hands were so long, as to reach his knees. (He had long arms.). (137)

He was capable of (wounding) hurting the warriors; who could terrorise the weaklings, and a killer (destroyer) of the enemy and having a protective cover (coat of mail). (141)

He was Capable of breaking the iron protective covering, or piercing the shields (with his sword/spear) and killer of the Kashatriyas and having full knowledge (know how) about the protective measures. (coating). (142)

The warrior, fighting the battle, was very clever, perfect in use of arms and knowing all the secrets of the coats of mail (protective cover). (143)

Parush Ram was always a victor in war, having a form worthy of praise and a man of strict moral values. (144)

He was a man of perseverance, killer of the warrior, always a victor in the battle, and an expert in the use of arms. (145)

He had a gait of an elephant, a man of moral values (religious), having a fiery virtuous personality, and a glorious appearance. (146)

Parush Ram said,

Swaiyya :-

Parush Ram, Brahmin, addressed Ram, having a quiver full of arms round his waist, and a heavy bow in hand, in a wrathful manner.

" O Ram ! Who are you (what is your worth), since you have broken the Shiva's bow lying in a homely atmosphere, that you could take away, the possession of (hand of) Sita. ? Without telling me the truth (your true background) you cannot escape death, else you will be ready to protect yourself from the onslaught of my axe. O Ram ! Leave this battle-field and go to your place (to save yourself). If you care to stay here another minute, then your death is certain." (147)

" I fully know that any stubborn or mighty warrior even, on seeing my powerful form, would not stay in the battle-field for a moment. Are you the son of that (king) person, who had asked for pardon, having been totally dumb founded (with grass under his teeth) and saved his life ? Will you be able to confront me, with weapons in your hand ? When the drum-beat will be sounded and Parush Ram will instal himself in the battle field like a strong pillar, then who will be there to face me by wielding his arms? O Ram ! Tell me, where will you look for (a safe heaven) on the Earth, skies or the nether lands and yourself (for safety)? (148)

The poet has described as :-

When Ram, (the venerated figure), heard such a language (words), he jumped like a warrior and confronted him (Parush Ram). with Ram's powerful feet, the mountains were buried deep in the seven seas, and both the Earth and skies were badly shaken up (trembled). The demigods and youthful warriors, the gods and the demons in all the ten direction got frightened (with fear). Holding his bow in hand Ram Chander spoke thus, " O Brahmin ! Tell me at whom should I (pierce) point my arrow, as I cannot direct it towards you, being a brahmin. ?" (149)

Then Parush Ram, addressing Ram, said," Whatever you have said already, I have tolerated but if you dare to repeat those words, then you will not escape death. Whatever you have said already, I have tolerated but if you dare to repeat those words, then you will not escape death. Whatever weapons you are holding in your hands are the only ones, as you will not be left alive to pull out another (arrow) one. O Raghubir! When Parush Ram will launch an attack with fury and rage, then where will you seek (run for) a hiding place to save your life ? You have broken the Shiva's bow and as a reward, you have won Sita's hand (You are taking away Sita with force), but you will not reach home safe and sound." (150)

" O Pandit ! I have tolerated all the crude language you have spoken, but if you care to speak any more rough words, then you will lose your life even. Why are you using such a foul language like a haughty fool? Now you should be prepared to (proceed home) go back with all your teeth broken (with such a bash). I would accept you as a warrior only when faced with a calamity (troubled times). you are able to shoot even a single arrow. You should be careful in talking to me (sweetly) else you will get its reward right now. (you will be punished soon). (151)

Then ParushRam said,

'Swaiyya'

I will consider you my True Lord, in my heart, if you are truly an incarnation of Ram. Just as you have broken the great Shiva's bow, similarly show me some sample of your strength also. Pray appear before me with a mace in hand, with the golden bow and wheel, and be glorified with the splendour, thus satisfying my heart of your control of the three worlds. O most powerful Warrior ! " Pray, remove my bow and then stretch it as before." (then only I will recognise your lordship)." (152)

The poet has described thus :

Swaiyya :

When Parush Ram spoke thus, then Sri Ram Chander held his bow (Parush Ram's) (in) his hands, and stretching it powerfully, broke it into six pieces in a moment, and destroyed its skyward movement with an arrow and his words were left midway (half-spoken). He could not say (do) anything further like the young attendant of a juggler. (Who is powerless before the master). It appears as if he is caught by the noose of the birth and death cycle, of the world. (153)

This is how Sri Ram was victorious in the battle.

Now the episode of (Ram's) entry into Aoudh begins

Swaiyya.

Parush Ram then embraced Ram with great affection and hugged him lovingly and saw his radiance with both his eyes. The wasps were making merry with the beauty of cheeks, and his curly (hair) tresses were enamoured with his limbs like the snake's offsprings. He was viewing his hands like the lotus, his deer-like eyes, his moon-like beautiful appearance, his lion-like waist, and his sweet talk was bewitching and the koel felt small (arhamed) before it. All the fair-sex who would perceive Ram's youthful exuberance, could not rest (without its sight) even for a moment (felt restless with love) and the traveller, on seeing his beauty, would forget moving further on his journey. (bewitched). (154)

All the time of stretching Parush Ram's bow Sita was (feeling) in a swoon, and pondering over the idea that Ram would keep this in his mind that by breaking Shiva's bow as he got married to me, in the same way, by breaking the bow of Parush Ram, will he marry other woman? If he really gets married to another woman, then he (the master) will surely forsake (forget) me fully. Am I looking forward to my fortunate (lucky) days? I do not realise what Brahma (god) would have in store for me ?" (155)

After some time Ram, after winning over the Brahmin, came back to his own camp and the trumpets hailed his coming home. On hearing about the victory of Ram, all the deserters started roaming around in fear. Ram has won the battle and the possession of Sita remained with him. When Dasrarth heard about this news, he was much pleased and distributed his wealth like a shower (of cloud-burst) in plenty. (156)

All the houses were decorated with buntings, tied at the enterance, and all the houses were sprayed with sandal wood. Saffron was sprinkled on all the groom's party (marriage party) and all the group members were dressed up like (god) Indra and joined the party. Trumpets like mirdang, taal, pakhavaj (kind of drum) were being sounded and beaten (all musical instruments were producing music) and there were millions of platforms for song and drama (dance and song). All the people met them and welcomed them and his father (Dasrath) took his son Ram towards Ayodhya. (157)

All joined hands in welcoming the guest. Infact, the king celebrated the marriage of the other three sons. Ram brought Sita alongwith him after marrying her. There were festivities all over the country and foreign lands as well. (158)

There was lot of joy and enthusiasm everywhere and at every place, there was a talk of the marriage of the king's three sons. There were many trumpets being played (like taal and mirdang). There were many dancing parties performing dances also. (159)

The horse riders were moving swiftly with full decorations, and they young and great soldiers. Great charioteers and archers had reached the king Dasrath's palace.(160)

Countless gongs and muchang (trumpets) were being sounded , while drums, mirdang, and surang (musical instruments) were being played, producing a uniform note. The prostitutes were also singing songs, and with winking eyes they were clapping merrily. (161)

The beggers had no shortage of alms (no further desire left) or wealth. The gold was being distributed in alms, like a flowing stream ; If someone would ask for anything in alms, he was given twenty other items so that he would go fully satiated. (to his home). (162)

Ram Chander had left fully decorated and in great splendour. It was felt as if the flowers had blossomed forth in the spring season, and the party was moving in great joyful mood. Their bodies were sprinkled with saffron and it appeared that their hearts joy had erupted from within to their faces. (163)

They had decorated the whole army like a seven-coloured army, as if Ganga was overflowing its banks. Great many princes had joined with glory and splendour alongwith troops. It appeared as if millions of Suns had shone forth in the sky.(164)

All the brothers including Bharat were being honoured, and nothing could be described by words, being indescribable, as the handsome sons were enamouring the hearts of their mothers. It appeared as if sun and moon both were looking glorious in their unparalleled beauty. (165)

In this manner marriage party was looking gorgeous and the scene was indescribable, as the Granth would become voluminous by describing details. Thus the princes were proceeding to their father's house for being given farewell. (166)

The sons paid their respects to the father and all the three warrior sons stood in front of the father with folded hands. Perceiving his sons the father's heart was filled with delight. Then he gave lot of wealth to the brahmins in alms. (gifts). (167)

The mother and father embraced their sons with delight as if the paupers of (two precious bhrths) long standing had come across jewels. When they went to Ram's palace for getting farewell, then they bowed to him by placing their heads at his feet. (168)

Ram, while bidding their fairwell, kissed their foreheads and patted their backs and gave them beetle nuts with great delight. By beating drums all the three brothers left as if millions of suns and moons were showing. Their robes drenched in saffron wer looking so gorgeous, as if they were filled with symobls of beauty, love, nuptial song and fortune. The sons of king Dasrath were looking glorious just as the god of love had assumed millions of forms (physical form) in this age (of kalyug). (169)

They all left Aoudhya alongwith many great warriors and they were not afraid of the war (trying to avoid war) and were full of glory. (looking glorious). They were capable of bewitching all the fair sex of the three worlds. They were the brothers of Sri Ram and are attached to the Lord's love and worship. They were an embodiment of intellect (wisdom), an incarnation of beauty and embellishment, a mountain of (stalwarts of) mercy and gentleness, or the princes of (the god of) love. (170)

The description of horses

The horses were looking beautiful like the eyes of an agile woman, or the sweet words of a clever woman or like a dust storm rising skywards, since they were producing those sounds, as if they were the dancing feet of a dancer, or the manoevres of a gambler, or a form of deceit, since they were moving in the same fashion. They were moving as per the commands of their riders or they were like the bullet of a gun, or an arrow shot from a bow, or the son of Anjani. Hanuman, or the staff of a banner, or the ripples of river Ganga or an embodiment of love, as they would not stop (rest) anywhere. (171)

The princes were taken for moon by the night, for sun by the day, for paupers they were the great donors, for patients they were the medicinal treatmenmt, for Yogis (ascetics) they were like the infinite (god-like) and for separated women they were like Mahesh (god) very closely, for the enemy they were the wielders of Sword, for the mothers they were very like children, for scholars they were very learned men, or they were like the Lord-Almighty. The musicians of Shiva have taken for them for Ganesh (god) and for the gods they were like Indra (the god). What ever one thinks in mind, they were looking like that (as per one's imagination). Their appearance was like one perfected with nectar, or they were glorious like the sunshine (dawn) or beauty moulded in a mould with perfection or the Lord had created the warriors with great deliberation to entice the most beautiful woman or both the gods and demons had churned the chheer ocean, by leaving aside their internal squabbles, and had taken out after churning the Lod-Sublime of the Universe had made them for his own perception, as no one else has the power to create such beings. (173)

The princes, after passing through various foreign lands, after leaving their own area, finally reached the land of Raja Janak. The musical instruments like clarionets, were being played, many drums were being beaten, and the trumpets were being sounded loudly knowingly. Then king Janak embraced all the three brothers, coming forward to receive them. They performed all the formalities as laid down in Vedas alongwith some other rituals and ceremonies, and then seated themselves. The wealth was distributed in such abundance that there is no count even. Even the beggars became kings by receiving alms and gifts (from the king). (174)

Many coloured banners (flags) were flying around, alongwith the serene sound of beating drums, and the beating of kettle drums, the youthful warriors reached the vicinity of Janakpuri. At some place the fly whisks were being fanned (moved around), and at some place laudatory attributes (praises) were being recited and somewhere Bhattas (bards) were singing beautiful Chhands (sermons) written by them only. At places one could hear the lyre being played, alongwith flute elsewhere, or mirdang being given due appreciation, whereas the god of love was feeling ashamed of himself and the beggars were fully satiated having received various gifts. The beggars had become kings from paupers. They were offering blessings in galore; and after receiving such gifts, they will never be beggars again. (175)

Janak came and embraced all the three (brothers) and welcomed them with lot of honour and regard. He got the altar made by Vyas as per religion beliefs, and gave gold coins in plenty to each one of the brahmins. The princes were clothed with various costly robes from head to foot, and there was a shower of pearls and rubies (like a shower of rain). Many white elephants were given away in alms and many horses, newly acquired from Sindh land were given away. Thus the three princes got married and sent back. (176)

Chodak Chhand

The princes, after getting married with the princesses, asked for permission to leave immediately (from Janak). So they started back (for home) after the elephants and horses were bedecked with ornaments, alongwith other kings and Rajas. (177)

Whatever King Janak had given in dowry cannot be detailed by anyone ; even Brahma cannot account for it in details. There were drunken steels of various hues and colours, while many elephants were trumpeting in their company. (178)

There were innumerable conch shells being sounded alongwith other musical bands (Nafiri), while great many warriors were thundering in the battle field. When the marriage party approached near Ayodhya, then Ramchandra had reached there to welcome them. (179)

The mothers (of princes) passed some water (in a vessel) round the heads of the sons and then drank it, (a ritual of welcome). The king was much pleased on seeing this ceremony. The King Dasrath hugged them and started dancing and singing in ecstacy. (180)

When the princes came home after getting married, there were lot of celebrations and festivities. The father (Dasrath) had sent for Vashisht and Vishwa Mittar, and many other Rishi's also descended there. (181)

Then there was a dreadful cloudiness (in the sky) with a thunder and everyone saw a terrible fire raging all around in the four directions. All the ministers and friends got worried on perceiving this fire, and addressed king Dasrath like this. (182)

" King ! Listen ! There have been many outrages (oppressions) all around. Let us ponder over it by collecting together the assembly of Rishis (saints). Do not delay any longer and send for all the brahmins, and perform an Asumed Yogna." (183)

The king ordered for the same instantly. The great scholarly ministers and friends said." Let us commence performing this asumed Yagna without delay." So O King! " Pray, give immediate orders for this." (184)

Great Rishis and Pandits were sent for and they called Pandits, who would perform the Yagna along with the horse. The fire-pit was dug out, and a Religious-Pillar (Dharam Khambha) was installed there. (185)

A horse was let loose from the horses-shed, with black ears, with a blue coloured body. Many kings from various lands accompained the horse, who possessed beautiful bodies and were great warriors with glorious carrier. (186)

Samanka Chhand

The kings were sent with the horse, they selected various warriors to accompany them, who were armed with weapons, who could crush any warriors. (187)
(To prove King's superiority over all other kings)

After traversing various lands including foreign lands, after burning those uncontrollable lands even, the king's horse, after moving the horse through various lands, which indicated kings superiority over others, they came back. (188)

They all fell at king's (Dasrath) feet, all their calamities came to an end, and the Yagna was successfully, completed, thus casting away the king's fear and afflictions.(189)

After receiving many alms and gifts from the king, all the brahmins went back (to their place) fully satiated. They showered many blessings on the king, while reciting many sermons from the Vedas. (190)

The kings, from various lands were looking glorious in their rich and beautiful robes, and the accompained fair Sex (women) were enamoured by seeing the mighty and praise worthy warriors. (191)

Millions of trumpets were blowing, including clarionets and kettle-drums being played. The idols of god were being installed, and people were paying obeisance to the idols with full reverence. (192)

People were praying their respects by lying prostrate before them, having full faith (in gods). They were reciting many mantras (sermons) and magical spells (slokas) and were installing many huge installation (of idols). (193)

Many beautiful women were dancing just like fairies. Due to the effect Ram Rajya (the rule of virtuous), there was no dearth of anything. (194)

Sarsuti Chhand

On one side, the learned Pandits were giving training of various other arts (from distant lands) including the art of archery and use of bows and arrows. Even the fair sex and children was being instructed in using various materials for embellishment (beautification) and the means of beauty. Somewhere people were given training in poetry and elsewhere studies in grammar and Vedas were being conducted. (195)

Ram was a perfect incarnation of Raghubans with all the purity and perfection. He was to destroy all the demons and give protection to all the saintly persons. After gaining victory over various kings of different lands, they were brought under subjugation. As a symbol of victory, many houses were decorated with buntings. (196)

King Dasrath gave control of three different areas to the three sons while the capital was to be given to Ram, and for consultation on this decision, the king had discussed with Vishishat, a great Muni, for quite some time. For the coronation of Ram, all the material was kept apart in a vessel, along-with the mango saw-dust and the waters of (holy) rivers and many other flowers. (197)

In four large dishes (metallic plates), a large quantity of sandal wood and saffron were kept apart safe (hidden) for the coronation. That time Brahma (god) had sent a lady musician called Mathura. So seeing all the festivities and the playing of musical instruments, Mathura, with all the embellishment material, went atop the beautiful place. (198)

The woman (Mathura) was astonished to hear the playing of flute, lyre and mirdang like musical instruments, and in the mean time there was a great sound (noise) hailing "Ram Rajya" the virtuous rule of Ram on the Earth. On hearing this, she came down from the building and immediately got involved in talking to Kaikaiee saying, "Now the opportunity will be lost. When will you ask the (king) master to fulfil his promise of bestowing those boons on you? (199)

Couplet

Kaikaiee was adamant in getting her demands fulfilled. The king Dasrath, under the spell of love (for the woman), was feeling miserable, but could not say anything to her. (234)

The king was asking (requesting) the queen with lots of requests by bowing to her even, thus trying to avoid acceptance of her demands but the spouse was stubborn in getting her demands accepted ; so she would not listen to his requests. (235)

Kaikaiee further said, " You agree to accepting my boons, since I am not going to give up my demands even if you put up millions of excuses. You have to bestow the kingdom to my son and send Ram Chander on exile to the jungles. (236)

Thus the king, on hearing the words of the woman, fell down unconscious, like the lion being hit by a piercing arrow. (237)

Hearing the words of sending Ram to the jungles, the king fell down unconscious fluttering, thus finally giving up his life even in no time (winking of the eye) just as a fish gives up her life, being taken out of water. (238)

When the king heard the name of Ram by his ears, he got up again regaining consciousness, it appeared as if a warrior fallen down, gets up again holding his sword. (239)

The king had lost his breathing process, but did not give his moral duty ; so he bestowed those boons to the queen, which he had agreed to, by giving up his life. (240)

The king Dasrath and Kaikaiee told Vashisht :-

Couplet :-

Let Ram go to the jungles and Bharat be made the king. After an exile of fourteen years, Ram Chander could return and take up the reins of kingdom once again. (241)

By refining the language, Vashishat went upto Ram Chander and told him that for fourteen years Bharat would rule the land, and after that period Ram Chander would be the King. (242)

On hearing the words of Vashishat, Ram Chander was very morose, and came back to his place. On the other side, the King Dasrath, due to the separation from Ram Chander, gave up his life. (243)

Sortha :

On reaching his place, Ram Chander distributed all his wealth, and Ram who was looking glorious with his quiver of arrows, spoke to Sita like this. (244)

O praise worthy and wise Sita ! Listen to me ! You stay behind with mother Kaushalya while I am going for exile for fourteen years, and then after fourteen years of exile. I will come back and then we both will rule the country. (245)

Then Sita told Ram :

Sortha

O my master! I will not leave the company of my beloved spouse, not-with-standing all the discomforts or afflictions of my body. I will not turn away my face from the lord for a moment, even at the cost of my life. (and face death). (246)

Then Ram addressed Sita in this way :-

Manohar Chhand

"O beautiful lady with a (thin) sleak waist ! If you do not prefer to stay with your in-laws, then you may go to your father's place. I will make arrangements right now to send you away. You just speak out about your desire, and I will make all arrangements accordingly. If you need some money, then you may speak out, and I will arrange to give you everything. O wise and beautiful lady ! What is the value of this kingdom of Aoydhya ? If you say so unhesitatingly then I would sacrifice the kingdom of heaven and distribute it to the poor. (247)

"O Sita ! The jungle is dreadful, while you are very delicate. Tell me, how will you stand all this (hardship)? The lions would be roaring there ; the boars will be barking; and the (horrible) frightful looking Bheels would cause fear and awe ; the snakes would be hissing around, the tigers are roaring there; while the evil-spirits make terrible sounds, so it would be all very painful (difficult) for you. The Lord has created you as a beautiful and delicate person, so you should ponder over it, as to how you would cope up with all these hardships. ?" (248)

Then Sita addressed Ram like this :

Manohar Chhand

(O Ram !) I will bear all the afflictions; even if the body becomes lean and thin, I shall not complain, while bearing all the hardship on my body; I will not utter an expression of pain (muffled) in the face of roaring lions, hissing of snakes, or in the face of mountain-like afflictions (great hardships). O my godly spouse! Without your presence it would be worthless living in a palace; in fact it would be preferable to live in the jungles (alongwith you); since I will be in the company (at the feet of) of my beloved. In this moment of gloom, what is the use of this funny talk? I will not stay behind, even though there may be hope (of happiness) at home." (249)

Then Ram again addressed Sita as :

O Sita ! I am telling the right thing for you to do, would be to stay behind at home and serve your mother-in-law dutifully. O beautiful lady with deer-like eyes ! (fawn-eyed maiden !) Listen to me. I would be going to the jungle tomorrow itself and after spending the period of exile, I will join you to rule here.) beautiful queen ! I am telling you the truth. If you do not feel happy at Aoudhya, then you may live at your father's place. For me, it behoves me to proceed to the jungle, as I remember my father's words, so please bid me good-bye (for my onward journey). (250)

Then Lachhman said,

On hearing such a news , the brother (Lachhman) carrying his bows and arrows in hand, came there and said, " Who is there in the dynasty of Sun, so worthless a son, who has ordered exile for Ram ? "Bound in the love of the woman and fully under her control, the king was proved to be a liar, with a loose character and completely devoid of his senses and is totally under the spell of a worthless (wanton) woman. He is dancing to her tunes just like the monkey, dancing at the movement of the stick. (of the master). (251)

Kaikaiee, having the wand of sensual pleasure(love) in her hand, is making the king Dasrath dance to her tunes like the monkey. Full of egoism, the proud woman, with a stubborn behaviour, has taught a lesson to the king like a parrot by setting by his side. Being a master of her lord, being on top of his rival wives, orders the king like a master. A liar, mean lady, with a horrible ugly face, she follows a villanious path, spoils her life both in this world and the next as well. (252)

All the subjects are busy talking ill of both the king and the queen. (Lachhman said) If Ram goes for exile, then how can I stay behind at home ? If I avoid him and sit back at home, then how could I win the praise of the populace ? In fact, the dynasty of Raghu (Raghubans) will feel ashamed. The period (of fourteen years) will pass off in no time (by remembering the next day) and this Time will deceive everyone. So I shall not stay back, I am saying the truth, that once this opportunity is missed, then I will not get a chance again. (253)

With the bow in hand, the quiver tied to the waist, and with four arrows in the other hand, both the warriors are looking glorious. Both of them went to the king's (Dasrath) queens, Kaushalya and Sumitra, to bid good bye and seek their permission. They paid their obeisance to them (both queens) with their eyes filled with tears. The mothers hugged then with lot of love and said, O Son ! How have you come to us on your own, whereas earlier even when called (by us) you were not willing to come ? (254)

Then Ram told his mother :

Since My father has ordered me for going on exile, so please give me your permission so that I could proceed straight away to the jungles. I will come back after facing the hardships and thorny problems of the exile, on the expiry of thirteenn years. O Mother ! If I remain alive, then I will come back to meet you. In case I would be dead then, I would seek your pardon now only for my mistakes. After making the king Dasrath free from the granting of boons to Kaikaiee, and spending my time in the jungle. I will come back after the exile to enjoy the pleasures of this kingdom.(255)

Then the mother addressed Ram as such :

Manohar Chhand

When the mother heard this news, she embraced her son while wailing and crying and said, : O Foremost son of Raghukul (Dynasity), Ram ! Why are you leaving me behind and going to the jungle ? " Kaushalaya was in the same state of mind, as the fish feels taken out of water, and she had lost all her thirst or hunger.Kaushalya fell down unconscious, by feeling dizzy and she was feeling the pinch of the separation of Ram and Lachhman and a fire was burning in her body. (256)

"O Son ! I feel alive by perceiving your appearance only ; O Sita ! I feel satiated by seeing the beauty and glamour of Sita and forgetting all my other pleasures, I feel happy by seeing the youthful beauty of Lachhman. By seeing the co-wives (of the king) like kaikaiee I always feel proud with satisfaction. O Son ! That is why you are going to the jungle leaving your mother wailing like a helpless person. "(as you care for me)." (257)

Millions of people were trying to dissuade Ram from going to exile and requesting him not to go to jungles, but Ram did not agree to any one request. Then they went to the place of Lachhman's mother, with the idea of bidding her good bye. Sumitra (Lachhman's mother) fell down on the ground on hearing this news. This fact could be compared with a proud warrior, being hit by a piercing spear, who then falls down into a swoon (of death). (258)

"Which mean woman has performed such a villainous act of telling Ram Chander for such a thing (to go for exile). The woman with a defiled face, having spoiled her life both here and hereafter, and having killed the king, what pleasure has she gained ? All my doubts have been removed (about her) as she has performed such a worthless act ; leaving all her moral duties. She has done such an immoral act. The shameless devilish woman has put the whole (dynasty) family to shame, having killed the king, she has not shown any hesitation." (259)

Then Sumitra addressed Lachhman thus :

O Son ! Always consider yourself as a slave of Ram, and consider Sita as your mother, (giving her the same respect). Then consdering Sita's spouse, Ram Chander as your elder bear all the hardships of the jungle with pleasure (on your own self). Always give due respect to Ram Chander, consider the jungle as your own house without having any distinction between the two. (house and jungle).. (260)

Ram (Kumar) the prince, with the eyes of a lotus-flower, was proceeding to the jungle, while the younger brother was accompanying him with due glory. The gods, demons, stars and even Indra (king of gods) were bewildered and feeling exhilarated. Ram's glamour and beauty shines on the Earth like a shadow, which spreads all around without being handled, and for that reason, he is called moon-like, beautiful person. (261)

Couplet

Ram, the prince, accepting the father's ordain was proceeding to the jungle leaving the (comforts of) home, alogwith Sita having deer-like eyes, whose beauty is beyond description. (262)

Here the episode of Ram's exile is completed.

Now the story of the exile begins
Sita's Beauty :-
Bijai Chhand

Sita's beauty is considered as if the partridge (chakor) takes her as belonging to the family of moon, the pea-cock has accepted her beauty as that of lightning, while the intoxicated elephants look upto her as Indra's spouse, while the dawn has taken her beauty like the sunshine at dawn. The gods have accepted her as the eliminator of all afflictions, and the demons have taken her as the cause of death ; the lands have taken her as an ocean (of beauty) while the others (skies) have accepted her as Brahma (the creator) and the Yogis have taken her as representing Ganga. (263)

On the other side, Ram Chander, alongwith Sita, was going to the jungle leaving the palace, " O Saints ! Listen to the state of affairs on this side of the scene." (264)

Couplet
Then the mother Kaushalya said,
Kabit :

(Ram alongwith Sita) have taken away all my comforts of life, putting me in various sufferings, (leaving me in suffering), whereas the King Dasrath is also dead, but the thing (story) does not end here only. If you were to take my advice then continue to (stay here) rule the land, why are you giving me a bath in blood (blood bath) ? Wear the robes of kings, and perform saintly functions. O Ram Chander, Tell me, what for are you going on exile ? (to the jungle). You have dressed up yourself like ascetics, and are taking away Sita also with yourself. O my exiled son ! Why are you leaving me in distress ? (265)

I will have ear-rings, with my face smeared with ash ; O Son ! I will not yield my stubborn attitude, burning all the regal attachments, wearing the robes of yogis, I will accompany Ram Chander to the jungle, leaving behind the afflictions of this land of Karshal. (266)

Apurab Chhand

Now Ram Chander proceeded towards the jungles, who was a personification of good moral values, taking Sita and Lachhman alongwith him. (267)

The father had breathed his last, and from the heavens, carriage had come to take him (there), while many ministers were Contemplating over the whole affair. (268)

Vashishat, who is the head of all the brahmins, and worthy of worship by all, is also sitting there. A letter had been sent to Bharat also, so the emissary Magadh was called. (269)

Many representatives of the kingdom held consultations, and sent the emissaries, who were faster than the son of air. (Hanuman). (270)

The clever emissaries went away, crossing eight rivers even and finally reached the place, where Bharat was staying. (271)

The emissary conveyed the news of the death of King Dasrath, Bharat read the letter thoroughly and then started back alongwith them. (272)

Bharat was furious with rage, having lost his doubts about his moral duties, left and started remembering God by reciting True Name (Ram Naam). (273)

The armed warrior (Bharat) reached Ayoudhya, (and saw the) dead body of (his father) the king of Ayoudhya. (274)

Bharat then told Kaikaiee :

On reaching there, Bharat saw some unusual formalities, and the son (Bharat) said," O Mother! You are deserving total condemnation (of a curse). You have brought disgrace to me. (275)

What sort of evil action you have performed ?
O Shameless Creature ! Why are you still alive ? I will go to the same place where Ram has gone (jungle). (276)

Kusam Bachittar Chhand

Bharat then, considering Ram as a resident of jungles, accepted the sufferings of the jungle like the comforts of kingdom and the comforts of home equal to the sufferings of the jungle. He said, " I will make my robes out of tree bark. I will proceed to the jungle, and will eat the fruits of the forest alongwith Ram only. (277)

Thus, saying such words, Bharat left the palace (home) and wearing the robes of the tree-bark, broke all his ornaments (he was wearing). After cremation of the king, (Dasrath), Bharat left the land of Ayoudhya and made his residence at the feet of Ram Chander (always thinking of him). (278)

After seeing various lands and waters, he proceeded further and reached the place, alongwith many Munis (virtuous ones) Where Ram was putting up. On seeing the armed forces accompanying them, Ram took it to be enemy forces, and shot an arrow by stretching it in the bow. (279)

When Ram took out his arrow with full force and placed it in the bow, Indra (god) was trembling and the sun (god) felt confounded. In their homes, the good and god (saintly) persons were feeling happy, but the demons were bit worried considering the impending war. (280)

When Bharat realised in his mind that Ram Chander, seeing his armed forces, had created an atmosphere of war, he came out alone leaving behind his forces and perceiving Ram Chander, he forgot all his painful suffering. (281)

When he personally saw the Master of all warriors, then he forgot all about his desires/hopes and paid his obisance by bowing his head (keeping it on ground). Seeing this situation,
Ram Chander had realized that Bharat must have come leaving the kingdom. (capital of). (282)

On recognizing Bharat and Shatrugan, Ram and Lachhman thought to themselves that the king Dasrath had expired. Ram and Lachhman, leaving behind their bows, and devoid of their egoism, came down from the hill top. (283)

Leaving all the strength of their forces, all the four brothers embraced each other and cried and said, " The Lord has brought such misery to us, having taken away all our worldly comforts." Then Bharat said, " O my Lord Raghubar ! Let us go back to our home (palace) and pray leave aside your stubborn attitude. We all are falling at your feet. (We beg of you). (284)

Then Ram told Bharat :
Kanth Abhukhan Chhand

" O Bharat Kumar ! Please go back home and do not insist, thus giving us pain. Whatever the King (Dasrath) had asked us to do, we have accepted his verdict, and will spend thirteen years in exile. (285)

We will come back after the lapse of thirteen years and will accept the reins of the kingdom alongwith other honours (Canopy etc). You go back home, listening to my advice, as your mother would be waiting there. (286)

Then Bharat again told Ram :

Kanth Abhukhan Chhand

" Where should I go ? O Ram ! By touching your lotus-feet, I am saying this ; will I not feel ashamed of myself by occupying the reins of kingdom ? Tell me ! Since I am very helpless, (wicked), mean and devoid of all moral cannons. Pray accept your kingdom (reins of) and give my place at your lotus-feet. (in your service). " (287)

Bharat fell down at the feet of Sri Ram just like a bird, without eyes, (wings) falling on the ground. Ram took him into his arms and hugged him. then Lachhman alongwith other brothers wept and embraced one another. (288)

By giving water to drink (Ram to Bharat) Ram brought his brother to consciousness, and then said smilingly, " After the lapse of thirteen years, we will come back. Now you go back home, as we have to do some job in the jungle." (289)

When Ram addressed him like this, then all the wise persons realised (that Ram's intention to spend time in the jungle is somewhat different). They were overpowered by this knowledge (accepting this) Bharat picked up Ram's wooden footwear, and (decided in his mind) wanted to go elsewhere instead of ayoudhya. (290)

Bharat then sported a beautiful tuft of matted hair on his head, and transferred the load of the kingdom onto the wooden footwear of Ram. Now during the day time Bharat would attend to the routine jobs of the kingdom and at night would recite Ram's Name. (Simran). (291)

By withering and worrying all the time, Bharat's body became thin and lean (hollow) like a parched tree, but in his heart he always remembered Ram. He would destroy the enemy in any battle field ; all these attainments were like ornaments round his neck. (292)

There were big trees of Shorea robusta (saal) and a different species of taal trees, which were reaching upto the sky, which would eliminate all sufferings. (294)

Then Ram entered a jungle, housing many warrior type people. He was accompained by Sita, who looked like a goddess. (of godly music). (295)

She appeared like a fairy or beautiful like Padmini with a sweet tongue like koel (bird), having deer like eyes, with a sleak waist and most beautiful. (296)

Jhoolna Chhand

Sita's eyes were presenting a picture of splendour of an arrow, as if they were piercing with the same force and glory. Sita was lost completely in her own thoughts just as Indra was moving aimlessly having lost of kingdom (capital). Sita's tresses of hair were like the curly snakes huddled together, while her lips would put to shame the slices of mango, and they were red coloured as if dyed in red. The deer were getting enamoured by seeing Sita's eyes, while the fish would get enraged (by seeing them). A person who perceives her eyes for a moment even, would offer his life in sacrifice. (297)

By listening to her sweat talk, the (bird) Koel would get into a rapture (with rage) while the moon would feal jealous on seeing her beautiful face. The fish, on seeing Sita's beautiful eyes, was getting enamoured, while the Sun's rays (light) were appearing dim and faded at dawn before (in Comparison) her beauty of body . Her eyes in trance were looking around like the flowers in bloom. People forget about their movements on perceiving her eyes, wherever she goes as her eyes were bewitching beyond description. O Sita ! Ram has been enticed by your eyes so much, as a drunkard gets insane and lustful with wines. (in the same mood). (298)

Sita's eyes were looking red with charm, and were lustful like the mischievous effect of wine, as if the flowers of rose were blossoming all around. Even the narcissus (flower) was feeling jealous of her beautiful eyes, while the deer gets enchanted by seeing those eyes. Her eyes were looking so lustful as if the wine had made them mischievous during day and night. By perceiving those eyes, the whole populace nay the whole world was moved to offering themselves in sacrifice. The eye-lashes of Sita were looking like a stretched bow, as if she had shot the arrows of her beauty (of eyes) without a bow. (a person gets pierced by her beautiful eyes). (299)

Kabit

Who is there, such a brave person, who would perform penance at a place, surrounded by the tall trees (shorea robusta) of saal, or tall and thick banyan trees or tall palm trees ? Even the beauty of Indra's Khandva jungle appears pale and insignificant before its beauty, and the 'nandan' garden of Indra feels belittled before its beauty. What to talk of stars, even the rays of sun and moon are not able to penetrate (the thick jungle) as the sky is not even visible. No god has ever seen this place, nor the demons have ever reached this spot ; in fact neither the bird nor the ant could ever approach it. (300)

Apurab Chhand

On perceiving Sri Ram, Sita and Lachhman as they approached this jungle and considering them as strangers (never seen before) a demon came rushing, finding them a good food material and started talking crudely. (301)

Ram had realised that the opponent was fully armed and prepared (for attack), so he also took up his weapons, getting ready for a fight. (302)

When the warriors confronted each other, the vultures shrieked. The warriors were looking graceful with beautiful arms and the fairies were completely enamoured with their beauty. (303)

The horses were looking gorgeous with their saddles, the elephants were intoxicated, the vultures were shrieking and the warriors were ready for the battle. (304)

The elephants (forehead) were Smeared with saffron, kettle drums were sounded, smart warriors were fully decorated, so the fairies were keenly watching the scene. (305)

Then the warriors got scattered and the battle ground looked empty, the warriors were reminded of the onslaughts they had faced, and were making noise wailing and crying. The bodies were red like embers being soaked in blood. (306)

The warriors were trying to gather courage, and were shooting arrows, there was lot of noise due to wailing and crying while the warriors were engaged in battle.(307)

Anup Naraj Chhand

The elephants were trumpeting, the horses were jumping (racing) around there was great uproar in the troops with each attack. The musical instruments were producing harmonious notes, and only arrows were being shot. The blood could be seen spurting out of wounds from the wounded horses, while the corpses were lying huddled together. The trunks of human bodies without their heads, were jumping up and down. (308)

The corpses were lying scattered to a great distance, with their hands clasping around the waists of other (warrior) corpses, and the sturdy warriors, on being wounded, were feeling dizzy, and warriors from both sides were engaged in loose talk, while the evil spirits were making noise, and were sucking blood like (drinking) water. On hearing the challenging cry of Bhairau the battle-field is agog with fierce battle. (309)

The she-jackals were moving around in great arrogance, while the big vultures were making.shrieking noise. The drums were beating gently, while the villain (Betal) was roaring. When the swords of the warriors were striking the other swords, and the white light flashes were seen from their strokes, and it appeared as if streaks (flashes) of lightning were seen from the dark clouds of monsoon (savan). (310)

The evil spirits, with their bowls full, were licking blood, while the vultures were eating flesh. Warriors from both sides, challenging each other, and supporting themselves with weapons, were engaged in fighting. They were attacking shouting "to kill the enemy," and were bearing all the suffering of the body. Those who were mutilated with the sharp edge of sword, would soon be despatched to heavens.(311)

The warriors, to save thir honour, were raising cries of challenge and feeling dizzy with wounds they were falling down, as if the ascetics, with faces looking downwards, were inhaling smoke of the fire (with smoke). Whosoever was struck by any weapons, his limbs were cut off from the body and the drops of blood flying (rising) from the body (of wounded), were being consumed by cannibals. (meat-eaters). (312)

By eating away the mutilated bodies of wounded soldiers, the cannibals were satiated, while the wounded were lying (down) with faces downwards just a Yogi had been busy in setting up Sidh asan (Yogic posture). Many had their limbs cut off and lying down while shouting " to kill them." Their talk was just like that of poet singing the praises of others. (313)

Many small drums, including instruments, like clarionet, flute, mirdang, jhal and nafiri or kettle drums were being played, giving out prefect tunes. There was a noise produced by the striking weapons, thus not interrupting the sound of rak-tak. It appeared as if the slaves were singing poems of praises, and the royal-poet was reciting his poems. (314)

The shields being struck were producing a thud, while in the battle-field the swords were crossing each other. Many pointed arrows were being shot, which could destroy many warriors. Many would launch a collective attack while some others were using their trident or spears. Some warriors would bear the brunt of the (severe) unconquerable attacks, and finally fall down dead on the battle-field ; (with heads cut off) thus rolling therein. (315)

There were many arrows, with paintings on them, were being shot in that horrible battle-field, and many would take the protection of their shields, diverting those arrows. (upwards) and it seemed a beautiful fly-whisk was being waived overhead. The warriors were crushing the indestructible enemy, while many were falling (dead) on the ground. The words (sound) produced by the clubs of warriors was terrible and making horrible noise. (316)

There were many evil-spirits (sixty-four) filling up their bowls (with blood), while the female ghosts were making merry with their shrieks. The fairies were flying in the sky, who were marrying the warriors. The armed warriors had gloves of the skin of a large lizzard on their hands (with glamour), while the evil-spirits were belching and making noise, while eating away the flash of corpses. (317)

In the battle-field the goddess Kali (god of death) was making merry while the kettle-drums were beating ; the noise from striking Swords was rising, while the bowls were covered with dust. The battle-drums were beating with a rhythum and the warriors were being wounded with tridents and geyonets. The shameless weaklings were fleeing from the battle-field thus increasing the load on Earth. (318)

The warriors, armed with weapons, were fighting with determination. Those warriors, who (were feeling shy of killing), were struck in the mud of worldly honour, and were only protesting. When the limbs were being cut from the body and then falling on the ground, then the splashes of blood would rise from the mud of flesh. It appeared as if Krishna was playing some games with his milk-maids. (319)

The drums and evil-spirits were making noise, while the arrows were flying around (shining) with a flash of light. The music of musical instruments (nefiris) was being produced uninterrupted, while the loud noise of the clarionet was being heard. The kettle-drum was being beaten with a thundering sound. The jhenjh was producing noise, and the flute was playing a beautiful note. (320)

The horses were trotting swiftly and with agility and instead of the marks of their hooves, only a line was traced on the ground, which was looking beautiful for war mongering, and the dust arising from the hooves of horses was reaching uptothe sky. The battle field wasd presenting an (awful) scene, just as a swimmer dreads the eddies in water. (321)

Many patient warriors had fled away by saving their lives and honour and with the crushing of the whole horde of their elephants, the warriors were running away acceptiing their defeat. Some of them quietly had joined the forces of Ram shouting cries of help repeatedly. Thus the demon Biradh was killed at the sacred (holy) hands of Sri Ram. (322)

Here the episode of the kiling of the demon Biradh in the Ramavtar description of the Bachittar Natak is Completed.

Couplet

Now after killing the demon Biradh, Ram Chander penetrated into the forest without any further worry. The poet Siam had described the battle fought by Ram Chander like this. (323)

Sukh da Chhand

Then Ram Chander, an embodiment of the banner of morality and religious (holy) place, alongwith his spouse Sita, reached the abode of 'Rishi August'.

Considering Ram Chander a warrior, the Rishi August gave him, after penetrating and killing the enemy and casting away all his benedictions on him. The great Muni (ascetic) was greatly pleased on perceiving the splendour of Ram. (325)

August Rishi said good bye to Ram Chander, bestowing his benedictions on him. The great Muni (ascetic) was greatly pleased on perceiving the splendour of Ram. (326)

So Ram Chander alongwith his brother and the most elegant and beautiful Sita penetrated into the jungle, leaving aside all his worries off safety. (327)

Now the episode of " Penetration into jungle" commences

Ram now was holding his bow in hand, with a sword tied to his waist, and having his long arms stretching upto the knees, went to the holy place for having a bath.(328)

Sri Ram, alongwith his brother, went to the banks of Godavari river and removing his clothes he had a bath in Godawari thus purifying his body. (329)

Perceiving the beauty of Ram Chander and his elegant form, the protectors of the jungle went upto the place, where Sarupnakha was abiding. (330)

Going upto the abode of Sarupnakha, the protectors said, "O Saroopnakha ! Listen to us . Two saints have come to our jungle and they have bathed here, but their form and appearance is most beautiful, beyond any description. (331)

On hearing such a news, Sarupnakha without wasting any time, rushed to the same place. She took the appearance of Ram as a personification of love. His beautiful body was really magnificent and worthy of praise throughout the three worlds. (Earth, skies and netherland). (332)

She went rushing to the place where Ram was seated and addressed Ram in a manner which even a shameless woman could not say. She said, " O beloved ! I am completely enamoured by your beauty, and am totally enticed by your beautiful eyes." (I am dyed in the colour of your beautiful eyes). (333)

Ram replied this :

Sundri Chhand

" You go to the place, where my brother is resting, as he will be pleased to see your beautiful eyes. Do you not see, that I have got my beautiful Sita, with a tender waist alongwith me ? So how could I keep you in my house ?" (334)

" This Sita, has forgotten the love of her mother and father and is roaming alongwith me through these forests. O beautiful woman ! Listen to me. How could I forsake her? O lady with a delicate waist ! You go to the place, where my brother is seated."(335)

Hearing these words, the woman went to the place, where the warrior celibate Lachhman was resting. But on refusal to marry her by Lachhman also, she was infurirated and went back after getting her nose chopped off (from Lachhman).(336)

Here the Chapter of the chopping of Sarupnakha's nose (forming part of) of the episode of Ram avtar in the Bachittar natak is completed.

Now the episode of the battle of the demon Khar-Dukhan begins

Sundri Chhand

When Sarupnakha went crying and wailing to Ravana, then the whole clan of the mighty demons were furious with rage. Then Ravana called his (serious) wise ministers and with their consultations, and sent both the demons by the name of Khar and Dukhan (to deal with Ram). (337)

Both the demons, arming their stubborn and sturdy arms with weapons started (on this expedition). Trumpets were being sounded (for their march) and the elephants were trumpeting. Cries of "Kill them, kill them" were being heard all around in the ten directions.They had reached near the place of Ram Chander like the dark clouds, roaring and thundering. (338)

The most persevering warriors were roaring in the battle field, and would never desert the battle field. Their eyes were filled with the flow of blood (red eyed) and looking glorious (in rage), and were raising horrible cries of war. (339)

Tarka Chhand

In the battle field, both the princes (Ram and Lachhman) would enter with grace, having arrows, spears and bows in their hands (keenly jumping for action). Ther warriors against Ram would be roaring soon. Thus Ram would be glorified in the battle-field. (340)

They would be shooting arrows without any limit and would be moving around the battle field fearlessly. They would be wielding swords, tridents and arrows in the battle field while the sons of (the demon) Ditti would be laying down their lives in the battle. (341)

They would be shooting arrows without any fear or doubts and would destroy the terrible enemy troops fearlessly, with falling corpses huddled together, thus uprooting the tree (of tyrrany) from its very roots. (342)

Many musical instruments including drums were being played, and with war-cries the warriors started moving around in the battle-field. Whosoever was hit by their arrows, would be pierced through the iron-coating (protective) and passing through to the other side. It appeared the arrows were taking the form of the off-springs of tachhak. (343)

They were wielding their swords fearlessly, and the warrior are challenging each other. The warriors were shooting arrows, pointed by rubbing on stores, while having the poison of fury within their hearts. (344)

The persevering warriors were fighting on the battle-field and with grinding their teeth (with revenge) they were fighting fiercely. Both the gods and demons were watching the battle scene, and were hailing the warriors with one voice. (345)

The great vultures in a flock, were shrieking (in the sky) ; while the evil-spirits were making merry with loud noise. The ghosts, leaving their doubts were making noise on the ground. Both the brothers, Ram and Lachhman were moving around on the battle-field with great delight. (346)

Ram Chander had killed the demons Khar and Dukhan (and rolled them in the river of death). There were many shouts of hailing them collectively, while the gods showered flowers on them. In the battle, both types of warriors, having determination or without any perseverence, were tested. (347)

Here the Chapter on the killing of demons Khar and dukhan of the episode of Incarnation of Ram in Bachittar Natak is completed.

Now the episode of Abduction of Sita begins
Manohar Chhand

The mean and base Ravana went to the house of Marich, and apprised him about the death of his brothers Khan and Dukhan. In his twenty hands, Ravana was having various weapons, but keeping his fury within himself, Ravana muzzles his ten heads and said, "Whosoever has cut off the nose of Sarupnakha, should be made to suffer and feel miserable. I will assume the form of a Yogi (ascetic) and in a moment shall abduct his wife by deceit. (348)

Marich said,
Manohar Chhand

"O Master ! You have bestowed Your Grace and benevolence on me by visiting my house, thus making this helpless man into a person full of hopes. O Lord ! Now my house, family, abode, treasure and the scattered wilderness has become full of splendour. O Master ! I am praying with folded hands, so do not feel offended. Sri Ram is an incarnation (god-like) of god, and you should not take him to be an ordinary person. (349)

On hearing the thing from Mareech, Ravana became furious with rage, and his body was burning (with wrathfulness), and his face turned red (with rage) and started frowning with both the eyes. He said, "O fool ! My words have not been accepted by you as true and you are considering both the (ordinary) men as an Incarnation (of God). ? On their mother saying something against them, the father has disowned them both and then turning them out of house with contempt and sent them on exile. So how could these two helpless and poor Yogis (mendicants) dare to fight against me ? (350)

"O fool ! If you say that you are not willing to go against them, then I will get your tuft of hair shorn off, and will (sink) drown you in the ocean by throwing you atop the golden fort. On hearing these words, though Marich felt annoyed, He followed that the death verdict given by Ravana would be very useless and meaning less (would debase him) whereas the death at the hands of Ram Chander would lead him to heavens with glory. (351)

As a result Marich, assuming the form of a golden deer, came near the place where the mighty Ram was seated. On the other side, Ravana in the assumed form of an ascetic started on his mission of kidnapping Sita, as if his death had prompted him to carry out this mission. On seeing the beauty of the deer, Sita got enamoured and told her spouse. "O killer of the demon Mur ! O bestower of Salvation ! O Master of Ayoudhya ! Pray listen to my prayer and bring for me that deer ! " (352)

"O Sita ! We have never heard about a golden deer with our ears being born or created by the Lord-Creator. I am sure hundered percent, this is the illusion (trap) produced by some demon which has caused this misconception in your mind." But seeing the darling Seeta so keenly interested (in the deer), Ram could not refuse to carry out her wish. So By tying the quiver around his waist, he immediately left (for carrying out her wish), while telling Lachhman to look after her safety. (353)

The demon Marich (in the form of deer) got tired of his many efforts of his safety, and finally Sri Ram managed to kill him. While falling dead, Marieh said, : O younger brother (Lachhman) ! Pray come and save me, and then repeating Ram's name, he was heard crying for his life. On hearing these words (of deception) of Marich (she mistook them) as if Ram was crying for help, she sent Lachhman away for helping Ram. The mighty Lachhman then drew a line (of safety) with his bow around the hut of Sita and went away. So in the meantime Ravana, in the assumed form of a Yogi, managed to reach there. (354)

As per his (assumed) guise, ravana shouting 'Alakh, Alakh', came near Sita's hut, just as a trickster (cheat) behaves towards a wealthy person, on meeting him on the way (to cheat). Ravana said, "O lady with deer-like eyes ! Pray give me some alms." When Sita got ready to give him alms, the Yogi (ascetic)said, "We do not accept any alms, tied up like this. You rub out this line and (without caring for this line) you give us alms yourself. When Sita erased this line, and he (Ravana) saw Sita, devoid of the protective line, he immediately kidnapped Sita and flew towards the sky. (355)

Here the Chapter of Sita's abduction in the episode of Ram's incarnation of the Bachittar Natak is completed.

Now the episode of the Search for Sita begins

Tetak Chhand

When Sri Ram realised in his mind about the abduction of Sita, he took up his bow and fixed a piercing arrow in the bow. Then he looked around on all the four sides, and not perceiving Sita anywhere, Sri Ram fell down unconscious on the ground. (356)

Then the younger brother Lachhman took (Ram) him in his lap and wiping his face he told Ram like this. "O my Lord ! Why are you so desperate, have patience ? Where could Sita have gone ? Let us search for her." (357)

Then Ram got up, but again fell down on the ground and became unconscious. After about three hours, Ram regained consciousness. After gaining consciousness Ram got up fully alert just as a warrior, who falls down unconscious in the battle field, and then on gaining consciousness gets up fully alert (for fighting again). (358)

(Ram) He wa calling out for Sita on all sides, and got tired of it. The younger brother Lachhman also got furious with desperation. After the night was over, when Ram went to have bath, the fire of separation of Sita, became very painful ; and all the creatures in water appeared dead due to the heat of this fire within. (359)

The separated and gloomy Ram would find, wherever he looked around, all the flowers, fruits, trees and grass burning with the heat (of this fire). The ground, coming in contact with Ram's hands, would crumble like the unripened (unbaked) pitcher (vessel) on being baked. (360)

The trees and leaves of the area, where Ram was moving around, became parched with the heat (of the fire of separation) and falling down completely burnt. Tears were falling down the red eyes of Ram (with fury), which were covering the parched Earth, just as water drops dry up on a red-hot iron plate.

Even the air, in the vicimty of Ram, (touching Ram) was burnt (with heat) and devoid of any patience, it had disappeared in the water pool. So the lotus-flower in the pond also got burnt, including all the creatures in the water, and the bird's wings, all got parched with the heat. (of Ram's separation). (362)

On one side, Ram came back to his hut from his search for Sita (being unsuccessful), whereas on the other side, the king Vulture, Jataou, had surrounded Ravana, and would not budge an inch from his position (in the fight) due to his stubborn posture and he would not give in, though he lost all his wings due to Ravana's onslaughts. But he did not desert Ram's side. (363)

Geeta Malti Chhand

Jataou told Ram," O Raghu king ! Ravana had taken away Sita after killing me." Then looking up towards the sky, Jataou gave the information of Sita's abduction, to Ram. Thus mighty Ram was convinced about Sita's abduction by Ravana. Then after performing the cremation ceremony of Jataou, Ram came across Hanuman, and (Ram) became friendly with him. (364)

Then Hanuman brought Sugriv at the feet of Ram (to pay obeisance), then all of them got together and decided on a plan after full deliberations amongst themselves, that Sri Ram should help Sugriv for his project, while Sugriv will help Ram . Then the persevering Sugriv, after due consultations with his warriors, ministers and brave men decided to be the helper of Ram and promissed him all help. Then Ram killed the king Bali and making Surgiv as his associate marched towards Lanka. (365)

Here the Chapter on the killing of Bali of the Bachittar Natak Granth is completed.

Now the episode of Hanuman's mission of going in search (of Sita) begins

Geeta Malti Chhand

Sugriv then divided his troops into four parts and sent one part of troops to each of the four sides while Hanuman was sent to Lanka. Hanuman took Ram's ring as a token of dentity, and crossing the ocean, went upto the place, where Sita was kept. He burnt the city of Lanka and after killing Ravana's son, Achhai kumar, and destroying the Ashoka garden he came back to Sri Ram. He gave the details of all actions to Ram, which Ravana had undertaken. (366)

Ram chander collected millions of troops, and all started marching with great speed. These included Ram Chander, Sugrev, Lachhman and many other warriors. Jamwant, Sukham, Neel Hanuman, Angad and kesri like army commanders, alongwith a horde of monkeys thronged from the four sides like a cluster of clouds. (367)

When they reached the island of Lanka after crossing many seas ; then the messengers of the demons rushed to Ravana and told him to keep ready with all preparations for a war. But I have one request, which you should accept that the fort of Lanka should be well guarded, as Ram Chander has entered our areas. (368)

On hearing the news (of enemy), Ravana sent for Dhumar-lekh and Jabmal and sent them to the field. Both these warriors created such an uproar and finally reached the spot, where Ram was, alongwith millions of troops. Finally, enraged with this, Hanumaan did put down his feet firmly on that place, and fought heroically, while one warrior by the name Dhumar-Achh fell down on the ground (earth) while fighting and then entered the beautiful land of the gods. (he died) after death. (369)

Jabmmal fought for sometime, but was killed in the end in the same manner, (as before). So the army rushed back to Lanka and sent a message to Ravana that both the demons Dhumar Achh and Janbmal had been killed by Ram. Whatever now was considered right by the Master (Ravana) and found suitable, may be enacted as the savest path. (370)

Ravana, seeing the warrior Akumpan, standing close by, sent him alongwith the army to the battle field . Many trumpets were being sounded, and there were sounds of continuous musical nature in Lankapuri. Inder and Prahsat gave the advice after consultations among themselves. "O King ! Give away the possession of Sita and have compromise with Ram Chander. Why are you fostering anger and wrathfulness in your mind ? (371)

Chhapai Chhand

The swords were striking with flashes all around and trumpets were being sounded with loud noise. There were sounds of thuds by the iron coats of protective cover or the helmets being struck, which would desturb the ascetics from the meditation. In some cases the warrior (dead) have been taken away from the field by others, while in some other cases the warriors were engrossed in fighting. There was a dense fog, so that the hands and faces were not visible. In the battle-field the warriors are confronting one another, while the army of Angad was still standing fast. The hailing of Ram Chander as the victor is gaining ground, while the gods in heavens are also praising Ram's valour. (372)

On one side was Prince Angad (Sugriv's Son) whereas from the other side warrior Akampan was confronting. Both were showering a stream of arrows and no one retraces from the battle scene. In the end, both were engrossed in a duel, with each others hands around the others waist, and corpses were scattered all around. The wounded soldiers were reeling. The warriors were challenging one another, being tired of fighting. The gods, in their beautiful chariots, were watching eagerly the ongoing battle, and were hailing the scene saying, that never before in the past, present or even in future such a battle has taken place. (373)

In the battle-field one could see heads moving around, while the trunks lying on the ground were seen making slight movements and noises. At places there were legs fluttering, or at some places a hand is seen thrown up. At places the evil-spirits were filling their bowls with blood, whereas elsewhere the vultures were shrieking. At places the burial ground (cemetry) is waiting for dead, whole at other places Bhairav (deity) is clamouring loudly. Thus the monkey Prince Angad was victorious in the battle, and Ravana's son was killed. The zealous but devoid of hope, warriors were running away from the battle-field in awe and frightened. (putting grass under their teeth). (374)

Then the messenger conveyed the news of the death of Akampan to Ravana ; and Ram sent Angad as his emissary (to Ravana) with the instructions to sign a peace treaty provided he was willing to hand over Sita, to Ram otherwise he should face death. The son of Bali (Angad) paid obeisance at the feet of Ram and was about to depant, when Ram patted his back and hugged him, giving him all the benedictions, which pleased Angad to his utmost satisfaction. Then Angad said, "O Ravana ! Please hand over Sita to Ram, as you will not be able to even attain her shadow." Then Ravana replied, " You mean, he will usurp Lanka from me. Listen, no one could even dare to win over Lanka from me." Then Angad said, " Do not spill the poison of anger, else there will be a terrible war."

Then Ravana replied, " The whole army of monkeys alongwith Ram is like a herd of deer and jackals. I will devour their like a lion. "

Then Angad said, " O foolish man ! Do not feel proud ! Listen to me with full attention. The egoism has destroyed many families (people)."

Ravana replied, " O (fool) full of pride ! I have controlled all these things under my power. What is the worth of these two helpless persons (Ram and Lachhman) before me ?" (376)

Ravana, then addressed Angad as follows :

Chhapai Chhand

"Listen. The god of fire cooks food for me, while the god of air sweeps my corridor ; the (god) moon has held a fly-whisk in hand to swing it (in my honour) ; whereas (the god) Sun has held a canopy over my head. The goddess of wealth, Lachhmi serves me (wine) drinks ; while Brahma (god) recites Vedas for me. The god (of oceans) Varuna is my water-carrier ; while all other gods salute me (with respect). All the mighty demons look upon me as their Master ; and because of my power, Kuber and Jachh pay toll tax to me. Do you think, these two helpless persons (Ram and Lachhman) could gain victory over Ravana in battle ?" (377)

The clever Angad tried to convince Ravana by (millions of) reasoning in many ways, but Ravana did not care to listen to his advice and remained adamant. Finally Angad put his foot down (on Earth) and said ; Is there any powerful person with you, who could shift (move) my foot, if so, then only you could win over Ram ; else you will be a total failure ?" Ravana then ordered his men (warriors) to shift his foot, but failed to lift up his foot. The army of demons, after their unsucessful effort fell down unconscious and got tired. The dark coloured (like smoke son of Bali, (Angad) brought Ravana's) brother Vibhushan alongwith him. None of the Ravana's warriors could detain him from doing so. So (Angad) he came back to the place, where Ram was waiting in the battle-field. (378)

The lotus-eyed Ram addressed Vibhushan as 'Lankesh' (King of Lanka). The curly hair of Ram were looking glorious, and he was capable of eliminating the afflictions (sufferings) of his saints. All the monkey commanders, alongwith Sugriv were getting agitated and enraged as they had gained their first victory in the battle. Then they encircled the fort of Lanka and tested the Southern end (with attack). Ravana's wife (Mandedri) heard about the news of Ram's declaration of Vibhushan as the king of Lanka. She became totally perplexed and gloomy and fell down unconscious on the ground. (379)

Mandedri then said :

Utanghan Chhand :

All the warriors were armed with weapons and iron-coats of mail, and horrible trumpets were being Sounded. She said, " O my Master ! (Let us) "Run for safety as it is heard that Ram has come. Why have you developed enmity against a person, who has killed the mighty Bali, and has erected a bridge on the ocean even ? Sri Ram is an incarnation (of God) who had defeated Biradh and killed Janbhasur, and deserves all honour. So pray hand over Sita and make a compromise with him. This would be an act of wisdom. Why have you encouraged this worthless act of sacrificing human lives ? " (380)

I will, before your very eyes, destroy the whole army of the enemy to-day only Just as I have won over Indra having divested all gods of their wealth, similarly I will win over the enemy and bring Sita in marriage. The fire of my wrath will burn away heavens . netherlands and the skies. How could Ram, then escape my wrathfulness ?

Mandedri said," Sri Ram will destroy you and win over Lanka with the beat of drum. He had killed Tarika at the outset, and had killed the demons Subahu and Marich, having destroyed Biradh and had killed Khar and Dukhan demons and had destroyed Bali with one arrow only ; who had killed Dhrum-Achh, Janbwali and highty Akumpan in a battle. The person who had killed the lion and jackal (equally) easily will kill you." (382)

Then Ravana said, " The moon (god) is swinging the fly-whisk over my head with the sun holding the canopy overhead, and Brahma recites Vedas at my place (door); The god of fire cooks for me, and god Varuna brings water for me, while Jachh and Vidyadhar both are my slaves to serve me. I have crushed millions of people belonging to various towns. You will see my powers in the battle-field. The vultures will be shrieking and the evil-spirits (she-jackals) will be running around the battle-field. The ghosts, evil-spirits and demons will be dancing around. (383)

Then Mandedri said, " The spears were being swung around on one side and trumpets were blowing as the army of Ram had reached near Lanka. The monkey off springs were making loud shrieks and on all sides one could hear shouts of "Kill them." So long the big drums are not beating and the warriors are not shouting slogans of challenge and the arrows are not shot from the bows in this battle, you could feel safe in the vicinity of the battle-field. So please listen to me and try to realise the situation. (384)

All the ferry places have been blocked and all the routes blocked, why are you sitting at home with an egoistic behaviour ? Rama has come, here already. O worthless person ! How could you circulate coins out of leather under the eyes of the enemy ? Your family will suffer quite a lot, so long the monkeys are not making noise. All these demons will leave Lankas deserting this fort and feeling completely demoralised. " (385)

Then Ravana said, " O foolish woman ? Why are you talking like buffoons ? Forget about the episode of a helpless person like Ram. This person (Ram) has enacted the drama of "Indra's noose", I will expose his hollowness with the burning of incense and rid him of the ghost and watch the fun today. I am having twenrty arms, with ten heads, and the whole army is with me. Where will they flee to ? They will not find the way to run away. I will kill them just as an eagle kills a partridge. (386)

On my one (sound) call, each warrior will fight the other warrior (one beyond) who will fall down reeling and becoming unconscious. Wherever they run to, I will chase them. How will these weaklings (like a flower) save themselves against my onslaught? I will arm myself with all the weapons and protective coats of mail, and with beating of drums, I will defeat them. How could anyone rule here without looking after all the functions of wine? I will destroy the monkeys and Kill am and Lachhman. Then I will win the beat agaist you." (387)

Mandedri had thought of millions of things, but Ravana did not listen to anything. Instead he nodded his head (in disapproval) and sent his sons away to the battle-field. One was mighty Narant, and the second one was Devant. When the warriors got ready for the battle, the Earth trembled underneath. The heavy swords were striking against each other, and the sharp edges were striking against the sharpened edges of other's sword. Being enraged, the blood splashes were being thrown out, while the trunks were falling on the ground making thuds (noises). Blood was spurting out of the wounds (of warriors). The corpses of warriors were lying scattered all over the battle field and were herded together. (388)

The evil-spirits would fill up their bowls with blood ; Durga raises loud cry, Bhairav sounds the trumpets, the evil-spirits are singing songs, while the ghosts, demons, evil spirits or other carnivorous beings were clapping, the musicians of Shiva, and other gods or demi gods are all making noise in the skies. The corpses are lying scattered, and loud noises are heard alongwith total chaos. Thus a great magnificiant battle was raging. (389)

Sangeet Chhapai Chhand

(Here the first letter of each description gives an introduction of mirdang tune)
The army of monkeys was greatly enraged, and trumpets were being sounded with battle. The swords were flashing, while the warriors were raising war cries (roars). The warriors were confronting each other while Narad Muni was dancing. The mighty demon was moving around the battle field. All were looking red with blood stains. The warriors were dancing around the battle field while the arrows were being shot with the same speed as the missing sound. Due to the fear of this horrible battle even Sheshnag was feeling scared with his fangs getting unsteady. (390)

The she-jackals were roaming in the battle-field, and the vultures were shrieking. The corpses were scattered around, while the wounds of warriors are spurting out blood. The arrows were being showered, and the swords were flashing. The elephants were locked up in fights, while the horses were moving with restained steps. The swords were being wielded over the heads of warriors with fury, and the flashes of swords were seen like the lightning streaks appearing from the overcast clouds on a cloudy day. (391)

On (demon) Naratank's falling down on the ground, Devantak (demon) launched a fierce attack and fighting a tumultuous battle went to heavens. (was killed), which made the gods happy, whereas the demons were totally demoralised in the battle. The Sidhas (mendicants) and saints in their meditation, got up from those postures and started dancing. When all the devils were destroyed, the gods were showering flowers from the heavens. All the males and females of the heavens were hailing the victory of Ram. (392)

The news reached Ravana that both his sons had attained martyrdom in the battle, and many others were engrossed in fighting. The corpses were scattered all over the battle-field while the vultures were shrieking. The battle-field was full of the human marrow like an ocean, while the goddess of death was hovering over the field. A terrible battle was raging, in which evil-spirits were gathered around, making noisy scenes, while filling up bowls with blood. (393)

Now the episode of Prehsat Battle begins

Sangeet Chhapai Chhand

Now Ravana sent his son Preshat alongwith a huge contingent of armed men to the battle-field, in fact the Earth trembled with the hooves of the unlimited number of horses (accompanying him). He was thrown with one jerk only on the ground by the warrior Neel of Ram Chander, which created an uproar in the forces of the demons. The blood was spurting out of the wounds of the wounded soldiers in the battle-field, while the herd of evil-spirits was (chanting the) hailing the victory (of Ram) and the crows were making noise with a piercing sound. (394)

When Prehsat had marched alongwith his forces, there was tumultuous uproar on the Earth, and both the lands and oceans, had trembled alongwith the beating of drums. The spears were striking with a splash while the shooting arrows produced a streak of lightning. The wielding swords were striking against the enemy with a thud, alongwith sparks of light. The swords were striking against the shields like the potter moulding various vessels on his wheel. (395)

At places the shields were being tossed while at other places, the warriors were shouting war cries. Some warriors were being led away by other's while some others are jumping and tossing up. Small kettle-drums were beating and the clarionets were playing in the battle field. Somewhere conch shells were blowing, whereas at other places the mighty elephants getting enraged were trumpeting. The Earth was trembling while the gods were getting bewildered with the progress of the war. The musicians of Shiva were showering beautiful flowers from heavens. (396)

The warriors were fighting vigorously and falling down while shouting to kill the enemy. The protective covering (coats of iron) worn by warriors looked like black snakes. Some (warriors) were shooting arrows while some others were wielding their heavy maces. Some were reciting hymns of magical spell, whereas some others were hailing their master. (god) Some where meditating on Shiva, thus the warriors were fighting and being killed. The warriors who fall down dead, while confronting the enemy, were going to heavens (being married to the fairies). (397)

Bhujang Prayat Chhand

On this side Ram had announced the name of Vibhushan as the ruler of Lanka whereas the gods in their chariots were watching all this from heavens. "O Vibhushan! Please introduce all the army commanders one by one, who were taking part in the battle." (398)

The Vibhishan replied to Ram

" O Master ! The warriors having a round encircled bow, with a plume on the head and having a white canopy overhead, and the chariot is covered with lion's skin and was looking fearless, may be considered the stubborn Inderjit (meghnath). (399)

O Master ! The great warrior, whose chariot was having brown horses, and even the gods were frightened to see the bulky body, and who would wrest the pride of all the gods with great bows, was known as Mahakaie. (400)

O Ram ! The warriors, whose chariot was having pea-cock coloured horses, who was shouting 'kill them, " and was showering arrows in a stream, and was a fountain (mine) of waging war, should be considered as Mahodar, the greatest warrior.(401)

O Ram " The warrior, whose beautiful chariot had rat-coloured horses, which are faster then the winds of the four directions (which make fun of wind) and who is having an arrow in his hand, and who is an embodiment of the god of death, was the king of demons Ravana. (402)

O Ram ! The warrior, who was having a fly-whisk out of the wings of peacock, being swung overhead, and who was being praised by many slaves, and whose chariot was bedecked with golden bells (tinkling) and the godly princesses were enamoured by his glorious might. (403)

The person whose flag was having the lion's symbol imprinted on it, was the root of all evil designs and the king of demons, Ravana. He had a crown on his head, and before whose glamour, even the moonlight felt belittled, was the ten-headed Ravana. (404)

Countless trumpets were blowing from both sides, which made the great armed warriors even intoxicated. They were killing various warriors with the help of their coats of iron (arms) and one could see the trunks of warriors lying on the ground, looking horrible. (405)

Countless whee the heads, trunks and elephant trunks lying on the ground. Many mutilated limbs of the warriors were rolling scattered on the ground, and there were wailings all over the battle-field, which produced a horrible noise. The warriors were engrossed in fighting as if they were completely drunk (with wine). (406)

The warriors, after being wounded, were reeling and falling down on the ground. A terrible sound was rising from the battle field, which produced keen desire among warriors to continue fighting. Many warriors, fighting vigorously in various ways, were attaining martyrdom. Though their limbs had been cut off (from the body), they were still shouting, "kill them." (407)

The arrows were being shot by some warriors, producing horrible sounds, which resulted in some warriors reeling and falling on the ground. Being engrossed in the fighting spree, some warriors were like drunkards moving around, having left the bridles of horses free, who were running around aimlessly. (408)

In the battle field there were many goads, elephants, and warriors lying fallen on the ground, and headless trunks were jumping in a state of unconsciousness. The Sixty-eight (many) evil-spirits were filling their bowls with blood and the carnivorous animals were having their fill with full satiation. (409)

Some smart warriors were lying dead on the backs of the horses, while some atop the elephants were lying dead on the ground with the hair dishevelled. Some warriors worthy of maintaining the canons of a battle were shouting challenges (to enemy). The blood was oozing out of the warriors body like syringes of gulab. (410)

The painted beautiful looking bows had fallen from the hands, and the warriors were proceeding to heaven (in chariots), (were facing death). The elephants were lying dead on the ground in the battle-field while the hordes of corpses were scattered all around. The door of heavens had been opened up, while the warriors having attained Salvation, were entering heavens. (were facing death). (411)

Couplet :

Thus the army of Ram's enemy, Ravana was destroyed, and finally Ravana went back to his beautiful fort. (412)

Bhujang prayat Chhand

Then Ravana sent his emissaries to Kailash (mountain), who would recite Shiva's Name by meditating on him with body, mind and word. But when the (one's) end reaches, then all one's efforts come to naught. So one should meditate on the benevolent Lord, the Timeless One, with full concentration. (413)

Then the warriors in chariots, on foot, and with countless elephants alongwith many royal horse riders, with decorated horses went to give 'Wake up' call to Kumbhkaran. Some went inside the nostrils and ears of Kumbhkaran with trumpets sounding, alongwith drums beating in Rag Kanra (to wake him up). (414)

The warriors started sounding the trumpets in ear-rending notes and the drums were beating with a piercing sound, which made some people mad, so that they fled away from tyheir positions, but it had no effect to shake up Kumbhkaran. (415)

Being totally disappointed and devoid of all hope, the warriors came back, and Ravana became much sad and gloomy on his brother's inaction. (being awakened). Then the godly princesses started singing songs, on hearing which, the enemy of gods, Kumbhkaran got awakened and he ared himself with his mace in his hands. (416)

So the mighty Kumbhkaran entered Lanka, alongwith the warrior Ravana having twenty arms, who was bedecked with various weapons, and both started meditating on some magical spells and sermons (of charm). Then Ravana explained in detail the whole episode to his frightful brother, Kumbhkaran. (417)

Then Kumbhkaran washed (and wiped) his dreadful face with water from seven thousand filled vessels (pitchers) ; then ate meat, and drank lot of wine, and with mace in hand the warrior stood up. (418)

On seeing him most of the army of monkeys ran away and the fighting hordes of fighters got frightened, and the warriors started shouting war cries and challenges to the enemy, and then many heads and trunks pierced with arrows were thrown around the battle-field. (419)

The mutilated trunks, and heads of the warriors alongwith the trunks of the elephants were lying fallen on the ground, and some heads and trunks were seen running here and there, and there were heaps of flags lying around. The horrible crows were crowing, while the warriors were heaving their last breath. There was a great uproar all around and the enraged troops were locked up in fighting one another. (420)

The warriors were wielding their sharp swords, which were shining just as lightning srikes through dark clouds in the month of August (Bhadon). Horrible crows were making merry while the warriors were getting armed and ready for the battle. The shields were lying down in large numbers, while the wounded soldiers were looking glorious on the battle-field. (421)

The fighters were engrossed in fighting, and some warriors were reeling and falling down on the ground, while the drums and kettle drums were beating, alongwith tinkling bells producing musical notes. (425)

Rasaval Chhand

Everywhere shouts of killing the enemy were being heard, and the wielding swords or javelins (spears) were cutting human bodies, while crying out loudly to kill the enemy. It seemed the swords were becoming blunt. (in cutting). (426)

The blood stains were rising high, and streams of blood were flowing, whereas the carnivorous were making merry, and the jackals were sucking blood. (427)

The beautiful fly-whisks were lying scattered, while some warriors were fleeing away (having been defeated) whereas some others were shouting to kill the enemy. Some horse riders had fallen down on the ground. (428)

Some horse riders were marching onwards, and some others were launching an attack suddenly. They were fighting furiously while wielding their swords or other weapons. (429)

They were striking once only, with their swords shining and splashing with sparks of fire. The gods in the heavens were watching the scene and pondering. (430)

The warriors were challenging the enemy and were carrying out their duty. They were watching the sharpness of their swords (arms) while shouting to kill the enemy, but there were some others trembling with fear. (431)

The mighty warriors were locked up in fighting, and the coats of mail were being (broken) (cut into pieces) with the arrows, being shot with hissing sounds, and producing notes of killing the enemy. (432)

A shower of arrows was being shot, and the warriors were seen locked up in fighting each other at various places. They were fighting furiously and killing one another mercilessly. (433)

A sound of thud was being heard from the shields (being struck), while the enemy troops had fled away. Some spears were clashing with spears of the enemy, producing sparks at places. (434)

Some had already fallen on the ground, whereas some others were again getting ready to fight after rolling down once (with enemy strike) and were seen engaged in fighting again. Some swords had been broken by striking against enemy swords. (435)

The warriors were keen to prove their fighting skill and prowess, while they were having protective covering of coats of mail. They were striking (their weapons) in ambush while wielding their arms or weapons. (436)

On one side was the king of monkeys, Sugriv, fighting against Kumbhkaran from the other side (enemy side). Finally Sugriv uproated a tree of vetica robusta (saal) and hit Kumbhkaran with it (by throwing at him) and he fell down. (437)

His both the legs were broken, and a stream of blood started spurting out (from them). Ram was watching the scene and felt satisfied that a mighty enemy had been dealt with a deadly blow (and finished). (438)

Then Ram started shooting a continuous shower of arrows, which caused a (flutter) ray of hope and delight among the army of monkeys, and with some of these arrows Kumbhkaran was killed. (439)

The gods were delighted and showered flowers on Ram. When Ravana heard about the death of Kumbhkaran, he struck his head on the ground in desperation. (440)

Here the Chapter on the death of Kumbhkaran of the episode of Ram's incarnation in Bachittar Natak is completed.

Now the episode of Trimund Battle begins.

Rasaval Chhand

Then Ravan sent demon Trimund, who left with a strong contigent of armed troops.
He could launch an attack, which would change the whole course of the battle, being a great warrior.
He could fight the battle with great wrathfulness. (441)

He was shooting the arrows like a shower, shouting "Kill them, Kill them." In confrontation against him, Hanuman had put his foot down firmly with fury. (442)

Then Hanuman snatched the sword from the hands of Trimund and struck it on his head. Thus he killed the six-eyed Trimund. Perceiving this scene, the gods in heavens were delighted. (443)

Here the Chapter on the killing of Trimund of the episode of Ram's incarnation in Bachittar Natak is completed.

Rasaval Chhand

When Ravana, the Master of Lanka, heard about the death of Trimund, he shook all his ten heads. Then he took some wine and was filled with the pride of his bravery. (444)

He stretched his bow with great strength and started shooting arrows like a shower, while warriors like Mahodar with perseverence and stubbornness, took up swords in hands. (445)

The drums were beating with continuous noise of kar' kar' and there was a tumultuous noise in the battle field. The fife was also playing a note of great noise, and the small cymbals were also tinkling with musical sounds. (446)

The kettle drums were producing a loud noise, as if peacocks were making noise in the months of monsoon (Savan Bhadon). The horses with saddle gears were trotting up and down while the warriors were engaged in the battle-field. (447)

Huge elephants with big tusks were moving around the battle field like drunken animals, while the warriors with moustaches were making their horses with saddles to jump around. The whole army had come out in the battle field, which was being watched by the gods in heaven. (448)

The invincible warriors even were falling down against the onslaughts of enemy they were again getting up and shouting challenges at the enemy in the battle field. On being wounded they were falling down reeling on the ground. But cut into two pieces they were falling on the ground. (449)

They are thrashing some of those beyond such action and the stubborn warriors are stretching their bows and are striking with fury, their weapons on the warriors, while watching the progressof battle with revenge. (450)

The warriors, looking glorious armed with their weapons, were roaring in the battle-field. They were stretching their bows and shooting the arrows like a shower. The warriors were crushing the enemy while wielding their swords etc. The belligerent warriors were engrossed in fighting on the battle field. (451)

The warriors were being penetrated with arrows, as the coats of mail were pierced making holes therein, while their broad shields had fallen down. Having spears in their hands , pointed at the enemy, the insane warriors were moving around just as Yogis sporting matted hair, were going along. (452)

The proud and stubborn warriors, having swords atop their horses, were engaged in fighting. The warriors, full of pride, were assuming airs, as they were having winged arrows pierced in their body and were looking glorious. (453)

Nav Namak Chhand

The arrows were being shot with loud thuds (noise), which was being watched both by men and gods. The sky (land of the Sun) had been covered with shooting arrows and all the godly persons were watching this scene. (454)

The arrows were being shot with free force like a shower. They were stretching their bows and fixing the arrows therin, they were shooting the arrows, which many great men were watching. (455)

They were holding the selected arrows in hand and then with stretched bows, they were shooting them, which would pierce the chests of the enemy and come out from the other side of the body. (456)

The warriors were fighting fully engrossed in the battle and finally would be killed and separated from their colleagues. The carnivorous (animals) were making merry, however. The shining arrows were being shot all the time. (457)

Some warriors were feeling frustrated, while some others were trembling with fear, wheras some warriors were moving around wielding their swords (carried in hand). (458)

Tilkaria Chhand

The warriors would strike with their Swords in a flash, while the enemy would save himself with the help of shields,and cast away with a jerk the onslaught of the sword. Then some were firing shots from the gun and would roast the enemy. (460)

The fairies were moving in the sky and marrying the warriors. (Warriors were being killed and sent to heavens). Whosoever would hear the tinkling of bells, would stand up in a rage. (461)

The evil-spirits were filling bowls of blood, whereas the coats of mail were being broken with the onslaught of the swords. There were flashes of light as if glow worms were shining. (462)

The helmets worn by warriors were being broken, while they were locked up in fighting in groups, and the swords were striking with a flash (of light) like fire balls. (463)

The arrows were being showered in all directions, causing obstruction. The weapons were being struck and the coats of iron were giving way. (464)

The armed warriors were getting engrossed in fighting, while those with protective covering were involved in fighting. The arrows were coming like a shower (of rain) and the swords were flashing on strikes. (465)

Here the Chapter on the killing of Mahodar Mantri of the episode of Ram's incarnation from Bachittar Natak is completed.

Now the episode of the battle of Inderjit begins
Sirkhandi Chhand

The drums .were sounded and the fighting warriors got locked up in battle. The loud drum-beats were heard, and the confrontation of both the armies commenced. The mighty warriors, showing their skill in fighting, got engrossed in fighting. The arrows were being shot like a shower, as if rain was pouring from the dreadful clouds overhead. (467)

When the huge chained drums started beating, then both sides got engaged in fighting. The warriors with moustaches were shooting arrows with vehemence. The fighting warriors, who had fallen down, were showing off their teeth, as if they had become insane with an intake of hemp. (468)

By beating drums, the proud warriors, were launching an attack, and were wielding swords on other warriors. The blood was flowing like a stream with the showering of arrows countinously. Ram and Ravana have become renowned with the continued fighting of their warriors. (469)

When the drummers started beating the drums, the battle was resumed again. The horse riders started shooting arrows again on the warriors, so the fairies were becoming cheerful in their hearts, and the whole sky was covered with them, as they had gathered around from all the four directions. (470)

Padhri Chhand

The revolving wheels were shining, and the javelins were sliding. The demons with matted hair were moving around, as if mendicants had gathered at the fair of Ganga. The warriors were getting wounded in the battle field to their full capacity. They were shooting arrows like a shower and they were feeling overjoyed in their hearts. (472)

All the warriors, who felt composed with the war progress, were engrossed in fighting, and were shooting errows, devoid of any poison, and the whole sky was covered with the endless stream of arrows. All the big and small persons have been considered (counted). (473)

Meghnad was expert in all the arts of weaponery including arms and coats of mail. He picked up the army commander of the enemy, and started shooting his arrows in a continuous (stream) shower, which had cast a spell on the great warriors like Ram Chander and they fell down unconscious on the ground. (474)

The emissary went upto Ravana and informed him that the army of monkeys had been defeated completely that day. Now he could enjoy the company of Sita without any fear as Ram Chander, on fighting against Meghnad, had collapsed. (died)(475)

Then Ravana sent for Trista (the female demon) and asked her to take Sita to the battle field and show her the dead body of Ram. So Trista took Sita to the place, where her Master (spouse) Ram was lying down as if a lion, having killed deers, was lying carelessly on the ground. (476)

Sita, on seeing her master's condition got enraged, and Sita an expert of fourteen sciences, recited the magic-charm (of snake) (Nag Mantar) and brought back her spouse to life, alongwith his brother, and felt delighted in her heart. (477)

When Sita went from the battle-field, then Ram, waking up, yawned and all of them, including Ram (the abode of religion), his brother, Lachhman and the whole army woke up from unconsciousness. Then drums were beaten, and the warriors started roaring loudly ; and arming themselves with weapons, and becoming impatient rushed towards the battle-field. (478)

The warriors managed to reorganise themselves, and then started shooting arrows like a shower (of rain) and were trying to kill the mighty warriors (standing solid like trees) Saal and Taal in a horrible manner. That time Meghnad, leaving the idea of battle, had gone to the place of goddess Nikumbhala for performing fire-worship. (479)

Vibhushan came to Lachhman and forgetting the reaction of his brother, Ravana, explained to Lachhman that by deceit (by means of a sware) they could get control over Meghnad, who was capable of crushing his enemy, having defeated Indra even. (480)

(Vibhushan told Lachhman) that Meghnad was offering his own flesh by cutting from the body, for the fire-worship, which had caused even the Earth to shudder (tremble) and the gods were also perplexed. On hearing this, Lachhman left for that place without any fear, having his bow in the hand and the quiver tied to his waist. (481)

Meghnad was worried and keen to propitiate the goddess, whereas Lachhman shot an arrow, in such a situation, and cut the enemy into two pieces (without any resistance). Then Lachhman, sounding his trumpets of victory, came back having killed the enemy. On the other side the army of demons, having sacrificed Maghnad, their commander, fled away to Lanka. (482)

Here the Chapter on the killing of Inderjit is completed.

The infuriated warriors of Ram's army were fighting vigorously in the battle. They sounded new drums and a fool called Makrachh started roaring in the battle-field. (485)

One warrior by the name Atkaie was very furious with wrathfulness. Many warriors had challenged that single demon. The battle field was situated on the sea-shore. (486)

Many arrows were being shot, which appeared like drops (of water) on the leaves of trees. The infantry, without the chariots , looked like a huge army of ants. (487)

Many warriors had reached near the battle scene and were watching Atkaie fighting. The gods were hailing and the kings were also praising his prowess. (488)

The goddess Kali, with a mighty laugh, was smiling. The evil spirits in large numbers and ghosts were sucking blood. (489)

The evil-spirits were beating the kettle-drums loudly and the dreadful crows were crowing and the evil-spirits were shrieking on all four sides and the ghosts were creating an uproar. (490)

Hoha Chhand

The warriors were falling down, being cut into pieces but were not retreating. They were holding their swords in hand and were furious with rage. (491)

The warriors were shooting arrows, and Shiva was getting bewildered on seeing all this. All the sides were blocked, and the monkeys were getting frustrated. (492)

The infuriated warriors were shooting arrows, and some of the warriors were falling (dead) down like lofts. (493)

The wounded soldiers were reeling with fear, whereas some mighty warriors were being killed while confronting the enemy. (494)

The enraged warriors were shouting for Shiva's help (Shiv, Shiv), while the wounded warriors, moving around, were still fighting in the battle-field. (495)

The warriors were falling on the ground, and some soldiers were being pushed around. Some others were pierced with arrows, while some were falling into pieces. (being cut into pieces). (496)

The wounded warriors were reeling and moving around the battle-field. They were feeling ashamed of themselves, but were roaming about fully armed. (497)

Warriors were getting pushed around, and some others were being wounded. The arrows were being shot all around, thus blocking the routes on all sides. (498)

At places, someone was fighting against another whereas another soldier is just watching the others (fighting). Someone was taking away another (wounded one) while some other was picking up another (wounded one). Someone is showering arrows in a stream, while another soldier is stretching his bow with great fury, while some others had fallen down and were writhing (in pain). There were some others, who had died (crossed the ocean of life). In fact, in the battle field each one is engaged in fighting another one, while some of them were lagging behind. In some cases, one warrior was fighting against odds with weapons and was punishing them single handed who were supposed to be beyond fragmentation. (breaking up). (499)

Some others were falling down, while fighting (the enemy) while some others were falling on being struck with a sword. While some others were facing many wounds (cuts) on the body, whereas some others were shooting arrows with great force. The warriors were seen moving around the battle-field while the mighty demon Kaie and Lachhman both have played havoc in the battle-field. Both the warriors were standing like rocks, as if two tall trees were standing or two great mountains were facing (each other) in the north side. (500)

The warriors were swinging (with excitement) the fairies were moving around; the brave soldiers were bedecked in uniforms (dresses) and were intoxicated (insane) with pride. (509)

Padhri Chhand

The battle was fought furiously and it was a dreadful battle. The mighty warriors fought this battle with great passion ; on one side was Lachhman and on the other side was Atkaie, and both warriors were locked up in a fierce battle. (510)

Then Lachhman suddenly became furious with rage, just as the fire bursts into flames on adding ghee (oil) to it. He shot countless arrows by holding his how (once again) in hand, just as the rays become intense during the month of May (jeth). (511)

Both the warriors were inflicting wounds on each other's body, which cannot be described in detail (one by one). Many warriors had become martyrs in the battle, as such the gods were hailing them with musical notes. (512)

Lachhman had deprived his enemy of all his weapons and coats of mail (protective cover), as he was an expert in the art of weaponery and protective covering. The foolish Atkaie was devoid of his horse, crown and charioteer, so he managed to slip away like a thief by collecting courage. (513)

Lachhman was shooting powerful arrows against the enemy, which were burning him like the fire of hill. This made Atkaie very furious just like the rain water on doomsday. (514)

The Atkaie produced some type of prattle just as on (old man) ugly person embraces a young woman or a dog catches a rabbit without his teeth or just as with passing age (growing old), strength and semen (drip away) give way. (515)

Just as a person, without money, carries out a business activity or a weapon-less person engages himself in a battle, or a prostitute, without beauty, produces her effect (on others) or a chariot moving without its horses. (516)

Then the generous Lachhman, being enraged, wielded his sword and struck him and cut off his head into two pieces. Then the warrior, called Atkaie, fell down on the ground. Seeing this, many warriors fled away from the battle-field. (517)

Here the Chapter on the death of Atkaie of the episode of Ram's Incarnation from Bachittar Natak is completed.

Now the episode of the battle of Makrachh begins.

Padhri Chhand

Then Makrachh (demon) stood firmly in front of the army, and said, "O Ram ! You will not be allowed to go back alive. The person, who had killed my father, Khar, in the battle field, let him fight it out in a grand battle against me. (518)

When Ram Chander heard his crude words then holding his arms, and protective covering ; started fighting with anger. Then he shot many arrows at his body by stretching his bow strongly and without any further hesitation killed Makrachh and threw him on the ground. (579)

When Makrachh (warrior) was killed and his army was also done away with them, the rest of the warriors fled away, being fully shaken up. Then two demons, called Kumbh and Ankumbh, without having any fear of Ram, came forward and obstructed the army of Ram. (520)

The protective coverings (of iron) were cracking, and the arrows were flying around ; but the warriors were steadfast in their positions, and the arrows were being shot like a shower. (522)

The wounded men were moving around, with full confidence and enthusiasm, whereas some others were furious with rage, as such they were not in senses.(523)

Those warriors, whose body was covered with protective coats of iron, were armed with five types of weapons. Some were fighting in the battle-field and had fallen down in an unconscious state. (524)

The smart warriors had encircled Lanka whereas the army of demons, with shame writ large in their eyes (on thir faces), had fled away. (525)

(Some) The warriors had fallen down, with wounded faces and the fairies were marrying them (were dying) and their hopes were being fulfilled. (526)

Now the episode of the battle of Ravan begins.

Hoha Chhand

The King of demons, Ravana, heard about the news of the victory of the monkeys (army of) and felt much frustrated. He shouted with full force. (The king of monkeys had won ?). (527)

With the encirclement of the fort by the monkeys, Ravana had got enraged, while his wives had fled away, being frightened with fear and uncertainty. (528)

All the wives of Ravana were getting frightened and running away, whereas the queen Mandedri had been caught by the monkeys. (529)

She was wailing and crying and said, " O God ! Pray forgive me, if I have committed some mistake. (530)

Ravana had heard the wailings of Mandedri (with his ears) and he got up infuriated (so much) just as a flame of fire rises from the kiln. (531)

So Ravana (warrior) shot many arrows in a pitched battle and killed many monkeys. In fact, all the sides (of the battle field) were covered with the arrows, being shot. (532)

Tinnan Chhand

Then again the warriors of Ravan King had launched an attack with great zeal and passion. (544)

The warriors, who had fallen on the ground, were soaked in blood, the blood was oozing out (of wounds) whole the quivers were also lying on the ground. (545)

In the battle, the warriors were shooting arrows with such a force, that they would pierce through the body. (546)

Enraged and furious warriors were striking the enemy. (547)

The whole sky was covered with the fairies. (548)

The arrows were being shot with full force after stretching the bow. (549)

The warriors, who were pierced with the arrows, were falling on the ground, and lying down. (550)

Anad Chhand

The whole sky was overcast with arrows, while the eyes of warriors (in the process of fighting) had turned red, being insane with fighting. The drums were being beaten with sticks, while the shields were taking the enemy onslaughts. The arrows, while striking the shields, were producing sparks of fire. (551)

The warriors, soaked in blood, were lying on the ground, while the fairies were making merry on the (ground) land. The conch shells were blowing, producing a particular sound (gad) and a musical note was being produced by the cymbals, conch shells and clarionets. (552)

The protective coats of iron were being broken (into pieces) while the (body) limbs of warriors were fully engrossed in fighting on the battle field. The warriors were keenly interested in fighting the battle with passion and zeal ; whereas the fairies were making merry. The whole world seemed to be engrossed in the passion (of victory). (553)

Half mutilated bodies had got up (from the field) wearing coats of iron-nets, gloves, and helmets alongwith their weapons. They were furious with rage, with their hair dishevelled.
The warriors, in the form of lions, were engaged in battle. (fighting). (554)

The steel helments and the iron circles (marks) on foreheads were broken. The army commanders, with broken swords, had run away while the wounded soldiers were falling on the ground. There was total chaos like the jungle mist, on the battle-field. (555)

Countless trumplets and war-instruments were being played. The fighting warriors were armed with weapons and had fought till death (being cut into pieces) as if they were lying in a drunken state on the ground. (unconscious). (556)

Many weapons and protective arms were being employed, whereas the battle field was littered with the horrible colour of blood, and many weapons were shining blindly in the battle field and mighty warriors were shouting challenges (in the battle-field). (557)

There were clusters of corpses lying around while millions of warriors were engrossed in the battle-field ; and many were fleeing away from the battle-field. The ghosts, evil-spirits and even cremation grounds were laughing, but the warriors were fighting with swords. (558)

Behra Chhand

The army commanders on horse back were fully enraged and started marching forward, and reciting Ram, Ram, they were coming. Finally, being engrossed in a dreadful battle, they had fallen (down) on the ground, and gained salvation by facing death at the hands of Ram Chander. (559)

The warriors had joined together to collect spears and then fought confronting the enemy. They got cut into pieces, and then they had fallen down, without even thinking of their families. The warriors, who had got some onslaughts of the swords, to a minor extent even, had been cut into pieces before falling on the ground, alongwith their bows which were also broken. (560)

Sangeet Behra Chhand

The warriors, carrying spears in hand, were making their mares (horses) jump in the battle-field. On getting wounded, they would fall on the ground reeling, and then succumb to their injuries. (facing death). Those warriors, with mutilated limbs, were also falling down (and facing death) in the battle-field. Many mighty warriors had their bodies soaked in blood. (561)

Then Ravana, furious with rage, advanced towards Lachhman. His body was displeased with wrathfulness, while wind started blowing. Then Ravana pierced a spear in the chest of Lachhman, Ram's brother, which resulted in the fall of Lachhman after reeling, on the ground. It appeared as if Ravana had taken revenge of his son's death. (562)

The evil-spirits were shrieking and (she) ghosts were making noise, while demons were shouting loudly whereas Ravana was burning with rage in the battle-field. Lachhman had become unconscious while fighting, whereas Ram Chander had thought that he was dead. (563)

Here the Chapter on Lachhman's becoming unconscious in the episode of Ram's incarnation of Bachittar Natak is Completed.

When Lachhman had fallen unconscious, the army of monkeys had run away (from the field). So Ram Chander, getting furious with rage, armed himself with various weapons and the protective covering of coats of mail. Due to Ram's wrathfulness, the bull carrying the load of Earth, got bewildered and the back of tortoise (supporting Earth) also got cracked. So the Earth trembled as if the doomsday had upturned it. (564)

He took out his double-edged sword, which was looking glorious with its magnificent appearance. The kettle drums were producing dreadful notes while the bards were singing praises. (565)

The warriors were shooting arrows with paintings on them and the warriors were fighting vigorously as if the dark clouds of monsoon (Savan) had overcast the sky. (566)

The demons were moving on all sides in the form of Sins, while hailing the king with their tongues. The gods were saluting those warriors, who were laying down their lives. (567)

Pointed (Sharp) arrows were being shot, while the battle-drums were playing (being beaten) with a dreadful sound, and there were serene noises heard from the battle-field, as if the warriors were drunk with wine. (568)

The bards were singing praises, and the musicians of Shiva was dancing, while Parbati, was placing the necklace (of bones) around Shiva's neck, and the evil spirits were laughing. (569)

Ram Chander had gained victory in the battle-field and the enemy troops had fled away from the field, and then Ram examined his younger and warring brother, who was dearer to him than his life even (very dear to him). (577)

The whole army of monkeys was feeling ashamed of itself with the thought of Ram Chander's defeat. All the warriors (of monkeys) including Sugriv were furious with rage. (578)

Then Hanuman, being enraged, put his foot down in the battle-field. When the warriors were frustrated about the bringing of the (life-saving) medicinal shrub (plant) then the enraged Hanuman said. (579)

" O Ram ji ! If you were to pat my back (support me with your blessings) then what to talk of this shrub, I could snatch away even nectar from the gods in heaven and bring it. (580)

Saying these words, Hanuman flew away and was mingled with the skies above. Then Ram became hopeful about the survival of Lachhman. (and his life). (581)

Whosoever tried to confront Hanuman, was killed ; there was a huge octopus in the pond, who was also killed by Hanuman. (582)

One demon, in the guise of an ascetic (mum) was also torn apart and killed by Hanuman. On going further, he found many shrubs which were all similar to each other.` (583)

On finding all similar shrubs, the mighty warriors Hanuman wondered and thought for a while as to which shrub he should take with him, so he managed to bring the whole hill (mountain) and brought the shrub with him. (584)

Hanuman then came back, alongwith the hill, to the place where Ram was seated in the battle-field and his brother was lying unconscious there. He (Lachhman) was administered the medicinal plant, which survived Lachhman and he became fully conscious. (585)

With the recovery of (survival) of Lachhman, all other warriors also became fully active, and the fairies also started (flying) moving around in the sky. Trumpets were also sounded and the beating of drums was resumed. (586)

The arrows were again being shot and the warriors got engrossed in the war. The warriors, lying on the ground, became martyrs in the battle. (587)

Kalas :

The mighty warriors were locked up in fighting one another. The ghosts, evil-spirits and goblins were dancing in the battle-field. Many swords (millions of) were being wielded, which were shining with sparks, while the white edges of swords were producing sparkles. (588)

Tribhang Chhand

The white edges of the swords were sparkling and this assumes the beauty of a warring nature, with the pointed end looking glamorous, with a splendour, and about to destroy the enemy with a successful onslaught. This would indicate victory in battle, and was casting a spell, with the red coloured blood, showing signs of victory. This would destroy the forces of demons giving a convincing victory (to forces of virtuous nature) putting an end to sinful actions and fear (of demons). (589)

Due to uproarious scenes, the warriors were running away in the battle-field. The bodies laden with protective iron coverings (coats of mail) were also trembling (with fear). The drums were beating louder than before and the fairies were roaming around to locate the warriors (dead). (590)

Tribhangi Chhand

The battlefield was filled with the roaming fairies, as if the sky was overcast (with clouds) causing its shadow. The fairies were getting enamoured with the sight of these warriors, and they were covered with red-coloured robes. (with blood), and their beauty was examplary. (un Comparable) and their bodies appeared as fountains of beauty and charm.The beautiful (red) coloured robes were enhancing their beauty (of body) and even the god of love and most beautiful (bewitching), burning away the wickedness of mind, being wedded to most smart spouses and a fountain of intelligence (common sense). (591)

Kalas :

They had lotus-like faces (appearance), with sharp eyes like the arrows, and beautiful like the deer–eyes. They were a personification of beauty, with their speech as Sweet as the song of a Koel (bird). They had their sleek waist like that of a tiger having a gait like that of an elephant, and their charming eyes could enamour anyone's heart. (592)

Tribhangi Chhand

They had the beautiful deer-like eyes, with the speech as sweet as that of Koel, which could entice the heart, having the gait of an elephant. With sweet tongue, having a face as beautiful as the moon, and having a sharpened mind, full of common sense, cutting across the evil-minded behaviour, with a splendour of the god of love. They had robes of beautiful colour on the body and were having the tinkling bells on their feet like the juggler and walking upright. They were embellished with ornaments like nose-rings, bangles and ankle-Tips, with curly hair as their necklace. (593)

Tribhangi Chhand

The curly hairs were appearing glorious while the tongues were tasting nicely. The anklets and bangles were worn with glory and splendour, while the necklaces of rubies were looking glamorous round the necks. The beautiful eyes were looking glorious, which had been made beautiful with collyrium and antimony. The eyes were sharp like that of the snake, which were agile like that of the deer and blooming like the lotus flower, while the faces were shining like the moon. (595)

Kalas :

The foolish Ravana was very furious with rage, when the battle was raging fiercely. All the mighty warriors were killed. Then he raised a loud war cry in the enemy camp. (596)

Tribhangi Chhand

The evil-minded Ravana, getting enraged, then advanced forward, while many mighty warriors obstructed his advance. He was shooting arrows at them, and fought bravely. The (mutilaed) trunks were seen jumping, and Ravana shouted loudly while stretching his bow. On both sides various princes were running about and challenging each other, were inflicting wounds on the enemy with great furry. Their bodies had many wounds on them and they would not retrace their steps. They were roaring while standing fast in their positions as if the clouds were thundering. (597)

The warriors were engrossed in bitter fighting with great wrathfulness. Most of them had lost their helmets and even the coats of mail. (protective covers). The arrows shot by the warriors were piercing the bodies of the enemy troops, just as a felcon swoops on pieces of meat. (598)

Tribhangi Chhand

As soon as the arrows were being shot, the warriors would get engrossed in the battle, and their protective coats of mail were being broken. Just as carnivorous beings would swoop on their kill (Shikar) like a hungry being, in the same manner the warriors were attacking the enemy,tossing their weapos, and they would not retract even on being obstructed. The warriors were confronting the enemy with courage and would not retrace their steps against opposition (or run away). The gods, on pireceiving the battle scene, were hailing the victory (of Ram), by showering flowers on them and shouting praises (for them) in the battle-field.(599)

Kalas

The person, having (chewing) a beatle nut in the mouth, with a red –coloured face, was to be seen moving around the battle-field fearlessly, who had applied sandal wood, camphor, or saffron (on the body), was having a sun like appearance, and was having a high position. (600)

Tribhangi Chhand

The beautiful body (of Ravana) was looking glorious ; even the god of love was feeling jealous (ashamed) of the beauty of his each limb by seeing it with his eyes ; the black tresses of his hair were looking gracious. His tongue was speaking sweet language, and his face was spreading splendour with its aroma, as if the Sun was shining in all its glory. The face was looking glorious just like the moon light manifesting its light all around. Even the eyes were looking keenly watching the beauty of his radiant face (form). Both the gods and demons in the heavens were getting enamoured by perceiving his brilliance. (601)

Ravana was holding chandarhas (weapon) in one hand, in the second a bayonet, and a dagger in the third hand while a sword was shining in the fourth hand. There was a hidden dagger in the fifth hand, while there was a mace as looking glorious in his sixth hand. (602)

A grand Sword was held in the seventh hand, and in the eighth hand there was a huge club ; there was a trident in the ninth hand whereas in the tenth hand he was holding a chopper, in the eleventh hand was a swivel, and an arrow in the twelveth hand. With the thirteenth hand a bow was stretched while in the fourteenth hand there was a broad shield in the fifteenth hand there was a catapult, while in the sixteenth hand there was an invaluable noose, and in the seventeenth hand a strong sickle, whereas in the eighteenth hand there was hold a gun. In the nineteenth hand a scorpio type ring was shining and in the twentieth hand he was revolving (moving) a strap. So the huge Ravana was moving around like a horrible looking angel of death in the battle-field. (603)

Kalas :

With one tongue (face), Ravana was reciting the name of Shiva, while with the second face he was watching the beauty of Sita ; with the third face he was shouting to his group of warriors for facing a challenge and with the fourth he was shouting to kill the enemy. (604)

Tribhangi Chhand

The fifth face was getting restless by seeing the most powerful and mighty figure of Hanuman, whereas with the sixth face he was watching his younger brother Vibhushan, whom he was trying to kill but without getting a proper chance, which made him peevish within himself. With the seventh face he was perceiving Ram Chander, who was standing in the company of the king of the monkeys, Sugriv, alongwith dreadful warriors and his brother Lachhman. The eighteth head (face) was shaking in gloom while with the ninth he was trying to squeeze his warriors into the battle, while with the tenth face he was shouting with a revengeful mood (with rage). Choubola Chhand

The mighty warriors were running around, with white arrows in the bows (stretched), wearing the battle dress and were looking glorious with all their embellishments (of weapons). The Lord had been for gotten completely, as the battle was raging with such a fury, just as a crocodile rushes forward in the night. Then he shouted at some one, " Fight it out (to death) by occupying this position." When the warriors were fighting (among themselves) then he would kill them in rage, whereas some warriors were fleeing from the battle field. Some were having poppy, while some others were having sweetened milk with (thickened), and were talking like this ; "Where was the king (master) of this army ? Let us have a look at him for a change ? " (606)

The mighty warriors were thundering, while the fairies were moving around the battle field. While moving around, dressed in their beautiful robes, the fairies had covered up the whole sky, who were addressing the warriors like this. 'O Master ! Are you feeling all right ? May you live long for ages ! I would sacrifice (my all) myself on you. O King ! I would like to accompany you. O King ! I would like to accompany you. Please marry me ! whom else should I select leaving a stubborn warrior like you ? Please, come and marry me ! I would like to enjoy life alongwith you. Let us go to the heavens (god's place), leaving this land of Lanka at the earliest. " (607)

anant tuka Swaiyya :

The demon (Ravana) furious with rage, and losing all his senses, attacked Sri Ram again, but Sri Ram by shooting an arrow with great zeal, blocked Ravana 's arrow mid-way and cut it into two pieces. Then Ravana, getting furious with rage, rushed and attacked suddenly the army of monkeys, killing them mostly. He had a strap, sword, chopper, spears, plier type weapons, and a dagger in his hands, so he was making use of all the weapons. (608)

Choubola Swaiyya :-

Then Ram, getting infuriated, holding his bow in hand, shot many arrows on the warriors, which pierced their bodies and passing through them came out on the other side, as if hailstroms were falling suddenly from the sky. The horses, elephants and chariots were lying fallen on the ground, alongwith their gear. No one could count upon the number of times, the arrows were being shot. It appeared as if the leaves were falling from the trees due to the strong winds of (phalgan) February/Mar.(609)

Swaiyya Chhand :-

Sri Ram, furious with rage, shot many arrows in the battle field, pointing at Ravana, which pierced through his protective cover of iron, while touching his ears slightly ; just as hail storms were pouring from the sky. The horses, elephants, chariots and the riders of grand chariots, having been killed, had fallen on the ground, as if during the spring season (Basant) end, strong winds had blown off the cluster of bananas from their roots. (610)

The monkeys attacked with vengeance ,as they had been enraged to a great extent, and swooped on the enemy screching and making noisy scenes. Not even a single warrior had fled away from the battle-field. From the opposite side, Ravana's forces also launched a fierce attack with arrows and bows, maces and spears. The warriors, while fighting valiantly in the battle-field, had fallen on the ground, on seeing them even Brahma felt disillusioned and Shiva was shsken from his meditation. (611)

The bodies of wounded warriors, fallen on the ground, were looking dreadful due to their wounds. So the jackals, vultures, ghosts and evil-spirits were feeling delighted and making merry in the battle field. On seeing the battle scene, all the sides were shaken up and the caretakers (gate keepers) had imagined that doomsday had been ushered in. Both the Earth and the sky were feeling gloomy and all the gods and demons felt frightened with fear. (612)

Ravana was full of rage in the battle-field and started shooting arrows continously in wrathfulness, which blocked all the four directions including the Earth, sky and all the sides, and nothing was visible then. But Sri Ram, taking up his bow in hand with great rage, made all the arrows useless in a moment, as if on the sun rise, all the stars shining during the night had disappeared on seeing the sun. (613)

Then with great (rage) fury Sri Ram, taking up his bow, shot countless arrows in the battle field which struck many horses, elephants, and their riders and chariots, and blew them off. Infact, Ram had revealed all the afflictions on the battle-field, which he had suffered on his body, due to Sita's separation. The lotus-eyed Ram had fought with vengeance, and having killed many warriors, had destroyed their family lives. (houses). (614)

On seeing the enraged Rawana thundering in the battle field, the whole army of monkeys had fled away. Then, giving a direct challenge and wielding his weapons, the mighty Rawana started fighting against Ram himself. By striking his horses with a whip and making them run fast, without having any personal fear, he rushed to the battle-field. (in person). Ram had wounded his (Rawana's) horses with his endless arrows which made them run away (so fast) from the battle field, which would excel even the (speed of) chariot of wind. (615)

When the arrows were leaving the bow of Ram (in his hand), they were flying off so fast that they would spread all over including the Earth, sky the netherlands and all the four directions, and were difficult to distinguish (locate). The arrows had (pierced) broken the bodies and protective covering of the warriors and were passing through them, before they could take a sigh of pain (with fear). The arrows, after striking the helmets (of enemy) and piercing through them, were falling on the lofts of the fort, which were recognised by Sita.(616)

Whosever was struck by one arrow of Sri Ram (whose body tasted the arrow), that warrior could neither run away from the battle field nor could he fight vigorously, rather he would fall down on the ground with one strike only. Sri Ram's arrows were piercing through the helmets of millions of warriors, after breaking their protective covers (coats of mail) and millions of horse riders had fallen down on the ground being finally tired but none of them heaved a sigh of pain or frustration. (617)

All the warriors, who had dared to fight against Ram, had been killed, and only those warriors had been spared, who managed to flee away from the battle-field. However, the geat Ravana, winner of both the gods and demons, had killed millions of enemy troops, but it had not affected them even a bit (worth one man's death). Seeing the powerful onslaughts of Ram, all the demons were demoralised, and leaving their posts, jumping over their trenches, they had fled away to the other side of the sea. (618)

Ravana, getting enraged, started wielding all the weapons held in his twenty arms, which blocked all the sides, four directions including the Earth and the sky and nothing remained visible. But Ram had, with the metallic portion of the arrows, broken Ravana's arrows on mid way only and thrown them down (making them ineffective). Even all the canopy, mace, great horses, chariot and charioteer had been killed by Ram, thus forcing Ravana to step down on the ground. (619)

When Ravana saw his chariot without horses, then getting frustrated, he marched (on foot) with a stubborn face and started fighting against Ram holding his shield, trident, mace, and spear etc. alongwith the protective coats of iron. Ravana was challenging Ram, unaffected by the flock of monkeys around him, but Ram was surrounded by many warriors including Angad, Hanuman and others whereas Ravana did not bother about them even. When Ram Chander sew Ravana in the battle field, advancing towards him, be took up twenty sharpened arrows in his hand, and getting infuriated, he shot all of them with great force. Those arrows had pierced through the delicate portion of his body and being soaked in blood, appeared as if the arrows had been washed in blood-bath (in a sea of blood) but the stubborn and mighty Ravana was creeping forward only and did not even for a moment think of retreating. (going back home). (621)

Now the episode of (giving) spiritual knowledge to Madedri, anuointing Vibhushan as king of Lanka, and Reurion with Sita begins.

Swaiyya Chhand

Ram Chander had fought bravely against a person, (Ravana) from whose fear even Indra (god) was distressed, even the Sun and moon were feeling frightened, who had looted and usurped the wealth of Kuber, and even Brahma was always worried about his power (and was never free from his worry) against whom many kings like Indra had fought but in vain and never returned alive, and Ram had gained victory against him, thus winning Sita in the Swamvar of war. (once again). (623)

Alka Chhand

Very soon, everyone was worried about one's own safety, as such the whole army of demons had fled away, since they had realised immediately that king Ravana had been killed in the battle. Thus the restless warriors had (run) away from the battle-field and forgot about the fairies in no time. (624)

Very soon there was an uproar and tumultuous atmosphere in Lanka and all the warriors carrying bows had run away from the battle field. Ravana was lying on ground, with tears in his eyes, and was mumbling something with his body having sighs of pain. (and defeat). (625)

Parshotam Ram said that Ravana should be killed and his arms should be cut off immediately. The warriors, saving their skin, had fled away from Lanka. There was confusion confounded all around as such some warriors were shooting arrows even now. (626)

That very moment, all the queens, weeping, crying and wailing, with their hair dishevelled, came running there and all of them fell at the feet of Ram, thus having a glimpse of the great person, Ram. (627)

They were rolling on that land, terror-stricken all around, and the wives of demons were crying loudly. They were splitting their hair, scattered around and were wailing like a traveller, who had been robbed of all his belongings, and their scene of wailing was resembling the juggler's drama. (like Sidh-hasat). (628)

They were tearing off their beautiful robes, in a rough and insane menner, while throwing dust on their heads and would be rolling on the ground at times, and were roaming around completely bewildered, while splitting their hair in distress.(629)

Rasaval Chhand

When they saw Ram in person, they realised his magnificent personailty, and all of them bowed to him paying their obeisance. (630)

They were all enticed by Ram;s beauty, and throughout Lanka Ram was declared as the victor, with people crying for his money. Ram had handed over the kingdom of Lanka to Vibhushan just as a king would give a small coin in alms. (631)

Ram became very kind and benevolent and seeing the plight of the queens, his eyes were downcast with mercy and tears were flowing from his eyes just like the torrents of rain, falling from the clouds. (632)

On perceiving Ram, all the women folk were delighted and were enamoured with his love (pierced by the arrows of love) and they were so impressed by his appearance, that they were completely enamoured by him, whereas Ram was looking like a figure of righteousness. (633)

The queen have forgotten the love of their master, as Ram has enamoured them completely. So they are closing their eyes and speaking some romantic language. (634)

Ram Chander was very nice, a personality which could win over any heart (like a necklace of heart), and impress one's heart (steal one's heart) just as a thief takes away one's wealth after stealing. (635)

So Mandodri spoke to other queens like this : "All of you should go to Ram and bow to him in obeisance, and forget sbout the enmity of your spouses for him." Hearing this, all the queens (women) rushed to Ram and paid their respects to him. (636)

They found Ram most beautiful and having a magnificent personality, and one who had won everyone's heart. (stolen their hearts). The beauty of Ram had impressed them so much, just as an arrow pierces through the body. (Ram Chander pierced their hearts). (637)

Ram Chander appeared to have a golden appearance and a King of Kings. His form (appearance) had enamoured all the eyes (Ram was the cenosure of all eyes) and this had delighted the gods in heaven also. (638)

All of them were very happy and pleased on perceiving Ram's beauty, and they had forgotten their families even. (homes). They were given a sermon of spiritual knowledge by Ram Chander, who was a great warrior in the battle field. (640)

"O royal queen! Listen to me! What is my fault in this whole episode?" First of all you should consider this whole thing calmly in your mind and then only fix the blame on anyone. (641)

" Now I should get back my Sita, so that a righteous programme (life) could be followed." After saying this, Ram sent Hanuman to bring Sita along with him, who was his main emissary. (642)

Then Ram told to Mandedri

Rasaval Chhand

Hanuman went away speedily and finding out her where abouts, he went to the place, where Sita was sitting under the shade of a tree in the garden. (643)

Hanuman went to Sita and bowed to her and said, "O Mother Sita! Listen to me! Ram has killed (Ravana) the enemy, and he is waiting at your door step.(644)

O Mother Sita ! Let us go quickly to the place, where Ram has won the battle. All the enemies have been killed, thus reducing the lord of the Earth. (645)

Sita, was much delighted and accompained Hanuman ; who brought her alongwith him to Ram's place. Then Sita saw Ram, and found him in the same radiant form as before. (646)

Sita came and bowed at Ram's feet ; when king Ram saw her and said," O sweet tongued lady with the speech of a Koel! " Tell me, how to test the purity (chastity) of your person ? " (647)

" You should enter a fire place, so that you may be purified, and Sita promptly agreed to undergo this test without any hesitation. So a fire was lit at a fire-place immediately. (648)

As the flame of fire went up, Sita walked into the fire, just as lightning hides itself in the clouds ; or just as Gita is mingled with the Vedas ; in the same manner Sita, the virtuous and pure Sita, went into the fire-place. (649)

Without any hesitation Sita had entered the fire-place, and the goddess of heat brought her out, completely purified like gold. Then Ram hugged her and embraced her. Because of this purified and chaste character, the poets have sung Sita's praises often. (650)

All the seers then accepted this fire-test as authentic, and this whole incident was known and accepted in all the three worlds. When the trumpets of victory were sounded, Ram started (dancing), and roaring. (651)

Thus Sita was won back, who was considered as praise-worthy. All the gods were delighted, and showered flowers on her. (652)

Here the Chapter of Vibhushan being annointed king of Lanka, giving spiritual knowledge to Mandedri and the reunion of Sita, of the episode of Bachittar Natak Granth is completed.

" Where was the rose-cheeked Ram who had forsaken his hundreds of comforts just to please and satisfy his mother Kaikaiee, and whom the mother was keenly waiting to meet saying,where was his lovely Ram ?" (668)

Here the Chapter dealing with the return of Ram, an incarnation of god, to Aoudhya is completed.

Now the episode of Mother's reunion commences.

Rasaval Chhand

When the residents of Aoudhya heard the news of Ram's home coming, all of them rushed forward to have a glimpse of Ram, and paid their obeisance to him, and the King Ram also met all of them. (669)

Some body would move the fly whisk over Ram's head, and someone was offering betel nut to Ram, Sri Ram bowed in reverence to his mother, and the mother hugged him and embracced him. (670)

Both the mother and son were shedding tears on meeting each other, as if they were washing away the agony of their hearts. Then the warrior of the battle, Sri Ram, started relating his story and the mother was listening with rapt attention. (671)

Then Lachhman also met the mother, and the brothers bowed to him. Then the mother, Sumitra gave so much wealth in alms, which could not be recounted.(672)

Then Ram met the mother Kaikaiee, and related to her the whole story and said, "O mother ! I should thank you for having enabled me to pay off my debt to my father." (673)

" There was no fault of yours (mother), as it was in store for me as per my destiny and whatever was destined for me, had come to pass. Nobody could say anything about its causes." (674)

After giving this sermon to mother Kaikaiee, Ram met his brother. Bharat, on hearing this news, rushed to meet Ram, and placed his head at Ram's feet. (675)

Then Ram took Bharat into his embrace, and Bharat's anxiety and heart's doubts were set aside. Then Shatrugan came and met him, who was an expert exponent of weapons. (676)

Then Shatrugan, with the tresses of his hair, wiped Ram's feet (the dust of). Then the Kings worshipped Ram and later, the brahmins performed recitation of sermons. (677)

All the prople were singing songs of joy and happiness. All the warriors were filled with the pride of bravery. Then the kingdom (rule of) was handed over to Ram, and all the formalities were completed. (678)

Then the brahmins were sent for, who recited the Vedas. So songs of victory were sung on the assumption of the rule of the kingdom by Ram. (679)

Bhujang Prayat Chhand

All the great Kings from the four corners (sides) were invited, who all came to Aoudhya fully armed with their coats of mail. All of them, out of love and affection, paid their obeisance to Ram, All the kings from all over met Sri Ram alongwith their valuable offerings. (680)

The Kings offered valuables from China and other foreign lands, which included beautiful maids with brilliant hair, various jevels, rubies, diamonds and robes. If someone were to carry out research into these valuables, it would be found only one of its kind. (without any parallel). (681)

Some kings had offered jewels, rubies, and pearls and great horses, elephants decorated with various ornaments and grandeur in countless numbers. Some of them had offered robes studded with diamonds, and many chariots loaded with pearls and rubies in bunches. (682)

Some kings had offered the White Airavat elephants, who were embellished with valuable strings of pearls. Some one had offered horses decorated with golden saddles, who could trot (dance) like a juggler, as if they were dressed up for battle. (683)

Some Kings had offered royal (type) elephants decorated with (saddle) gear and some had brought great horses from Shiraz as offerings. Some others offered gems of various colours including red, blue and many other colours, and saw Sri Ram armed with various weapons and protective covers. (coats of iron). (684)

Some other kings met Ram alongwith their offerings of golden coloured woollen and silken robes, and varied ornaments. Some others had sent beautiful and sun-like shining robes of silk for Sita in the palace, which were invaluable. (685)

Some others had brought invaluable ornaments with the radiance of Sun for Sita, alongwith ornaments for the mothers of Ram, which were looking magnificent beyond description. (686)

The greatness of Ram was acclaimed all over the four directions (the world) and Sita was also looking gracious like a blooming garden. Sri Ram sent back all the kings acknowledging their greetings with offerings of canopies (royal positions). The pride of various kings was thus set aside, and great festivities and felicitations with rejoicings were (conducted) celebrated. (687)

Thus Ram assumed the king ship and sometime elapsed like this and the suzeronity of Ram was established over all other kings. As a sign of his victory (superiority of Ram) over others, a white canopy was flying over his head, and the ordains of Ram were being followed by all other warriors. (688)

Each one of them was given various robes of honour. All the people had realised the true value (position) of Ram that Ram was the only incarnation of Vishnu, who could destroy the flock of demons. He was known throughout the four directions (the world) as the Lord of Sita. (689)

So Sri Ram was acclaimed as the incarnation of Vishnu, and everyone recognized him as the (established) creator of the world. The fact was known all over the four directions that Sri Ram had manifested himself as the creator of the Universe, and the King emperor. (690)

Ram was acclaimed as an embodiment of Yoga by all the yogis ; the gods accepted him as the greatest god and the Kings accepted him as the king-emperor. The enemies took him as the greatest enemy, and the asetics took him as the greatest ascetic. Beauty had taken him as a personification of beauty (magnificence), whereas the afflictions took him as the greatest suffering. (691)

The women folk accepted him as a god, whereas the men took him as the greatest King. the warriors had taken him as a great warrior, and the mighty persons have accepted him as the most powerful person. The Vedas had taken hum as the creator of Vedas (Brahma), while the Shiva's musicians took him for Shiva's ; the Yogis took him as a great Yogi, and the kings took him as the greatest king. (692)

The Salvation had taken hum as a personification of Salvation, while Sidhas took him as a form of Shiva ; the intelligence had accepted him as bestower of intelligence while Ridhis (occult power) had taken him as the fountain of occult powers. Whatever way anyone thought about him, saw him in the same form. (693)

The weapon wielders had known Ram as having full knowledge of the weapons. The demons had realised him as a destroyer of their very lives. The way anybody had thought about Ram, he had visualised and seen him in the same form, with assuming same appearance as imagined by him. (694)

Anant Tuka Bhujang prayat Chhand

Sri Ram had ruled for some time, having assumed the kingship and had won over many enemies of brave type, and Ram's suzeranity was accepted on all the four sides and Ram was known as the king emperor. (695)

Bhujang prayat Chhand

All the great brahmins including Agast, Bhrign, Angra, Vyas, Vashishat, Vishwa Mittar, Balmik, Atri, Durbasha, and Kashap etc. had come to meet Ram. (696)

When Ram saw that all the brahmins had come there, then Sita and the King of the world, Sri Ram Chander rushed to pay their obeisance to all of them. Then requesting them to occupy their seats, Ram took the ambrosia of their feet (water with which their feet were washed), then the brahmins (Munis) bestowed their blessings on him. (697)

Ram and the Rishis had long discourses of spiritual knowledge between them. If I were to describe that then it would amount to another big granth (voluminous). Then Ram sent them away by offering huge amounts as donation to them (alms). Then they went away to different lands fully satisfied and greatly pleased. (698)

That time one Brahmin came to Ram, whose son had died and he said, "O Ram ! Either you make my son alive to-day itself or I will hurl a curse on you, since the sons are dying while the parents are still alive." Ram fully understood his talk and sent for a space craft from the west. (699)

(The reasons for this war). In the north direction, there lived a (Sudra) scheduled caste, who had hung himself in a well (facing) upside down. He was performing great penance and was a glorious person. Sri Ram had himself killed him (with his hands) with a sword. (700)

The brahmin's son came to life as soon as that shudra died, and the brahmin's gloom was over. This (incident) resulted in spreading the flame of Ram throughout (in all the four directions) for ten thousand years Ram ruled over Aoudhya and Ram was acclaimed in all the four directions. (701)

Ram had gained victory over all the kings in all the ten directions, and in the three worlds. Ram was known as the victor and the greatest warrior in the world. He had appointed his brother, Bharat, as his prime-minister and Lachhman was given the post of army commander. (702)

Miratgat Chhand

Sri Ram was a great Rishi with a superb intelligence, and the splendour of his power was being acclaimed in each and every home, and the songs in his praise were being sung throughout in each house including the heavens. (god's abode). (703)

Sri Ram possessed a beautiful and smart personality and all the kings and Muni's (scholars) were bowing to him (in worship). People had realised Ram's greatness including the mountains, as their only support and mainstay, as he had bestowed all the comforts on the populace and divested them of all sufferings. (704)

Sri Ram was acclaimed by all the persons as the destroyer of enemies and a harbinger of peace and comforts, having cast away their afflictions. All the good (virtuous) persons were worshipping Ram as the mainstay and support of Aoudhya Puri, as he was magnificent and fearless in his appearance. (705)

Anka Chhand

Sri Ram was known as the Lord (master) of all, free from the cycle of births and deaths, was invincible, and was fearless. (706)

He was free from rebirths, the greatest (male) person, an embodiment of the whole world, and the unconquerable Lord (of the world). (707)

Bhujang Prayat Chhand

Sri Ram sent for Shatrugan, the younger son of Sumitra, his fourth brother and appointed him as the king of Mathura. There lived a dreadful demon called Lavan, of great glory, whom Shiva had sent by giving him his own trident. (708)

The (winner) victor of all battles, and an embodiment of virtue, Ram had sent Shatrugan, giving him a magical arrow. He gave (clear) instructions to Shatrugan that he should engage the demon in battle when he was devoid of the Shiva's trident. (709)

Shatrugan, taking that arrow in hand, bowed to Ram and left. That arrow was shot in sneh a manner, as if the Shiva's trident had been wielded by Lavan (the demon). When Shatrugan found the enemy devoid of the Shiva's trident, he started a furious battle against him. (710)

Being wounded seriously many warriors had fled away, dreadful crows were very happy, while the fairies were moving around in the heaven. (sky). With the striking of arrows (from bows) the helmets were being broken into pieces. Great many canopied kings, getting furious with rage, were roaring in the battle-field. (711)

The demon Lavan was moving around the battle-field in great wrathfulness and Shatrugan shot that (magical) arrow, which Ram had given him personally for killing the enemy. So Shatrugan, after meditating on Durga, shot that arrow aiming it at his head. (712)

The demon, being wounded with that arrow fell down reeling on the ground and Shatrugan killed him with great zeal. All the gods were delighted and started showering flowers from the heaven, as their enemy and demon had been killed, and all their sufferings were over. (713)

Shatrugan had killed Lavan, the demon, in no time, so all the saints were delighted,but the enemies were greatly pained. All the demons, to save their lives, fled away and left their abodes in the town. Then Shatrugan, the king of Mathura, got settled there. (714)

Shatrugan became the king of Mathura, and he was known for wielding all types of weapons and a great scholar of Shastras. All the despots from that place had been eliminated. Then Shatrugan ruled that place so nicely as Ram was ruling over Aoudhya. (715)

It was known through out the world (the four directions) that Shatrugan had killed (the demon) Lavan. (716)

Now the episode of Sita's Exile begins

Bhujang prayat Chhand

The things were progressing well on that side, while on this side Sita had requested Ram to a nice garden built against which even the Nandan garden of Indra would appear (small) pale. (717)

When Ram learnt about Sita's desired garden, he got an elegant garden made which was studded with diamonds, pearls and rubies and looking gorgeous, before whose garden even the Khandav forest (of Indra) was feeling insignificant (pale). (718)

There were strings of diamonds and pearls looking gorgeous, as such the gods and goddesses took it as the second heaven. (on Earth). Then Ram alongwith Sita went to that garden and many beautiful royal maids were made to accompany Sita.(719)

Then he got a palace built in that place, and Ram, the embodiment of virtue, then stayed there for some time and enjoyed sensual and sexual pleasures with Sita. He performed various functions there, as required by the times. (720)

Then Sita became pregnant there, which was learnt by her maids also. Then Sita told Ram, O Lord ! I have stayed in this garden for long, now let me go from here. O beloved Ram! Listen and act accoridingly. Then Lachhman was made to accompany her and Sita was sent away. (721)

Lachhman left Sita at a place, where huge trees of shorea robusta and tamal, looking dreadful were grown, and he came back himself quickly. (722)

On perceiving the life less forest, Sita realised that Ram had sent her on exile. So she cried loudly and fell down unconscious, just as a warrior falls down in battle, on being struck by an arrow at a delicate position (of body). (723)

Sita's wailing was suddenly heard by Balmik's ears, who got bewilderedand leaving his hut left for that place. He brought Sita alongwith him to his hut and started reciting (meditating) the sermons (Vedas) with body, mind and action. (724)

Then Sita gave birth to a son, as if Ram had got reproduced from Sita another Ram. He had the same radiant appearance with, the same beautiful form, as if Ram had placed his own soul into another body. (725)

Balmik gave a (baby-cot) cradle to Sita for the child, which was shining like the moon and was resembling the sun in brilliance. One Day the Rishi had gone for his evening prayers, and the same time, Sita also went for having a bath and took the child alongwith her. (726)

When the Rishi opened his eyes from his meditation, after Sita had left, them seeing the cradle devoid of the child, the Rishi was too much disturbed. That very moment the Rishi took some kusha grass (Poa cynosuriodes) in his hand and Balmik made a child who resambled (the other child) him in colour, appearance, and size. (another copy of him). (727)

When Sita came back after bath, she was surprised to see another child in the cradle, having the same form and appearance (as her own child). So Sita felt that the great Rishi had, out of his benevolence, blessed her with another child. (728)

Here the chapter on the birth of two sons of Ram, an incarnation (of Vishnu) from the Bachittar Natak Granth is completed.

Now the episode of Yagna's commencement (fire-worship) begins.

Bhujang prayat Chhand

On one side Sita was bringing up the children, while on the other hand, the king of Aoudhya, Ram had sent for many brahmins for the Yagna and let loose a horse. Shatrugan was also sent, accompanying the horse who took lot of troops alongwith him. (729)

That horse moved through many lands belonging to other kings, but no one dared to tie up the horse. (stop the horse) rather all the kings came forward to welcome it. Many mighty archers, alongwith their armies, and other offerings, came and bowed to Shatrugan. (730)

After going around all the four directions the horse came back, and then went to the abode of Rishi Balmik. When Lav saw the golden plate on the horse's forehead and read the writings on it, then the warrior Lav, who was a great bowman (archer) was filled with the essence of lamentation (wailing) or Shiva's joy. (731)

He tied the horse to a tree. When the soldiers of Shatrugan saw this, they shouted loudly, O Child! Where are you taking the horse ? Either you set the horse free, or you will have to wage war against us." (732)

When the warrior heard the mention of battle with his ears, and saw the soldiers armed with weapons, and other protective covers (coats of mail) and who were great warriors and seeing them prepared for war, then Lav shouted loudly challenging them (for a battle) and rushed (forced) inside the troops. (733)

He challenged the army (of Shatrugan) loudly and killed many warriors, and the ground was littered with bodies falling down ; while fire was bursting out of the weapons of the warriors. Many were rolling on the ground devoid of weapons and helmets whereas many warriors with arrows pierced were roaming around. (734)

The corpses were lying huddled together, and countless horses were lying dead there. Many elephants and horses devoid of their riders were moving around, and many warriors devoid of their weapons, were lying unconscious on the ground. The ghosts and evil-spirits were laughing in the battle-field and fairies were moving around in the sky. (735)

Drums were beating vigorously like the thundering clouds while persevering warriors were quarrelling among themselves. Fire flames were seen coming out of the weapons being wielded, and painted arrows were being shot. Many strange powerful warriors, filled with the keen desire and joy of fighting in the battle, were seen moving around. (736)

Chachri Chhand

One soldier took up a sword, showed it (to others). Then wielded it here and there, and then struck it. (737)

Another soldier, wielded the Sword in his hand, showed it to the enemy, then made them tremble and gave them a taste of its working (by striking them). (738)

Someone had struck the daggers at the main (life-giving) artery. (739)

From the other side also, there were shouts of challenge and then daggers were used (in attack). (740)

Some warriors were holding spears, showed them to the enemy and then struck the enemy. (741)

Lav and Kush then shot many arrows by challenging the enemy and frightened the enemy, striking the warriors aimed at. (742)

Here the chapter on holding (tying) the horse by Lav and Shatrugan's death is completed.

Now the episode on battle of Lachhman begins.

Anka Chhand

When the arrows of Lav and Kush struck them, all the warriors of Ram fled away. Their army commanders were killed and many had fled away. (743)

Many warriors, leaving their horses, had fled away and wailing and crying they complained to Ram and were ashamed of themselves and could not face him.(744)

" O Ram ! Lav had killed all the enemies, and your army had been defeated." Two youths had gained victory, and they are not afraid of you." (745)

Sai Ram then sent Lachhman, and asked him to take a large number of troops with him, but do not kill the children, and bring them to show me. (746)

Lachhman listened to Sri Ram, and organised his army, and left. That time the whole world including land and oceans shuddered. (747)

The movement of troops raised such a huge dust storm which spread in the skyward, thus creating a scene of cloudy day. The warriors had arrived from all the four directions, and were uttering (Har, Har) Hari's name (in surprise). (748)

The arrows were being shot, and the warriors (youth) who were struck, were shaken up, the flags were flying, while the warriors were locked up in fighting. (749)

The warriors were laughing and approaching the children and were shouting loudly, "O youths (children)! Listen, and leave your obstinate posture! (750)

Couplet

Lav and Kush replied, " O Prince Lachhman! Listen, we will never hand over the horse ; you may try as hard as you like and you could engage us in battle, if you so desire !" (751)

Anka Chhand

On hearing this, Lachhman thundered, and took up his great bow in hand and shot many arrows, just as hail stones were being hurled from the clouds. (752)

On the other hand, the gods were watching all this and were all praise for them. The arrows were being shot, which were cutting the flesh off the bodies of the warriors bit by bit. (753)

The mighty warriors were roaring and the drums were beating loudly, while the arrows were being shot with great zeal and the warriors are not deviated from the battle. (754)

Then Lachhman told the youths :

Anka Chhand

" O boys, listen to me ! Do not engage yourself in battle and make compromise with us by handing over the horse. You do not have the strength to fight (against us)." (755)

" Try to avoid confrontation and try to make a compromise by casting away your stubbornness. Try to meet me, and you should not have any fear (from me)." (756)

But the youths did not agree to Lachhman's talk (suggestion). They were great proud persons having self-respect and were roaring, holding their bows and would not retrace even one step from the battle front. (757)

Ajba Chhand

Both the brothers were engaged in battle, and were shooting arrows in a shower, and were fighting it out with arrows only. In fact, there was a test for warriors. (758)

Many warriors had fallen down on the ground in the battle-field with many mutilated into two pieces or with limbs cut off but the battle was going on. (759)

The warriors were shooting arrows in a continuous stream and all of them were furious with rage. Lav had killed many enemy troops, who were looking dreadful in appearance. (760)

Many warriors had fallen down in the battle-field, while wounded soldiers were reeling, while many others were fed up of fighting, but were keenly engrossed in the battle. (761)

Apurab Chhand

There were countless soldiers, who had been killed. Many had died but many had fled away even. (762)

Almost all of them had run away, feeling ashamed of themselves (in heart), they were fleeing because of fear (of death) and had saved their skin by running away. (763)

All those, who ventured to come back for fighting, had been killed. Many of them had been wounded, and many soldiers had run away. (764)

The youth had won (the battle) as the warriors were frightened, as the boys had fought valiantly with fury. (765)

Both the brothers (Lav and Kush) were brandishing their swords, and the two youths were full of wrathfulness, and had proved themselves as great warriors. (766)

They were stretching their bows and shooting arrows and were engaged in battle with great zeal while the timid soldiers were fleeing away with fear. (767)

Many had their limbs cut off, while many soldiers were running away from the battle field, and all those who were engrossed in battle, had been mostly killed. (768)

Being desperate, the whole army had fled away, while Lachhman, a warrior with great perseverance, was moving around the battle field. (769)

In the meantime, the enemy (youths) had shot one arrow (by stretching the bow) aiming at Lachhman's fore head, and he fell down in the battle field in a moment. (770)

Here the chapter of Lachhman's death from the episode of the Incarnation of Ram in Bachittar Natak, is Completed.

Aruha Chhand

After having Lachhman being killed in battle, the whole army fled away out of fear. The timid warriors went to the place, where Ram Chander was standing. (771)

Now the episode of Bharat's battle begins.

When the warriors related the story of Lachhman's killing in the battle. Ram Chander was greatly shocked. Hearing the whole story, Sai Ram became dumb like a stone (with shock). (772)

Sri Ram then sat down to ponder over the whole issue,and said,

" O Bharat ! Now you go and do not kill the youths, who were ascetics (Muni). Only bring them alongwith yourself and show me those boys." (773)

Then Bharat, with an organised army of troops, marched towards the place, where the Youths had established a battle-front. They were killing the warriors in many ways and were shooting arrows in a continuous stream. (774)

Now Bharat, alongwith Sugriv, Vibhushan, Hanuman, Angad and Jamwant and such other army commanders and a huge army, marched towards the place to comfort these youths. (775)

On reaching the battle field, Bharat saw those two ascetic (Muni) youths, on whose heads, hairs were looking glorious like the crest out of the crow's wings and whose appearance had enamoured both the gods and demons equally. (776)

Then Bharat told Lav :
Akra Chhand

" O Muni Children (asetic youth) ! Give up your pride and meet me both of you. I will take you to Ram Chander, who will give you beautiful robes." (777)

On hearing Bharat's words, the youths were filled with egoism (pride) and stretched their bows, being enraged, and shot many arrows, as if hail stones were being hurled from the clouds in monsoon. (778)

Whosoever was struck by the arrows, would fall down facing downwards, and many warriors had their limbs Chopped off and at places fly whisks, protective iron covering and robes were lying fallen on the ground. (779)

At some places, the painted bows had fallen down, and some warriors with arrows pierced through the body were lying, and somewhere blood was seen oozing out of wounds inflicted on the body and somewhere a stream of blood was flowing.(780)

At places, the ghosts and evil-spirits were shouting, and at places the trunks (of human bodies) were jumping up asnd down, and at places demons were dancing, whereas at some places the evil-spirits were shrieking and spitting out fire. (781)

The warriors were getting wounded in the battle field. with their clothes soaked in blood, while some warriors were running away from the battle-field, whereas some others were coming to join in the fighting. (782)

There were some warriors, who were shooting arrows by pointing at the enemy. There were some, fleeing away from the battle-field who would not find place in the heaven even. (783)

Many elephants and horses had been killed and not even one was left alive. Then Vibhushan, the King of Lanka, came forward and started fighting against the youths. (784)

Bahora Chhand

Sri Ram's son (Lav) then pointing an arrow at Vibhushan's chest, shot the arrow, without any hesitation which struck Vibhushan and he fell down and sconsidering him unconscious, Lav did not kill him. (785)

Then Sugriv came forward and confronted him, and addressed him as such : "O Child ! Where are you going ? You cannot escape (from me), then Lav shot an arrow at his forehead, which struck him and he got confounded. (786)

Then the army of monkeys was greatly annoyed and became furious with rage and marched forward. It comprised of warriors like Nal Neel, Hanuman, and Angad. That time the youths fired three arrows at each one of them with great fury, pointing at their fore heads. (787)

All the warriors, who had gone to the battle field, were killed and only those warriors were left alive who had either fled away or who had become unconscious. Then the youths shot many arrows, pointing at various individuals and with great force, and killed the whole army of Sri Ram, without any doubt. (788)

On seeing the wrath fulness of the mighty warriors, the sons of Sri Ram had got enraged and they shot a stream of pointed arrows (with beautiful paintings) in the battle field. The sons of demons like Vibhushan were running away, while a dreadful battle was going on Both the youths were moving about in a circle, and many sighs of pain were heard (by the piercing arrows) from the enemy. (789)

Many wounded soldiers were moving around, and were shooting penetrating arrows. Many cowards had run away from the field while the warriors were roaring in the battle field. Many sharpened swords were being wielded and their white edges were shining brilliantly. Even warriors like angad, kesri, Hanuman, Sugriv etc. had fallen down. (unconscious). (790)

The demons had fallen (down) on the ground in the battle ground while the sons of demons were running away. The warriors, forgetful of their duty to the master, were running away saving their skin. Those soldiers, whose limbs were cut off, were running away haphazardly. The warrior, who was struck by an arrow, would be falling down in the battle-field. (791)

The warriors were falling on the ground, just as the trees get uprooted by a strong wind. They were covered with dust fully, and blood was being vomitted by some of them (from the mouth). The evil-spirits were shrieking in the sky, while on the ground the jackals (female) were moving around. The ghosts and demons were shouting loudly, while the evil-spirits were also roaming around. The main warriors were falling down on the ground in heaps like the mountains giving way. Their bodies were soaked in blood fully and one could hear dreadful and horrible sounds from the battle-field. A frightening sound from the fifes was being heard continuously. The white arrows were being shot continuously (in a stream), while wounded soldiers were roaming around (the battle field). (793)

On seeing Bharat on the battle-field, the warriors were getting panicky and fleeing away. The enraged warriors were irritated and started shooting arrows in a shower. The youths (Lav and Kush) then shot arrows pointing at the foreheads of the warriors with great fury, and then Bharat, the stubborn warrior fell down unconscious on the ground. (794)

Here the Chapter, dealing with the Killing of Bharat, of the Bachittar Natak is Completed. (dealing with Ram's Incarnation).

Anup Naraj Chhand

The warriors had fled away out of fear and left Bharat lying there on the ground. Some of them. faltering over the dead bodies, managed to get up and went upto Sri Ram crying and wailing. When Sita's Lord (Sri Ram) heard about the death of his brother, Bharat, then he also fell down on the ground with the painful news, with great shock. (795)

Then Sri Ram, by organising an army of mighty warriors, and furious with rage, with a view to punish the powerful enemy, leaving all worldly aspirations, marched personally to deal with the invincible youths. The trumpets were sounded like the thundering clouds with dreadful tunes. So Ram, having armed his warriors fully with weapons, left for killing the mighty warriors (youths). (796)

The evil-spirits were shrieking in the sky, while the jackals were moving around on the ground. The Carnivorous (animals) were eating the flesh and Durga was spitting fire from her mouth. Parbati (with truncated necklace) was seen honouring the heads of warriors and Shiva was dancing in the battle field. The ghosts were shouting loudly and evil-spirits raising loud cries (of war). (797)

Tilka Chhand

The the warriors got engrossed in the battle, and arrows were being shot, the limbs were being cut off, and the girths of horses were being broken. (798)

Whosoever was struck by the arrows was running away from the field. The virtuous Sri Ram was watching all this scene. (799)

The furious warriors were fighting vigorously and were saying, " O brave men ! Catch hold of these two youths immediately." (800)

Then they had come very near them and surrounded the two youths, while those two children looked like an embodiment of death. (801)

They were shooting arrows unhesitatingly, and the warriors were falling down (being hit) while even the persevering warriors were seen running away without looking back. (802)

Some of them had got their limbs maimed, while some of them had fallen down on the ground, while the faces of the warriors were soaked in blood. (803)

All of them, leaving behind the virtuous Sri Ram, were fleeing away and would not care to look back even. (804)

Some of the warriors, changing their robes, with dishevelled hair, leaving behind their weapons as an offering (for worship) were seen running away from the battle-field. (805)

The warriors were being killed on all sides (all around) and the battle raged for almost two pehars (six hours). The whole army was killed and Sri Ram was left all alone. (806)

Then the two brothers, Lav and Kish, who had fearlessly killed the three brothers (of Ram) alongwith the whole army, then challenged Sri Ram for the skirwish. (battle). (807)

They shoutrd, " O king of Koshal land (Sri Ram) Having got your whole army killed, where are you hiding ? Now come forward and confront us in battle yourself !(808)

Sri Ram, perceving the children having a similar appearance as himself, smile and said, " O Youths ! Who is your father ? And who is your mother ?" (809)

Hearing the name of queen Sita (being the sons of Sita) Ram had realised in his mind and had recognised them, but did not utter anything. (812)

He (Ram) had accepted them as his sons (in heart) and realized them as most powerful, but fought against them with stubbornness without saying anything verbally.(813)

Ram shot arrows with great force, but the youths were not defeated, and they were also shooting arrows with great force, stretching their bows. (814)

Lav and Lush had pierced each limb of Ram and had made Ram's body full of holes (pierced the whole body) and the army got an inkling that Sri Ram had also been killed. (815)

When Sri Ram was died, the whole army was defeated and fled away from the field in many ways, (any way they could make) before the two youths. (816)

The soldiers were not even looking back, forgetting Sri Ram completely, and were heading housewards straight away. This is how they fought the battle. (817)

Choupaiee :

Then both the youths had a look at the battle-field, as if it was the scene of Shiva's drama of jungle romance. (Rudra's drama), in which the beleagured army was like the trees, and the embellishments (ornaments) of the warriors were like flower or fruits. (818)

The persons, who were unconscious, were picked up by them, along with their horses, and brought to the place, where Sita was seated. When Sita saw the face of the swooned husband, she started crying and said, " O Children ! You have made me a widow. " (819)

Here the chapter on the killing of Ram of the Incarnation of Ram in the Bachittar Natak is completed.

Now the episode of Sita's making alive of all the warriors begins.

Sita told her sons,

Choupaiee :

Now bring me some wood, so that I could also burn myself alongwith my space (to ashes). Hearing the whole story, even great seer (Muni) Balmik wept bitterly, and said, " These children have spoiled our peace and comforts completely. " (820)

Arupa Chhand

When the queen Sita heard this heavenly sound, she asked for some water, which she took in her hands. (822)

Then Sita said to herself (in her mind)

Couplet :

If I have never accepted (in my mind) by mind, speech and action anybody else except Sri Ram as my spouse, then let all (dead) persons including Sri Ram be made alive (may come to life). Having said this, she sprinkled that water on the Earth. (land)." 823)

Arupa Chhand

That very moment all of them came back to life, and all doubts were cleared from everyone's mind. Leaving their doubts and misgivings, all fell at the feet of Sita. (824)

Then Sri Ram brought Sita back to his palace and accepted with all religious rites and moral principles, Sita as the world's queen and of a chaste character (pious character). (825)

Then she (Sita) appeared to Ram's heart, and he embraced her and accepted her as a chaste (virtuous) woman, and gave her full regard as his trusted wife. (826)

Choupaiee :

Ram gave enlightening knowledge to his sons by various means, and accompained by Sita, Sri Ram moved towards Aoudhya. Various beautiful robes were looking glorious on their persons, as if three Rams had been created, who were coming. (828)

Here the chapter of the coming alive of the three brothers (of Ram) alongwith the whole army, from the episode of Ram's incarnation in Bachittar Natak is completed.

Now the episode of Entry of Sita alongwith her two sons into Avadhpuri commences.

Choupaiee

All the three mothers hugged the grand-sons and both of them got clung to their feet. Then Sita came and fell at the feet of the mothers-in-law. Thus the time sufferings were over. (829)

Then Sri Ram. the King of Kaushal land, completed the Ashumeid Yagna without any interruption. Both the sons were roaming with splendour in the palace and they had come back home and foreign lands. (830)

All the types of Yagnas, as were essential as per customs and principles, were completed as per formal rites. When all the hundred Yagnas, except one were completed, Indra feet bewildered and ran away from there. (831)

About a dozen Rajsu Yagnas were performed, and twenty-one Asumedh Yagnas were completed, alongwith many Gomedh and Ajmedh Yagnas. Many other virtuous deeds were performed in the country. (832)

Then Sri Ram ruled over Aoudhya town for ten thousand and ten years, when his end came near. Then the god of death overtook Ram, and he left this world. (834)

Our salutations to the god of death, in many ways, which has overcome the whole world and gained victory over it. Everyone is overpowered by the death one day. Neither a king nor a panper has ever gained victory over the god of death. (835)

Couplet

Whosoever has taken refuge at the feet of that (Kaal) God of death, has been (saved) protected by the benign hands of the Lord. But none of the great seers like Krishna, Vishnu and Ram Chander have escaped the clutches of the god of death. (836)

Choupaiee

Ram had enjoyed all the grandeur and pleasures of the royal kingdom, having gained victory victory over other kings. He had followed all the four aspects of polotical power as per Vedas including refuge, value, punishment, and discrimination. (looking after individual safety, financial, action against crime and distinction between various sections). (837)

All the four Varnas (Brahmin, Kashatrya etc.) were made to follow their respective duties, and all the four Varnas were looked after. The Kashatriyas were seeming the brahmins, whereas Vaishas were considering the Kashatriyas as their superiors. (worthy of their worship). (838)

The shudras were serving all the others. They were following the same path as dictated by the others (three Varnas). Sri Ram was dicatating his ordains as per the rules or directives of the Vedas. (839)

Sri Ram had killed demons like Ravana by challenging him for battle, while helping all his disciples (dev out persons) towards salvation. Lanka was handed over (to Vibhushan) and established in peace. So Ram had ruled over the world in such a manner. (840)

Couplet

Sri Ram had ruled over the land for many years, having vanquished his enemies. Then Kaushalya (Ram's mother) having lived long (after breaking Brahmrandh), finally gave up her mortal life. (died). (841)

Choupaiee

The way various formal rites were required as per Vedic rites, were performed as in the case of any dead person. The family, where sons like Ram were born, had no problems or shortages to encounter. (842)

Sri Ram had performed various rites for the peace of the departed soul (mother) in many ways, and in the mean time Kaikaiee also died, and after some time Sumitra also died. Thus the god of death had performed various actions (as per Nature). (843)

One day Sita had drawn the figure of Ravana on the wall, as requested by some women folk, then Ram got furious with rage, and remarked like this. (844)

Ram thought to himself :-

" This lady (Sita) must have had some liking for Ravana, and that is why she had drawn his figure (painting) to see for herself (again). Hearing such words, Siota got furious and said, " O Lord ! You are blaming me for such a blemish (infamous deed) even now. (845)

Here the Chapter of Sita's departure from the world from the episode of Ram's Incarnation in Bachittar Natak is completed.

Now the Episode of the death of the three brothers alongwith their wives begins.

Choupaiee

The news had spread like wild fire in the whole town that Sri Ram had left this world for his heavenly abode. (mingled with the Lord), so no one had any some of his own whereabouts. The men and women folk were roaming around just as the warriors had fallen down due to fighting. (851)

There was a lot of confusion in the whole town, even elephants and horses had started falling down due to (their agitated mind) worry. Men and women were feeling glooming at the loss, and were wondering about Ram's dramatic death. (852)

After Sri Ram's death, Bharat also performed yogic meditation and emanated the yogic fire from his body and did not hesitate in joining Ram in heavens having broken the Brahm-rundar (having left the physical form). (853)

Then Lachhman also performed yogic-deeds and gave up his mortal life in the same manner. Then Shatrugan's also got his brahm-runder broken (left the mortal frame) and left his mortal body, joining Sri Ram in heavens. (854)

The Lav and Kush went there and performed the cremation ceremony of both Sri Ram and Sita, and then the cremation of the three brothers of their father. Then the rule of the kingdom passed on to Lav. (with a canopy flying over his head). (855)

There the three wives of these three brothers came there, and joined their spouses in heaven by performing Sati, (by burning themselves). The whole responsibility of the kingdom of Koshal land was passed on to Lav. Then the families of the three brothers ruled over the whole world. (856)

The Essence of Sri Guru Granth Sahib

This work involved me completely in the translation of Sri Guru Granth Sahib in English Prose and took me, to complete it, 10 years from 1990 to 2000. Infact this is the best part of my life, as the whole day was spent in studying and understanding each hymn and then writing its meaning first in Punjabi and then translating that Punjabi version into English Prose. The hymns of each page took two days to complete the job in English version, giving not the literal meanings, but the essence of each hymn, as understood by me. Of course, even a life time is not enough to deal with this subject, as Gurbani is too deap in its philosophy for any individual to really understand and then express it in a foreign language.

In fact, the Guru has clarified it by giving the final verdict by saying, as such human being has his limitations, but the effort is always rewarded.

"ਆਪ ਆਪਨੀ ਬੁਧ ਹੈ ਜੇਤੀ। ਬ੍ਰਣਤ ਭਿੰਨ ਭਿੰਨ ਤੈਹੋ ਤੇਤੀ।"

II. a) Philosophy of Sikh Gurus

i) This deals with the banis of Nitname, namely Jap Ji, Jaap Sahib, Sukhmani Sahib and Swaiyyais etc.

ii) This book is in two parts, the first part dealing with the meaning of the Gurbani and the second one giving its philosophy under ten headings.

b) The Four Pillars of Sikhism

There are four main pillars of Sikhism, namely Guru, Lord's will (Hukam) Sadh Sangat and Naam.

True Name is to be attained through the help and benevolence of the Guru. The Guru helps us to understand the meaning and purpose of human life, and then understanding Gurbani with its simple version and guidance through four main-supports.

c) The Eternal Bliss - It deals with the philoshphy of Anand Sahib by Guru Amar Das Ji. It helps us to understand the purpose and meaning of human life and understanding Sikh Philosophy with simple version of Gurbani and its guidance.

d) Amrit boond Suhavani (ਅੰਮ੍ਰਿਤ ਬੂੰਦ ਸੁਹਾਵਣੀ)

All the hymns of Guru Granth Sahib, with Rehaou (ਰਹਾਉ) are listed and explained fully in Punjabi language.

e) The Universal Message of Guru Granth Sahib. It deals with a simple explanation of the the philosophy of Sikhism and explained briefly with its meaning and objectives . All the hymns are listed. It is meant for those, who feel they have no time to read the full version or scope of the philosophy of Guru Granth Sahib. So in simple language, in few words it deals with the central idea of each hymn. in four volumes.

f) Zafarnama - Letter of Victory written by Guru Gobind Singh Ji to Aurangzeh at the end of hostilities. It froms of part of the present work (5th volume).

The job of translating Dasam Granth Sahib in English prose, with the original in Gurmukhi (Punjabi) alongwith the roman script for non-punjabi readers is not appreciated in some circles for certain reasons. But this job was entrusted to me by Baba Virsa Singh Ji of Gobind Sadan in 2002, and completed by me in 2005. Some how the work remained unpublished due to the sudden death of Baba Virsa Singh Ji. So I am totally indebted to Gobind Sadan for the work.

2. Since the work was lying incomplete for almost ten years, I thought of publishing this work based on an English version of the Punjabi version by Dr. Rattan Singh Jaggi & Mrs. Gursharan Kaur Jaggi with their blessings. Of course the Roman Script of the original was not in the original concept, which has been added now for obvious reasons.

3. Some people have reservations about the portions of the Granth dealing with "Pakhiyan Charitar", but Baba Vira Singh Ji always believed that this portion is completely dealt with by Guru Gobind Singh Ji and I am equally convinced with it. Different views have been expressed by different people. So I owe my gratitude to Dr. Rattan Singh Jaggi & Mrs. Gursharan Kaur Jaggi for this publication.

4. I am also indebted to Major Karnail Singh of Sector 34, Chandigarh who has been of great help to me and had always given me moral support in my efforts, as President of Gurdwara Sri Guru Tegh Bahadur, Sector 34, Chandigarh.

Introduction

The original granth, called Vidya Sagar, weighing about nine maunds, including the poetry of Guru Gobind Singh Ji and other learned poets, seems to have been destroyed in the devastating currents of Sarsa Reviulet while the Guru abandoned the Fort of Anandpur Sahib in 1704 and headed for Chamkaur Sahib alongwith 40 Sikhs only.

Then the first attempt to collect and combine the various remnants of different poetic versions of the Guru remaining safe with certain Sikh followers was made by Bhai Mani Singh, the first Sikh Granthi of Darbar Sahib, Amritsar in the form of a Pothi. About 50 years later on Bhai Deep Singh, Bhai Sukha Singh and some others made similar attempts to publish a version of Dasam Granth. Out of all these versions the most important are Bhai Mani Singh Beer, Topkhana Patiala Wali Beer (Moti Bagh Gurdwara) and Sri Patna Sahib Wali Beer. All these versions differ briefy in their contents due to various reasons. In 1897 Gurmat Pracharak Sabha Amritsar collected about 32 versions of this Granth. The various Banis (Poetic versions) constitute the Dasam Granth as follows :-

i) Jaap, ii) Akal Ustat, iii) Bachittar Natak, iv) Chandi Charitar-I, v) Chandi Charitar-II, vi) Vaar Sri Bhagouti Ji Ki (Vaar Durga), vii) Gyan Prabodh, viii) Choubis Avtar, ix) Other Avtars (Brahma, Rudar), x) Shabad Hazarai, xi) Swaiyyas, xii) Khalsa Mehma, xiii) Shastra Naam Mala, xiv) Charitar Pakhiyan and xv) Zafar Nama & (Haqaitan). In this report Giani Sardul Singh had clarified all the doubts about its authenticity. Then in 1902 Bhai Bishan Singh (of Sangrur) confirmed its author as Guru Gobind Singh based on certain facts and reasoning. Then in 1950 Dr. Trilochan Singh also confirmed 'Dasam Granth' as authored by the Guru himself.

Now in 1999 on the inauguration of 300th Birth Anniversary of Khalsa, Dr. Rattan Singh Jaggi and Dr. Gursharan Kaur Jaggi, under the patronage of Baba Virsa Singh Ji (Gobind Sadan) have published a Punjabi version of the Granth in five volumes.

The present publication of 'Dasam Granth' including the roman version of the Original Text' is an attempt to present it in English for the benefit of English Readers. This version is based on an English version of the text given by Dr. R.S. Jaggi (with his blessings and goodwill).

No individual is capable of commenting on the greatness and life of Guru Gobind Singh Ji, (Sahib-e-Kamal) and personally I feel, this effort and attempt to publish a part of his literacy poetic writings in the form of Dasam Granth in English prose is to understand his greatness and mission in life. I have no ability or capacity to mention even about his various facets of life, like war-face, creation of Khalsa, challenging the mighty Emperor Aurangzeb and fighting against Mughal oppression, sacrifce of the whole family (father, four sons and mother), what to talk of his literary achievements.

I could only give my opinion that the style of poetic versions in Dasam Granth in the form of various Chhands in 'Brij' alongwith Arabic and Persian vocabulary proves the point that the author of this Granth could be none other than Guru Gobind Singh himself.

Though Sri Guru Granth Sahib was annointed (appointed) as the living Guru of the Sikhs by Guru Gobind Singh Ji, after him, Dasam Granth deserves the same respect as a literary achievement of the great Guru.

Preface

The second volume of Sri Dasam Granth Sahib deals with the life-story and exploits of Lord Krishna. His birth in the jail of King Kans, where his parents were in detention and then his bringing up in Nand's house lends charm to his early (age) life, specially the romantic period with the milkmaids on the banks of Jamuna. The killing of demons Bakasur, Agasur and Kali Nag alongwith his game play among children of milkmaids adds to the glory of his younger days' activities. Then his departure for Mathura to kill Kans and the reinstatement of Ugarsain as the King is an important event in the whole episode including the meeting with the hench-back gardener's wife (malin) having pure love for Krishna. Furthermore the battles with King Jarasandh and Raja Kharag Singh gives a thrilling description of his life-style specially the entry in Delhi and marrying 16000 princesses in the custody of Bharmasur is equally interesting which confused even Narad Muni. The visit of Brahmin Sudhama, a colleague of younger days during studies, gives another vision of his real friendship. Then the last chapter, giving analysis of True love (of the Lord) brings out the author's greatness and beauty of his literary achievements (author's). Thus the human relationship with the Lord-Creater is a befitting finale to the whole episode of Krishnavtar (Incarnation of Krishna).

This episode of the composition is worthy of special mention, first its large size, and secondly the battle description and the poetry about Krishna's fighting capabilities has an important position in the country's literature.

It appears this composition was written in parts, later portions at Anandpur Sahib and earlier portions on the banks of Jamuna at Paonta, and the main source of this episode is Bhagwat Puran. There are in all 2492 Chhands, as per published Bir (Granth).

In the first four Chhands of Choubis Avtar, episode, the functions of this episode, have been shown followed by the chapter on childhood sports, games of love, separation natak and finally the chapter on war preparations. The description of taking away milkmaids' clothes, separation natak, and games of love, though taken from Bhagwat Puran, have been depicted independently and are full of poetic beauty. As a novel imagination, Krishna is depicted as a great warrior in Krishnavatar as against his normal form. There has been no dearth of similies in the composition. The basic language used is Brij, with Arabic Persian, Punjabi, Avadi and Rajashthani vocabulary at places.

Foreword

Bhai Gurbachan Singh is a well known scholar who has written an exegesis of the entire Sri Guru Granth Sahib in Scholastic English with great dedication and devotion. He spent ten long years to accomplish this remarkable task. Besides, he has written a book in Punjabi. 'Amrit Boond Suhaavani' which contains meanings and explanation of all the 'Pause Verses' in the Sikh scripture (Rahao Cantos).

Three years ago, another idea came into his mind that he should prepare an English annotation of the 'Banis' of Sri Guru Gobind Singh Ji, which is not available in the market. In this series, the first volume prepared by him is in your hands. It contains the original text in Panjabi and Roman transliteration (on the left) page followed by their translation into English (on the right). It will prove to be very useful to the English knowing readers.

A Gursikh reads or recites five "Nitnem Banis' in the morning and two in the evening without fail. These include three 'Banis' (compositions) of the Tenth Guru Sahib: 1. Jaap Sahib, 2. Swaiyyas Patshahi Dasvin 3. Kabio Vach Benati Choupaiee (Patshahi Dasvin). In the present time, some misguided and mistaken scholars create misconceptions about these 'Banis' (compositions). While administering 'amrit', a sikh is instructed to read/recite these 'Banis' (compositions) regularly. The command of the 'Panj Piaras' (Five Beloved ones) is the Guru's command, which we must obey humbly; controversy about them is uncalled for. The entire 'Jaap Sahib' composition is uttersd in praise of the Timeless Lord. In the very first stanza Guru Sahib says:

That Lord is immovable or eternal Being. He has neither any mark nor sign, not form, nor complexion, nor caste, nor clan. He is self illumined and this glory is very intense and powerful. His name is indescribable.

Therefore, I am describing his attributive names.

'who can describe all thy Names? Only men of good sense mention Thy attributive Names.'

In 'Jaap Sahib', we find words exactly parallel and synonomous to those in the 'mool mantra' (fundamental chant) from 'Ek Onkar' to 'Gurprasaad' recorded at the beginning of Sri Guru Granth Sahib:

Similarity between Jap JI and Jaap Sahib is given below:-

Jap Ji	Jaap Sahib
Ek Onkar	ek hai anek hai
Satnaam	Sadavang saroopai
Karta Purkh	Kariang, Sarbung karta, Samstul, Nivarai
Nir Bhou	Nirbhai Abheet
Nir Vair	Namo rag roopai, Na Satrai, Namitrai
Akal Moorat	Namastang akalai Nirbhoot, Rooprung
Ajooni	Ajai, Ajanmai
Saibhung	Sarab bisar rachio Garan Bhanjanhar
Gur Prasad	Tav Prasad

It is therefore, clear that the tenth Guru's composition 'Jaap Sahib' conforms to the 'bani' (Guru's utterance) enshrined in Sri Guru Granth Sahib.

The 'Chaupai Patshahee Daswin' contains the following stanza : (Takoe kar pahan unmanat)

Rank fools contemplate the Lord by making His idol holy,

For they cannot fathom this mystery,

Shiva as Eternal Lord they call,
But recognize not his secret at all (16)

Guru Sahib openly rejects idol worship and the worshippers of Lord Shiva. People have no knowledge and understanding of the Transcendent Lord God. They worship stone idols. They worship Lord Shiva as if he were transcendent God Himself. Who else but the Tenth Guru could administer such a warning?

In the 'swaiyyas Patshahi Daswin' have been sung the laudations of the timeless one God. We have been cautioned about the so-called dera-heads, holy men and braham-gyanis. The hollowness of the various methods of practicing Divine Name (meditation) have been exposed. We have been for-bidden to do idol worship. Only the method of practicing God's loving devotion has been prescribed for meeting and attaining God.

In the light of the facts stated above, it is absolutely clear that any controversy about these 'Bani's (compositions) is uncalled for. By annotating these compositions in English, Bhai Sahib Gurbachan Singh Ji has made a commenable effort. English-knowing readers, who do not know Panjabi, will be immensely benefitted. Inspite of indifferent health and old age, with the Guru's grace, he is continuing to serve Gurmat literature even today. I pray to the Satguru to grant him good health and greater spiritual strength so that he may continue to render maximum service to Gurmat literature through his writings.

Now I would commence the episode of the "Krishna-Incarnation", that is how Vishnu had assumed the form of Krishna. The 'Earth' felt completely perplexed and dreaded with the increase of sinful actions in the world and went to Brahma in a shattered condition of mind. (1)

Brahma had gone to the place, where Cheer Ocean lies, as the Lord-Sublime had established Himself there. So He called Vishnu and told him. "Go and assume the form of Krishna' Incarnation." (2)

It is rather difficult to assess her origin and no one knows the extent of her greatness or Vastness. But whosoever takes refuge at her feet, is protected by her and provides sustenance to all those, who seek her support : she could destroy all the demons, and burn away (destroy) all the afflictions, she could help the sinners even to (cross this ocean) attain Salvation; and protect us against the noose of the god of death. Durga is capable of bestowing all gifts (benedictions), providing the right intellect for virtuous deeds. With her grace, this devotee (slave) would be able to complete this Granth at an early date. All the gods, keeping Brahma in the lead, (as their leader) left the place, with their body strength. Then Muni and others requested him wailing like a person, who gets a beating. Th alongwith all other gods, rushed to the place of Cheer ocean. The Earth, in the assumed form of a cow, paid its respects to them, and washed their path with (the water of) her tears, of the eyes. Seeing Vishnu in the space craft, Brahma fell at his feet. Then the Prime-Soul said, "You go and relax. I will take birth as an incarnation and uproot the demons completely. (11)

Hearing the words of the Lord, all the gods felt elated and bidding their salutations all the gods went away to their abodes and felt their control over all the worlds in times to come. The great poet felt in his mind, appreciating the situation as all the populace having lost their way, like the herd of cows, was being brought back to safety by the gods. (12)

Couplet

The Lord (Vishnu) called all the gods and ordained them, "You go to Gokal and take birth there. I will also come in the form of Krishna. (13)

On hearing these words of the Lord, the gods paid their obeisance millions of times, and assumed new forms alongwith their spouses. (14)

Thus all the gods took up their new forms and came down to the Earth (from heavens). "Now I would relate the wonderful drama about Devki with my own tongue. (words) (15)

Couplet

When Devki grew up and came of a marriageable age, the king told his courtiers to find a suitable match for her. (17)

Kabit

The emissary put a saffron mark on Basdev's forehead and placing a Cocoanut in his lap, gave his blessings. He bestowed such a praiseworthy position to Basudev which was sweeter than sweetmeats, which was appreciated by all, specially the king of kings, Ugarsain. Whatever came to the mind of the emissary was told by him (in praise of Basdev) to the King; which was appreciated both by the king and his consort apart from the general populace. Then the whole world has sung the praises of this new relationship and whosoever sang these praises was spread over the whole world (including 20 to 30 areas) (That is Basudev's praises spread) throughout the whole world). (19)

Couplet

Kans and Basdev made all the arrangements for the marriage. There were lot of festivities all over the land and trumpets were sounded. (20)

Now the episode of Devki's marriage.

The Brahmins were seated in position and Basdev was made to sit alongwith them.

The pundit applied the saffron, after rubbing it, to his forehead midst the chanting of Vedic hymns (mantras) and flowers were showered on Basudev. Then Basudev's worship was carried out with rice and panchmirat (five items mixed) alongwith many other festive articles, which pleased them. Then the bards and musicians sang songs of praise alongwith many other scholars and were bestowed with gifts of all types. (21)

When Ugarsain heard the news of Basudev's coming, then he despathed his whole army of four wings to welcome them. (23)

Swaiyya'

To meet each other the armies were decorated with all embellishments and the army commanders marched ahead. Their robes were coloured red with the application of saffron and they were coloured with all sorts of festive colours. The poet has felt the beauty of the whole function in his mind and found it in the form of saffron spread all over in a festive mood. (24)

Then with the beat of drums, the marriage party reached near Mathura. The festivities of that time were very pleasing and enjoyable, making the whole atmosphere charming and of merriment. (26)

Swaiyya'

On hearing the news of Basudev's coming (alongwith the marriage party), prompted the fair sex to embellish their bodies with ornaments. All the clever women were seen singing songs, clapping and giving satires (sithni) and coming forward being watched by some women from top of their houses. This has been viewed by the poet as if the mothers of the gods had descended there alongwith their families soaked in their space crafts to watch the whole function. (27)

Kabit

When Basudev reached there then Ugarsain got a special place made for him and felt greatly relieved to see him. The aroma of scented sprinkling was noticed and songs were sung by the musicians. Ugarsain got lot of money disbursed to him, which was meant to be given after examining his worth. Ugarsain then bowed to him by placing his hand on the chest (as a mark of respect) After worshipping him with great satisfaction and happiness, Ugarsain sent him away. Then Ugarsain gave away so much money in alms, like a cloud showering gold all around, that there were no more beggars left any more in the whole land. (28)

Kans told Basudev this thing loudly, "Tomorrow night the wedding is to be solemnised." Then the pandit of Basudev said, "Whatever suits you is acceptable to us." (31)

Then Kans explained the whole thing with folded hands. The Pandit of Basudev accepted everything as it suited them and Basudev also agreed to all this. (32)

Swaiyya

The night was over and the day dawned and in the evening the marriage party also reached there. At least two thousand people (hands) were having a kind of fireworks in hands and the smoke of fireworks was rising high up the sky like clouds. Apart from this airy (hawaiee) fire works were rising to the sky. The poet Siam has explained the beauty of fire works as some paper parts being sent to heavens so that all the gods may watch this miracle. (33)

Hearing this thing, the Yadavs of both sides made lot of fun and frolic. (34)

Kabit

Many women folk came singing, hurling abusive language and dancing who were being praised while singing songs in a low tune. They possessed delicate waists like the tiger and agile eyes like the deer, and having a gait like the elephant being lustful. They appeared pleasing to the eye. The pandits have arranged a collection of pearls alongwith another collection of rubies (as part of formal rites) and seated on top of them were looking graceful, both the groom and the bride. The pandits started chanting of vedic hymns, while Ugarsain gave lot of gifts (in donation) to the pandits. Thus they took seven rounds (of the fire place) which were pleasing people all around. Then Kans told his courtiers

Swaiyya'

When Kans heard the talk of Na'rad, it appealed to his mind and gave a hint (sign) to his courtiers to go and kill the child right away. On taking these orders the message went to Basudev. This news spread like a wild fire throughout the town, and the courtiers threw the child onto a stone like a hammer and took away his life. (49)

The killing of the first son

Swaiyya'

When they got another son, the villainous Kans sent his courtiers again to their place, and they killed the child by striking him against a stone. There was a tumultuous noise and upheaval in Mathura puri on the death of the second son. The poet has described this episode as such "As if, on hearing the news of the death of Indra (god) in the battle, all the gods were wailing and crying for him." (50)

Another son, born to them was named 'Jai' and king Kans got him also killed by dashing him against a stone, and got him thrown aside. So Devki was pulling her hair and the whole house was crying, just as at the end of Basant season (spring) the birds (koonj) go back to their original nests striking and crying. (51)

Kabit

The fourth son, when born, was also killed by Kans. The flames of the fire of separation (of his killing) were rising high in the heart of Devki. She said, "O God! I am caught in the noose of great love and attachment (being your slave) and all the grandeur is finished with sadness all around me. Either you should take charge of us as the Master, since neither my husband has any respect nor my body has any strength left. The whole world is laughing at us on the death of our sons. O Imperishable Lord! But this mockery is piercing us like the pointed edge of an arrow." (52)

Swaiyya'

When the fifth son was born, Kans got him also killed by bashing it against a stone. His soul went upto the heavens while his body was thrown into Jamuna. When Devki heard this news, she heaved a sigh of horror and sadness. That day Devki felt greatly pained over the attachment (love) of the child, as if the worldly love," took birth only on that day. Kabit

In case Basudev's family got another son and Kans would have got him killed also, then Devki prayed and cried to the Lord. "O Lord! Listen to me! O supporter of the helpless! Pray do not make us devoid of Your support. Either give us death or give death to this Kans, as he is a great sinner, who has become greedy. Help us so that we could live happily. Pray help me this time, as You had helped the elephant in distress with a miracle. Pray do not delay any more and do one thing out of the two alternatives (I have requested)." (54)

Here the chapter on the killing of sixth son is completed.

Now the birth of Balbhadar's episode begins.

Swaiyya'

When Balbhadar was in Devki's womb, then both Basudev and Devki held consultations with each other. With the help of chanting Vedic hymns they managed to shift the child from Devki's womb to Rohini's womb. Basudev was worried lest Kans might not get this child also killed After due course of time, the child was born. It appeared as if sheshnag had taken birth in a new form to watch the world. (55)

Couplet

Both the saintly figures (Basudev and Devki) prayed to Vishnu (the spouse of Maya) by chanting Krishna, Krishna and singing his praises. Then Vishnu appeared in the body of Devki, who was supposed to bring Salvation to the world being darkened by sinful actions. (56)

Now the episode of Krishna's birth begins.

Swaiyya'

Devki got up frightened from her sleep, when she saw someone with a conch shell, mace and trident in the hands a magnificent figure with protective cover of coat of mail around him. In the fourth hand he was holding a sword, a lotus (flower) in the fifth hand and in the sixth hand he had a bow (and arrow) and was wearing a yellow robe. Devki was watching the scene of the birth of such a mighty person, when she got up in fear. She did not consider him as her child but the Lord Himself. She fell at his feet by paying obeisance to the figure. (57)

Couplet

Devki had not taken him as her son but realised in him the Lord-Sublime. That time Krishna felt that she had seen his true self, so he spread a cover of worldly love around him (so that she could see him only as his son). (58)

When Krishna took birth (was born) the gods were greatly pleased in their hearts. All the gods started saying that all their enemies would now be destroyed, thus giving them peace and tranquillity. (59)

With great elation the gods showered flowers as they realised that the destroyer of all their enemies and for bringing them relief from their sufferings, the Lord Himself had appeared in the world. (60)

Basudev and Devki both were pondering over the matter and were feeling greatly perturbed in mind, as Kans was considered by them as a butcher. (62)

Here the chapter on Krishna's birth is completed.

Swaiyya'

Then both Basudev and Janki, after consultations with each other felt worried lest Kans may not get him also killed "So let us send him to the house of Nand", and they decided on this means. Then Kanha told them not to have any worries as they could go about it with the beat of drums (and no one would see you even) A cover of magic spell had been woven around them, and in the form of a child, the Lord was seated by himself. (63)

When Krishna took birth in their house, Basudev did this thing. He thought in his mind that he would give away in alms about ten thousand cows. (for the child's safety). (64)

When Basudev started from his house, all the doors got opened ajar (automatically). Fully delighted the paces of Basudev marched forward and reached the banks of Jamuna soon. Even Jamna's waters raced forward to have a look at Krishna but with the force of Basudev's body strength, Krishna got away on one side, since both had gone, fed up with the dirt of sinful actions for a purpose. (65)

Couplet

When Basudev, alongwith Krishna left the place, then Krishna had spread out a net of worldly falsehood (Maya) as a result all the demons, on duty of watch keepers, went to sleep. (dozed off) (66)

Swaiyya'

When Basudev placed his feet in the waters of Jamuna due to the fear of Kans, then the Jamna waters, out of sheer love (of olden days) raised their level (rose up) to touch the lotus-feet of Krishna. The poet has visualised this scene in his mind as if Jamuna, taking Kahna (Krishna) as her spouse, wanted to pay her obeisance to the spouse by touching his feet. (67)

When Jasodha had gone to sleep, then the Maya (falsehood) in the form of a child, had taken birth. Basudev had then placed Krishna alongwith her and took up her daughter in his hands and came back. (68)

Swaiyya'

Basudev promptly, taking Maya (falsehood) into his hands, left for his place. Now all the gate-keepers on watch there, had gone to sleep. They had no knowledge of what was happening inside or outside. When Basudev went inside (alongwith Maya) near Devki then only the doors closed. When that girl woke up and started crying then only the gate keepers went and informed about the child to Kans. (69)

When that girl child woke up crying, then all (outside) of them heard the sound of her crying and they rushed to the house of Kans and said, "Your enemy is born. Kans went with a sword in hand and snatched the child (girl) from Devki's hand. Now see the state of mind of this foolish Kans, who was taking poison instead of ginger. (70)

But the child suddenly escaped from his hand and produced a lightning streak in the sky, when the Lord, the saviour had saved her. (71)

Kabit

Then Kans, getting enraged, made a plan to kill her and told his courtiers, "This is a royal order to kill this child. When the servants wanted to dash it against the stone by picking her up in the hand as there was no sin involved in carrying out royal orders and they wanted to hold her tightly in the hand. The child developed her eight arms and was then holding various weapons in each hand. Then spitting fire from her mouth, she shouted!

"O mindless Kans! Your enemy has appeared in a different place, and then flashed like lightning from the sky, which frightened the enemies to the extent of tearing away their chests. All the demons, thinking in their mind, that she would surely destroy them, they felt greatly frightened." (73)

Now the episode of Devki - Basudev being released begins

Swaiyya'

When Kans heard this thing from the child's mouth with his own ears, Then he came home vilifying the gods. He thought to himself, that they had got the sister's sons killed by telling him a lie. Then he went back to his sister and bowed to his sister and made both Devki and Basudev delighted with his scholarly talk (of religious nature). Then he called an iron-smith with great delight and got their chains of iron and love cut away. (74)

Now Kans's consultations with his ministers

Couplet

Kans called all his ministers and held consultations with them. They decided to kill all the boys, between the ages of one to two years, born throughout the land. (75)

Swaiyya'

This complete episode of Bhagwat Purana, which is filled with many events, has been described in detail. (by me)

The rest of episode will be detailed later. On the other side Murari (Krishna) had assumed a beautiful face in the land of Brij. Hearing this news all the gods were much pleased and on the Earth all the men and women folk were greatly amused. There were great festivities in all the houses, that the great incarnation of Krishna had taken birth (who was god of gods). (76)

When Jasodha wokc up, she saw the son and she started fondling witn him then they gave alms to Pandits and the musicians alongwith other scholarly persons in plenty. On hearing about the birth of the son in the Nand's house, the women folk of Brij wearing red head gear started for his house as if a flock of black birds was moving during the month of monsoon. Narad told Kans

Couplets

The headman of Brij (resident) took some gifts and went to meet kans and told him that a son was born to his wife (in his house). (78)

Basudev then told Nand :

Couplet

When Nand was about to go back home Basudev told him about the plan of Kans to get all male children killed, which he had heard and said; "O Master of milk-vendors ! Listen to a secret talk, which will frighten you." (79)

Kans told Baki, the sisters of demon Bak :

Swaiyya'

Kans said, "O Pootna sister of demon Bak! Listen to me and perform this act of mine today itself. Go and kill all the (male) children born recently in the land immediately, as these were supposed to be responsible for my death (in future) I am getting worried about it in my mind with fear. On saying this Kans became desperate with helplessness as if a black snake had stung him." (80)

Couplet

On hearing this talk, Pootna told Kans like this. I will kill all the male children who had been created by Brahma (god), which would bring an end to your suffering." (81)

Swaiyya'

Then Pootna bowed (to Kans) and said, "I would apply poisonous material (sweet Itailia) to my breast nipples, and the child, whosoever, will suck milk from my breast, would lose his life; thus I would be killing him in no time. Pootna tolk this thing on the strength of her intelligence. She said, "I will kill that boy Krishna, you take it from me as for certain. O King! You could rule over the land without any fear (of death). So you need not worry at all." (82)

The poet has stated

The great sinner (Pootna) had taken the responsibility of killing the Lord of the world on her hands. The ugly and villainous Pootna, then embellished herself with many ornaments and finally landed in Gokul. (83)

She had tied arm-bands on the arms, was having a delicate waist like the tiger, and had tied tinkling bells to her feet, which produced musical sound. She was having a necklace of pearls round her neck. Thus dressed up Pootna went to Nand's house. The aroma of fragrance was spread throughout the town and the moon (millions of) was feeling ashamed before her beauty. (moon's beauty was belittled). (84)

Then Jasodha gave the child in her lap. She took up up Kanha (Krishna) in her lap, as her end had come. She was very fortunate, the villainous lady with bad intentions, who got the chance of feeding the Lord (with her breast-nipple). Krishna sucked her blood and life out of her body alongwith the milk, just as the tribal woman applies leeches to the body soaked in oil, and the blood gets sucked by the leech. (leaving the body). The people then cut the body (of Pootna) into pieces and collected them in one place in a heap. They placed wood all around and set it on fire, which got burnt in no time. (91)

Swaiyya'

When Nand came to Gokal, he had a puff of the aroma of the fragrance of Pootna's body and got astonished. Then all the people related the story of Brij which made him shudder with fear after hearing the story. He thought to himself that Basudev had rightly informed him, which has turned out to be true now. Now I have got the whole secret known to me. So that day he gave many gifts in alms and the brahmins (recited Vedas and) bestowed blessings on him as per Vedic rites. (92)

Here the chapter of the death of Pootna, dealing with the episode of Dasam Sakand Purana of Bahittar Natak is completed. All is well so far.

Now the episode of 'Naming Ceremony' begins.

Couplet

Basudev called the pandit named Garg, near him and told him personally, "You should go personally to the house of Nand, which will be a favour to me." (94)

There you will find my son in his house, and you go and perform the naming ceremony. (christening or baptism ceremony). But listen to me carefully that this news (remains a secret between you and me), and none else except myself knows about it. (95)

Swaiyya'

Then (Garg) brahmin left speedily for Gokal and whatever Basudev had stated, was accepted (as truth) by him fully. Then he reached Nand's house, where Jasodha gave him full respect. Garg then told her to christen the child with the name of Krishna. Nand also accepted this thing as perfect Truth. After performing the rites of auspicious ceremony and considering the right time for it, the Pandit Garg related the whole story of Krishna, which was supposed to be indescribable. (96)

Garg then thought over it for a while and named the child as Krishna. The poet Siam has said, "Then Garg touches the feet of the child (worships) and says that the child was an incarnation of the Lord." (97)

During the age of Sat Yug, the incarnation was called Hansavtar, being white coloured then during Treta (age) the incarnation was having yellow (coloured robes) colour called Ram who has now assumed dark (coloured) complexion with yellow robes, and is the king of kings (the Krishna carnation). (98)

Swaiyya

When Nand gave food to Garg, he came back to the banks of Jamuna and after having a dip (bath) he offered the food to the gods and the Master. Suddenly Krishna was seen there, who took the food from the hands of Garg and put it in his mouth. (ate it up). On seeing this (drama) Garg was astonished. He felt that the child had spoiled his food by desecrating it. (99)

Then Garg thought to himself that this was not an ordinary child but the Lord Himself, who had created a (worldly) human form by combining, the five elements alongwith the soul, (the Lord Himself). He had removed the distinction between me and himself as he had meditated upon him (in the mind), so he had shown his belongingness to him (Garg). Thus the Lord covered up his intelligence in such a manner as the tailor covers the body with the clothes. (100)

When Krishna had defiled the food by touching it thrice, then the Pandit felt enraged (in his mind), and Jasodha took away Krishna in her arms, being slightly offended. At the same time the Lord (Krishna) spoke and said that there was no fault of his (in it), as he had meditated upon me himself, saying 'O Lord partake of this food! Hearing this the pandit had realised that he was an incarnation of Vishnu, so he fell at his (Krishna's) feet. (101)

When Krishna felt hungry, he wanted to suckle the breast of the mother, but Jasodha did not get up. He felt slightly offended and he pressed the ground with force, with his feet. The Earth was shaken up, and all the oil (in the house) and the ghee filled in the ulensils, was spilt on to the ground, which has been described by the poet Siam (as such) as if an uproar had taken place on the Earth in Mathura puri, so by spilling the oil, the Earth had been satiated. (had its interest fulfilled). (104)

So all the populace of Brij rushed to the place and hugged the child (Krishna) in fact all the people including women folk started singing songs of happiness and praise in many ways. The Earth had trembled and the sky also showed a miracle. This secret was revealed by the child artists clearly. Hearing this all were bewildered, but did not consider it as a true event. (105)

Swaiyya'

Nand called all the beggars of the area (Brij) and after touching the head and body of Kanha, various materials were given away in alms to them. All the households (in the area) were given coloured clothes in alms. This incident was made an excuse for alms-giving and gave away many articles for (destroying) casting away all their afflictions (sufferings). (including money and materials). (106)

Then Kans told Trainavarat

A'ril

When Kans heard the news of the death of Pootna, in Gokal, then he sent for the demon Trinavarat and said to him, "You go to Gokul immediately and kill Nand's son by dashing him against a stone, just as a stone is hurled by the hand with a jerk. (107)

Swaiyya'

Tri na Varat, after paying obeisance to his master, Kans, went away and reached Gokul. He assumed the form of a whirl wind and a strong wind (storm) started blowing on the land. Viewing the arrival of Trinavarat, Krishna assumed a large and heavy weight (body) and knocked him (threw) on to the ground with a jerk. The eyes of people were filled with dust, so that they closed their eyes. Then Trinavarat, taking away Krishna in his arms, ran away to wards the sky. (108)

Then on reaching the sky, Krishna giving a jerk to his body, assumed a dreadful appearance and waged a war against him valiantly and wounded the demon. Then with his great ten nails Krishna fought ferociously and cut away the head of the enemy. The trunk (body) of Trinvarat fell down on the ground with a thud as if a tree had fallen down and his head had fallen down just like a fruit (Khata) of sour orange had fallen from the branch of a tree. (109)

Here the chapter on the death of Trinavarat from the episode of Krishna Incarnation from Bachittar Natak Granth is completed.

When Kanha had flown to the skies, the populance of Gokul, with out his presence, felt helpless, and got together to search for Krishna. After about 12 kilometres away, they found Krishna who had fallen down and their search ended. They all embraced him and started singing songs of happiness, getting together. The poet has described this whole scene like this. (110)

On seeing the dreadful figure of the demon, all the milk vendors had felt frightened at heart. The number of human beings was countless. Infact, even Indra's heart felt a great shock on seeing the demon's appearance. (his heart was bleeding), but Krishna had killed such a dreadful demon in a moment. So when the milkmen came back with Krishna then people started pouring in on hearing about his home coming, to enquire about Krishna and he related the whole episode in detail to them. (111)

Then the mother Jasodha, after giving (gifts) doles to many brahmins started playing and fondling with her son. By placing her finger against her mouth with love. She made Krishna to smile, which had pleased Jasodha's heart immensely. "O Jasodha! What more praises could I describe about you?" That scene is truly praise-worthy. The poet's heart had been won over (both in body and mind) completely by this scene. (112)

'ow the episod. of showing the worldly scene to Jasodha by Krishna begins.

Swaiyya'

The mother Jasodha then, feeling too much affectionate towards Krishna, started fondling with him, then Krishna thought to himself and yawned immediately. Then on viewing all the three worlds from Krishna's mouth (opened with yawn) Jasodha got bewildered and this created some doubts (dual-mindeness) in her mind. That moment the mother had seen Vishnu's Maya (worldly drama) which she covered up. (concealed within). (113)

Kahna then moved around crawling on his knees while the mother praises him on his movement. While moving on the ground there were markings (like lines) on the ground which resembled necklaces of pearls and all the Nand's cows were his playmates. Jasodha was thoroughly delighted to watch her son playing, just as lightning shines forth through the clouds. Why should not the mother feel elated in whose house a son like Krishna had been born?" (114)

The milkman jointly got a beautiful hard cart (small) made for enabling Krishna to learn (how) to walk. They made him sit on top of the cart and then moved him around in the courtyard of the house. Then Jasodha took up Krishna in her lap and suckled him (with milk). When Krishna had gone to sleep, the poet heard a sigh of relief (and felt happy). (115)

Whe[illegible]ep was over, Krishna got up and sat down. Then the large eyed child, started taking interest in playing games. (116)

So Krishna was growing up in Brij Bhoomi (land of Brij) while making merry and playing games. "O King! Now I would describe about his efforts to walk around on his feet, so listen carefully. (117)

'Swaiyya'

After the laspe of one year, Krishna was able to stand up on his feet and the mother Jasodha used to feel delighted in seeing the child running around. Then she told the milk vendors, "that his magnificence was spreading throughout the world. She said, it appears that the beauty of (human race) mankind had sunk into the nails of Kanha." (the whole worldly beauty had penetrated into Krishna's being.) (118)

Alogwith milkmen's children Krishna used to play on the banks of Jamuna, and he used to Chirrup like the birds, and was running around like the birds. Then they would sit on the sea beach (in the sandy beach) and they used to clap alongwith Krishna. The poet Siam has described the beauty of all this scene by singing songs in his praise. (119)

So on the banks of Jamuna, alongwith a (flock) rush of milkmen's children, Krishna used to play. They would swim across Jamuna and lie down rolling on the sandy beach. Then they were jumping up and down like the juggler, pushing the water away with the chest. Then they would behave like lambs from both sides striking their heads against each other. (120)

When Krishna returned home, he had his food and started playing again. The mother wanted him to stay back but Krishna would not stay at home, and rushed outside. The poet Siam has described this praise worthy act saying that the Master (Lord) of Brij had developed love for the Streets (of Brij). They then started playing the game of hide and seek, and all the milkmaid's urchins got enamoured in the game and its fun. (121)

Thus Krishna used to play on the banks of Jamuna alogwith other children with the full satisfaction of heart. (with great glee and charm). At times he would climb a tree and throw a stick around which the milkmaid's children would bring back by rushing to collect it. The beauty of this whole scene had been beautifully realised by poet Siam in his mind, which was beyond description. All the Muni's who (ascetics) worship and meditate for thousands of years to perceive the Lord, were watching with great ecstasy and would offer their sacrifice to him. (would sacrifice themselves). Here the chapter of Krishna's Incarnation dealing with the episode of Krishna's playing games with milkmen's children from Bachittar Natak Granth is completed.

Now the Episode of stealing butter and eating it begins.

Swaiyya'

Krishna used to gulp butter with the excuse of playing games by entering into the houses, and he would call other children also (milkmen's children) with the sign of his eyes to join him in gulping butter. The rest of butter, left after their eating, was being pushed into the mouths of monkeys around. Siam poet thus describes the beauty of such scenes that he would (vex) annoy the milkmaids with such moves. (123)

When the Lord (Krishna) had gone after (eating) consuming butter, the milkmaids went crying to Jasodha and said, "O Jasodha! Listen to us. Kahna had thrown our utensils of curd. For fear of Kahna, we keep the butter at a higher (left) place, hidden from him. But Kahna keeping a lubber (a wooden piece), climbs up the forbidden place and like a shameless fellow abusing us, eats up the butter." (124)

"Whenever he does not find milk and curd, he makes lot of noise, using abusive language. If someone, considering him a (spoiled) boy, shows displeasure (indignation) to him, then the boys get together and beat him up with sticks. If some woman comes up (with anger) while they are taking (stealing) butter, then they pull her hair. O Jasodha! Listen to your son's doings. Krishna does not desist from creating such rowdy scenes. (125)

When Jasodha heard the talk of milkmaids, she felt annoyed at heart. In the meantime Krishna also came back home and she felt happy to see her son. Then Krishna said, "O mother! This milkmaid is always annoyed with me, thus why is she accusing me of taking her curd? She will not mend her ways without a beating. (126)

Then the mother asked her son, "Tell me, how this milkmaid teases you ?" The son told the mother, "That this maid removes my cap and runs away with it in her hand. Then putting her finger in my nostrils, she slaps my head. Then she asks me to seek her pandon by rubbing my nose on ground, thus making a mockery of me before the (other) boys and then gives back my cap. (127)

Then Jasodha told the milkmaids;

Swaiyya'

The mother (Jasodha) got annoyed with them and said, "Why do you tease my son tell me?" On top of that you come and make a complaint against my son. I have got everything at my place (home) including milk, curd, food materials and cows" O foolish milkmaids! Do you not know that Kahna has no derth of anything at home. You are talking too much, so you should rest assured that my son is a gentle soul and is without any blemish (fault). If anyone would complain against Kanha, would be considered by me as (mad) foolish." (128)

The mother got agitated and in great anger she took up a stick and thrashed his (Krishna's) body. Then Krishna got frightened in mind and started shouting "Jasodha, Jasodha" All could come and see my mouth (for dust)." On the mother's ordains, the boy (Krishna) opened his mouth, and the poet Shiam has stated. that Krishna then showed the whole Universe through his mouth, by exposing to them the worldly drama being conducted by the Lord. (132)

He showed to Jasodha the whole world scene, including oceans, mountains, Earth, netherlands and land of Snakes; all things were shown in his mouth including Brahma reading Vedas, alogwith all the occult powers and she saw herself also in the mouth, thus realising that Krishna was the Lord Almighty, so Jasodha fell at his feet. The poet Siam says, that Jasodha saw everything with her own eyes and felt herself as most fortunate (to have such a son). (133)

Jasodha then got up and paying her obeisance to Krishna. She praised his grandeur and magnificence as such -

"O Lord of the world, O Treasure of (Source) compassion! I was mistaken in calling myself as your mother out of sheer ignorance. Pray pardon me for all my flaws and shortcomings and misdeeds committed out of my lack of knowledge and obstinacy. Then Krishna closed his mouth and again involved the mother in the act of worldly love (emotions) to close the (chapter) incident of his Greatness. (135)

Then Jasodha told the milk-maids with grace and benevolence, that the milkmen's children had brought some sticks from the jungle. But on the words of the children, Jasodha was furious in her mind and started beating Krishna with the stick. The son cries loudly on seeing the son crying, Jasodha also started crying. The poet Siam says, the mother had become emotional with the son's love while the milkmaids started (saying Ram, Ram) feeling penetent and said, "What to talk of beating such a saintly figure, one cannot even open his mouth before him. The mother of Krishna, Jasodha them got up to Churn the curd and by her mouth she sings the praises of the son, which is beyond any description. (137)

Swaiyya'

Once Jasodha, taking the wooden churner in hands, was going to churn the curd, while in her heart, She was reminded of the (prime soul) light of knowledge within the son, having a yellow ribbon (girddle) round his waist (a yellow waist band) with a string having small tunkling bells attached to it. The poet Siam has described this as "Jasodha started singing songs in his praise being reminded of Krishna's power and generosity. (138)

When the breast of Jasodha was filled with milk, Krishna also had woken up, and he said, "O Mother (Jasodha)! Please suckle me with milk and Sri Krishna was completely engaged in this rapturous mood." In the meantime the milk in the vessel got spilled over (on fire), so Jasodha went away (to look after milk) and Krishna started crying. Due to this Sri Krishna got annoyed and rushed outside the house. (139)

They picked up stones in hands and striking the eathenpot with stones, they broke it (into pieces so that the milk was spilt all around and the monkeys rushed to suck it. (141)

Swaiyya'

Then Sri Krishna alongwith a large troupe of children and monkeys started gulping the curd in the house, and threw away all the utensils with their hands all around the four sides. The vessels were broken and the curd was spread all around. This aroused an idea in the poet's mind as if Sri Krishna had given out his mind of crushing the head of Kans in the (period) days to come. (142)

They had broken all the earthen pots, and then the enraged Jasodha ran after them to catch hold of them. The monkeys rushed away jumping from trees to trees while Krishna managed with his (eyes) hint to make all the children run away. Sri Krishna also ran hither and thither, thus tiring out his mother Jasodha. The poet Siam says that after this incident, the body of Krishna was tied to the rice pounding stone. (143)

When Jasodha rushed towards Sri Krishna and caught hold of him and was trying to tie him up with a string, but its length fell short (for tying). She collected all the ropes of Brij town, but even then she could not manage to fasten Krishna with the ropes. Then Krishna got himself started running all around on the ground. It appeared as if (Krishna) he was going for the salvation of two saints (Nal and Koover) towards (the twin trees of) Jamlanjan. (144)

Then dragging the lubber, Sri Krishna helped the two saints (Nal and Koover) to get deliverance and for this purpose. Only Krishan, knowing the ways of the Lord, had gone near them. (145)

In between the Jamlarjan, the lubber was entangled and with the force of his body, Sri Krishna managed to tear a part (break) the two trees, then only from the twin trees, the saints Nal and Koover got deliverance and on their request they went to heavens. The praise-worthy scene had impressed the poet so much as to consider the whole incident, as if Indra had, with the help of the string of magical chanting of mantras, managed to take out (pull) the great vessel of nectar from the place of (twin) snakes. (146)

After seeing this miracle, the populace of Brij town went and explained the whole incident to Jasodha stating that with his body strength only Krishna had torn apart the (Jamlarjan) twin trees and narrated this wholesome episode to her. The poet has described the whole incident in his own words as if the flies of the land had come in a swarm to tell the story of this incident to Jasodha. (147)

The Lord, who is the destroyer of demons, who is Shiva's form himself, and who is the bestower of all happiness, who is the benevolent Lord bestowing all worldly pleasures by casting away our sufferings, and is the brother of Bal Bhadar, the same Krishna had enamoured Jasodha in motherly affection, so she said "he is my son only." Infact, the Lord-Sublime had with His Grace, bestowed Kahna as my son, through a miracle." (148)

"Here the chapter on deliverance of Jamlarjan (by tearing apart twin trees) in the Krishna incarnation episode of Bachittar Natak Granth is completed.

Swaiyya'

Where the (Jamlarjan) twin trees were broken apart the elderly milkmen held consultations there that they should go to Brij town leaving the town of Gukul, as the events happening there as per destiny, were too big and too consequential (for them to bear). When Jasodha and Nand heard about this news, they also felt that this was the right thing to do. There could not be any other better proposition than this which could safeguard the safety of Kahna. (Krishna) (149)

In the Brij-land, grass was also plenty, and the shade of trees was also pleasant (more shady), the river Jamuna was close by, on whose banks there were mountains with many springs (fountains) coming up there, and which had no parallel in the world even. On all the four sides, during monsoon three birds like koel, harial and peacock are singing musical notes there. So let them leave Gokul immediately for proceeding to Brij, as that town had many benedictions coming up there. (150)

Nand then told them after meeting all the milk men there, that they should leave Gokul and proceed to Brij town, as there could be nothing better than that. (151)

When all the milk venders after packing up their baggage, came to Brij from Gokul then they saw with their own eyes, the river Jamuna flowing there (close by). (152)

Swaiyya'

On obtaining permission from Nand, all the milkmen decorated their chariots and then started for Brij alongwith their women folk, singing songs of merriment and blowing trumpets. Jasodha having Sri Krishna in her lap, was looking gorgeous and gracious, as if the two (mother and son) had given gold in alms. (they were very fortunate). Infact, they were looking like Parbati seated in the mountain, with pearls and gems, making her gorgeous and magnificent. (153)

After leaving Gokul, the milkmen, settled down in their establishments in Brij- bhoomi (land). They sprinkled a mixture of butter-milk and rice on the houses alongwith burning of incense inside and outside (of houses) and started living there. The poet has described this whole praiseworthy scene just as Ram had purified his house on his return from Lanka after handing over the kingdom of Lanka to Vibhushan. (154)

The poet has said

Couplet

All the milk-vendors started living in Brij-land with comfort and happiness. Now I am going to describe the pageant (wonderful play) of Sri Krishna in my own words. (155)

Swaiyya'

After the lapse of seven years, Kahna started grazing the cows. All the children make pipes (wind instruments) out of tree-leaves and produce musical tones and sing songs with a flute. Than Sri Krishna brings all the children alongwith him from their houses rushing out and remonstrated them all as it pleased him. Jasodha then provides milk for them to drink with gusto while Krishna played and danced in merriment. (156)

Sri Krishna then threw the demon, in the form of a calf, by catching hold of his hind legs, sent by Kans and with his thrust many trees had fallen down. Then there was a shower of flowers from the sky at that moment. The poet has described the beauty of that scene, which is being praised in all the three worlds, as if Krishna had reduced the load (weight) on the Earth (by removing the demon). The poet Siam has described this whole episode in a beautiful manner, which everyone should listen to attentively. (157)

The episode (miracle) of the death of the calf, as seen by the children, was related at houses by all of them. When Jasodha heard about this incident of the demon in the form of a calf then she got so delighted as to feel choked within (throat), but the praise of this whole scene has been described by the poet like a flow of a stream (without any hesitation) which was (spread) known in all the ten directions and the thoughts could hardly be described which came to the mind then. (it is impossible to describe them) (158)

Now the episode of the death of Baki demon (Bakashi) begins.

Swaiyya'

Now listen to the talk of the king (Kans) which he gave to Bakasur after hearing about the death of the calf, "You leave Mathura and proceed to the land of Brij with full preparations. He paid his respects to the king and left immediately and started saying that he would chew the brother of Balbhadar (Sri Krishna). Then Kans laughed and said, "Listen! You should kill him with deception only". (by deceiving him) (159)

On day dawn Sri Krishna took the calves for grazing and proceeded to the forest, and went to the banks of Jamuna, as the calves would drink fresh pure water only; not saltish (dirty) water. In the meantime Bakasur demon also came along there who looked very dreadful. He posed like a crane and gulped down all the calves. Then Sri Krishna, who was in great spirits, went near him. (160)

Then Krishna assumed the form of fire and entered his mouth, thus burning his throat. First he caught hold of Krishna, then released him, and then vomited him out immediately. (161)

Swaiyya'

The (demon) Bakasur Struck Sri Krishna with his beak but he held it with great strength and then with great might tore his body into two (parts) and a stream of blood started flowing down immediately. What more could I say about the scene in praise, as I have stated what came to my mind. Then the soul of the demon got mingled with that of the Prime-soul (of Sri Krishna) just as the light of a lamp during the daylight gets merged with it. (without any distinction). (162)

Kabit

When the demon (Bakasur) had come and opened up his mouth widely, then his original form had become very clear to Sri Krishna and he had planned within his mind how to deal with him. The spouse of Lachhmi, Vishnu (or Krishna) had torn apart his beak. Thus the mighty Krishna had killed the powerful demon. His bulky body with a large mouth, fell down on the ground in two pieces. The praiseworthy scene has prompted (this slave of the Lord) me to relate it just as the children while playing in the forest pull out long grass from the ground and throw it around. (163)

Swaiyya'

In the evening Sri Krishna, alongwith the calves and children (of milkmaids) came back home. They welcomed them in great delight by singing songs collectively whatever pleased them. The poet has described the whole scene like this. The gods had with deceit, killed the demons on the land and made it clear to all others also. (that they would face the same fate). (164)

Then Krishna told the children (of milkmaids)

Swaiyya'

Then Sri Krishna told the other children to get together early in the morning next day. No one should take food at home, and all will eat together in the thick jungle. All will then swim together in the (river) Jamuna and will sing together songs of merriment as we like, we will all dance jump and play musical notes on the flute. (165)

All the milkmaid's children agreed with what Krishna had told them. When the night was over, and the day dawned Krishna played a note on the flute. They all got up and let loose all the cows. Many were blowing the pipes made out of tree leaves. This whole scene has been depicted by the poet as the spouse of Indra (god) in heavens was feeling (ashamed) jealous by watching this drama of the children. (166)

The children had made impressions on the body with red-ochre and Sri Krishna had placed a peacock's wing on his head and was having his flute kept near the mouth, whom all used to worship. The Lord, who had created the whole world had a bunch of flowers tucked, to his head and was standing underneath a tree. He was showing his drama to the world. There was none other akin to him and he was the only one like himself. (Krishna was the Lord of sublime) (167)

The minister of the kingdom held consultations among themselves, and decided to send Aghasur next. He should assume the form of a huge snake (python) with an open mouth and should block their path. When Sri Krishna would enter his mouth, then he should munch him alongwith all other children (of milkmaids) O Kans! Listen. He should not (the demon) come back alive, but should destroy himself also. (169)

Now the episode of the demon Aghasur's arrival begins.

Swaiyaa'

Kans then told Aghasur to go there (Brijpuri) and he came there assuming the form of a huge python. On hearing the news of the killing of his brother (Bakasur) and sister (Baki) from Kans, he (Aghasur) rushed towards Brij. He (occupied) blocked the path of the milkmaid's children and opened up his mouth to devour Krishna and kill him. On seeing him the children thought to themselves as if it was a game (to be played), and took it in fun. All the children (milkmaids') decided among themselves. (170)

Swaiyya'

Someone said that this was a cave in the mountain while someone else thought it to be a representation of total darkness. Some other child said, it was a demon, while another child said, it was a huge snake. Someone says, let us go inside it, while someone else forbids going inside. They were thinking on all these plans, while someone else suggested "Let us go inside without any fear as Sri Krishna was also alongwith them who would save them. (if need be). (171)

While Sri Krishna was watching all this scene, all the children had gone inside (the mouth), but the demon did not close his mouth, as he had decided to close the mouth only on Krishna's entering it, and he had decided on this plan. When Kahna went inside his mouth, he immediately closed it. On seeing this, there was an uproar among the gods, as they thought that Aghasur had devoured the main support of their lives (Krishna). (172)

Sri Krishna then assumed a huge body frame and blocked the mouth of the demon with force! With the blocking of his mouth he (demon) became breathless. Then Sri Krishna broke (tore) open his head and thus the brother of Baki lost his life. His whole marrow fell down on the ground just as a vessel of ghee from a merchant had broken and the ghee had spilled over the ground. (173)

When the hood (head) of Agharsur was broken, then Sri Krishna came out alongwith all the milkmaid's children. The gods felt greatly elated at heart, when they saw Sri Krishna safe after being devoured by the python. All the Shiva's musicians were singing songs in the praise of Krishna and Brahma's (various mouths) were reciting Vedas. Sri Krishna also felt delighted at heart, as he was going home after gaining victory over a huge demon in the shape of a snake. (174)

Sri Krishna then brought himself out of the (head) hood of the snake and did not come out of the mouth with a stubborn outlook. The whole body of Kanha was soaked in blood and he was standing there like a Muni (ascetic) wearing saffron coloured robes on a pedestal. This is one way, the poet has thought of it while the poet has considered (thought) it in another manner as well. That the children (milkmaids) while loading/unloading bricks (being coloured red) were drenched in sweat and Sri Krishna had rushed up to the top of the fortress. (175)

Here the Chapter on the killing of demon Aghasur is completed. Now begins the episode of kidnapping (stealing) of all the milkmaid's children by Brahma.

Swaiyya'

The milkmaids children, after the killing of the demon, went to the banks of river Jamuna and all of them sent for some food from their homes. All of them surrounded Kanha and Kanha also tied his flute within his waist band and felt at ease and comfortable at heart. They were striking the ground with some sticks and branches (of trees) with the right hand and eating their food with the left hand. The way they all were feeding Krishna with morsels, deserves all the praise and appears pleasant. (176)

Someone gives the morsel in Krishna's mouth, while another child, while posing to feed Krishna, munches the morsel in his own mouth out of fun. The children while playing with tamed Kanha were so much engrossed in the game, that they had lost all sense or wisdom and were not careful about the where abouts of the calves. That time Brahma collected together all the calves and shut them inside a cave (of the mountain). The children tried to locate the calves but failed to do so, and were lost themselves even. Then the Lord Almighty created a new set (bunch) of children and calves. (177)

Couplet

When Brahma had hidden (by stealing them) the children and calves, then Krishna had created on his own a new bunch (set) of children and calves. (178)

Swaiyya'

The milkmaid's children were having the same appearance, and wore the same coloured clothes, while the calves were also looking alike the original ones. In the evening, Sri Krishna, alongwith those children and calves came; back home, but no one had the power or strength to know the secret of this whole episode. Even the mothers and fathers could not recognize the children except one person could make out, which is the light illuminating our minds from the very beginning. (the pearl of our hearts) Everyone thought them to be their (original) children and calves and their play (game) came to an end. (179)

Jasodha kissed her son's forehead (Krishna's) and he started playing on the flute. No one could make out their children and even the cows ran towards their calves and fondled them as before. The whole land of Brij was engaged in merriment and happiness. No one knows what happened to those (children etc.) who were kept inside the cave. Alongwith the milkmaid's children Sri Krishna was singing songs, while the women folk of Brij town were all sacrifice to him. (devoted to him) (180)

In the morning, when Sri Krishna got up and went away to the forest alongwith the calves. The children were singing songs, while striking the sticks on the ground and were grazing the calves while playing there Sri krishan went away towards the mountain. Someone says Krishna is annoyed with us. While some others said that he was unwell slightly. (181)

Then Krishna joined the milkmaid's children and came back alongwith the cows. On seeing him on top of the hill and getting more affectionate in mind, they all rushed towards him. Even calves (Gope) also reached there when they saw the cows going that side. They did not stay there due to their wrath and related the story to Sri Krishna, the son of Nand. (182)

Nand told Krishna

Swaiyya'

O Son! Why have you brought the calves here as you have wasted all the milk. The calves suckled all the milk (from the cows), so we have got a doubt in mind. The love, which had been generated in their minds, was a deception created by Krishna. Their anger was like the flame of fire while the affection was like water to smoothen the anger. (183)

The cows had developed great love for the calves, so that they were not willing to leave the calves. The cows would not leave the calves, as the love at heart was too much for them. Sri Krishna, due to his victory, had become little proud, so he went away alongwith the cows and the children. Balbhadar was artonished to realise this thing, that it was a natural affection of the cows, or a magical spell of Krishna only. (184)

After one year had elapsed, then Sri Krishna went to the forest one day, and Brahma (to watch Krishna's wonder) went away from there. He was bewildered to find there the same milkmaid's children and calves, he got worried and blowing a trumpet he fell at the feet of Kanha (the son of Basudev) (realising his greatness). (185)

Then Brahma said to Kanha

Swaiyya'

"O Lord-Sublime! O Master of the Universe! O Lord Vishnu! Pray listen to my prayer! I have made a mistake with regard to your greatness, so pray pardon me." Sri Krishna then replied. I have pardoned it, as I do not take poison leaving aside nectar. Then Sri Krishna asked (Brahma) him to bring these children and calves." He said, "Yes, I will bring them." Krishna again said, "Go quickly and come back soon without any delay". (186)

Brahma, alongwith the calves, came back to Sri Krishna in a moment. When the milkmaid's children met Sri Krishna, they felt very happy at heart. Then all the calves, which Krishna had brought disappeared. But no one else could know the secret (of this episode). Even the milkmaid's children did not realise this enigma, instead all of them got up to say, "Where is our food, which you had promised. Please get our share?" (187)

The children of Brij land then partook of the food, which was one year old (stale). Then Krishna remarked that he had killed snake called Agharsur, but this game of Krishna was not understood by anyone. All were happy at heart and recognized Krishna as their saviour. "We will go and tell our parents that Krishna had saved their lives." (188)

Here the chapter of Brahma's bringing back of calves, and seeking pardon is completed.

Now the episode of Dhenak demon's killing begins

After the lapse of 12 years, Sri Krishna started grazing the cows. The midwife (attendant) praises him saying his body has grown up to a beautiful youth. The poet has described the beauty of Sri Krishna, who was roaming around the jungle alongwith milkmaid's children. "To kill kans, it appeared, the Lord had got an army of children raised. (189)

The beauty of Sri Krishna was enamouring the women-folk of the areas around Brij, with his lotus-like face, deer-like beautiful eyes, with delicate waist of the tiger, with arms like lotus, stems, voice like that of a koel (black-partridge), nose like a parrot, eye-brows like a bow and speech penetrating like an arrow which would pierce making anyone restless with its beauty. He was like the moon, disturbing the separated women folk. But normal persons would not know the secrets of Krishna's life; except saying that Krishna was shepherd, grazing the cows. (190)

The milkmaids told Krishna

Swiayya'

All the young maids of Brij got together and told Krishna that his face was shining (bright) like the moon and his eyes were like the deer's eyes, and he was constantly pestering them with his love; (they remembered him with love constantly) Nothing could affect him with their jealous eyes. They had realized in their hearts and it appeared to them that the (cupid) god of love was hiding in his body due to the fear of Shiva's wrath. (191)

Kahna then said

Swiayya'

Sri Krishana told all the milimaid's children including Balram, "O brothers! Listen to me all of you! You have assumed the form of an incarnation (of Vishnu) and this news had been known throughout the land of gods, (heavens) and none in the world had understood our present form (of milkmen). Then Sri Krishna said, "Now we will play a game, which will please everyone of you." (192)

All the ponds in that area were full of water, which were giving comforts to all the men there. Out of all the ponds, the 'Seit Sarovar' was the biggest and the rays of the moon were shining beautifully in that pond. The sandy patch within that pond was praiseworthy, which has been described by the poet as if the Earth, with hundred eyes, had come there to watch the fun and frolic (wonders) of Sri Krishna. (193)

Sri Krishna was seated there, assuming a handsome appearance which brings cheerfulness to the mind. Sri Krishna was playing there, where there were many deep ponds. Balram alongwith other milkmaid's children were also seated alongwith Krishna, which would bring cheers to the afflicted minds also. On perceiving all these feats the Earth gets delightful and the hair on the body of Earth Like trees, have stood upright. (194)

Sri Krishna, after cooling his body under the tree (shade) started playing on his flute, on hearing the tunes the River Jamuna, birds and snakes, jachh (attendent of Kuber) wild buffalos and rhinoceros (all wild animals) were mesmerised (enchanted); even the learned pandits and the foolish persons were all enticed by the tunes of the flute. The poet has described this as the path towards (Ragas) the musical notes and notes only the tunes of the flute. (195)

On seeing the beautiful form of Sri Krishna the "Earth" felt (within) very much tempted and it looked more impressive and beautiful and it was presently looking more attractive. The poet Siam has described its praiseworthiness as it had worn colourful robes on its body and appeared like the Krishna's consort. (196)

The milkmaids' children said
Swaiyya'

The milkmaids' children prayed to (requested) Sri Krishna "That there was huge tank, which has all around many fruit-laden trees and are loaded with bunches of grapes which are worthy of your taste only. But there lived a demon called Danak, so you could only kill that demon thus saving the lives of people there. Those grapes are like the children of that nectar tank (amrit sarovar) and that demon eats those (fruits) grapes in the morning as he gets up. (197)

Sri Krishan then told them "Let us go to that tank with such nice fruits," When Balram said in between, "The fruits are not only akin to the nectar (amrit) but even nectar is tasteless (as compared to them), so we will go there and after killing the demon we will please the gods also, as they would feel relieved. So all of them got together and playing on the flute like the blowing conch shell, started for that place with great excitement. (198)

So Sri Krishna was greatly pleased, they went together on the sides of that huge tank. Balram then hurled down many fruits on the ground by shaking the tree with the strength of his body like a hail storm (like a shower). The demon Dhenak got furious and struck him with his feet on his chest. But Sri Krishna, catching hold of him by his knees, (threw) hurled him down just as a puppy is thrown by holding him by neck. (199)

Then the demon's army became enraged, and attacked them due to the death of their master. They all assumed the form of cows, and with their hooves they raised the dust from the gound like a storm. Krishna and Balram both threw away the whole army powerfully in all the ten directions, as if a farmer with a pitchfork in hand was throwing the chaff in the air, separating them from the grain. (200)

Here the chapter on the killing of Dhanak (demon) from the episode of Krishna Incarnation of Sri Dasam Sakand Puran of Bachittar Natak is completed.

The whole colourful army alongwith the demon Dhenak were killed, and the gods were singing praises of Krishna on hearing this news. The milkmaid's children then ate up all the fruits by plucking them and went back home. The dust on their faces was looking beautiful and the poet has described the beauty of this scene like this as if the dust rising from the hooves of the galloping horses had covered up the (light) rays of the sun thus looking praiseworthy. (201)

After killing the demon, Krishna alongwith his army of milkmaid's children had come back to their homes when all the women folk came to meet Krishna. The mother was also much delighted and was singing his praises. So she prepared some rice with milk for Krishna to eat and said, "Take more of this food, so that your body will also grow bigger, and even your pigtail will become longer (your strength will increase), and the milkmaids made fun of this thing, when they heard it. (202)

Then Sri Krishna, after partaking the food went to sleep on a cot while the mother started relating this story. There was a king called Dasrath, and he went for hunting at night. There he saw a tank and stayed there, waiting for any animal who would come there for drinking water, so that he could hunt him down. Then someone came for taking water (from the tank) and hearing the sound thinking that it was some wild animal, 'The King shot an arrow at it. The wounded Sarvan said, "Go and give water (to those waiting there)." 'Then the king went there to give them water to drink and heard a curse (hurled at him), after which he went back home (much relaxed) and related this to the consort on meeting (203).

After hearing this episode, Krishna went to sleep and on day dawn, Sri Krishna went to the forest alongwith the calves. At noon he went to the banks of Jamnna, where there was a huge tank. When the black python living there stung them, all the calves alongwith the milkmaids' children fell down dead. Balram went quickly towards Krishna and said, "Your whole army of friends had been killed by the snake." (204)

Couplet

Sri Krishna went and looked upon those children and calves with his benevolent eyes, and they all got up (becoming alive), gaining life again. (205)

All of them fell at the feet of Sri Krishna and started praising him, saying that he had given them a new lease of life, and there could be no greater boon than that." (206)

Now the episode of dealing with the black python (snake) begins.

Couplet

Sri Krishan then thinking of the milkmaids' children as his own (his family members) thought to himself. If the black python lived in the tank, then he should take him out. (207)

Swaiyya'

There was a huge tree of Kadumb and Krishna, going up the tree, jumped into the tank. 'While jumping in the tank he did not have any hesitation in mind and keeping himself cool, he did not relent. Then splash rose up high like seven lengths of man from the tank and a huge black python came out of the tank, but Krishna, on seeing him, did not get frightened. On seeing the human being, wearing (yellow) saffron coloured robes, the snake started fighting against him. (208)

The black python, tied down the body of Krishna, by curling himself around him and started biting his body, but Sri Krishna was behaving carefully, and the on lookers left worried (about his safety) Then the women folk of Brij town started pouring in there, crying and wailing, towards, the tank. They were beating their faces, splitting, pulling their hair in fear. But Nand reprimanded them saying that Krishna would come out safe after killing the snake, so they need not cry." (209)

That time the python had curled around Krishna's body and in great rage was hissing loudly, just as a rich person after losing all his wealth frets and fumes with sighs of sorrow.' The snake's hissing sound in water appeared like the bellows making a similar sound (note) or just as water poured over hot ashes produces a hissing sound. (210)

The children of Brij were bewildered and said, that Sri Krishna would be successful in killing this snake. The wise wonderful were saying while holding each other's womenfolk arms, if any harm would come to Sri Krishna, then happiness and delight would also (be finished) come to an end. In the meantime, all the populace of Brij (town) came running there in search of Krishna and saw for themselves (the scene of) fighting and saw the black python biting Krishan (dark) just as someone eats vegetables (green herbs) with lot of interest. (211)

When Jasodha started crying, then her friends stopped her from crying, saying that his Kahna was very powerful who had earlier killed the demons like Trinavarat, Baki and Bakasur." Then Balram, standing closeby, remarked, "Sri Krishna, after killing this snake also, would come out safety very soon'. The ocean of benevolence (Krishna) was very deceitful clever and powerful, and would tear apart all the fangs of this cobra. (212)

The poet has remarked,

Swaiyya'

When Sri Krishna saw that his friends were getting perturbed (about his safety), he got his body released from the cobra, but seeing his huge orifice (mouth) be became furious with rage, while the cobra also, fanning his hundred fangs and raising them forced himself in front of Krishna. Then Sri Krishna, with a deceptive move, jumped on top of his head and stood there on his head. (213)
